"QUALIFICATIONS FOR THE HEAVENLY LIFE"

At St. Andrew's church yesterday morning, the Rev. W. L. H. Bowand spoke on "Qualifications for the Heavenly Life."

To ignorance, wisdom is foolishness. All men must be trained to accomplish much in life. Studies are necessary for any profession or trade; every work presupposes a preparation which brings skill to the labour and adequate remuneration. Each line of work requires preparation and training, especially adapted to that line. If training is necessary to accomplish much in the physical and mental activities so also do spiritual activities require training of soul.

No man can enjoy architecture, fine literature, fine ornamentation who has not had his taste trained for these things. So in religion, a man cannot read unless he has learned how. Nobody can understand spiritual songs who has not had religious training and experience.

St. John represents heaven as a state, rather than a place. When we have a heavenly nature then we are in heaven. We have peace because there is no inner conflict; there is harmony in the soul. To join in the joys of heaven needs preparation. The man who spends all his energies in gathering gold cannot, when his fortune is amassed, turn around and become public-spirited, charitable, and exercise the powers of an educated man. He has not trained himself for these things. He is a like a fiddle with one string, from which you can get a note, but not harmony.

To join in the heavenly songs requires the use of different strings. The "G" string is necessary; it stands for God. Those who follow the Lamb have the D string. It represents dedication. The man must dedicate his talents, his money, whatever he possesses to some good use. The river is only useful when we harness it and dedicate it to some practical use. So must men dedicate their talents—wisdom, strength, knowledge. Christ dedicated His talents and used them for the good of mankind. The undefiled have the A string in good condition. A stands for achievement. People love the acquisition of things, in earlier life, rewards, medals, trophies, a good name, but when old they want approval of conscience, integrity. Acquisition of good qualities means development of character. The E string stands for education and experience; it represents redemption.

By means of sorrow, pain and distress, but most of all by love and patience, God urges us onward and upward and at length we see that God was in our life. He has bought us with a price and redeemed us from our faults and transgressions, and all the influences which have touched us in life have helped to make us better.

When we have the G, D, A, and E strings in tune then we have harmony and now can sing the song of the redeemed. We are now fitted to enter heaven and heaven is a reality to us.

Margaret Stands by "The Cause"

By JANE OSBORNE

A man who has any imagination regarding feminine psychology must always look with something like concern toward the first meeting of his mother and his wife—or the woman whom he intends to make his wife. So when Blackstone Loomis' mother wrote to her son that she was coming to New York from her home in a middle Western metropolis for a short stay at a hotel of nation-wide fame, he was not altogether sanguine in his anticipation of the meeting of these two women so important in his life.

How would the housewifely and farm-bred mother regard the city and office-bred fiancee? At heart Blackstone knew them to be much the same sort of women. He consoled himself in thinking that had his mother's experience and training been identical with those of Margaret she, too, would have wanted the ballot. He also believed sincerely that had Margaret been married from a farm, as had his mother at the age of eighteen, Margaret, too, would have been as keen about the housewifely tasks as was his mother.

Would the elder woman be shocked at the younger? Would the younger woman be amused by the elder? Had he been too lavish in his praises of these women to each other? He had not, perhaps, thought that they would meet so soon. He had never dreamed that his mother would have the opportunity or the means to take the eastern trip so soon, or he might perhaps not have written so glowingly of the girl to whom he was to be married. He might have somehow prepared his mother for the fact that Margaret was sometimes a little too advanced and progressive in her views. It was several years since he had seen this mother of his and he had not had an opportunity to chat with her about Margaret and letters had perhaps given a too one-sided view of her.

"Whatever else happens," he told the girl on the eve of his mother's expected arrival, "don't let the mother know that you are a feminist."

Blackstone had planned to make this request at the outset of his call on Margaret in her little uptown apartment, where she kept quarters with two other young women who were employed in downtown offices. But it hadn't been so easy as he had expected, and the quick flash that came from Margaret's eyes made him realize that his misgivings had not been ill-founded.

Margaret was outspoken and she did not mince matters at all now. Conceal from his mother that she was a suffragist, a "feminist," as he calls it—why, he was asking her to be a traitor. And what good would it do? Wouldn't the truth come out sometime? Did he want her to act a lie?

Then came the masculine appeal for rationality. "Don't be silly, Margaret," he said. "No one has asked you to act a lie. You don't have to say that you are an anti, or anything like that; but you just needn't say anything about it at all."

"But doesn't your mother know that you are a suffragist?" queried Margaret.

"I can't say that I have ever told her—no." Blackstone had to go cautiously here, for he was well aware of the fact that his conversion to "the cause" had been one of the prerequisites of their engagement. At first Margaret stormed and sputtered a good deal over the request, but finally she acquiesced and gave him to understand that, unless the subject were brought up by his mother, she would not volunteer any information concerning her own convictions.

The next morning early, when Blackstone went to meet his mother, their first connected words were directed to the subject of Margaret, whom the mother was to meet that evening at dinner in Margaret's little apartment. The other girls had agreed to go out for the evening so as to leave her sole hostess for this little family party.

Blackstone winced a little when one of the first questions the mother asked was this: "I don't suppose your Margaret is a suffragist?"

"What makes you think she could be?" he evaded in a way not altogether worthy of one who claimed to be a convert. "Just because she works in an office and hasn't had the advantages of having been brought up in the seclusion of her own home is no reason why she shouldn't be just as homey as—as you are."

Then he continued: "But of course you won't discuss that sort of thing with Margaret, just for my sake." He wanted at least to make it easy for Margaret to maintain her noncommittal point of view, for Margaret had agreed on silence on the subject only so long as the mother did not introduce it.

Although Margaret had protested against agreeing to silence of this sort she was really not especially eager to impart to the lady who was to be her mother-in-law the fact that she was leader and president of the stenographer's suffrage organization in a large downtown district, or that she had firmly made up her mind that after her marriage she should call herself "Mrs. Margaret Loomis," and by no means Mrs. Blackstone Loomis. She realized as well as did Blackstone that the circumstances in which she and his mother had been reared had very much altered cases, and she was no more anxious to hurt or shock the elder woman than was he to have her do so.

That night at dinner first impressions were as favorable as first impressions suspiciously may be, and in order to prevent the conversation from taking a personal turn Blackstone monopolized it to an unusual extent. He had made up his mind not to leave the two women alone and not let them guide the conversation. So he went into needless details regarding his latest law case, explained the meaning of professional terms that were quite beyond the ken or interest of either of the women, and gave a resume of a brief in which he had been recently engrossed.

For a week things went on thus, and the only times that Blackstone feared an open expression of opinion was one night when his mother and Margaret chanced to meet for dinner before he could get on the scene. But apparently nothing disconcerting occurred, and immediately after dinner Margaret excused herself for an important engagement that Blackstone knew to be a meeting of her suffrage club. The next night Margaret had another suffrage engagement, and Blackstone's mother claimed an engagement, too, so it was not until three nights later that the three again met at dinner after Margaret and Blackstone had closed their office desks.

Following dinner came a play, and in spite of the fact that Blackstone had taken his mother and his fiancee to an especially diverting dining place, and in spite of the fact that the play was uncommonly good that night, the evening hours passed slowly and Blackstone felt the effect of the depressed spirits of the two usually high-spirited women.

But he felt even more depressed when he took Margaret home that night after they had seen the mother go to her downtown hotel.

"Blackstone, I'm sorry," Margaret said when they had reached the shelter of her apartment. "I'm sorry, but I can't keep my feelings to myself any longer. I feel like a traitor. The meeting night before last made me feel what a culprit I have been, and then last night at the mass meeting, when I looked around at those women from all over the world working together for each other, I wondered how I had been so despicable as to promise to conceal my interest in the cause from anyone. You don't know how a meeting like that fires and thrills one."

The fact that Blackstone's spirits had already been depressed made him especially susceptible to take offense.

"Then if it were a question of suffrage or me, I suppose you would take suffrage," he said. "I simply asked you to use a little tact in order to prevent my mother being unhappy, and you don't care enough about me or her to do it. I'm sorry, Margaret, but it is better for us to find it out now than later."

"Decidedly," replied Margaret, who could be just as quick to jump at conclusions as her fiance. And when, a few minutes later, Blackstone was out of Margaret's apartment in the street it was with the terrible feeling that Margaret was lost to him forever. Somehow, unreasonably of course, he blamed his mother for this breach of his happiness.

The next morning he joined his mother at breakfast at her hotel.

"Well, my visit is almost over," the mother began over her soft-boiled eggs. "I had hoped to get better acquainted with Margaret, but apparently she does not want to be alone with me. I haven't said two words to her alone, Blackstone."

Blackstone made no answer, so his mother went on. "I suppose it is the eternal barrier that stands between the two types of women. The one will never be able to understand the other, and as the suffrage cause gains more and more converts the barrier only becomes the higher. But there will always be some women on the other side—even when our great victory is won. I suppose it was foolish of me to hope, Blackstone, that your wife would be on our side of that barrier—if she had been then there would never have been any of the mother-in-law and daughter-in-law feeling between us. I was foolish to hope it, perhaps, but, Blackstone, after that wonderful meeting night before last I felt so thrilled that it seemed for the time as if the barrier might be broken down and that all women might rally to the same cause. I wish that you and Margaret might have been there."

Blackstone leaned over the table at which he and his mother were sitting. "You don't mean you were at the suffrage mass meeting, do you, mother?"

"Why, certainly," came quite calmly. "How do you think I managed to come East and stay at one of the biggest hotels if it wasn't as a delegate from our section to the convention?"

"Why didn't you tell me sooner?" gasped Blackstone—and for the first time that morning the sharpness of Margaret's scornful glance of the night before ceased to pierce him.

"You didn't ask me," was the mother's reply, but with the briefest excuses, Blackstone had left his place and was encased in the nearest telephone booth to get in touch with his fiancee before she left for her office.

"I want you and mother to have luncheon today," he said. "No, I'm not to be in this, and just for my sake I want you to tell my mother that you are a suffragist, and I want you to tell her that I'm one, too. You're a trump and I'm proud of you. And you have taught me one thing, Margaret—that it is always best to stick by the cause—even in the face of a mother-in-law to be."

London Daily News: Apropos of the Ulster demand to-day for Conscription for Ireland, I have a suggestion to make. Why not try a Referendum in Ulster itself on Conscription for Ireland? I believe the figures would make Mr. Hughes' little mishap in Australia seem quite a moral victory.

G. T. R. Mechanics To Receive $500,000 More In Year's Wage

Company and Men Sign An Agreement at Conciliation Board—Sessions Were Marked by Mutual Respect by the Company's Officials and the Men.

Round-house and other terminal workmen in the G.T.R. system will share in the company's new wage scale, which increases the men's payroll by an amount between $500,000 and $750,000. The average yearly increase exceeds $300. This new wage schedule applies to the men in the mechanical departments, machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, steamfitters, plumbers, electric welders. Over 120 occupations share in the new wages. This agreement affects the entire G.T.R. system in Canada and applies to the men in over thirty cities. There may be a few men in Peterborough who are included, and there may be none for the reason that this city is not a divisional point, at which mechanics are required. Lindsay and Belleville are probably the nearest centres.

The award of the Board of Conciliation which met in Stratford last week, provides for a nine hour day, time and a half for overtime and legal holidays.

Employes not to be laid off during regular working hours to equalize overtime.

Grievance committees to be established in the shops who can take complaints to officials, until the highest official is reached. This is recognition of the employes' committees.

When reduction of expenses is necessary, the employes to be placed on eight-hour day before staff is reduced. When staff is reduced, seniority to govern. When full staff again needed men who were laid off to be given preference, if available.

Apprentice system regulated, by allowing one apprentice for every three mechanics employed, and one for the shop.

Apprentices to serve four years, and then receive the minimum rate for journeymen.

Helpers not to be advanced to the detriment of mechanics or apprentices, unless men's committee has been unable to furnish men after two weeks' notification, work not to be delayed in the meantime.

No More Improvers.

No more improvers to be employed, and the improver system will pass away automatically, as the men at present employed are made proficient.

New schedule of wages arrived at equivalent to the standard rates for the mechanical trades on the C. P. R. and other roads.

Helpers after two years' experience to receive a minimum rate of 35 cents per hour, after three years, 39 cents per hour, and after four years minimum rate of journeymen.

Operates in March.

The G. T. R. Company, and the men's representatives signed the agreement, which becomes operative on the 1st of March, 1918, and continues in operation for a year, when 30 days' notice in writing is required to change it. The whole of the negotiations before the board were marked by a desire on both sides to avoid taking an arbitrary position. While the men's representatives had the full power of their organizations behind them, they forbore arbitrariness, and so did the company officials. The agreement arrived at was made the unanimous award of the board.

$233 A Heavy Bill For One Purchase Of Montreal Stuff

A bottle of "Old Teddy" whiskey, two-third empty, looked across the police court room this morning at three young men, who showed the usual tell-tale after effects of intoxication.

One of them had paved the way to their Saturday night carousal by ordering through a south end resident four bottles of Scotch from Montreal. They cost him $5.50, and at five o'clock on Saturday, after finishing work, he called at the house of the obliging friend. As an eye-opener he took three or four drinks from one bottle and returned up town with two others, leaving the fourth one, probably for future sustenance. Saturday night he sallied down town carrying an active cargo within, and his coat lopsided with one of the big untapped bottles. He filled up two of his friends until they fancied they could trim the police force and run the town, on the wild ideas of Bolsheviki. Sergt. Kidd and Constables Deannard and Lawrence took the fight out of them and this morning the two friends were fined $13.75 each, and the young man with the thirst that reached to Montreal was relieved of $200, with an option of three months in jail. Booze fights these days cost real money. This purchase alone set the trio back $233.00.

NO CHANCE FOR THE GERMS.

Disease germs cannot live in rich, red blood. It is people in low vitality that fall victims to germ diseases. By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you enrich the blood, increase vitality and prevent disease germs from finding lodgment in your body. There's wisdom in prevention. It's easier to keep well than to get well.

SOLDIERS' DEPENDENTS HAVE NOT ASKED THAT GOVERNMENT ASSUME THE PATRIOTIC FUND

The February number of the Canadian Patriotic Fund Bulletin, in its leading article, declares that the popular demand that the Government take over the Fund has not been fully considered by the public.

"The demand for Federal maintenance arises mainly from the feeling that under that condition the burden would be more equitably borne than is now the case. . . It is significant, however, that there has been practically no agitation for Federal adoption by the class that is most interested, the soldiers' dependents themselves. . . By its Act of Incorporation, the Fund was invested by Parliament with a dual responsibility, to collect and to distribute money. By force of circumstance it has assumed almost everywhere a third responsibility, the responsibility of seeing that not merely does a soldier's wife have sufficient for her proper maintenance but that she receives the sympathy, comfort and practical aid in all her problems that she would otherwise expect from her husband.

The public does not realize the tremendous amount of labour that the voluntary assumption of this third responsibility has entailed. A large portion of the public does not realize that the third responsibility has ever been assumed. Montreal is, of course, the city in which social service work among soldiers' families has been most largely developed, developed to an extent that, as one writer has put it, "with every dollar that went to a soldier's family there went, at a low estimate, at least a dollar's worth of volunteer service, which in many cases meant far more than money value in family rehabilitation and succour." But while Montreal is the outstanding example, the same responsibility, to a lesser extent, has been assumed everywhere throughout the country. A recent report of the Elgin County Branch, for instance, says: "Our association has written over 600 letters of enquiry and business correspondence for the soldiers' families of this county during the same period" (year ending November 30th, 1917). "Up to the present the delivery of 279 casualty notices in and adjacent to St. Thomas has been supervised by the association and every effort made to have friends and those in sympathy with the recipients perform this not easy task." "In June, 1917, the officers of the association sent out a card suggesting that the soldiers' families set aside a portion of their patriotic pay to provide, as fuel account for the coming winter. This plan met with ready co-operation. Arrangements have been made with the local dealers for coal at a guaranteed price and up to the prsent time between two and three thousand dollars have accumulated in this fund."

In Elgin County "a substantial amount of the Victory War Bonds is being purchased by the soldiers' families. . . In Hespeler 105 soldiers' wives out of 112 have bank accounts or are paying for houses, and recently they purchased no less than $7,000 worth of Victory Bonds. In Hamilton 283 soldiers' wives authorized the committee to deduct $3.50 per month until a sufficient amount had been retained to purchase one $25 War Saving Certificate. Only a small proportion of this saving would have been effected if it had not been for the advice and co-operation of the Patriotic Fund Committees. Over 50 per cent. of local committees are encouraging their beneficiaries to save and in some places, notably Saskatchewan, Victoria, B.C., Brantford, Prince Edward Island, Huron County, Ont., Coaticook and Bury, P.Q., and Newcastle, Woodstock, and Edmunston, N.B., the committees have inaugurated a system of Trust Savings Accounts.

An important part of the third responsibility is the correspondence, on behalf of soldiers' dependents, with the Separation Allowance and Assigned Pay Division of the Militia Department. Only during the past few months has that Division recovered from the tremendous wave of work with which it was flooded during the early months of the war. The Patriotic Fund has succeeded in securing the adjustment of separation allowance claims for thousands of women by giving the Department all the facts that an adjustment necessitated. Every day letters come in to the Head Office of the Fund enquiring as to the separation allowance of this or that soldier's wife. These are immediately taken over to the Militia Department by a clerk and an immediate settlement secured. When the allowance is delayed, and in the early days it was delayed in literally thousands of cases, the Fund steps into the breach and sees that the dependant does not suffer pending action by the Militia Department.

The Bulletin adds that the policy to be followed in 1919 has not yet been considered by the National Executive Committee, and that no proposals in respect to that year have been made to the Government.

SILVER THIMBLE CAMPAIGN

The Y.M.C.A. is endeavoring to raise $50,000 for free drinkables for the Canadian Force in France. The W.O.T.U. is aiming to aid the Y.M.C.A. by securing $25,000 of this amount:

Tune: Tipperary.
B.D.T.

The boys are hot and thirsty,
And the boys are cold and wet;
The boys are fighting bravely,
But there's lots of fighting yet.
We've heard they're needing coffee,
When they're tired "Over there,"
So we've started out to raise a fund—
Please won't you take a share?

Chorus:

It's a long way to twenty-five thousand,
It's a long way to go—
But if you'll get in behind us,
We'll soon be there I know,
Turn your thimbles to cups of coffee,
And your old spoons into tea—
It's a long, long way to twenty-five thousand,
But we'll get there, you'll see!

My mother gave three teaspoons,
And my grandma's locket, too,
She didn't like to part with them—
Not any more than you—
My dad he found two cuff-links,
And a watch that wouldn't go;
And sister wears a thimble,
From the Five Cent Store I know.

Chorus:

My brother, he's in Flanders—
Said to melt his silver mug,
And mother thought our sideboard,
Didn't need that extra jug;
I found an old umbrella,
With a handle, we could send;
And someone sent ten dollars in Just marked "From Soldiers' Friend."

Chorus:

When Tommy gets to Berlin,
And goes riding through in style,
He'll thank the guns and aeroplanes,
And tanks for mile on mile;
He'll not forget the Navy,
Nor the Red Cross, nor the "Y"
But if his thanks come home to me—
I'll know the reason why!

The Great War Veterans

Mayor Duncan has set the heather on fire so far as the Great War Veterans are concerned. His remarks in the Council the other evening have brought the organization and its individual members so prominently before the public that the discussion of its aims and objects and its rights as a prominent organization in this city will receive much attention. It will also bring out just what the public might be expected to do for the association, which is representing twenty-five hundred overseas men.

No one will surely suggest that the Veterans of this great war should not be recognized in a fitting way in every manner possible, but the means of recognition seems to be the cause for argument at the present time.

A crisis such as exists at present was bound to come at some time, and if the steady men on both sides of the question give it earnest attention and fair consideration, the situation would no doubt be cleared of a great many misapprehensions that exist at the present time.

More Men To Be Added To The Police Force

Police Commissioners Are Not Satisfied With the Patrol Service in the Outlying Districts

At a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners held on Saturday afternoon, His Honor Judge Huycke, the chairman of the board, referred to the claim of some of the manufacturers of the city for a larger measure of police protection in the outlying parts of the city.

Judge Huycke said that while it is admitted that Peterboro has a good police force, there is a growing feeling of dissatisfaction regarding the force. There are many who claim that the present establishment is inadequate. From the fire standpoint, there should be more men. Deputy Fire Marshall Pointon, who was in the city recently, complained of the inadequacy of the present force.

"The patrol of the outside parts of the city is a positve farce," said His Honor Judge Huycke. For sometime past complaints have been made by E. G. Patterson, superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Company, regarding the lack of police protection in that particular district. Then again we are not in a position to protect the interests of the vacant lot gardeners and those who raise chickens. "We have got to increase the efficiency of the police force, regardless of expense," said Judge Huycke.

POLICE MAGISTRATE.

"A large measure of responsibility falls to me as Police Magistrate of the city," said Magistrate Dumble. The other day two men were convicted of stealing from a local manufacturing concern. The men confessed, and the goods were recovered. After the case was disposed of the firm involved started a petition to have the two men released. Some one said the firm in question wanted to employ one of the men. That shows the inconsistency of the thing. I think the C.G.E. should be invited to state in writing what they require or expect. This would serve as a foundation upon which we could act. On Saturday afternoon a returned soldier was convicted of theft, and appeals were made by clergymen and others. The people want the law enforced, and when it is enforced they turn around and get out a petition. That is how consistent they are," said Mr. Dumble.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong was instructed to write to Mr. Patterson of the C. G. E., and ascertain what is required.

Magistrate Dumble pointed out that with only eight men on the force four men were off duty, leaving only four men for patrol work, which was not enough.

Chief of Police Thompson was instructed to add four more men to the force so as to bring the department up to the authorized strength of twelve men. At a meeting to be held some time this week the Commissioners will deal with the advisability of increasing the authorized strength.

The salary increase asked for by Chief Thompson will amount to over $1500. This is another question that was left over for a subsequent meeting.

During The Past Year Fewer Cases Were Dealt With By The Local Police Department

Five Hundred and Seventy-eight Cases Were Disposed of During the Year—Prohibition is a Boon to the Community Says Chief of Police Thompson in His Eighth Annual Budget—Men Are Seeking a Raise in Wages—Much Stolen Property Recovered During the Year.

A DETAILED STATEMENT

The eighth annual report of Chief of Police Thompson was presented at a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners held yesterday afternoon. The report is replete with details covering the operations of the police force during the past year. Five hundred and seventy-eight cases were disposed of during the year, which is a decrease of one hundred and forty-nine over the previous year.

The crime sheet for 1917 was free of murder, and the more serious forms of crime appear to be on the decrease. Under the heading of "general remarks," Chief Thompson has the following to say:

General Remarks.

Since the inauguration of the Ontario Temperance Act in 1916, I am pleased to say that drunkenness in our city has been almost eliminated, which speaks well for the effectiveness of the Act. Many homes and families which suffered severely previous to the inception of the said Act have since been made homes in the very sense of the word, and the families are enjoying comforts of life which previously they had not known.

Men who were known to spend a large amount of their wages on strong drink have experienced the good results of the bars being closed, and from a business standpoint we have the best of evidence from the merchants of the fact that business has been fifty per cent. better than it was under license, and they now see the ready cash from families who formerly would want credit. This, I am sure, is gratifying to all concerned. The following figures will speak for themselves: During the year 1915, while we were under license, a total of 324 cases of drunkenness and breaches of the Liquor License Act were disposed of, and during the year 1917, only 139 cases of drunkenness and breaches of the Ontario Temperance Act were tried in Court, showing a decrease of 185, which approximately is the result of the decrease in our total number of convictions.

We regret very much that it is necessary for us and our nation to enter upon the fourth year of this terrible war, and yet we are proud of the fact that the citizens of Peterborough and the county have responded so nobly to our King and country by sending some thousands of men to the front. The splendid reports we have received speak well for the efficiency of both officers and men.

Great credit is due to the Patriotic Committee, for the able manner in which they have conducted this part of the work, also to the citizens of Peterborough for the generous response they have made in every way to assist in the winning of this war.

Too much cannot be said for the president and ladies of the Red Cross Society, who have worked almost day and night in the interest of this noble cause. The great results of this work they have done will never be known until the war is over.

But the victory for freedom has not yet been fully won. The foe at times is forced to retreat, but he contests every foot of ground, and the advance of the Allies has been as costly as it is glorious. In this advance the soldiers of Canada have fought as bravely as their comrades of Britain and the rest of our Allies. The call for reinforcements, which we in confidence promised to supply, so that we at home may be able to show that we are as jealous for the reputation of Canada as they, and as determined to prosecute the war until complete victory is achieved, the call comes from those who gave themselves in answer to our first appeal. They do not seek relief for themselves; they only ask that their ranks shall be kept filled, and we who sent them away to guard our honour and protect our institutions, cannot do less than resolve that the response to their appeals shall be speedy and adequate. As one has said, it may be that the day is not far distant when peace over all the earth her ancient splendours fling, and that somewhere in the distance there is a hill-top, bathed in the sunshine of victory, and radiant with glory of the morning, this is our hope and prayer.

I again desire to express my thanks to Mrs. McElheney, our Police Matron, for the able manner in which she has performed her duties in connection with female prisoners and the Juvenile Court, and when circumstances prevented her from attending to such work, Adjutant McElheney has taken up the work and carried it successfully through, for which I am very grateful.

I also wish to express my thanks to Mr. Joseph Wearing, solicitor, for the Children's Aid Society, for the manner in which he has devoted his time and ability in connection with the work of the said society and at the Juvenile Court. The work of the society has been very expensive this year, and much credit is due to Mr. G. W. Powell, the local agent, for the efficient manner in which he has performed his duties.

I also desire to express my thanks to G. W. Hatton, County Crown Attorney, for the deep interest he has taken in the work of the department, and for placing his team and sleigh at our disposal during the coal shortage. In this way we were able to relieve many cases of real need and suffering.

I again take this opportunity of thanking the citizens of Peterborough in general for the kind assistance they have rendered the Police Department at all times during the year.

my office. In connection with the large amount of communications and investigations which have to be made and reported upon, and in order to keep the work up to efficiency, it re-

The fuel question has added very great and additional work to the department. Up to the present time we have made about fifteen hundred investigations in connection with citizens applying for coal. In this way we were able to conserve the fuel on hand, and those really in need were supplied. In doing this work we relieved the Council of responsibility of appointing a man for that purpose and thereby entailing extra expense.

The Military Service Act, as your honourable body knows, has added extensive and responsible duties to quires many hours of overtime

The amount of fines and costs collected by the Department during the year totalled $5,883.33; of this amount $3,534.04 was paid over to the City Treasurer, and $2,369.29 was paid over to the Government.

The general health and conduct of the Department during the year has been good.

Recommendations.

Owing to the ever increasing cost of living, and as your honourable board knows that the purchasing power of a dollar has dwindled to such an extent, it will be necessary, in order to retain our men of experience and to get other men to fill the present four vacancies now on the Department, to raise the salaries in accordance with the opportunities presented in other walks of life. I would therefore recommend that the staff receive a substantial increase in pay. And would ask that my own salary be increased two hundred and fifty dollars.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada meets in convention for the year 1918 in the city of Hamilton, Ont., and I trust, gentlemen, you will permit me to attend same, accompanied with the necessary appropriation.

In conclusion, I desire to thank your honourable body personally for the courtesy I have received, and for the interest you have taken in the working of the Department in order that it might be kept up to efficiency.

Should Have 4 More Equipment Says Mr. Dumble

Hose Tower is a Necessity—Police Commissioners Meet

The Board of Police Commissioners met Saturday afternoon, and among other things, suggested that the city take immediate steps to improve the fire-fighting resources of the city. Magistrate Dumble was of the opinion that a hose tower should be added to the equipment. This would concentrate a large volume of water at any desired point. "Such a piece of apparatus is a necessity for three or more storey buildings," said Mr. Dumble.

Mr. G. N. Gordon presented a tabulated report covering the settlement in the Quinn versus Thompson case. The costs in this action were paid by the plaintiff.

"Lawsuits are a luxury and people who must have a lawsuit must pay for them," observed Magistrate Dumble.

Mr. Gordon was paid one hundred dollars for expenses incurred in connection with the action.

In future the Board will consult with Dr. C. H. Amys, Medical Officer of Health, regarding applications for junk shop licenses. This will give the Medical Officer of Health an opportunity of inspecting all new locations from the standpoint of sanitation and other matters.

Perusing the annual report of Chief of Police Thompson, Magistrate Dumble discovered a reference to the inspection of vacant houses during the summer months when the occupants are away summering. Magistrate Dumble was of the opinion that the occupants of such houses should pay for the services rendered. Two inspections are made each night by the police.

Chief Thompson said that similar work was done in other cities without additional cost to the householders.

The matter of granting a license for a second-hand store to T. W. Hubel, Aylmer street, was referred to Chief Thompson for further investigation.

The resignation of Constable J. W. Sandbach was accepted by the Board. The Chief reported that Sandbach had been found off duty.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Jos. Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—The Bolsheviki are rushing a big army from Moscow against Gen. Alexieff, whose forces are now near Voronezch. The latter is seeking to cut the Voronezch-Moscow railway on his march toward Petrograd.

Give The Bolsheviki A Chance

That Is Advice of Well Known War Correspondent

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—"We should be willing to give the Bolsheviki a chance to do for Germany what they have done for themselves in throwing off the yoke of militarism. I do not like to see all the adverse criticism of Lenine or Trotsky which is going around," said Mr. William C. Shepperd, one of the Examiner's war correspondents, who has represented the United Press on all fronts since the war began. Mr. Shepperd is in Toronto to address the Canadian Club, and in an interview here he gave some interesting views on the world war from all sides.

Lloyd George, President Wilson and France and Belgium are fighting so that all war may cease, and that can be made possible by the people of Germany, just as it was made possible by the people of Russia in fifteen minutes when they abolished the autocracy," he said. "The Bolsheviki have done more in the past three months to realize this aim than the Russian armies were able to do in three years," he continued. "That may sound strange, but every German regiment which came into peaceful contact with the Russians became a poisoned regiment from that hour, and became sympathetic with the aims of the Russian people.

Dutch Minister Robbed

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The Dutch Minister to Russia was robbed and stripped of his clothing on the palace quay, according to Petrograd despatches received to-day by the London Mail.

ENGLAND'S BEER.

Lowell Courier Citizen: Great Britain was brewing 36 million barrels of beer annually before the war began. A year ago the output had been reduced to 27 million. And since that time it has fallen to from 10 to 14 million. It is therefore hardly fair to say, as one contemporary has done, that "England has gone right on drinking all the beer she wants, war or no war." She has not only cut down consumption about two-thirds, but what she does recive is diluted to an imitation of the original article.

A USE FOR EDITORS.

Huntingdon Gleaner: City papers are lecturing farmers on the urgent necessity of their making all the maple sugar and syrup that is possible. When the farmers make the syrup, will those papers tell them where they are to put it? Tin has gone soaring and the prospect is that cans will cost 25 cents apiece. In all probability they will not be obtainable in any considerable number. Perhaps there is wood enough in the heads of the editors, professors, commissioners, and controllers, who are so abundant in their advice to farmers to make small casks.

MR. R. C. HEARD A LUCKY WINNER

The fourth birthday competition among Canadian owners of motor cars, instituted by the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co., of Montreal, brought thousands of replies from all parts of Canada. The result showed December 25th to be the most popular birthday date, and December 30th the least popular birthday date.

Among the list of lucky winning car owners who returned cards for the most popular date, appears the name of Mr. R. C. Heard, of Peterborough, proprietor of the Water Street agricultural warehouse. Last week Mr. Heard was presented with one of the company's newly designed "Dominion" tyres, which was delivered by express free of all charge. The present day value of the tyre is said to be about $35.

As a unique advertising feature, the Canadian Consolidated Rubber Co. have made their birthday competion an excellent medium of publicity for their goods.

Music & Drama

THE KATZENJAMMER KIDS.

Hans and Fritz, the Captain, the Inspector and Ma Katzenjammer, all familiar characters in the comic sections, cavorted around the stage at the Grand on Saturday afternoon and evening, when "The Katzenjammer Kids" was the offering. The programme stated that the attraction was written for laughing purposes only, and two large audiences seemed to agree with that description. Gus Alexander and Joseph Short were funny and clever as Hans and Fritz, and their antics kept the audience amused. The musical numbers were good and the chorus handsomely gowned and well trained.

The next attraction at the Grand is the appearance of Julius Velie to-morrow night in Chauncey Olcott's Irish song play, "Isle O' Dreams."

CHIMNEY FIRE.

The Fire Department were called to 579 Aylmer street this morning at 9.30 to a chimney fire. No damage was done.

Firewood Of Her Furniture, Unable To Purchase Coal

Only one car of nut coal arrived in the city this morning, consigned to J. E. A. Fitzgerald's yards. It was immediately sold, and comparatively few citizens were fortunate in getting even the limited supply doled out.

The city received a car of cannel coal on Saturday and the Fuel Committee held a special meeting this afternoon to consider how it should be apportioned.

The police turned away a stream of applicants who begged for fuel of some kind. One woman pleaded that she was breaking up some of her old furniture and using it as firewood, but Chief Thompson was helpless.

"There is not much hoep for the rest of the winter," was the laconic statement of Mr. Robert Hicks, who has returned from Buffalo. Apparently, he added, the sidings have been cleared of the sequestered cars during the past ten days.

It is understood that there are several cars at Port Hope for Peterboro, but it is not known whether they contain anthracite or bituminous coal.

The coal situation has simply swung from bad to worse. A hundred orders on Saturday were returned unfilled to the police, and on Saturday the number was greatly increased. The only cheer the police handed out were soft answers, comforting comments on the weather, and flattering hopes that overdue cars would wander in from somewhere.

SKATING PARTY WAS BIG SUCCESS

The members of the King's Own Class of St. James' Methodist Church held a very successful skating party at the Brock Street Rink on Thursday evening, Feb. 14th.

They returned afterwards to the home of Miss Audrey and Beatrice Meredith, where they were served with hot buttered toast and cocoa, which had been prepared by the girls who were unable to skate. There non-skaters spent the evening in games and contests, the prize for the evening being a "sweetheart" was secured by Miss Lily Hiscox.

The rooms were very prettily decorated in the Valentine colours and the class, at the conclusion of the lunch, extended a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Meredith for her kindness in inviting them to her home and making them so welcome.

She was a sincere Christian lady, kind and sympathetic, always ready to sacrifice herself to help others. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, one daughter, Alice, and an adopted daughter, Miss Mary Carson; her mother, two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Gordon, Hardisty, Alta, and Mrs. E. H. Mann, of this city; five brothers, Elias, George, Rob., Dave and Arch., of Dunsford. Their many friends convey heartfelt sympathy to the families who have been so suddenly bereaved.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

GERMAN FORCES MARCHING ON PETROGRAD

Fighting Has Been Resumed At All Points

MASSACRE 1,500 BOLSHEVIKI AS POWER WANES--REIGN OF TERROR SWEEPING RUSSIA

White Guards Defeat Red Guards at Petchersk and Slaughtered Are All Found Wearing Workmen's Blouses or Having Horny Hands —Food Shortage Is Acute

MOBS OF LOOTERS BATTLE SOLDIERS AND KILL 100 IN NIGHT IN PETROGRAD

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19.— The horrors of the French Revolution, which overthrew oppressive autocracy and out of which grew the nation's strongest government, are being re-enacted in Russia. The first direct cable despatches from Petrograd since February 6 indicate that the power of the Bolsheviki is waning slowly, weakened by the absence of soldiers and the attack on the Church.

Rioting has been common in the capital for two weeks, the uncontrolled mobs looting wine cellars and jewelry shops, just as the lawless mobs did in Paris in the French Revolution. Shooting in the streets is common day and night, "but increases at night." More than a hundred persons were killed in one night.

The White Guards, backed by the Germans, are preparing to oust the Bolsheviki Red Guards at Petrograd, while the masses of Jews fear the coming reaction, because the Bolsheviki are almost all Jews.

At Petchersk the White Guards defeated the Red Guards, massacring 1,500 persons, or "all they found wearing workmen's blouses and having horny heads." They also shot the members of the Revolutionary Military Committee.

The Bolsheviki troops "are fighting desperately and are determined to act mercilessly against the bloody mercenaries of the Ukranian bourgeoisie."

Food is very short in Northern Russia, the bread now containing much straw and being indigestible. Forty thousand liberated German and Austrian prisoners of war face starvation in Petrograd.

John Reed, an American socialist writer, under indictment in New York for seditious activities, has reached Stockholm on his way back from Petrograd to be the Bolsheviki Consul General in New York. He says Trotzky assured him that the Bolsheviki would retaliate upon Ambassador Francis if the American government tried to prosecute him on the indictment.

Petrograd reports that German regiments on the Russian front are in open revolt, refusing to be transferred to the western front; that they have seized artillery and ammunition and are being besieged by loyal German troops.

The White Guards in Northern Finland are being reinforced by the Germans to march against the Red Guards holding Helsingfors.

Vienna reports Roumania willing to discuss peace with the Central Powers if the dynastic government is guaranteed. She will surrender Dobrudja in return for Bessarabia.

The Germans Are Marching On Petrograd

Fighting Has Been Resumed At All Points

Canadian Press Despatch:

BERLIN, Feb. 19.— Germans have crassed the Dvinsk river and are pushing on toward Petrograd. Fighting is resumed at all points. Five million Russians are still under arms and will resist the Germans.

ARMISTICE HAS EXPIRED.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—(British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—The armistice between the Russian and German forces which has been in existence for several weeks on the Russian front, expired at noon yesterday, according to the official statement issued by the German Army Headquarters Staff. The text reads.

"Eastern Theatre—On the great Russian front the armistice expired at noon yesterday."

GERMAN SUPPLIES MENACED.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 19.—Discussing the puzzling relations between Germany and Russia, the Koelnische Zeitung says:

"Our bread peace with the Ukraine is threatened. Fighting between the Bolsheviki and the Rada already has brought the Rada government into such peril that it has been transferred from Kieff to Zhitomir, and the suburbs of Kieff already are in the hands of the Bolsheviki. This fighting not only endangers the Rada government but the supplies of food in the country.

"The Bolsheviki are rushing troops to reinforce the anti-Rada forces, including the Nineteenth infantry division and parts of the Second Guards Corps. Further fighting is to be expected, which has a serious character for us."

GERMANY BLAMES RUSSIA.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 19.—An official statement issued by the German Imperial government states that the Petrograd government by its conduct has denounced the armistice which has been in existence on the Russian front. This denouncement is regarded as having occurred February 10.

MILLIONS MAY HAVE TO BE RAISED BY WAY OF INCOME TAX

Hon. Frank B. Carvell Says He Isn't Announcing Policy, But Says Canada Must Raise $800,000,000 in Coming Fiscal Year

MUST FACE CONDITIONS; MUST RAISE MONEY

MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—Hon. Frank B. Carvell, Minister of Public Works, addressing the members of the Montreal Canadian Club yesterday, said that during the coming fiscal year the country had to raise something like $800,000,000 and while he was not announcing any policy, he declared that, if the could not raise the money by way of tariffs, there was only one source of revenue and that was by asking the men who had the money to contribute a portion of it by way of income tax.

"We have to face the situation," he declared, "we must steel ourselves to face conditions and must realize that this money must be forthcoming. Every dollar has been taken out of the people by way of customs taxation that can be—it is as high as anybody can wish to see it—and there is no way of getting the necessary money except by a system of direct taxation and I want to press that home on the people of Canada."

Mr. Carvell expressed a wish that the people of Canada would give a little more attention to the great economic and trade questions which were before the Dominion. If they did, he had no fear for the future of the Dominion with all its natural wealth and resources.

Government Getting Poorer.

Mr. Carvell said there was hardly a man in Canada who was not in a better finnacial position individually since war started than he was before. But the Government of Canada has been getting poorer and poorer, and to-day it was faced with a condition such as no Government had ever faced before in Canada. Before the war the revenues of the country were about $175,000,000, practically all obtained from Customs and excise duties, and that sum had been expended wisely, perhaps, or unwisely, but it came so easily that it did not make much difference. During the present year they had to raise $25,000,000 to carry on the ordinary affairs of the country.

Sixty million dollars had to be provided for interest charges, and at least ten millions or more for soldiers and that might go as high as twenty millions. In addition to this $400,000,000 had to be provided to pay for the goods which were being sold by Canada to Great Britain and the allies and which they could not pay for at the moment. During the present fiscal year Canada would send to Great Britain probably over $300,000,000 worth of goods including munitions, but unfortunately she only imported about $90,000,000 worth and that left an adverse balance of trade of $800,000,000 which must be taken care of in some way. The railway problem would take up probably $35,000,000 or $40,000,000, cheese-[illegible] the best way they could. The Government had to provide at least $145,000,000 to pay its debts and carry on the army in Canada in addition to $200,000,000 for the army across seas, although this latter sum would not be actually paid out.

Has Faith in People.

Mr. Carvell referred to the recent Victory Loan and said he had sufficient faith in the people of Canada that if next August or September there was a call for another $400,000,000, the Government would get it.

"We may just as well realize," he declared, "that the time has come when we must be self-supporting. We must buy our products and send them across the ocean and must furnish the necessary money and the only way to do it is for the people of Canada to dig down into their pockets, and I believe they will do it."

The Minister referred to the balance of trade against Canada in the United States and said that there was at lest $350,000,000 to be provided for this, nd some scheme must be devised for this.

Crvell on Railroads.

Discussing the railway problem, he described the C. P. R. as a splendidly managed, dividend paying concern, the Grand Trunk as well managed, but unable to meet the interest liabilities of seven millions loaded on it by the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Canadian Northern as a white elephant, the National Transcontinental as a splendid railway, but no revenue getter, and the Intercolonial, which had always been, up to the present, a political machine, as, therefore, very, very badly managed. He declared that up to date no Government in Canada had ever succeeded in operating a railway properly, but may be the present Government possessed more ability than it's predecessors, and possibly might be able to do what others had failed to do, but it was a lamentable fact that Gvernment operation of railways had been one of the most tragic farces the country had ever seen.

Alluding to the Government shipbuilding programme, Mr. Carvell said the Government felt it its paramount duty to make a start with $35,000,000 or $40,000,000, and he hoped next year it would be still greater because although the cost per ton might be greater, still the country must have ships.

He believed shipbuilding might be a great industry in Canada, and he predicted the steel manufacturers would have sufficient ability, energy, and business acumen to so arrange things that the plates would be rolled in Canada in future and not imported from foreign countries.

Soldiers to Read Browning.

The Boston Browning society is preparing a booklet of selections from the poet's writings for use in American military camps and in the trenches.

Men of action, according to the officers of the society, like poetry, and this contention is backed by a quotation from the London Chronicle in relation to the trip of Sir Ernest Shackleton to the Antarctic: "The library of the Endurance went down with her. Only a few personal volumes survived. Among them were two Brownings. Sir Ernest had one and Mr. McNish, the carpenter, had the other." F. Herbert Stead thus comments: "The commander and the carpenter both found Browning the indispensable companion of their most perilous voyage."

DECISION IN HORSE CASE

Mr. Middleton Won His Case Against Mr. Harry Applebaum

Lindsay Warder: An important decision was given by His Honour Judge Swayze in the case of Middleton vs. Appelbaum, which was argued before His Honour at the December sittings of the court held in Lindsay. It was a judgment which has been anxiously awaited by every farmer and horseman in the County of Victoria. Even in Peterborough and near-by towns horsemen were assiduous concerning the ruling that His Honour would give out in this case.

The action was taken by the plaintiff, Middleton, to recover balance claimed on purchase price of a horse and money expended upon him on veterinary fees. After the sale of the horse by Middleton it was taken to his pasture lands at the request of the defendant, Applebaum. While there the horse met with an accident causing serious injury, from which it afterwards died.

His Honour held the ownership of the horse had passed to the defendant Appelbaum, and with it the risk. He also held there was no warranty and no negligence on the part of the plaintiff.

Mr. Jesse Bradford acted for the plaintiff, and Mr. A. M. Fulton for the defendant.

The judge also gave judgment for veterinary fees, balance of purchase price and costs of action against the defendant.

LIVER TROUBLE and HEARTBURN CURED BY MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

When the liver is torpid and inflamed it cannot furnish bile to the bowels, causing them to become bound and costive. The symptoms are a feeling of fullness or weight in the right side, and shooting pains in the same region, pains between the shoulders, yellowness of the skin and eyes, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, bad taste in the morning, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills gently unlock the secretions, clear away all effete and waste matter from the system, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal track, and are by far the safest and quickest remedy for all diseases or disorders of the liver.

Mrs. A. Cummings, Manchester, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills some time, and can faithfully recommend them to anyone suffering from heartburn and liver trouble. I tried a great many other remedies but they only relieved me for a time. I believe Laxa-Liver Pills to be a valuable remedy for all sufferers from liver troubles."

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"There's a tray with a teapot and a covered dish on it outside of number 10, around the bend in the hall; but that's not what gave me a jolt. A man is leaning across the desk talking to the boss. I could see him from the end of the bar over the top of the little swing door that leads into the office, and I finished my drink quick, I can tell you. 'Tis the man you lost in such grand style not two hours ago—the man with the skull cap!"

CHAPTER XIX.

WHERE THE ROAD FORKED.

Dennis awoke the next morning with a puzzled start at the unfamilarity of his surroundings. Strange, sprawling wall paper met his view, and stiff, shiny furniture, and worse than all, it appeared that he was alone. A smart breeze flapped the shade, and the sun pouring in at the window flooded the empty iron bed across the room.

Dennis sat up suddenly.

"Mac—Tim!"

"Whist!" McCarty, fully dressed but for his coat, was peering out through the aperture of the partly opened door. "You'll have to get a move on you. The girl in number 10, where you saw the tray last night, is moving, and we've got to get on the job."

He slid out of bed and dressed with the celerity born of his years in the fire company, while McCarty lastily packed their belongings. Descending to the office they paid their bill and ordered breakfast at a table in the dining room which commanded a view of the desk and the side door.

The boy who had shown them to their room on the previous day appeared presently with a suit case and going to the entrance, whistled for a taxicab. Dennis and McCarty rose just as a woman came down the stairs and approached the desk.

She wore a dark blue gown and the black veil which swathed her head gave forth gleams of scarlet from her hat-brim beneath. She paused to settle her account, and when, shouldering their bags, the two watchers passed out the front entrance of the hotel snatches of phrases followed them:—"Straight back East—Boston train."

At the corner, under the cafe awning, where a slight craning of necks would give them a view of either door McCarty paused to light a cigar.

"There's her taxi!" Dennis's whisper developed an unexpected squeak of excitement. "She's getting in! Look, will you!"

On the step the woman turned slightly to speak to the chauffeur and at that moment the little gust of wind lifted he veil from her face. Dennis drew back hastily.

"We're the two prize boobs!" he exclaimed in disgust. "There the girl we're hunting was right under my nose for an hour last night, actually daring me to give her the once over, and I passed her up!"

"How's that? Say it again!"

"That girl from room number 10—getting in the cab, is the one who tried to catch my eye at the station!"

"You're sure of it?" demanded McCarty. "Come over here, quick!"

Seizing his companion's arm he dragged him to a drug store on the opposite corner, and well within the shelter of its doorway.

"A fine trick to lose us!" he muttered. "It's lucky you got a flash at her face, Denny. Now look sharp!"

"Do you mean it's not the girl we are after at all?" Dennis was crestfallen. "We got the wrong steer, then from that waitress. There goes this one, now! 'Say, Mac, where do you suppose the Collins girl beat it to from the station?"

"Look!" McCarty's grasp tightened upon his arm. "There's the touring car driving up—and, thank God! a vacant taxi coming around the corner. Run out the other way, Denny, and nail it!"

The open car drew up at the side entrance of the hotel and a man and a girl ran quickly down the steps and entered it. They wore linen dusters, and the girl was veiled, while her companion had a soft straw hat pulled low over his eyes.

The car spurted around the corner, heading due west, and at a discreet distance behind chugged a taxi. McCarty had asked only one question of the sharp eyed driver:

"Got plenty of gas?"

"Got for 50 miles and more, and the engine only tuned up yesterday."

Through the crowding turmoil of the city, over bridges and past the smoke pressed steadily mile upon mile into the open country. Dennis stupefied by the swift turn of events, had held his peace, but his eyes were fixed in awed fascination upon the meter by the driver's left car.

"Are they heading for the coast, I wonder?" McCarty muttered at last. "This is no jaunt for a taxi!"

"Twenty miles and more have we come already," announced his companion. "If the cost of this little trip is on the department, Mac, well and good, but should you be footing it yourself, you'll be out the price of one of your elegant Homevale mansions by the time that we get back. Maybe this is only another decoy, and not the right girl, either!"

"No fear! We've got the drop on them now," McCarty smiled grimly. "'Twas smart of them to rig the other up in the same outfit this one wore getting off the train."

"It only goes to show that you cannot be sure of a person just by the clothes they may have on," remarked Dennis.

"You said something then, my lad," McCarty's smile expanded to a chuckle but it was curiously lacking in mirth. "The trouble with most of us is that we see just what we are expecting to and shut our eyes to the things we are not looking for."

The occasional country club, with its colony of clustering villas, gave place to detached farms and still the car ahead sped forward. They were compelled to give it more and more leeway to lessen the chances of discovery, for the sight of an urban taxi in that road could suggest only the truth to those in advance.

However, if the occupants of the touring car were aware of espionage, they gave no sign, keeping definitely on their way and managing a uniform speed. The road made several sharp turns, the scattered houses drew closer, and they seemed to be nearing a village.

McCarty was urging their chauffeur to greater caution, when Dennis, who had lapsed into a brown study, suddenly gripped him.

"Mac! I have got it! I know who the man is with the girl ahead!"

"Do you so!" McCarty turned a critical eye upon him. "Having doped that out, if you'll tell me where they are making for——"

"'Tis the other one that disappeared Antonio!" Dennis ignored the sarcasm. "Him and the girl struck up an acquaintance, living next door to each other in that apartment house; they got mixed up in this murder somehow, and they are making their get-away together!"

"And I suppose after leaving the Glamorgan on Sunday morning, he waited around town until midnight Tuesday for nothing!" supplemented McCarty with fine scorn. "'Tis likely, too, that an actress with the admirers that this girl had would take up with a chauffeur!"

"Who says he's that but you!" Dennis demanded, stung by the skeptical reception of his inspiration. "There is nothing to connect him with Quimby's chauffeur, except the name, and Miss Beckwith told you herself that she had never seen Mr. Antonio before the inquest!"

The promising argument was then abruptly terminated. A new turning loomed ahead, but before reaching it the touring car swerved, and halted by the wayside, and the driver leaved out and hovered over the forward wheel.

McCarty swore beneath his breath. "Go on past them!" he ordered. "We've got to, we are too close to stop now. Pull up just around the turn till they start on again."

The two figures in the tonneau of the car sat motionless as the taxi hummed by, but their driver looked up, and it seemed to the discomfited sleuths that a derisive grin wreathed his face.

"Stop under those trees and shut off your engine," directed McCarty. "They're on to us now if they weren't before, but there is no help for it. When they start up again we'll hear them an the chadse will be on in the open."

But minute succeeded minute and no sound of a motor came from behind. McCarty descended from the taxi and strolled back to reconnoiter. A clump of trees and a stout sign-post marked the point of the turn, and he peered cautiously around it, and then wheeled with a frantic gesture to Dennis.

The touring car was still there, with the chauffeur tinkering at the wheel, but the tonneau was empty, and no other figure appeared upon the long sunlit expanse of the road.

"Done!" cried McCarty. "They've given us the slip!"

"But wher did they go to?" Dennis's jaw dropped. "There's not a house facing this stretch——"

There! Don't you see those tracks through that wheatfield? There's a bunch of houses over that way; they must have taken a short cut to the village."

As if aware of their scrutiny, the cah ffeur straigthened himself, looked once in their direction, then sprang to his seat and started the engine. Speechlessly they watched while the car turned and disapeared in a cloud of dust in the direction whence it had come.

"Well," observed Dennis at length. "I suppose that we had better pay off that robber we have on our hands and then follow them tracks."

"We'll let him take us first around to that village and see it it's on a railway line and whether or not a train is due," McCarty responded. "If it's just a little one horse burg we have got them sewed up yet."

A scant mile further brought them to the beginning of an elm-shaded street, with a tiny red-roofed station at hand. It was deserted except for a somnolent telegraph operator from whom McCarty learned that no train would come in before five o'clock.

Had Bronchitis FOR THREE YEARS

COULD GET NO RELIEF

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather. It begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty in breathing, and a wheezing sound comes from the lungs. There is also a raising of phlegm from the lungs, especially in the morning. This is at first white, but later becomes of a greenish or yellowish color, and is occasionally streaked with blood.

On the first sign of bronchitis you should check it immediately by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thereby prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning into some more serious lung trouble.

Mr. Theodore P. Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with bronchitis for three years, and could get no relief. I was always worse when I got wet. I tried lots of different medicines, but none did me any good until a friend told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I got three bottles and before I had them half used I was better.

"My mother is now using it for asthma. It is a great medicine and we never want to be without it.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by the T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

WINTER CARNIVAL IN BANFF

Ladies play the good old "roaring game" at Banff, in the Canadian Pacific Rockies, where the second annual Winter Carnival is now being held. It took Scotchmen to introduce curling to Western Canada, but they have done it, and not only that, they have imbued all other races with the same delight in it.

If the efforts which the people of Banff are making come to successful fruition, that famous little town will one day become a celebrated resort for winter sports. Situated as it is in the heart of the most scenic mountain district of this continent, it provides all the opportunities for every thrill, which before the war had to be sought in Switzerland. Who wouldn't trudge that mile up Tunnel Mountain dragging a toboggan behind, when after you get up there is that glorious coast down in umpty-um seconds to reward you? Where could a better toboggan run be found, with the crisp mountain air, and the snow-laden pines? For the really blasé there is ski jumping, for the more quietly inclined there is skating—the finest outdoor skating in Western America on the Bow River—hockey and sleigh-riding to choice. Those who are in search of a really novel sensation can climb up Sulphur Mountain, where the world famous hot sulphur springs are situated, and have an open-air bath in zero weather. And you don't shiver either.

Bianca Micele

A Case of Influence of Mind Over Mind

By Donald Chamberlain

I am an artist. Being in poor health, my doctor ordered me abroad, and I went to Florence, Italy.

I rented rooms of a widow and her daughter, by the name of Micele. They occupied the top floor of a building on the river Arno. I used a front room for a studio and a rear room for a bedroom. The mother was a middle aged woman, the daughter about twenty-five. Their ancestors had been well off, but their estate had melted away, and Senora Micele and her daughter got on with difficulty. Bianca, the daughter, was an artist, but an indifferent one.

Nevertheless there was something remarkable about Bianca Micele. She was neither pretty nor homely. The eyes of the Italians are handsome, but Senorina Micele's eyes were more than handsome; they were, so to speak, compelling. That is, when she looked out of them at me I felt a strange force compelling me to do her bidding. Not that there was apparent exercise of will. She was gentleness itself. The power she exercised was rather persuasive than forceful.

Not long after I arrived in Florence I fell ill and did not leave my bed for weeks. Senora Micele and her daughter both nursed me.

A portion of the time I was in either a stupor or delirium, I don't know which. At such times I was very weak and on coming to myself usually felt as if I had been doing exhausting work, though I had been in my bed all the while, where it would not have been possible for me to do any work even if I had been mentally capable.

My illness occurred during the winter, and when the spring came on and the weather began to warm up Senora Micele used to put me in an easy chair and wheel me out on to one of those little balconies common in Florence houses. We were on the Arno embankment (the Lung Arno, they call it there), in sight of the green hills that surround the city. Indeed, from my balcony I could see some six or seven miles distant the heights on which Fiosole, the original Florentine settlement, was made. During three more months I spent much of the day on this balcony in fancy painting pictures of the scene spread out before me. One of these was the undulating plain beyond the city's edge and the heights of Fiosole beyond the plain. There is a big clock tower at Fiosole which it seemed to me would make an attractive feature in my imaginary picture, and I spent hours working it in. Another view I dreamed of was the Arno, directly beneath me, winding under its arched bridges toward the south, and other nearer and consequently greener hills. There is something in the atmosphere of Italy to intensify the color of a landscape, and on such days I delighted in the imaginative painting I could not do in reality. But I always noticed that such days instead of giving me strength drew upon what I had.

Fortunately I recovered before the hot weather set in and after convalescing in the invigorating climate of the Swiss Alps went to Paris, where I remained some time.

Strolling one day down one of the Parisian boulevards, I stepped into a picture shop. The dealer, fancying to make a customer of me, advanced and questioned me as to what I was looking for. It occurred to me to ask for one of my own pictures, not that I expected to find one, but that to ask for the work of any special artist would make it appear that I was not looking at his wares with no intention of buying.

"Have you anything of Adrian Giles?" I asked.

"Giles, the American?"

"Yes."

"Certainly. I have a very remarkable piece of his work. Come this way."

He led me to one of his display rooms and up to a picture that had evidently been hung with considerable care. The subject was certainly familiar to me, for it was the plain I had overlooked at Florence with the hills and Fiosole in the distance. And as I stood looking at it I recognized not only the identical scene I had painted in my day dreams, but my individual style. Quickly bending to the lower left hand corner, a cap was put upon my astonishment by seeing my own name.

I caught with both hands at the rail that extended around the room to guard the pictures. Here was a view I had no remembrance of presenting, but which I must have painted. It was some time before I recovered sufficient equanimity to further examine the painting, but when I did so I saw at once that for the first time in my life I had portrayed a scene exactly as I saw it. What I mean is that it possessed all the reality and beauty with which my imagination had endowed it.

"W-h-e-r-e did you get it?" I stammered.

"From a dealer whom I never saw before."

"How do you know it is a genuine Giles?"

"I know it because I have seen several of the artist's pictures. One other I tried to buy, but failed to make a deal, is now displayed in a shop in the Boulevard des Italiens. You may see it there. There is the same unmistakable individuality about it as in this."

"What is the subject?"

"It is also a Florentine scene, called 'Up the Arno.' It takes in the river, with the hills beyond. It, too, is a great picture."

My knees began to knock together. My jaws chattered, but not sufficiently to prevent my asking, "What do you ask for this picture?"

"Twenty thousand francs."

Great heavens! I had never received the half of that for a picture. I looked at the man so astonished that he hastened to say:

"My profit will be but 500 francs. I paid 19,500 francs for it."

Taking the number of the shop where he said the other picture was to be seen, I staggered out of the store and was soon before the picture I had also created in dreams. It, too, far exceeded any work I had ever done. The dealer told me he had paid 27,000 francs for it.

Fortunately I occupied rooms with an American friend in the Quartier Latin and rushed home to tell him that I had discovered something which if not explained would drive me crazy. He listened to my story, but I could see by his expression that he, too, feared something had occurred to disturb my mental balance. He would express no opinion till he had seen the paintings, and as I could not remain quiet I insisted on his going with me at once for the purpose. He did so, and, being familiar with my work, he pronounced the pictures mine, though they were far beyond any of my work he had ever seen.

On our way back to our rooms neither he nor I said anything about the strange occurrence, but when we reached them he sat down before me, lit a pipe and said:

"While you were ill in Florence and out of your head you undoubtedly painted those pictures, not knowing what you were doing; consequently you retained no remembrance of them."

"But I wasn't out of my head when I was wrapped in the views given in the pictures. Besides, how could I have done the work without the Miceles knowing it? And, knowing it, they would have called my attention to it."

My friend pondered awhile, blowing at the same time clouds of smoke, and finally said:

"Whatever you have been physically, I'm sure you are all right now. But if you wish an explanation go back to Florence, see the people you boarded with and get it from them."

Acting on his advice, I started that evening. On the way I had time to think over the matter of my investigation and decided to approach the Miceles without being known to them. On arrival I asked about them and learned that they had been left a legacy of some fifty thousand francs. This at once assured me that they had received the amount paid for my pictures. One morning I rang their bell. Bianca answered the summons and, seeing me at the door, turned pale.

Going in, I asked her to call her mother and told both of my experience in Paris. At first they assumed to be as much surprised as I; but, seeing that I was not to be deceived, Senora Micele finally began a confession which the senorita finished.

"We did not suppose that you would ever happen to see your pictures," said the former.

"Well, tell me where they came from," I asked her. She looked at her daughter.

"I can only tell you," said Bianca, "that I painted them while you were sitting out in your chair on the balcony—how I know not. All I do know is that it seemed to me that it was your brain working with my hand."

I questioned her and cross questioned her, eliciting nothing further except that she had discovered some time before meeting me that she possessed some strange power of the order commonly called clairvoyant. My own interpretation of the incident was that, not being able to do good work herself, she had exercised this power over me to utilize my ability. Since she had painted the pictures herself the only fraud involved was her placing my name on them. She did this not realizing the pecuniary value of the pictures themselves and supposed she could not sell them without a name to them. She and her mother were tempted chiefly because they were financially in desperate straits. They had sold the paintings through a friend who appreciated their worth and paid them all they brought except a bare commission. I told them that they were welcome to all they had received for the paintings. The sole interest I took in the matter was a curiosity to know how the work had been executed.

Every year brings to light new evidence to show that there are subtle forces acting psychically within us that we do not understand. I believe that just as surely as the invention of wireless telegraphy will come an explanation of how Bianca Micele united my artistic ability with her own personality and of the union made a far better work of art than I could have produced by myself. It is possible that the advantage came merely through a certain suppleness in her wrist or in some other mechanical feature that was superior to mine, thus enabling me to attain an ideal that I had never been able to attain before with my less perfect member. But this is a mere hypothetical exposition of my own, unsupported by proof.

Pains In The Small Of The Back

Headaches, Dryness of the Skin and Loss of Weight Warn You That the Kidneys Are Diseased

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 8.—"Pains in the small of the back" is the way hosts of people describe their sufferings, not knowing that the pains are in reality the kidneys. Pains in the back, weak back, lame back, backache—these are the first indications of kidney trouble. They are the warning which nature gives you. If you heed at once you can be cured. Neglect will soon put you at the mercy of the most painful and fatal of diseases.

Women as well as men have kidney disease, and may well feel anxious when the kidney pains make themselves felt in the small of the back.

Because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills give you prompt relief from backache, it is well worth your while to take them. But they do more than this. They regulate and invigorate the action of the kidneys and ensure a return to health of these important organs.

Mr James Malley, 488 Crawford Street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I had been troubled with lame back for nine or ten years, and although I had tried other remedies, they were of no benefit to me whatever. Through reading the advertisements in your booklets for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, I commenced taking these, and found that they were the best I ever used. I took about a dozen boxes in all, and am now completely cured. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills."

("This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. James Malley, 488 Crawford Street, and believe his statement with regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct.—John Dann, J.P.")

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Writers' Unfinished Stories.

Several years ago a writer published in a magazine the beginnings of a half dozen stories that he had never carried to an end, with a note saying that all writers had such manuscripts tucked away in their desks. He might have added that those stories were also tucked away in the consciousness and operated silently and inexorably in the weakening of the will. Those half dozen beginnings were all good. They piqued curiosity and they introduced interesting characters.

The writer would have done far better to finish them all, better for his reputation, his income and his force as a worker.

Way down deep in the mind, perhaps in the sub-conscious, those stories pleaded to be told, those characters asked for life.

A Tongue Twister.

"She stood at the door of the fish sauce shop welcoming him in. How fast can you say that?

Here is another about the famous duel between Shott and Knott. It reads as follows: "Shott shot the first shot, and the shot Shott shot shot not Knott. The shot Knott shot shot not Shott, so Shott shot again, and once more the shot Shott shot shot not Knott, but the shot Knott shot shot Shott, so Knott won notwithstanding."

Caution.

"Your speeches are not very interesting."

"It may be a mistake to make a speech too interesting," replied Senator Sorghum. "It's better to say things in a dull way so that they won't be remembered in case you want to change your mind."

Peace Terms Offered by Germany To Russia Are Made Public

Allies Are Ready for the Shock of the Impending Battle

GERMAN PEACE TERMS

Demanded From Russia the Payment of Four Billion Dollars Indemnity and the Retention of Poland, Lithuania, Riga and Moon Island

RUSSIA WILL FIGHT

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19.—Russia will fight. The Bolsheviki Foreign Office so informed the United Press to-day. If the German advances against Russia they will be declared counter-revolutionists and will be fought, like Alexieff and Kaledine, it was asserted. The response to the recruiting of a Socialist army is enormous.

No trade relations with Germany are possible, the Foreign Office declared. The Germans will get food only when they revolt and join the Russian proletarist.

Foreign Minister Trotsky, addressing the Bolsheviki executive committee outlined publicly for the first time the startling peace terms presented by Germany which Russia refused. They included the retention of Poland, Lithunia, Riga and Moon Island and the payment of four billion dollars indemnity.

LAST NIGHT'S AIR RAID WAS A FAILURE

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—"There were no casualties and no damage in last night's air raid," Lord French, commander of Home Forces, announced to-day. This was the third German raid attack on England on a successive night. The other raids resulted in a total casualty list of 27 killed and 41 injured.

WAS A FAILURE.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—German fliers took advantage of another clear moonlight night Monday to attempt to drop bombs on London. Their attack was a failure, as far as the metropolis was concerned. Fire of barrage guns on the outskirts of London was heavy for two hours.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—(Official.)—There were no casualties or damage in last night's air raid, says an official announcement. The attempted raid was a total failure.

GERMANS REALIZE SUBMARINE WARFARE HAS FAILED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The German people realize that their submarine warfare has failed and are staking all on their army, according to Dr. Arthur N. Davis, of Piqua, Ohio, the Kaiser's personal dentist, who left Germany January 22.

Peace is the uppermost thought in the German mind, Dr. Davis declares, but there is a determination to go on until America admits that the Teutons have won. Then she will be ready to magnanimously call the war a draw. The food situation in Germany is not serious, Dr. Davis stated. He refused to comment on the Kaiser's health.

DON'T WANT THE BAND INSTRUMENTS AT CITY'S TERMS

War Veterans Decline to Accept Unless Instruments Are Turned Over to Them Unconditionally--New Club Room Problem Discussed

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

In view of the restrictions which the City Council has seen fit to place on the use of the 93rd Band instruments, and also because of what the Veterans regard as the general unsympathetic attitude of the City Fathers towards them, the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association unanimously decided, at a largely attended meeting last night in the armouries, not to accept the band instruments unless they are turned over to them unconditionally. It was stated that the 57th Regiment band would also have refused to take the instruments on the terms asked by the Council, so that it looks as if the aldermanic body will have the "white elephants" back on their hands.

When the matter came up before the meeting Comrade W. Hughes expressed the opinion that in view of the conditions the Council wished to impose, he was not in favour of going ahead with the proposed Veterans' band.

Comrade Mills volunteered the information that had they been offered to the 57th Band on the same terms that organiation would also have refused.

Several other members expressed the feeling that unless the instruments were turned over unconditionally, they should not be accepted and a motion to that effect was carried unanimously.

The Club Rooms.

There was considerable discussion over the new club room question. The Veterans feel that they have been shabbily treated in this regard. In the latter part of last year, members pointed out at the meeting, they were given to understand by Mayor Duffus and other members of the Council that the city would assume the cost of the rent of the quarters. The Royal Bank building was decided upon and the matter went so far that an agreement between the city and the Royal Bank was drawn up. Then came the difficulty that the city could not sign the lease without special permission from the Legislature, followed by the announcement that the Royal Bank would not deal with anyone but the

WHITE GLOVES FOR JUDGE

Not One Case on the Docket of the Spring Assizes Before Chief Justice Falconbridge To-day

CONGRATULATED PETERBOROUGH

"I congratulate you and the inhabitants of Peterborough in the fact that there are no prisoners awaiting trial within the walls of the County jail," said Chief Justice Sir Glenholme Falconbridge, this afternoon, in dismissing the Grand Jury at the opening and practically coincident closing of the Spring Assizes.

"You gentlemen of the Grand Jury have nothing to pass on, and there is no civil case entered for trial at this court, another subject for congratulation."

The docket was an immaculate blank and the Court procedure consisted simply of calling the roll of the Grand Jury and Petit Jurors, and dismissing them forthwith. Formerly it was customary, if there were no cases to be heard, to present the Judge with a pair of white gloves. As a symbol of uniquely idle courts of other days this tradition was perhaps faithfully and proudly adhered to, but in these days of peace and brotherly love and forbearance the circuit judges would be overwhelmed with white gloves.

The Grand Jury was relieved of the usual duty of inspecting public buildings in view of the visit made last Fall, and of the fact that the next court will be held in June.

MILITARY FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON

With full military honours the body of the late 2nd. Lieut. Herbert Cust Boyd, gassed at Passchendaele, and who on Sunday died in Nicholls Hospital, was laid at rest this afternoon in the Little Lake cemetery. The pall-bearers were Major (Dr.) Cameron, Captain Boyd, Cadet Dunsford, and Lieuts. Boyd and Warner. A service was conducted by Major the Revd. Canon Davidson and Rev. P. C. Minn of Bobcaygeon in St. John's Church, at which Major Davidson spoke a few words of sympathy for the family who had lost so noble a member and of the glorious history he leaves behind.

FAMILIES WERE SUPPLIED WITH COAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—John D. Rockefeller came to the aid of the people of Pocantico Hills and Ossining to-day in the coal shortage, and with his own motor trucks, saw to it that 1918 families in these two towns received a supply of fuel.

RABIES MORE PREVALENT IN COLD WEATHER

According to Statement of Rochester Doctor—Worse Than in Tropics.

Rabies in dogs is more prevalent in zero weather than in the torrid "dog days" of August, according to Dr. L. R. Webber, a veterinary surgeon in Rochester, where an epidemic of rabies is giving the authorities as much trouble as Peterborough has experienced. He stated that there are more mad dogs in countries where cold weather prevails than in the tropics. "This theory is contrary to general belief, but is based on statistics."

"A dog will not become rabid unless it is infected with the germ, usually from bites by other dogs. Extreme cold weather, such as prevailed this winter, will stimulate the hydrophobia germs, just the same as does excessive heat in August."

U. S. PROPAGANDA ABROAD.

Arthur Woods Appointed to Begin Campaign Shortly.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A campaign of American propaganda in foreign countries, including Germany and neutral lands, will be begun shortly, it became known here to-day, by Arthur Woods, who was police commissioner of this city during the administration of Mayor Mitchell.

The Much Heralded German Offensive May Begin Any Moment

Tanks and a New Mysterious Gas Will Be Employed By the Enemy in Attempt to Break Through the Allied Line ---Germans Will Find the Allied Morale at the Highest Pitch on the Western Front---A Tense Situation.

A STRANGE CALM PREVAILS

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE (By the Associated Press), Feb. 19.—The great German offensive on the Western front may be expected to begin at any moment now, and as far as the British front is concerned, the main thrust will be made on the sector between Arras and St. Quentin. Tanks and a new mysterious gas will be employed by the enemy in an attempt to break through the Allied line. Other attacks will be delivered further south. These facts have become known through captured German prisoners and from information gleaned in other ways. The plans of the German higher command are complete, and after many weeks of intensive training of assaulting troops they are ready to make a supreme and final effort which has been advertised so widely in the past weeks. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Von Ludendorff appear to have realized that the old methods of attack in which long bombardment is employed are too well known to produce the results desired. Accordingly, the German troops are being told that surprise attacks such as were used in Galicia last summer, at Riga, and again on the Isonzo fronts, are to be tried against the Allies on the Western front. Despite these assurances and the intensive training to which they have been put, German troops are frankly skeptical, and are undertaking their task with no enthusiasm, according to prisoners. They feel they are going to be thrown into battle to be used as cannon fodder, and do not relish the prospect. It is said that General Von Ludendorff recently addressed a body of infantry at Laon and asked how many men were willing to fight to a finish. Only five non-commissioned officers and privates stepped forward. The others declared their desire for an early peace by arrangement.

THE ALLIES ARE READY.

German officers on the other hand appear to have the conviction that they will be able to break through by means of their secret attacks.

The Germans will find the Allied morale at the highest pitch on the Western front, and their attack will be far from the surprise desired. The Allies are ready for a big blow, and await the next move of the German high command with assurance. The German attack cannot be delayed much longer. All information points to the fact that both German civilians and soldiers are keyed up to such a high pitch of nervous expectancy that the strain cannot endure for long. The coming battles will perhaps be the most sanguinary of the war, and they will be the most intense yet seen, but they will mark the beginning of the end, for if the Germans do not break clear through the Allied line, and they cannot, they virtually will be finished. The Empire is putting every ounce of strength into this great gamble, and if it fails in the early stages it means the end of Prussian militarism. The Allied forces have superiority in numbers, both in men and guns, and no doubt is felt on this front as to the outcome.

CALM BEFORE A STORM.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Feb. 19.—With utter absence of panic or dread, the British troops are awaiting the shock of battle. Unlike Hindenburg's braggarts, the British do not pretend they are longing for the carnage. The fighters are ready with jaws set resolutely, calm and unafraid.

Not that the troops under-estimate what is coming. On the contrary, every one is keenly aware of the situation. It is unlikely that any army of the world individually ever understood quite so well the importance of an approaching battle. First, because its intelligence was never so high; second, leaders and men never were so thoroughly in each other's confidence. Every one appears to feel that in all probability it will be the turning point of the war; that behind the Kaiser's bluffing is a discontented nation of starvelings; that although Hindenburg undoubtedly has put everything he has got into this punch he cannot—must not—and will not win.

Formerly, only the generals knew what a battle was about. To-day every soldier is wise to the fact that upon him to some extent depends much—even victory—perhaps an early Allied peace.

Meantime, a strange calm reigns over most parts of the front. Here and there raids are increasing, there is a sporadic cannonading, and lazy machine gunning at wide intervals.

Otherwise the front gives an impression of a calm before the storm.

NO FUEL AND NO CLAMOUR

Only One Car of "Egg" Received To-day—Wood Supply is Short Yet Citizens Are Not Urgent in Demands

MUST BE HOME SHORTAGE

Although there has been an entirely inadequate supply of coal reach the city since the first of February, there is no clamorous demand from the citizens that might have been expected if there was actual want and suffering. Mindful of the hundreds of citizens who were allotted pitifully small quantities of two and three hundred pounds of coal several weeks ago, and that most of the yards have been empty for many days, it seems strange that the applications this week have not been more numerous and urgent. They have in a sense been urgent enough, but the apparent failure to get supplies have been accepted quite calmly.

Certainly there has been very little coal received, and the stocks of wood have been uncomfortably light. Citizens are either heroically carrying on at best they can, some of them tearing boards on the shed or breaking up old furniture, or they have or are obtaining supplies.

This aspect of the situation was pointed out to a fuel merchant, who expressed the belief that the milder weather explained the subsidence of the January scramble.

Mr. F. W. Miller, the city's investigator, stated to-day that many homes have little or no coal or wood. "It's getting worse every day, I think, but I don't know of any person who is suffering from the scarcity."

To-Day's Receipts.

One car of egg coal was quickly sold at the Hicks' yard this morning. The city's car of cannel coal was soon distributed. One woman refused to accept, but most of the recipients welcomed anything. They would have taken a chance on peat.

The Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company have two cars of wood that arrived from Keene this morning. They will be sold off the cars to-morrow.

The Government Overthrown?

LONDON, Feb. 19.— Rumours are current in Vasa that the Bolsheviki government in Petrograd has been overthrown by social revolutionists under the leadership of M. Tchernoff.

Nikolai Lenine and Leon Trotsky are said to have escaped to Riga.

Note.—Vasa is another Copenhagen. No confirmation of the above rumour has been received. Shaplen's despatch which appears in another column of this issue, was plainly dated to-day and carried the additional word "Tuesday" when received at the cable office.

Massing of Germans Near The Swiss Border Has Not Been Overlooked

Allies Are Prepared to Counter Any Plan For the Invasion of Switzerland—Gen. Smuts Went to Switzerland Recently

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Ed. L. Keen).

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Allies are assuredly fully alive to the situation detailed by William Philip Simms in his despatch regarding the possibilities of Hindenburg invading Switzerland. If Hindenburg has completed tentative plans for such a move, the Allies are equally prepared to counter, as long as they are convinced it is the German military policy to regard the treaty of 1815 as no more sacred than the Belgian "scrap of paper," providing violation is considered strategically advantageous. There is no doubt but that the fullest cognizance has been taken of the recent massing of Germans near the Swiss border, which, however, must be regarded as a possible blind to distract attention from the real point of the projected offensive. This has been suggested in some quarters in connection with the recent trip of Gen. Smuts to Switzerland, which had been reported political in character, but which perhaps may have been really military.

THE HALIFAX Y.W.C.A. NEEDS HELP AT ONCE

Halifax, in the midst of her great shock and suffering, deeply appreciates the abounding sympathy and help which has been so promptly poured out to her by individuals and communities over the continent.

The first great emergencies have been met and passed, and now the city realizes some of its deeper and more permanent needs. Among these, a new and larger building for the Young Women's Christian Association is urgent.

This Association is the oldest in the Dominion of Canada and has done much good work in the past, but its present building, old, utterly inadequate and shaken, cannot possibly house the work as it has burst upon it, since the terrible explosion.

The boarding department, ordinarily considered full with thirty girls, now shelters sixty-six, the staff recently enlarged, is working to the limit of its strength; there is no space for executive office, recreation, social or gymnasium rooms, and cots are crowded in everywhere. This state of things is not for some days or weeks, but must continue for months as every available house in the city is crowded.

Will not numbers come to the rescue and send large or small amounts of money to the Treasurer of the Young Women's Christian Association, 66 Hollis Street, Halifax, Nova Scotia?

"He who gives quickly, gives twice."

DR. GRENFELL'S MISSION

A regrettable misunderstanding has occurred regarding the offering taken one week ago to-night at Dr. Grenfell's lecture in St. Paul's Church. It seems that an announcement was made that the offering would be taken for the work of the great missionary of Labrador. Such was not the intention. The offering is taken each year by the newspapers of Peterborough. It was intended that an offering should be taken at the lecture to defray the necessary expenses, and that the balance should be added to the subscriptions of the Peterborough people for Dr. Grenfell's work. The offering made at the lecture was a worthy one for an evening occasion, but it leaves the fund with less than half of the usual amount, rather than with an increased amount, after the personal visit and most informing lecture of the hero of the bleak coast. Another reason for not expecting the general offering on collection plates is the fact that each subscriber of one dollar is entitled to the "Deep Sea Mission Magazine," and there is no way of securing the list unless the names are left with the offerings.

Some envelopes were distributed at the door which were intended to be used in sending the annual subscriptions to the treasurer or to the newspaper offices. Not one of these has been used up to the present hour, apart from the fulfilment of one pledge which was already on the offering plate.

In view of the above facts the many friends of other years are urged to send their offerings to either the Examiner or Review at once, and also ask those who made a small offering toward expenses to kindly supplement it with their usual gift within the present week. All amounts sent in will be acknowledged by the newspapers and by the Honorary Treasurer. It would be a calamity if the result of Dr. Grenfell's visit to our city was allowed to be an offering of one-half the amount given in years that he has not visited us.

GREATER PRODUCTION.

What is going to be done this spring in connection with the vacant lot production scheme that was worked out so satisfactorily by a number of residents of the city last year? Reports coming to hand all show even greater necessity of raising more garden products than ever before. Several suggestions have been made such as callings a number of general meetings of those who are interested to be addressed by men who are practical vegetable growers, in order that the best results could be obtained. The matter of lots is an important one, and as there is expected to be a greater number gardening this year than last, all those who can should secure their own lot in order to help out any organization that might be expected to do this work, the same as last year.

WOOD FUEL FOR NEXT YEAR.

The fuel situation in Eastern Canada will be fully as bad if not worse next winter, and it is imperative that steps be taken at once to provide substitutes for coal. With an increasing labour shortage in the United States, increased demands upon the railways, increased requirements for American coal for domestic and export purposes and the placing of Canada on 'war rations' by the United States Fuel Controller, it will be fortunate if Canada secures as large supplies of coal as she has this season.

We must fall back upon our forests. Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick contain vast quantities of hardwood, which has little present value, except for fuel purposes. A cord of seasoned hardwood, such as hard maple, beech or birch, is approximately equal in heating value to a ton of anthracite. Under normal conditions, coal has been cheaper, but at present prices the difference in cost is not very great. What is needed now is immediate action on the part of municipal authorities to lay in an emergency stock of wood fuel, both on account of the shortage of labour for cutting and hauling, and the necessity for having the wood cut to dry during the summer.

To supplement the efforts of city and municipal governments, co-operation of the Provincial Government is, in many cases, essential. Where timber on Crown lands is sufficiently accessible, a special organization is needed to facilitate the completion of arrangements, including the organization of labour for cutting on a large scale. The Provincial Foresters, or some one working under his direction, should take the whole matter up vigorously with the respective city and municipal governments and assist in determining the needs of the local situation in each case and how best to meet them. A beginning in this direction has already been made in Quebec, and it is reported that Ontario is offering wood in Algonquin Park free to municipalities and is co-operating with them in organizing production.

Experience has shown it is quite feasible to materially relieve the coal shortage by a more extensive use of wood in the following directions:

1. By farmers and rural communities generally, within easy reach of wood supplies, making as general use of this fuel as possible to relieve the demands for coal and freight cars alike.

2. The general substitution of wood for coal in furnaces and stoves during early autumn and late spring, as well as during mild weather and winter.

3. The heating by wood of churches, lodge rooms, halls, etc., where warmth for only a limited period of time may be necessary.

4. The eking out of limited stores of coal by burning wood in the day time, reserving coal for holding the fire over night.

5. Running furnaces low to keep the house in general only warm enough to prevent water pipes from freezing and supplementing this by wood in stoves or grates to keep the living and dining rooms comfortable.

6. Using wood much more generally than at present as a substitute for coal in cooking.

7. By making windows and doors tight and by insulating furnaces, boilers and piping. Slabs and mill waste, instead of being burned in incinerators, should be reserved for domestic heating—"Conservation."

LOOKING AHEAD.

There was something more than irony in the suggestion of Chancellor von Hertling that, as one of the conditions of a peace settlement, Britain should be required to relinquish her naval strongholds of Gibraltar, Aden, Malta, Hong Kong and the Falkland Islands, says the Hamilton Herald. The suggestion provoked smiles, but it was not made as a pleasantry by any means; it was intended as a serious proposal, for the governments and peoples of the world to ruminate over. If peace could be brought about by such a sacrifice on the part of Britain why should she hesitate to make the sacrifice in behalf of a war-stricken world? That is the feeling which the German chancellor would encourage. He just dropped the suggestion as a seed and left it to germinate.

What a glorious triumph for Germany if Britain's allies could persuade her to make the sacrifice! It would be as if Britannia were formally to hand over the trident to Germany and meekly resign her place among the great powers. World domination would then be within easy reach of the Teutons. They would lose no time in taking possession of the naval bases relinquished by Britain, and the phrase "freedom of the seas" would take on a new meaning.

What would that meaning be? Let Count Reventlow explain. That eminent German naval authority has no doubts on the subject. "What we understand to-day by this doctrine of the freedom of the seas," he wrote some months ago, "is that Germany should possess such maritime territories and such naval bases that at the outbreak of war we would be able with our navy reasonably ready, to guarantee ourselves the command of the seas. We want such a jumping off place for the navy as would give us a fair chance of dominating the seas during a war."

So, we may be sure, the idea at the back of Count von Hertling's head, when he made that proposal or suggestion, was not far different from the ideal condition desired by Count Reventlow.

A sidelight is thrown upon the German chancellor's suggestion by an interesting article contributed to an American periodical two or three months ago, by Eleanor Franklin Egan, a clever American writer. Mrs. Egan in this article, described a visit made by her to Hong-Kong in the third year of the war. This little British colony on the edge of China has only a small European population, and is a place where white men, of whatever nationality, form close relationships. Mrs. Egan goes on to say:

"Hong-Kong was literally full of Germans. Some of the largest and most important firms in the colony were Germans, and there were many German professional men. One of the finest clubs in the city was the German club, and there were highly regarded Germans on everybody's visiting and dinner-party lists. The governor began by putting certain mild restrictions upon them, more or less paroling them on their honor as enemy aliens. But it was not long before it became evident that such generous courteous treatment was quite beyond the simple German understanding. Plots of various kinds came to light, and the government was compelled to resort to severer measures; but so little did the Britons realize the character of the people they were dealing with that it was some time before these measures were made applicable to all Germans. Eventually they were, and when the German Club was closed evidence was discovered which proved that the friendly enemies, who had enjoyed the advantage of British leniency and courtesy were the authors of a fully developed plan for taking over Hong-Kong as soon as the Vaterland had brought England to her knees. And it seems to have been confidently expected that this would happen very shortly.

A German governor had even been selected and approved, and arrangements were completed for changing many of England's "weak-minded" policies with regard to the freedom of the port and the treatment of the native populaions. But the thing that angered the Englishmen most was a definite programme with regard to the British women of the colony.

In the light of these facts one is surely justified in suspecting that when Count von Hertling casually suggested that Britain's relinquishment of her naval strongholds, including Hong-Kong, would help to guarantee the future peace of the world he was not thinking about the future peace of the world so much as he was thinking of Germany's future as the wielder of supreme power among the nations of the earth.

A Needless Deception

By LILLIAN HALL CROWLEY

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Now, mother dear," said Jane, "we simply must fix up the horrid house some way. I can't have Ted's mother see such a place."

"Why make pretense, daughter? This is the way we have lived for the last four years."

"Yes, I know," answered Jane, "but it isn't really our way of living. We are only waiting until father's peach crop is a success. But to an outsider—this place looks as if it belonged to a Hill Billy. It would class us with them forever."

"Doesn't she like you for yourself, Jane?" asked her mother anxiously.

"Yes, of course, she has been a perfect dear ever since Ted and I became engaged. She made my last week in college the brightest of all for me."

"Well, dear, what could we do to this room?"

"We'll do a lot of things to it. In the first place, I asked Ted to bring his mother and sister the day father is in town to be gone all day. I know he wouldn't have any sympathy with the way I feel about this and it will all be over by the time he gets back."

Mrs. Wilson and her daughter were sitting early one summer morning in the only downstairs room in their house. They had come from Pennsylvania four years before when Nathaniel Wilson had invested all he had in a peach orchard in the Ozarks, where one crop with favorable weather conditions would bring him a fortune. He had worked hard to bring his orchard to a state of perfection, but always some unfavorable occurrence hindered the long-looked-for bumper crop.

When his wife had protested against their going to the farm, because Jane's education might be hindered, he had assured her that there was a good university in the town a few miles away and that Jane should have every advantage. He had been able to keep his word and Jane, who had just finished high school in Pennsylvania, entered the college. She was now graduated and again home for the summer.

She had always been a great help to her mother when she was home. She made all the clothes for the family, put up fruit, cooked, and even helped her father out of doors. She had learned many things in college, about milk and butter, trees and shrubs, all of which practical knowledge was useful on the place.

During her last year of college life love had come knocking at the door of her heart in the person of Ted Somerville. He belonged to one of the wealthy families of the town and his mother was a social leader. They had been very happy in their love, and their joy was complete when Ted's mother showed instant fondness for the young girl her son had chosen.

Everything had gone along smoothly until now, when Jane realized what an impression her miserable little home might make on Mrs. Somerville. The one large room was kitchen, dining room and living room, while upstairs were two bedrooms.

The house, with a few pieces of furniture, had been on the farm when Mr. Wilson had bought it. The family had brought no furniture with them except a few old heirlooms. They meant to use the house only until such time as they had money from the big peach crop. Everything hinged on that.

Mrs. Wilson, never very strong, had lost interest in keeping up her house or her own appearance, and her husband was too busy to notice.

Now here was her daughter stirring her out of her usual calm lethargy.

Jane hauled out a carpet that had been packed around one of the precious pieces of old mahogany and had since reposed, folded, on the floor of the closet under the staircase.

"Come," said Jane peremptorily, "let's put down this carpet."

"But—Jane, I never tacked down a carpet before!"

"No, but you have seen them after they were put down. Come, mother dear. Let's hurry."

After the carpet had been put down Jane looked around with satisfaction until her gaze took in the windows. "No curtains! Mother, haven't you any?"

"I've never had the heart to make curtains for a room like this," replied Mrs. Wilson forlornly.

Jane ran to an old chest of drawers, relic of better days, and took out a bolt of white material belonging to her wedding outfit. "Now we'll have curtains for all these windows. The view over the mountain will be lovely and we'll have lots of flowers."

Jane had called in a couple of the men working in the orchard to carry the kitchen stove out to the back of the house.

"You see," she instructed, "when I go in and out for the tea things it will look as though we had a kitchen out here, besides keeping this room perfectly cool."

"Yes, I see."

"Now, mother, you run up stairs and I'll finish. When you get far enough along I'll do your hair, and, for goodness sake, put on a corset! Get out the one you bought a thousand years ago in Philadelphia. Let out the strings, but get into it somehow."

"I haven't had one on for over two years."

"You simply have to get into one now and you must pull it tight enough to get into that white muslin dress I made for you last summer and which you never wore."

"Very well." Mrs. Wilson smiled at her daughter's enthusiasm and tried to catch the same spirit.

Jane had arranged the flowers to her own satisfaction when her mother came downstairs.

"I am sure I can never fasten this dress; I'm all out of breath now."

"Never mind, you won't need any breath. I am going to do everything. There you are. Now sit down while I fasten these earrings. There—you look just like a has-been-lady."

"I feel as if I were going to be presented at court."

"You are!" said Jane. "Now, mother, you must keep that chair because it is the most comfortable one. I have placed the best one here for Ted's mother, so that her back will be to the back door. Then this chair for Bessie—Bessie is so young and happy she won't know she isn't comfortable. She mustn't see behind the door, either. I'll fetch the kitchen chairs I painted yesterday. They ought to be dry now."

"This is such a lot of trouble, Jane."

"Yes, but once in a life time. Now, if you should want something, I'll get it, because if you get out of your chair you'll forget which one you sat in, and if you get into one of the others—all will be lost!"

The stage was all set for the play, when Ted, with his mother and sister, drove up to the door. The room had gone through a transformation. The carpet and dainty white curtains, the freshly-painted chairs, the tables arranged with books and flowers, a calm and happy mother and, best of all, a radiant Jane, presented a beautiful picture to even the most critical eye.

Jane noticed a puzzled look on the face of Mrs. Somerville when she looked at her mother. As she was warmly greeting Ted's sister Bessie at the time, Mrs. Wilson was oblivious to this.

For a moment Jane was dismayed. "I wonder if it is the carrings?" she asked herself, but she did not have time to worry about it, as she had to go out and make the tea. Everything was going on splendidly, and she was elated with her success.

"Just the thing to do," thought she.

When Jane came in for the last time she heard Mrs. Somerville ask her mother, "From what part of Pennsylvania did you come from, Mrs. Wilson?"

"From Ellicuttown," Mrs. Wilson smiled reminiscently.

"Ellicuttown?" gasped Mrs. Somerville. "What was your name before you were married?"

"Grace Tompkins," answered Mrs. Wilson with a surprised look.

"Grace Tompkins, I was sure I had seen you before. I am Theo Alexander."

"Theo!" exclaimed the astonished Mrs. Wilson. "Is it possible? I had lost track of you entirely. Why, we haven't seen each other since the high school graduation."

"Yes, we all went to Europe after that. Father died there and we just stayed on until I met Dick Somerville in Paris. He was there for a year's study. Then we were married and come to live in Saylorville, and have been here ever since. You are the first person from home I have met since we came."

"I am so glad to see you, Theo. Isn't it wonderful that our children met each other?"

"I didn't know any Wilsons in Ellicuttown," said Mrs. Somerville, "so the name did not impress me."

"My husband's people moved there several years after you left, Theo. Nathaniel found work in the bank too continuing and we came here four years ago to make our fortune."

Jane stood, with teapot in hand, in bewildered surprise.

"Then I need not have tried to deceive you; you'd have loved mother anyway!"

Ted sprang to her side and put a protecting arm around her.

"What is it, dear?" he tenderly inquired.

"I know you'll all despise me. I made mother pretend we had more rooms—and the stove is out of doors—and we would be taken for Hill Billys—and—I did it all!"

Ted took the teapot from the excited and weeping girl and seated her in a chair. Turning to Mrs. Wilson, he asked:

"What is Jane talking about?"

Mrs. Wilson, between smiles and tears, told of Jane's struggles of the morning and of her fears lest, being found in the old shack with scant furniture, her parents would be looked down upon by the great Mrs. Somerville.

At this everybody laughed and Ted loudest of all.

"Why, that's plucky, Jane. By George, but you're plucky. Let's have a look at the kitchen that isn't a kitchen."

By this time Jane was laughing with the rest.

"As if," said Mrs. Somerville, with a warm smile, looking at Mrs. Wilson, "anything could make Grace Tompkins better than just Grace Tompkins."

Then putting her arms around Jane and pressing a kiss on the girl's tear-stained cheek, she said:

"You ought to have seen the ugly house we lived in our first year. I am proud of you for Ted's sake. He will have a helpmeet in one who will not be balked by obstacles. Come, do give me some more tea!"

Tired All The Time

It is natural to feel tired sometimes, when you have worked or exercised sufficiently to cause a healthful feeling of fatigue. But you should be refreshed by rest. A tired feeling that does not disappear even after a night's sleep is abnormal. It means that you are anaemic—that your blood is thin and watery. It means that you need a tonic to build you up and fortify your system against such a condition. If you do not take prompt steps to improve the blood you are inviting disease, because your blood means that your power of resistance is lowered. Thin blood is largely the sufferer's own fault. It results from neglect, because the blood can be built up. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills supply the elements that the blood needs to make it rich and red and to enable it to carry more oxygen. That is why these pills change weak men and women into robust, healthy people. There is no spot in this great country where you will not find some former sufferer who has been restored to the blessing of good health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If you are feeling at all out of sorts do not further neglect yourself, a fair treatment with these pills will give you new strength to meet life's duties.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Apsley W. A. R. C. S. Has Been Doing Good Work

Apsley, Feb. 19.—The W. A. R. C. S. held their annual meeting on Feb. 8th at the home of Mr. Z. Tucker. All officers were present, and there were no changes made. After the usual business the annual report was read, which is as follows:

Boxes packed and mailed to the boys of the Apsley platoon, sixty-three (63); sox sent to the Red Cross, 120 pairs; money sent to the Red Cross, $50.00; money sent to Halifax Relief Fund, $25.00; yarn on hand, 10 1-2 pounds; money on hand, $51.74, also a number of supplies for packing boxes. Each box costs about four dollars.

Pres.—Mrs. Wm. Lean.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. S. Carr.
Rec.-Sec.—Mrs. A. Jones
Cor. Sec.—Miss P. Grant.
Treas.—Mrs. J. McIlvena.

The next meeting will be held on Feb. 22 at the home of Mrs. H. Trickey, Apsley. All members are cordially invited. Anyone wishing to help with the work will find yarn at Mrs. Booth's, Apsley, opposite the P. O.

The following letters show how the Apsley boys appreciate the parcels sent:

Z. M. Hales, B.E.F.
France, Dec. 24. 1917.

Dear Friends—Just a line in answer to the wonderful gift you sent me for Christmas. I think you must realize what we need in France for the things you sent were just what I really needed and they were certainly appreciated indeed.

We are having very cold weather now, and several inches of snow, more to our discomfort than pleasure at present, for horses and cutters are very scarce here, and scarcer still are the young girls such as we have in Canada.

I will draw this scribble to a close, trusting you are all well, and thanking you for the kind remembrance.

Sincerely,
Z. M. HALES.

France, Nov. 21st, 1917.

Dear Miss Grant,—Your letter of October received, also the parcel, which I enjoyed very much, and I hope you will give the members of the Women's Auxiliary Society my best thanks for their kindness, and I am sure the other Apsley boys are just as glad as myself to know the people at home are doing all they can to help. The Red Cross is one of our most friends out here. Thanks for the good wishes. I must close now, with wishing you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Yours sincerely,
PTE. R. SCOTT.

HARDWARE AND METAL MARKETS

Modification of the original order by the United States Government providing for prohibition of all steel products for export except under license has made it possible for the lighter gauges of black and galvanized sheets to be brought into Canada. The original order stipulated that all black and galvanized sheets were to be placed on the embargo list. Through the change in this ruling the situation with respect to sheets now holds in the status quo, namely, an embargo only on No. 10 gauge and heavier. These heavier gauges of sheets can only be brought forward when license is granted and when sale has been sanctioned by the Dominion War Trade Board.

The appointment of the War Trade Board will have the effect of giving the Government a greater measure of control over imports and exports, and also a better knowledge of conditions of stocks of raw materials and partly finished and finished products. Its powers are similar in scope to the War Trade Board of the United States. The opinion is expressed in some quarters that it would not be a surprise to see the United States place an embargo on an even wider range of commodities coming into Canada than those prevailing at the present time.

Advances have been numerous and include increased prices in such commodities as sashcord, cotton tape, awning cord, candlewick, cotton plow lines, tinned pipe straps, socket firmer chisels, drawknives, cotton clothes-lines and a number of lines of automobile accessories.

Great difficulty is experienced in getting shipments of goods by railway. Embargoes on acceptance of freight by railways are of frequent occurrence. Wholesalers never know from one day to the next whether they will be able to depend on shipment of freight on any particular day. Even shipment by express has been banned on certain days. Under the conditions business is being hampered through transportation situation. —"Hardware and Metal."

AMERICAN AVIATORS FLY 102,000 MILES DAILY; FEW KILLED

FORT WORTH, Feb. 19.—Of the 31 flying corps cadets and instructors killed at the Texas camps in four months, 20 were British and 11 Americans. Several were mechanics who met death on the ground.

The acting chief signal officer tonight issued this statement.

"Distressing though recent fatalities in the aviation section of the Signal Corps have been, the percentage of casualties among our young aviators is very low, considering the increase in the number of men flying each day. The aviators at the Signal Corps training schools are averaging about 1,700

Lower Priced Sugar Is In Prospect

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs, appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

Of prime interest to the grocery trade during the week, is perhaps the prospect that supplies of refined sugar are expected to be better in the near future. The railway embargo that has prevailed on sugar carrying lines of the United States has now been lifted and stocks are expected to reach the Canadian refiners in the near future. One refiner has already received some supplies of raw sugars during the week. Some raw sugars from Java are reported to be on the way to the United States. This sugar is being transported in Dutch bottoms taken over by the United States government. These raw sugars were bought for 2c per pound less than the Cuban raw sugar. All raw sugars, however, are under the control of the International Sugar Committee. The situation is being watched with a great deal of interest to see what effect these lower priced sugars will have on the sugar market.

THE BUTTER MARKET.

Some of the commission men have received intimations that margarine may again be permitted to come into Canada from the United States. Definite decision on this point is awaited with keen interest. In the meantime storage butter, dairy butter and in fact all grades of butter are in firm market as a result of the demand which has developed. Storage eggs continue to be scarce until such times as supplies of Westerns reach the Eastern market. Western butter is also expected to reach the Eastern market in the near future.

Advances have been recorded in a number of lines in which the grocery trade is interested, namely in tapioca, mustard, cleaner, stove, paste ink. New prices on soaps have been arranged according to the advance announced last week.

Flour mills have been experiencing great difficulty in getting shipments of flour from the West, as the transporation facilities have not improved materially as yet. Rolled oats continue in strong market. Business has been greatly restricted during the week due to the transportation situation. Wholesalers are at a loss to know when they can depend on getting shipments either in or out.

RENEWALS OF LICENSES.

Applications Have Been Forwarded by Inspector Stewart.

License Inspector Stewart has received applications for the renewals of all the standard hotel licenses in his territory and has forwarded them to the Department. Blanks have been sent to Mr. Williams at Havelock, and it is expected that every hotel in the county will continue in business next year.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

LETTER FROM LIEUT. SORSOLEIL

The following is an interesting letter from Lieut. Jack Sorsoleil, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Sorsoleil, Toronto, formerly of Peterborough:

84th Squadron, R.F.C., France.
Jan. 13th, 1918.

My Dear People,—At this writing I am in the happiest mood possible because I received your own dear box and also because I shot down a 2-seater Hun within our own lines. This is my first and I have the proper spirit and enthusiasm. Your box was wonderful—everything in it is so useful. The flashlight is a beauty, and just what I needed. The scarf was also one of the best things you could have sent. I was glad to receive the sugar as we ran out of sugar in the mess to-day so I gave it into the mess for our meals. I am putting my Xmas cake on the table. The boys always put their eats in the mess an I am doing likewise. The candies, gum, nuts and medicine were also very welcome. I received at the same time five letters from Canada and among them one from Dad and one from Eugene.

Now, I think you would like to hear how I got my Hun. Five of us left the aerodrome in formation. At the Hun line and up north we sighted three 2-seater Huns working on the edge of our lines. We flew into the sun so they could not see us and crossed over into Hunland and came up from behind them. They caught sight of us and started for home. My leader and I dived on the first one and he spiraled down towards the ground. All at once I noticed one of the other Huns trying to get on my tail. Immediately I climbed and turned quickly to the right and got on his tail. Meanwhile our other three pilots joined us and chased the third Hun. Well, as I said, I was on his tail and he turned shortly to the left and in so doing his machine became too vertical and hung. As soon as I noticed this I straightened out my machine and brought both guns to play on him. This was at about 8,000 feet. He started to spin to the ground and I followed him down. He went out of the spin and went into a nose dive and into the ground about 300 yards behind our first lines. Our other chaps brought down the two other German planes, making three for us in our patrol. When we reached the aerodrome we found that Captain P—— had shot down a Hun scout. This made four for the day. We were just going into lunch when the Wing Commander and Brigade General came in. They had luncheon with us, and each of us who had bagged a Hun had a long talk with the General. He congratulated us on our work and then took Captain L—— and me to where I had shot down the Hun. The machine was a fearful wreck. I took the number off the tail and also one of the instruments as souvenirs. As we were sitting down to dinner General T—— sent us congratulations from England. Everybody was quite bucked up with the day's work.

Yesterday afternoon as we finished our work we saw one of our balloons shot down in flames. We saw the observer jump out and fortunately he escaped unhurt. After the German had done this trick, his engine cut out and he landed behind our lines. We all went to an aerodrome near at hand and saw the machine. Our mechanics wanted to go out and collect the bus I had shot down. The Captain told them it was not worth while as they would not get enough to make a fire.

I received parcels from Miss S. Throop and Miss Canfield. I am writing them to-night. Tell Eugene that he writes a fine letter. Give my love to all. Lovingly,

Jack.

Council, and climaxed by the Council's refusal to make a grant to pay the rent. After all these months the Veterans are still without rooms, while the Ladies' Auxiliary is ready to furnish quarters as soon as they can be obtained.

Last night's meeting decided to take action at once and a committee composed of Comrades H. Kelly, H. Mann, A. Naish, R. H. Muir and P. Sturgeon was appointed, to act with the executive in securing suitable rooms as soon as possible.

Several members advocated increasing the monthly fees so that the Association should be independent of any out-side help, and one comrade suggested that if any contribution was to be accepted from the city it must be voluntary.

A Vote of Thanks.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey and all the members of "A Greek Slave" Company for their kindness in putting on that most enjoyable musical comedy for the benefit of the Veterans' club room funds.

Mr. C. H. Clementi wrote, offering the Association a picture for their new Club rooms and the gift was gratefully accepted, the secretary being instructed to send Mr. Clementi a vote of thanks.

One member was admitted into the membership of the Association.

At the request of Major Watt, the Veterans supplied a firing party for the funeral of Lieut. Boyd to-day.

PEDESTRIANS SKIDDED

Many Tumbles on the icy Walks Today—No Injuries Reported.

This morning's rain, freezing as it fell during the early hours, multiplied yesterday's work of the sand brigade, and left a thin, keen surface of ice on the sidewalks that drove pedestrians into the broad highway. Many falls and sprawls and muscle wrenching contortions amused more fortunate persons who watched and minced their steps, realizing that their dignity, if not their limbs, depended upon exceeding circumspection. Elders, spured with creepers, dug themselves in safely at every step. Age begets not only wisdom, but stiff joints that require the protection of 'sharp shod' rubbers. A tumble, on the back streets, was disconcerting enough, but not so ruffling to one's temper as a spill on the main street, where the victims of the weather's vagaries perform their unpracticed stunts are assured of spectators who are more than likely to offer the comforting encouragement of the bromidic: "You couldn't do that again of you tried".

Dandruff Soon Ruins the Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

Fire Engine Is A Valuable Addition Says Mr. Elliot

The Added Pressure May Have Been the Means of Saving the Block

Chief Grange yesterday received the following letter and a cheque for $25.00, a grateful acknowledgement from Mr. T. C. Eliot whose store and stock the Fire Department so efficiently defended from the fire of some weeks ago:

Chief Grange,
Peterborough Fire Brigade.

Dear Chief: As I intimated to you some weeks ago, I am now enclosing cheque to you. My intentions were good, but somehow delayed. We very greatly appreciated the vigor and skill and quick action you showed when fighting our fire.

When the high winds blew the long flames around the fire wall in front of the building, igniting the fourth story, and seemingly getting hold of the structure, we thought there was little hope of saving the building, but owing to your quick decision and equally quick action to add the pressure of the engine to that of the mains, the water left the hose with such force that it tore the slates off and allowed the water to get at the fire. This action of yours saved the block.

We think that the fire engine is a very valuable addition to your equipment. Please convey to the members of the brigade our thanks for their efficient work.

Yours gratefully,
T. C. ELIOTT.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING SYSTEM IS DISCUSSED

Administrator of Vocational Work of Military Hospital Commission Speaks in Toronto.

MANY CLASSES OPEN

The system of vocational training for returned soldiers which is enabling men to learn new occupations and in many instances to go back into civil life prepared to earn more than they did before they enlisted was the subject of an enlightening address address by W. E. Segsworth, administrator of vocational training for the returned soldiers under the Military Hospitals Commission, before the Canadian Credit Men's Association in Toronto.

Mr. Segsworth stated definitely that learning a new trade would have no effect on a soldier's pension, and that whether pensioners or not returned soldiers were eligible for the re-educational courses.

The idea kept to the fore in the vocational training was to follow the lines of the man's old occupation so he would go back to his old environment. For example a bricklayer, prevented through injuries from following the same occupation might be trained to be an architect or draughtsman, a carpenter may become a cabinet maker, a line-man become an armature winder, or a moulder a pattern maker.

As many occupations are taught as possible among the returned men, otherwise there would arise competition difficulties.

Small Number Blind.

An investigation by the hospitals commission had shown that there had been 34 soldiers blinded by wounds and it was pointed out that this was a much smaller number than was generally supposed, one doctor in "guessing"—before the inquiry—having made an "estimate" of 1,000.

Soldiers Not Exploited.

An important point brought out was that although warned that soldiers would be exploited, the commission now had the men receive part of the training right in the factories of the country, with very successful results. Before this was done, however, an industrial survey was made.

hours of flying a day, which makes a distance of about 102,000 miles flown each day. This is equal to four trips around the earth.

"Considering the amount of flying, the percentage of fatal accidents is remarkably low."

CONFLICT HAS BEEN SETTLED

Wrangle Between Hospital Commission and Army Medical Service Appears to Be Settled

Special to The Toronto Star and the Peterboro Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. — The conflict which has existed between the Military Hospitals Commission and the Army Medical Service of the Militia Department has been practically settled, though certain details are yet to be worked out. Generally speaking, however, the respective jurisdictions of the two bodies over returned soldiers have been pretty well defined, but it is denied that there has been any victory or win-out for either. Rather, it is stated an arrangement has been reached satisfactory to both and to all concerned. The Army Service Corps is to have full charge of all active cases in hospitals or institutions. The treatment of tubercular, epelptic or nervous breakdown cases in permanent hospitals, however, is to remain in charge of the Military Hospitals Commission, which is also to continue the work of vocational training and the preparation of men for civilian life.

The new alignment of jurisdiction is the outcome of a long series of clashes between the two bodies. This conflict was aired before the Returned Soldiers committee last session by Col. Marlow, and it was evident then that these conflicts would continue until such time as the functions of the two bodies were clearly defined. Practically only the employees of the Military Hospitals Commission who will be affected will be civil doctors at present employed in the care of active cases. Sir James Loughead will remain as head of the Commission.

The Girl Who Said Bad Words

By F. A. MITCHELL

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

In trying to produce an effect on a child the reverse is brought about by overdoing the matter. Nagging children to a certain behavior, trying to keep them up to a certain standard of morals, often produce a diametrically contrary effect.

When I was a boy I remember one day passing a girl's school just as the pupils were starting out to walk under the supervision of a couple of as straightlaced-looking teachers as ever I beheld. One little girl about seven years old, with heavenly blue eyes, arrested my attention.

A few days later I walked by this school again. This time the children were playing in the grounds at recess. The school was surrounded by a high wall, the only opening being the gateway.

One of them must have offended a playmate, for suddenly there came forth, in the sweetest of voices, a volume of rough words which quite shocked me.

I passed on to the gateway and these children were chasing each other in the same direction, for I saw them pass, and one of them let forth at the time a harsh expression.

Horror of horrors! She was my little angel.

When I was about eighteen I was shocked a second time in a similar manner. But this time the effect was not so dreadful because I had learned by my own experience that goodness we attempt to force into a youngster usually comes out badness. My parents were very anxious that I should take a high grade at school. While I was a little fellow they let me alone and I did excellently; when I grew older and they began to nag me I fell off and sank to a low rank in scholarship, though I confess there were other causes for my retrogression, the principal of which was the development of a taste for literature.

Well, this second shock was this: I had called at a house to see a chum of mine. While waiting for him to come down to see me someone was practicing in an adjoining room at singing. There was a certain turn in the song that she could not execute correctly. When she failed on the sixth attempt, there was an explosion of vexation worthy of a driver of an army mule team. The voice in which the words were uttered was as sweet as they were harsh.

When the great world war came on my father turned out to be a pacifist. I, on the contrary, believed that it was our duty as well as our interest to assist the allies. On the American declaration of war, he did everything he could to persuade me to refrain from enlisting, but he had made me a soldier by his very opposition to my views. After a bitter argument one morning I went to a recruiting station and offered myself for a recruit. The ambulance corps being popular, I chose that branch of the service.

One day, when we were out picking up the wounded, I was hit by a piece of shrapnel and put into the ambulance myself. I was carried to a base hospital, where my wound was dressed, and I was stowed away for a couple of months to recover.

Everybody knows that women of all ranks of life went to France and Belgium as well as the other countries engaged in the war to nurse sick and wounded soldiers. I was quite interested in noting the different women who were nursing about me. They were of all nationalities and grades. Those in the hospital where I was were chiefly French and Americans. The English nurses naturally went to nurse British soldiers. The nurse who was assigned to take care of a part of the invalids in my ward was a high-bred dame working with others of her class as well as some of less refinement.

I made every excuse to get her to linger beside me and chat with me. One would suppose by the length of time I thus detained her that I needed more attention than any other man in the ward. However, I did not succeed in enticing her from the other patients, for she served all alike, and I verily believe that every one of them was in love with her.

One day after a battle my Madonna was placed in charge of the overcrowded ward. A great change came over her at assuming the responsibility. She showed herself a true administrator. Suddenly, when two nurses hastening in different directions collided and sent hot broth over a newly wounded man, she sent forth a torrent of words not at all in consonance with her serenity and sweetness.

This was the third time I had heard such words spoken in a delicious feminine voice. It rushed upon me that the three were one.

As soon as I could get her attention I told her the story I have told here, and she confessed that she was the child in the schoolyard and the young girl practicing on the piano. She had had good behavior so impressed upon her as a child that she had used bad language in revolt. Since then the habit was liable to crop out whenever she was sorely disturbed.

When I left the ward every man in it envied me, for I had captured the Madonnalike girl who had been made too good when a child.

Wall Street Journal Comments on Cost to Canada

It has been estimated the taxpayers of Canada in forty-seven years have lost $268,000,000 in operating the 1,736 miles of road known as the Intercolonial and Prince Edward Island lines, without any allowance for taxes collectible had they been privately owned. This is in addition to $112,600,000 officially given as the capital cost of these roads. The thirty-two-mile Windsor branch of the public road, under Canadian Pacific management, from 1881 to 1914 earned $662,000 net, or more than one-third of all net earnings of the Intercolonial since 1867.

Determined by the attitude of successive governments toward public operation, it would seem the craving for control was rather sharpened by a record of twenty-five annual deficits. Certainly there has been no marked development toward a change to private management—not even of the portions of the Intercolonial contiguous to the Windsor Branch. The results of inefficient service may prove harmful to shippers and burdensome to taxpayers, but no Government has yet shown a disposition to relax operating control. If the Manitoba taxpayers got nothing from Intercolonial, the Quebec taxpayers will get nothing from Hudson Bay Railway.

Canada has a highly representative and responsible form of Government, at least as amenable to orderly public opinion as our own. Its oldest public railway originated in circumstances of apparent general interest, having very much of the argumentative force under which public operating control is now enlarged on this side of the line over other things beside railroads.

There is one moral for both countries. Political operating control of any form of business or finance is much easier to grant than to resume. When it becomes necessary to consider it, neither a parliament nor a congress can afford to measure the extent of the powers created by the intentions, no matter how good and unambitious of the Government for the time being.—Wall Street Journal.

FRANK HEFFERNAN QUITS THE NEW YORK WANDERERS

New York, Feb. 19. — The New York Wanderers hockey team defeated the Boston Navy Yard seven here last night by a score of 5 to 2. Three extra periods were necessary.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mr. Arthur Hainge, Ashton Farm, Perley, Sask., writes: "Two years ago whooping cough was very bad in this part of the country; our eight months old boy caught it and had a very severe attack. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and we gave it and nothing else with splendid results. When the older brother took the whooping cough we used this medicine promptly and prevented serious trouble, as the cough passed off in two or three days."

His Mistake

By OSCAR COX

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

In the hall of a pleasant home in a lonely western town stood two brothers conversing. "Can't you make up your mind to come, John?"

The one addressed hesitated for a long time, then said, "I can't do it just now, Carl. I know you are right in going to offer your services to the United States, but something holds me back yet."

"I fear, John, it is Hulda's influence."

"Yes," said John, "I admit her influence."

"I don't understand her," continued Carl. "Her father is a splendid citizen. Her only brother is already at the front. How can you explain it, John?"

"Well, you see, Carl, you have been away from home so long you don't know about the influence Hulda's mother exerted over her. From the time the war broke out she was strongly pro-German."

"Have you confessed your love for her yet?" said Carl.

"No, but I plan to try my luck today."

The brothers parted with a warm handshake.

His love for Hulda Brown, an unusually pretty girl, was the one great thought that possessed the mind of John Morse. He was willing to make any sacrifice for her.

He had been backward about asking her to be his wife, for his great love made him fearful of himself and what his answer might be, yet surely Hulda had given him reason at times to make him think she had more than a merely friendly affection for him.

John mounted his horse and in a couple of hours reached the Brown farm.

It was just beginning to get dusk as he dismounted from his horse and made his way to a summer house where he was quite sure he would find Hulda alone.

All was silence till just as he neared the spot voices came to his ear and he stopped almost mechanically. It was the voice of Henry, her cousin, and, looking in, John saw him with his arm round Hulda, kissing her and saying, "Have good courage, dear little woman; I will be back to you soon."

The man near the summer house heard the words and they were like a stab to his heart. Then, with a heavy sigh, he turned away and remounted his horse.

The next day John offered himself for enlistment in the United States army and soon after entered a training camp, where the busy days and hard life helped to dull the pain.

As time passed on Hulda became day by day more unlike her usual happy self, till her father, noticing her pale face and languid ways, put his wit to work to find something to interest her.

The father persuaded some of Hulda's most intimate friends to get her interested in Red Cross work.

Then came the sad news from the front. Hulda's brother had been wounded and was in an English hospital.

After a little pleading with her father, Hulda was allowed to depart immediately for London.

On her arrival she found her brother so much improved that he was to return to the front in a week's time. Hulda, however, determined to remain in London and pursue her Red Cross work.

For many months new contingents of American soldiers had been passing from the United States to France, among them the two brothers, John and Carl.

John soon became conspicuous for his daring and bade fair to be rapidly promoted.

In an attack near Ypres during the night a party of American soldiers, led by John, penetrated a lonesome house. Suddenly they were attacked by a big force of German soldiers, who poured up from a concrete cellar. All looked pretty blue for the Americans, but such was John Morse's courage that he inspired the others, and in a marvelous hand-to-hand struggle the American soldiers fought their way clear of the Germans, not one being taken prisoner.

In a dugout entered by John he found one American prisoner, half starved, whom he carried to the rear.

As he was bending over the man to examine into his condition, a bomb exploded near by and both men were hit by shrapnel.

They were sent to a hospital in England to convalesce, and while on the transport John discovered he had saved the life of Hulda's brother.

The hospital life which John dreaded was transformed almost into a paradise the evening of their arrival, when their nurse in charge, looking most bewitching in her costume, appeared, and Hulda Brown and John faced each other in mutual surprise. John could simply gasp, "Hulda!" She quickly dropped to her knees beside his bed, and looking into each other's eyes, the whole story was told. Later on she asked John why he had left her with no goodby. He then told of what he had seen in the summer house and the suffering it gave him. "Why, you foolish John," she said. "Cousin Henry and I are more like brother and sister than cousins and he was bidding me goodby before starting for the front."

RED CHEVRON FOR CANADIANS

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—The Original First men returning to Canada are entitled to wear a Red Chevron on their sleeves, with an additional Blue Chevron above for every year's service at the front. This is in conformity with the British practice which permits men who have been in France during any part of the period covering Mons and the Marne to wear the Red Chevron with a Blue for every additional year's service thereafter. Those who reached France after that period wear only the Blue Chevron. The British distinguishing mark is based on active service.

Canadians copied it with a difference. It was decided that men of the Original First should be entitled to wear the Red Chevron, naturally it was intended that the privilege should be extended to such of the firsts as had been on actual service in France in conformity with the British system. But here Argyle House, which is the Canadian headquarters in England, got busy. Argyle House is full of men who never smelt powder. Many of them crossed over to England with the Original Firsts, but have never crossed to France. Nevertheless the desired privilege of wearing the Red Chevron, which in the British service designated only men who had borne the brunt at Mons or the Marne, and which, in the Canadian service, was meant to designate only members of the First Contingent who had actually seen service in France. So it was arranged that the Red Chevron should be worn by each and every members of the First Contingent which sailed from Canada in 1914. This is why men of the Original First returning from the battle line to Canada are not wearing the Chevron, though they have every right to do so. The fact that men with soft jobs in Argyle House have the same right has robbed the Chevrons of their status. As a matter of fact, that circumstance bids fair to rob the Mons and the Marne Chevron of its glory.

Performance Of New Fire Truck

Engine Negotiated Most of the Steep Hills in the City

The new chemical engine and hose waggon made its debut yesterday afternoon in Peterboro, and took every obstacle, including icy roads and steep inclines without a hitch until the Isolation Hospital hill was reached—and there the machine baulked. No efforts from the 15 gallon gasoline tank would spur her on and she sank deeper and deeper into a snow drift, four feet deep. The Board of Health Committee, who were aboard, had to "go over the top" on foot to complete their inspection of the hospital. Otherwise than that slight mishap, which necessitated digging the engine out and sliding her off on planks, everything went smoothly. No other hill in the city was too steep, and the Fire, Water and Light Committee, who also enjoyed a joy ride about the city, expressed themselves entirely satisfied with their latest purchase.

THE ENGINE'S EQUIPMENT.

The engine carries a forty gallon copper chemical tank, with 200 feet of 3-4 inch hose attached. This would extinguish any ordinary fire, but in case of emergency, 1,500 feet of 2 1-2 inch hose for water protection, a 20 foot solid extension ladder, a 12 foot roof ladder, and a pike pole are carried. Her searchlight equipment is the best that money could procure.

CHIEF PLEASED.

The chief is delighted with his latest fire fighter, and is busy learning with his men the use of the engine from an instructor sent from the La France Engine Co. The engine is in full sail, awaiting a call, without which the Chief will arrange for a demonstration bonfire shortly.

Few Drops on a Corn or Callus

Instantly stops pain and they lift right off with fingers.

This tiny bottle holds the wonder of wonders. It contains an almost magical drug called freezone. It is a compound made from ether.

Apply a few drops of this freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a hardened callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so shrivelled and loose that you just lift it off with the fingers. It doesn't hurt one particle.

You feel no pain or soreness when applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the skin.

Just ask in any drug-store for a small bottle of freezone. This will cost but a few cents, but will positively rid your poor, suffering feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, or the tough calluses on the bottom of feet.

Women! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn ache twice.

FOOD CONSERVATION IN PETERBOROUGH

The National Council of Women of Canada has been asked by the Food Commission to take immediate action, and to do all within the power of its far-reaching organization to aid in educating the public as to the absolute necessity of food conservation, food substitutes and food production.

Acting on a request therefore, from the National Council, the Local Council of Women of Peterborough have already launched a campaign for the purpose above mentioned.

The following central committee has been appointed:—Mrs. Morris (convenor), Mrs. Harstone, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. F. C. Neal, Mrs. J. Johns, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. Medd, Mrs. Gallivan, Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, Miss Lynch, Mrs. Mowat, Mrs. Parsons.

Sub Committee.

One sub-committee, under the convenorship of Mrs. Medd, has already met the Board of Education in an effort to see if the children cannot be reached through the schools and inspired to take an interest in gardening. An exhibit could be held in the autumn and prizes given. It is surprising what children can do when properly guided, and given sympathy and appreciation by their elders.

Another part of the work is that of presenting the object of the campaign to every society of women in Peterborough. This committee is convened by Mrs. J. John, and already each President has been interviewed, and arrangements made for speakers to present the matter fully.

As willingness to help is being met with on all sides, and this is well, for only by hearty, sympathetic co-operation can worth-while results be achieved.

It was hoped to have Mr. Norman Somerville to address a mass meeting before this, but owing to illness, Mr. Somerville has had to give up his work for a time. However, arrangements are being made for some other good helpful speakers to come to us very soon.

Still another sub-committee is looking into the matter of demonstrations in cooking and other matters pertaining to household economics.

As a further aid, the newspapers have very kindly and generously offered their columns for presenting material on these all-important subjects of conservation and production. Not that they have not already given freely of their valuable space for anything calculated to educate the public on these important subjects, but an effort will be made to make the material in this space especially applicable to local conditions.

Nothing is done or written in anything but an humble spirit, in hopes that the food situation may be made a personal responsibility of the utmost seriousness to every woman in Peterborough and the surrounding country.—B. F. R.

De La Salle Sure Of Championship Now Their Supporters Say

Charlie Good says in the Toronto News:

At least one, and perhaps two, O.H.A. finals will be staged in Toronto this season, judging from the developments of late. Either the Dentals or Crescents will meet Kitchener in the senior play-off, and it is more than likely that De La Salle will qualify in the junior division. The green shirts last night proved that they could play as well on foreign ice as at home by taking the measure of the Peterborough "kids" handily in their first out-of-town fixture. Some of their admirers were a little dubious as to the ability of the team to perform away from their favourite surface, but De La Salle came through the ordeal with flying colours when put to the test. They should have no difficulty in maintaining their advantage in the return game next week. Manager Deacon was so impressed with the all-round play of his pets that this morning he confidently predicted that De La Salle would not lose another game this season. "When we beat Aura Lee we disposed of our hardest opposition," he declared. "The others should be easy."

NOT ONLY INSPIRATION LOST

Error of Ralph Waldo Emerson Left Better Half Mourning Loss of Costly Hair Ornament.

In the days of Ralph Waldo Emerson matches were not sold loose in boxes, but were made up in "cards," as they were called, of a dozen or so, connected by a common wooden base, from which they were broken off as necessity required.

Emerson, so the story goes, used to place a fresh card of matches on a table by his bedside every night, together with a candle and some writing materials, in order that he might jot down at once any valuable thought that came into his mind during the night watches.

One night he wakened with a particularly brilliant idea and bethought himself at once of his canny preparations for such emergencies. Reaching out, he grasped his card of matches, broke off the outer one and struck it sharply on the under side of the table. It failed to ignite. Swiftly he struck the next and the next, but with the same result.

Even so great a philosopher began to grow a little annoyed. Sitting up in bed, with grim determination he broke off one match after another until the card was gone. Not one gave the faintest spark.

By that time the idea was gone, too, and so his only recourse was to lay himself down again to ponder over a new problem, to-wit: "Why wouldn't those matches light?"

Whatever his solution was, however, it probably had to be revised the next morning, when he was wakened by a startled cry from his wife.

"Oh, what can have happened to my best tortoise shell comb?" she said. "I left it on the table at the head of the bed last night, and this morning it's in fragments."—Youth's Companion.

"Trench Foot," New War Disease.

In spite of vaccines and modern hygiene disease still stands close to the enemy in the number of French and British soldiers it destroys. For example, trench warfare has developed a disease of its own, which is called "trench foot," and is a sort of gangrene. It is caused by standing in cold water day after day. A sort of mold enters abrasions in the skin and the foot literally rots away, often rendering an operation necessary.

BOWSER ON A HUNT

Hears That Woodchuck Oil Cures Rheumatism.

ON THE ANIMAL'S TRAIL.

Looks For It In the Trees—Trolley Conductor Gives Him a Scent—Farmer Tells Him He's Loony—Home In a Wagon Under Guard.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, "", by Associated Literary Press.]

IT was 8 o'clock in the evening, and the cat purred on the hearth and the Bowsers sat reading. It was a quiet, peaceful hour, and it seemed almost a sacrilege when Mr. Bowser suddenly exclaimed:

"Well, by thunder, if that isn't curious!"

"What is it?" was asked.

"There was a doctor in the office today, and when he saw that I had rheumatism he told me a sure cure. I find the same thing right here in the paper."

"Have you rheumatism?" asked Mrs. Bowser in quiet tones.

"What! What! Have I rheumatism? Why don't you ask me if I have legs and arms? Why don't you ask if I'm living or dead?"

"It's been so long since you complained that I thought you had been permanently cured."

"I never complain, Mrs. Bowser. No husband ever complains of bodily ailments as long as he can sit up. We suffer in silence, but that's no sign we are not in misery most of the time. If you had the aches and pains I've got this minute you'd be in bed and under the doctor's care. Have I got rheumatism? Humph!"

"What did the doctor charge for his recipe?" was asked.

"There you go again! He didn't charge a blamed cent. You can't seem to get it into your head that all human beings are not sordid wretches. He was only too glad to tell me."

"Well, that was kind of him. What is the cure?"

"Just what is stated here—woodchuck oil. Rubbed in well twice a week it is warranted to take the last ache away within three months. Here is the story of a man who was cured after his legs had been tied in a knot for ten years."

WOODCHUCKS FROM TREES.

"Have you been to the drug store to ask for it?"

"Yes, to half a dozen, but they don't keep it. It seems that very few people have got on to the cure. The way to get the oil is to go out into the country and kill a woodchuck and bring him home and try him out. I shall take a day off tomorrow. I was thinking of going snipe shooting, but I'll change it to woodchuck."

"But are you quite sure of finding a woodchuck?"

Knows What He Knows.

"The woods are full of them. Any farmer will gladly put me next, for the woodchuck is very destructive to young apple trees. It gnaws away the bark."

"I thought it was rabbits that did that."

"Never mind what you thought. It won't take me an hour after I get out into the country to knock one out of a tree."

"But woodchucks don't climb trees. You must be thinking of coons."

"Now stop right there!" he shouted. "I don't propose to be insulted over this thing. If I'm such a fool that I don't know a woodchuck from a coon I'd better go off and die. It's mighty funny how you always butt in and pick a row. When I was a boy on the farm I shot woodchucks from the highest trees."

"You—you don't mean squirrels?" she asked, hating to give up her point, though warned by policy to do so.

"No, nor elephants, nor camels, nor rhinoceroses!" he fairly shrieked. "Mrs. Bowser, we will drop this discussion right here. I have seen rats. I know a rat from a cow. I have seen foxes. I know a fox from a giraffe. Early in the morning I go after a woodchuck. I shall get him. I shall bring him home. I shall get his oil. I shall be cured of my rheumatism, and, by the seven big dogs, I shall owe nothing to you!"

"I surely hope you will be cured," she replied, and there the matter dropped.

Mr. Bowser sulked around for awhile and then went off to bed, and when she followed him, an hour later, she found him asleep and muttering:

"Mrs. Bowser — woodchuck — seven dogs—rats."

It was an early breakfast next morning, and then Mr. Bowser borrowed the butcher's gun and made a start. Mrs. Bowser was lively on other subjects, but kept clear of the woodchuck, in a sly way before his departure she slipped a card into his coat pocket bearing his name and place of residence. When he asked for the gun the butcher naturally inquired whither bound, and the answer was:

"To the country to kill a woodchuck."

"Does the woodchuck roam around by day?"

"Of course. I've seen dozens of 'em at noonday."

The Butcher Laughs.

The man of meat turned away to hide a smile and said no more. He had a farm, and he knew something of the woodchuck. He was also willing that Mr. Bowser should learn something—from other folks. Three miles on the trolley car took the hunter out among the farmers. He sought to get a little posting from the car conductor by asking:

"Perhaps you see a woodchuck now and then out here at the terminus?"

"Oh, yes! I saw about twenty of them in a flock the other day, and the day before that they were so thick on the track that I had to get off and shoo them away. Woodchucks? Why, the country is alive with them!"

"I want to get one or two for their oil."

"You can get a dozen, and all are fat as butter. You have heard the song 'Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?' Haven't you?"

"I—I guess so."

"Well, sing it when you get on a little farther. The woodchucks like it. They'll come running from all directions. The plaintive air of it seems to touch a chord in their souls—that is, if woodchucks have souls, and I suppose they have."

"I never heard of the like," said Mr. Bowser as his face reddened with the idea that he was being gured.

"Fact, old man. A hunter was out here one day last week, and he had to hire a farmer to draw his game into town—all woodchucks, and as fat as butter. Got 'em all by singing that song. Ask the farmer in the red house up there."

Mr. Bowser started off up the road. He hummed as he went. No woodchucks. He met a farmer's hired man leading a cow and asked about woodchucks, but the man grinned and passed on. He met a farmer's daughter carrying a hen under her arm and explained his mission, and she modestly answered:

"I think you mean bears, sir. I never saw one, but you had better ask father."

Farmer Excites the Hunter.

He passed on to the red farmhouse. The farmer was chopping wood at the kitchen door and was addressed with:

"My good man, I want to shoot one or two woodchucks. Where is the best place to look for them?"

"Woodchucks?" repeated the farmer as he let his ax fall.

"That's what I said. I understand that the trees are full of them."

"Woodchucks? Trees?"

"That's what I said."

"But there hasn't been a woodchuck around here in thirty years, and who ever heard of one climbing a tree?"

"Sir," said Mr. Bowser as he drew himself up in his pompous way, "don't take me for a spring chicken. I have asked you in a civil way to point me out the stamping ground of the woodchuck."

"And don't you take me for a fool!" menaced the farmer. "There ain't a woodchuck within forty miles of here, and if there was he wouldn't be fool enough to try to climb a tree! There must be something wrong in your upper story."

"You are a liar!"

At 6 o'clock that evening three men brought Mr. Bowser home in a farm wagon. One drove, the other held the gun, and the third sat on the prisoner. A ring of the bell brought Mrs. Bowser to the door, and the ringer handed her the card she had slipped into Mr. Bowser's pocket in the morning and whispered:

"Crazy as a loon, ma'am, and but for this we should have taken him to jail. Wants to find a woodchuck, wants to [illegible] one up a tree. We'll bring him ..... but you'd better look out for him. He bit an ax helve almost in two when we first throwed him down to tie his ankles. No charge. Was glad to oblige."

Freight Is Being Held Up

Result Will Be a Congestion on Canadian Railways

(Canadian Press Despatch)

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Thousands of tons of Canadian freight, destined to points in the United States, are held up by an order promulgated today from the War Board at Washington, which places an embargo placed on Canadian freight, valued at more than $100 unless accompanied by a certificate from the War Board. The effect of the order means more congestion on Canadian railways, although it is thought to be an attempt to clear up the railway situation in the United States, by some railway officials. A serious congestion of international traffic is threatened unless the Railway Companies decide to refuse freight. The meaning of the order is not well understood, locally, in view of the fact that the great bulk of exports from Canada to the United States are raw or semi-manufactured materials, such as paper, pulp, ores and ore matts, timber and hay, such manufactured goods as are being exported for the most part consist of war orders, which are understood to be exempted from the order of the War Board.

DEATH OF CHARLES CLARK, PROMINENT MANUFACTURER

Formerly Resided in Peterboro'

TORONTO, Feb. 19.— Mr. Charles Edward Clarke, of 25 Bedford road, died last evening in the private patients' pavilion, General Hospital. The late Mr. Clarke was President of Clarke & Clarke, Limited, leather manufacturers, Toronto. He was the son of the late John Clarke, of Peterborough, in which city he was born 52 years ago. He is survived by his wife and four daughters. The death of his brother only seven weeks ago left him as the surviving member of the firm.

The late Mr. Clarke was greatly interested in the promotion of the Penny Bank system in Toronto. He was an energetic churchman, and was sidesman in St. Alban's Cathedral.

The funeral will be held from St. Alban's Cathedral on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

GOOD PROGRAMME AT TEMPLE LAST NIGHT

One of the best programmes from an entertainment point of view was enjoyed by the friends of the Salvation Army at the Temple last night.

Corps Cadet Guardian Mrs. Lang was responsible for the arrangement of the entire programme, which did much credit to herself and her Cadets. The special feature of the evening was a Patriotic Scene of representatives of all the Allied nations, dressed accordingly with their respective flags, gathered in a group, and united in singing "Blest be the tie that binds." The audience was enraptured and loudly applauded each one as they took their place in the circle. Many requests were made for its repetition.

Co-ordinate The Allies' Strategy

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons this afternoon that the decisions of the Versailles Inter-Allied Conference was the result of strong representations by all the allies, including America. The Premier declared there was plenty of argument in favour of a change of machinery to affect greater co-ordiantion. Therefare, he said, the Council decided to form a central authority, with executive power, to co-ordinate the allies' strategy. All the representatives agreed to the decisions, Lloyd George said. The only difference arose over the constitution of the Council.

THE GERMANS ARE SWEEPING OVER RUSSIA

Many Towns Captured Without Resistance

Armies Await The Gong That Will Sound Start Of World's Greatest Battle

Germany Soon Will Plunge Into An Offensive on the Western Front on More Gigantic Scale Than History Ever Has Seen, It is Predicted—The Allies Are Ready

AMERICA'S STRENGTH

London, Feb. 20th.

England's eyes are on the French front and on the American soldiers.

The war will be decided on the western front, is the opinion of the experts here. The Americans will aid in forcing this decision if it comes in 1918. They will be largely instrumental in effecting it if it is deferred until the spring or the summer of 1919. Such are the deductions to be made from talks with the military authorities.

No one is bold enough to predict when the war will end. The impression to be gained in Great Britain is that it will end either this year with serious disturbances in Germany and Austria, or in 1919 when Germany finds that she has a million American soldiers to face, in addition to the gallant armies of France and England, which are still virile, despite desperate assaults made and withstood.

That there is serious business ahead is quite generally recognized by England. While the English newspapers print almost as much about Mesopotamia, Africa and other remote parts of the warring world, as they do about the situation in the crucial sector, the interest of the British public has centred on the French front, and it almost might be said that England is holding her breath in expectation of the most gigantic clash of armies since the world began.

AMERICA'S STRENGTH THE QUESTION.

When the blow will be struck is, of course, only guessed at. That the Hun is getting his hordes ready for a titantic smash against the enemy, is taken for granted. And wherever the prospect is discussed there is invariably the query:

"I wonder how many men America has ready to fight?"

No information is to be gathered on that score. The only thing known in London is that Americans have been seen in considerable numbers in England and with their sturdy physique and trim appearance have left a deep impression upon all who have seen them. An officer was complimented the other night in the Savoy Hotel lobby by an Englishman, who said: "Fine looking men, these Americans."

There was no answer.

"I dare say that they will give a good account of themselves."

"They always have," was the laconic reply.

And that is about as much information as one can get concerning America's soldiers here or in France. Whether they will be in the line when the crash comes or will be held back till their number is sufficient to crowd back the enemy themselves is a matter only of speculation.

From the information unofficially given out here the inference might be made that the allies are preparing for reverses on the western front. However no secret is made of the fact that the allied line is more adamant than it was at Verdun or the Marne. This, coupled with the fact that at the Marne the French faced an army fresh with vigor and flushed with ambition, and again at Verdun confronted the most powerful human batteries, the Huns could muster, while the French and English, in the height of their vitality, now are facing an army weakened by losses and more or less discouraged, does not seem to justify anything like a pessimistic view of the outlook.

The Germans are preparing for an attack. On it, it is said, they will stake everything. The opinion of the various military experts here is that the German military clique believes that, with the accessions from Russian front its forces can pierce the allied lines and force a peace conference before the full strength of America is felt. If the allied line is broken according to the authorities in England, Germany at home will be able to still the rising currents of unrest until the militarists have time to shape a new course.

GETTING READY.

For Germany to take the offensive at a time when the world had taken it for granted that she was slowly but nevertheless surely being beaten and driven from occupied territory has caused considerable surprise here. While it is as yet only speculation, no one knowing here what her scheme of campaign is, it is not doubted that she is getting ready to blast her way into the very face of the Allies for a great many miles.

Last April and as late as November the German newspapers treated America lightly, almost frivolously. Her newspapesr spoke continually of "American bluff" and "alleged American ingenuity." As recently as last December some of the leading German newspapers reaching England said the United States had no intention of putting a big army in the field and that, even if she decided to do so, she could not in two years get

Tells Farmers They Must Get Real Busy Now

Mr. Justice Duclos Doubts If They Are Doing Much to Help Allies Win the War—Alien Enemies Seek Exemption

DEPENDS ON OTHERS

MONTREAL, Feb. 20.—Mr. Justice Duclos strongly exhorted Quebec farmers to do more with their farms this year than they have ever done before. He expressed himself after he had exempted nine farmers from military service, and one judged from his remarks that if the farmers do not speed up production this year they will find but little sympathy, from at least one judge, next fall and winter if the call to arms continues that long.

"I am exempting these men because we must speed up food production," he told The Montreal Star, "but I hate doing so, as I do not feel that the farmers of this province are exerting as great efforts as they might to produce maximum crops from the fertile land at their disposal. These are days when every man must put his shoulder to the wheel and do his utmost to help win the war, whether in uniform at the front or as soldiers behind the lines on the land."

His Lordship has written to the Government for the official returns of the agricultural production of Quebec for 1917, which he believes will show that this province does not raise enough foodstuffs to feed her own people.

Depends on Others.

"Were it not for the wheat and flour imported from the West," he declared, "Quebec would be as short of bread as the inhabitants of Southern France. The only two products of the farm of which we have more than we can use, are cheese and hay. We even depend on Ontario and the Maritime Provinces for potatoes. That Quebec has been feeding the men at the front is a myth. However, we shall see what our farmers can do this summer. They have the land and we are giving them the men, so we look for enormous strides in intensive farming to tide over the present crisis."

Trade Union Turned Down The Proposal

London, Feb. 19. — The Engineers Trade Union to-day turned down the government's man power proposal. The vote was 121,007 to 27,470.

Premier Lloyd George recently proposed that exemptions from military service which had been granted certain trades, be raised to increase the man power of the army, and asked the unions to agree to this.

GRAIN MARKET

The feature of the speculative grain markets yesterday was the sensational advances in oats. At Winnipeg May oats closed 2 3-8c. over Monday's close, and July 2 1-8 over. At Chicago May oats jumped to 88 at the top, closing at 87 3-4, or 3 1-2c. over Monday's close, while March oats closed 3c. up. An unique condition has developed in the cash grain market as a result of the Food Controller's action in fixing wheat prices, but leaving the coarse feed grains free. The situation now is that, pound for pound, oats, rye, barley, etc., are at higher prices than wheat. The Agriculture committee of the U. S. Senate has already taken action which may tend to readjust prices somewhat by proposing to raise the present fixed price of wheat from $2.00 to $2.50 for the new 1918 crop. Provision, however, is to be made to prevent, if possible, the farmer holding his old wheat and selling it next season for new.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

The name of this flourishing town is Wheatley, announced Dennis when McCarty joined him again in the dust-covered taxi. "We're a million miles from nowhere, and the only ray of hope is the beer sign on that hotel down the road."

"Go to it," McCarty said briefly.

They found a small hotel with a group of staring natives on the porch and mid-day dinner in progress in the fly-infested interior. Their driver was fed, paid and suitably rewarded and McCarty saw him start upon his journey cityward before he attacked his own belated meal.

"I was taking no chances on his entertaining the populace with a history of this morning's little ride," he explained to Dennis. "We've got four hours to trace that couple and they will not have gone far without occasioning remark. A stranger could not turn around in a place of this size before every one had their number."

The meal concluded they deposited their bags in the dingy office and retraced their path of the morning to the spot where the touring car had sopped, and, a faint, broken line in the sea of ripening wheat led toward a chimney half hidden in a grove of trees.

Plunging in to the further detriment of the maturing harvest, they had gone a hundred yards when McCarty stopped with an abrupt exclamation, and stooping, picked up something which glistened in the sunlight, and shot a vivid green scintillation of light to Dennis's amazed eyes.

"Whatever——" he began, and then he saw for himself. It was a gold and platinum mesh-bag, with a gleaming cabochon emerald set in the top, and the initials M.R. in a tiny engraved monogram beneath.

"Any chance of a mistake now?" asked McCarty quietly. "Denny, we have got her! Got her, sure! Come on!"

Thrusting the find in his pocket he moved forward, and crossing the field they found themselves at a fence corner beyond which lay a kitchen garden and outbuildings, with the rear of a substantial frame cottage facing them.

The fence was of pointed white palings and from the tip of one fluttered a torn strip of tan linen. As it caught their eyes a woman came out upon the kitchen porch and stood quietly surveying them. Her appearance was youthful and not without grace but she was unmistakably toil-worn and indigenous to the country.

McCarty negotiated the fence, with Dennis at his heels, and approached her.

"Excuse me, ma'am," he began, hat in hand, "could you be telling us where we've got to? Our machine broke down just over there, and we are in a hurry."

"This is Wheatley." She spoke dryly, with a reserved, guarded note. "You ought to have come around by the road. It's lucky for you that my husband took the dog to the veterinary's a little while ago or he might have torn you to pieces. He's terrible fierce, and he don't know any difference between tramps and gentlemen when it comes to trespassing."

McCarty commenced an apology, but the woman had already turned to the kitchen door with an air of dismissal, so he followed Dennis, who at mention of the dog had made a precipitate move for the front gate.

"So that's where our birds flew to!" he muttered. "Nice hint that to keep us from prowling around later."

Denis opened his lips to reply, but a husky shout sounded behind them, and they turned to face an irate farmer.

"I'll have the law on ye! You're the second passel of folks to go trapsin' through my wheat to-day! I closed that right o' way last year, and I paid out good money for the notice board——"

"Look here!" McCarty's quick eye travelled over the mean, avaricious face of the close set, peering eyes, and thin lips. "I'll pay for any damage we did, and I'll give you five dollars if you will take us in overnight. My friend here feels bad, too, too much motoring in the heat, and him just getting over a sun-stroke."

Dennis gasped, but clapped his hand realistically to his head while the countryman looked from one to the other of them.

"Well, I don't know's I couldn't," he said at last. "Ain't in for a sick spell, is he? Don't want doctors fussin' around. I keep bachelor house."

Reassured on this point he conducted them up the shell lined path to a bare but scrupulously clean little dwelling and threw open the door of a room leading from the kitchen.

"You can have that. It was ma's, and she's the only woman ever sat foot in this house. Got no use for 'em. It'll be about two dollars, I reckon, for that wheat ye trod down, comin' through."

McCarty produced a bulging pocket book and handed over the required sum without demur, adding the agreed payment for hospitality in advance. The farmer waxed greedily loquacious.

"Don't expect no great doin's for supper," he warned. "I'm a plain man, but I'll do what I can for ye. I wouldn't be around now, but I'm puttin' in to-day on the truck garden."

"Who lives next door?" asked McCarty, indicating the yard from which they had just emerged.

"The Leonards, got darn 'em! Been fightin' 'em over that dividin' fence for five years! Tryin' to steal my land! Young city feller he is—used to drive racin' cars before he took up farmin'. They got visitors — come through my wheat this mornin' the same as you did. Well, I'll get back to my weedin' now; make yourselves to home."

Through the long, still summer afternoon McCarty and Dennis watched behind the closed, green shutters of their window, but from the house they sought. The whistle of the five o'clock train died away in the distance and the sun crept low in the western sky before the kitchen door opened once more and the woman reappeared with a pan of scraps held resting upon her hip.

She went unconcernedly about her duties in the chicken yard and the hog pens but her glance travelled frequently to the gate in increasing impatience, and at length she dropped the pan and ran forward with an eager little cry.

A young man had turned in from the road, a tall broad-shouldered young man, gray eyed and bronzed by the wind and sun. He walked with the easy, swinging stride of one accustomed to free spaces, and a great cadaverous dog padded surlily at his heels.

"Bad looking brute!" commented Dennis, with an honest shiver. "Look—it won't even notice the woman, and she is scared of it herself!"

McCarty did not reply. The starchy, frilled curtains at an upper window had parted and for a brief moment a face looked down. It was a woman's face, framed in a cloud of soft, brown hair, and McCarty watching, caught his breath in a vast sigh of satisfaction.

Their host entered from the barn with a pail of milk and the frugal meal was soon prepared. McCarty had moved the bed over to the window and insisted that Dennis remain there, bringing him his meal on an improvised tray.

"Don't take your eyes off that house for a moment!" he cautioned. "If any one stirs out of it, cough."

But Dennis did not cough, and supper concluded, their host shortly bade them a grudging good night and ascended to the upper floor. McCarty, who had assisted him to tidy the kitchen in order to get rid of him the more quickly, hurried back to the bedroom to find the pseudo invalid convulsed with laughter.

"I heard all that talk of him at the table, about being a blue ribbon teetotaller, and all the rest of it!" he exclaimed. "The hypocritical, long-faced, old son-of-a-gun! Take a look at that closet, Mac, there on the shelf!"

McCarty obeyed, and a row of empty brown bottles met his gaze, unmistakable in shape and size, even without their labels.

"No use trying them," Dennis sighed. "I did already. He has not left a drop!"

"And you'd have been doing better to watch like you were told than be snooping into what don't concern you!" retorted McCarty. "I'm going to put out the lamp but don't you dare droop an eye! They may make a break for it any minute, and we'll have to be on the jump."

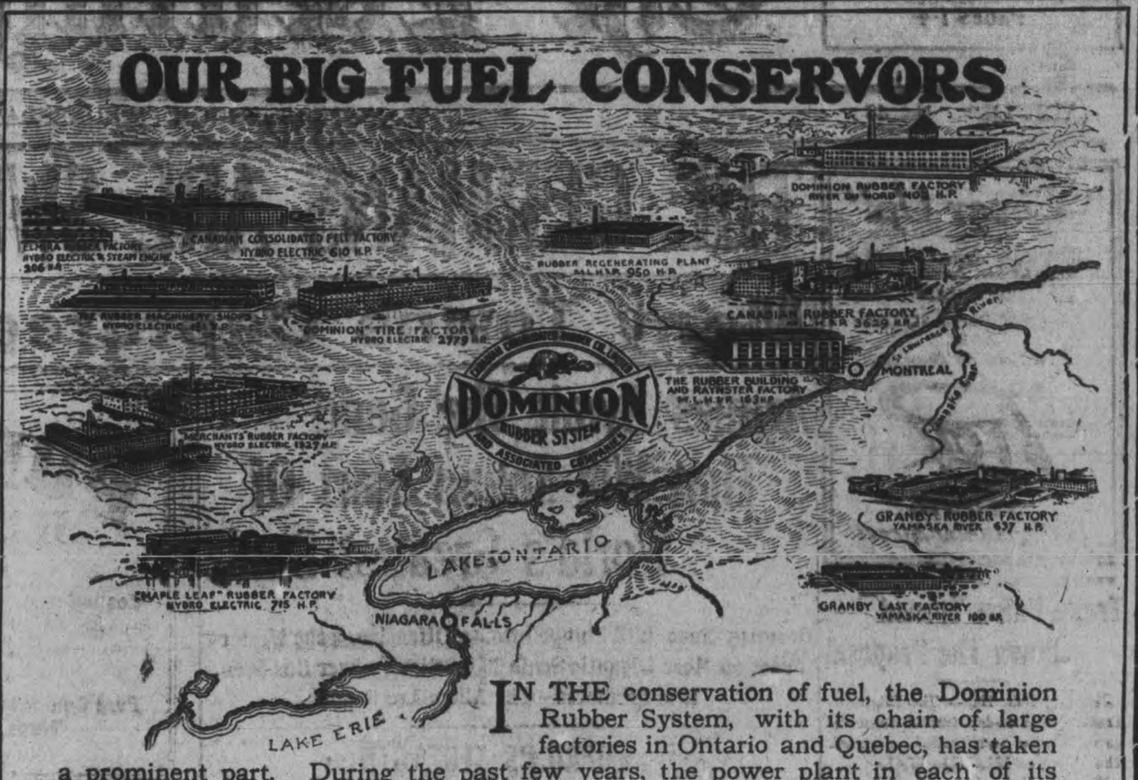
OUR BIG FUEL CONSERVORS



IN THE conservation of fuel, the Dominion Rubber System, with its chain of large factories in Ontario and Quebec, has taken a prominent part. During the past few years, the power plant in each of its factories has been remodelled, reconstructed and so equipped that full advantage of the Hydro-Electric Systems in Ontario and the Water-Power Systems in Quebec would be secured.

The manufacturing units of the Dominion Rubber System require a total of 11,699 horse power. Of that amount, only 150 horse power is regularly generated by steam. All other power is derived from direct connection with water wheels and from the extensive Hydro Electric and Power Systems in Ontario and Quebec.

To generate 11,699 horse power by steam would require at least 283 tons of coal daily.

The economic advantages of Canada's water-power resources were apparent to the Management and our Ontario units were among the first to take full advantage of the power generated at Niagara Falls. The same foresight prompted linking up our Quebec units with Shawinigan Falls, Cedar Rapids, Chambly, Soulanges, Riviere du Nord and the Yamaska River. As a result of our foresight, the present conservation of fuel has been greatly enhanced by our not requiring to draw on an already over-burdened fuel commodity, because our manufacturing facilities to-day are served by the almost limitless reserve controlled by the power companies. The coal that would otherwise have been consumed by the Dominion Rubber System factories is made available to those manufacturers who are less fortunate in their power equipment and to householders generally. Likewise, transportation is aided to the extent of relieving the railroads from hauling five or six cars of coal daily to our manufacturing units.

We insist on conservation in everything and encourage thrift among our employees. When YOU buy Dominion Rubber System products, whether "Dominion" Automobile Tires, our Rubber Footwear, "Fleet Foot" Shoes, "Dominion Raynster" Coats, Druggists' Sundries, Belting, Fire Hose, etc., you are helping national conservation. Later announcements will suggest particulars how you can conserve to your personal advantage by buying our products.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Hanging Bough

It Covered a Love Affair

By Agnes G. Brogan

It had been a source of annoyance to Gordon from the moment he entered the well appointed new study and took up his pen to write. Here in the seclusion of the country he had promised himself to finish undisturbed the book which should add to his fame.

Everything had seemed propitious to that end—the small rented bungalow, its peaceful setting of silencing hills, the absence of interrogating friends. Old Martha, the housekeeper whom he had brought with him from the city, attended interrigently to all his wants.

Now, into all this desirableness came the disturbing element, a great evergreen branch hanging like a screening curtain before his very windows. Against its thick fragrance the sun battled hopelessly, while the study remained in semi-gloom. If the bough had been attached to a tree upon his own lawn the matter might have been quickly righted, but the particular tree of this down hanging branch grew on his neighbor's ground, up the opposite side of the high garden wall.

Gordon had carelessly noticed the place as he came along, the old crumbling house, the broken statuary and basins of its gardens bespeaking a time of grandeur long past. Disgustedly at last the author threw down his pen.

"It's no use," he told the attentive but laconic Martha; "we will have to move the study some place else."

"You could not write in the open living room," she answered truly. The old bungalow's space was limited.

"Then I will ask them to cut the bough down," he said, and paused perplexedly. "Who lives there?"

"The name on the door stone is Stuyvesant," Martha replied. "Peter Stuyvesant. That is all I know."

So Gordon decided to pen his request. Being in an impatient frame of mind at the moment, his request was more in the nature of a demand.

"The bough hanging before my study window," he wrote, "causes me much inconvenience and annoyance. I must ask that it be immediately removed. "J. Wesley Gordon," he signed and remembered with satisfaction that there were few to whom the name was unknown.

Martha was dispatched with the note, returning soon to say that, as no one had responded to her ring, she had dropped the missive into the Stuyvesant mail box.

Gordon was folding away the fragmentary work of an unsuccessful afternoon when the answer came, a freckled faced lad being the bearer.

"The impertinent old Dutchman!" he muttered, for this is what he read:

"If you would prefer to have the left wing of our house removed just mention that also. P. Stuyvesant."

The scattered pages of his day's work mocked him. Duskily through the screening branch flickered a shifting light, and heatedly Gordon reached for his pen.

"If that bough," he wrote, "is not cut down by 9 o'clock tomorrow, I will go over and do it myself."

This time he contented himself with signing merely the letters "J. W. G."

When the second note in Martha's apron pocket was passing through the gateway broken in the garden wall, Gordon reflected that he had been rather hasty. The Dutchman's imprudence to a "personality", had rather nettled him. For though the bough would not admit the fact to himself, subservience had become a custom.

Back through the broken gateway again came Martha, silently placing a responsive note in his hand.

"Cut the branch down," was scrawled in bold defiant script. "Cut the branch down, if you dare! P. Stuyvesant."

Gordon's brows came together angrily; then he laughed. "A threat, eh?" he said; "all right." He turned to the waiting Martha. "The affair becomes interesting," he said. "I will now get out my gasoline buggy and run into town."

At the very end of the straggling village street he found a hardware shop and bought a saw, then he added to his purchase a small shining ax. He smiled grimly as his car slowed down nearing the great, shabby house next door. From a rear window shone a light. Gordon had a mental picture of a fat, stubborn old Dutchman smoking his evening pipe in the kitchen.

"Preparation for onslaught upon the tree of Peter Stuyvesant," he explained to Martha, as he left his implements in the back hall.

It was in a long forgotten spirit of boyish adventure that he sought them next morning, and sauntered through the break in the stone wall. All was still. The old house and its garden presented an appearance of having been asleep for a hundred years. Gordon was glad he had put on tennis shoes; he would be able to climb up like a squirrel, and when the branch had fallen neatly he would carry it over and place it against their veranda palings, to show his accomplished purpose. What had Stuyvesant meant by writing the words, "if you dare." Did the fellow actually intend to show fight? Gordon smiled involuntarily. Well, if he did, the author might "show him" that he had not forgotten college years of athletic training.

He was ready; almost, he was eager; then Gordon stopped short in the pathway. Crouched beneath the offending evergreen tree was a bulldog, a huge, fierce jawed brute, its bloodshot eyes fixed upon the approaching author, its body trembling with rumbling, threatening sounds. So this was the "dare." Strange the possibility had not occurred to him.

To go forward farther was very evidently useless. In flight—at least for the present—lay Gordon's safety. Ignominiously he retreated. As he entered the hallway Martha's eyes asked the question her lips would not.

"I am going out later," Gordon confusedly explained, "to cut the thing down." But when he went out later the dog had advanced to the gap in the wall, his lapping jaws seeming to speak disappointment in the ending of the fray. Gordon smoked his pipe for half an hour that evening in the shelter of the bungalow porch before deciding upon a further course of action.

At last he got up and searched out an old revolver, overlooking its casings. Never before had its protection been needed. He shook his head seriously at old Martha.

"With an ugly brute like that across the way," he explained. Then Gordon wrote his last note of warfare.

"I am going over tomorrow to saw the branch from your tree. If the dog is there I shall shoot him on the spot.

"J. W. GORDON."

Martha's face was quite white when she brought back the reply. "That dog," she explained, "he sits under the tree and growls. It makes me tremble to look at him."

"The dog is a thoroughbred," read the answering note. "If you shoot you will pay every cent he is worth. It's a good deal.

"P. STUYVESANT."

Gordon pondered. Some of these brutes, he realized, were worth thousands of dollars, and the animal being on its owner's premises would make him entirely accountable. It was a confounding situation. Nevertheless he ventured forth upon the following morning; but, while he was formidably armed with saw and ax, the revolver reposed in a drawer of his desk—and the dog was not there. Gordon breathed a sigh of relief. So his threat had frightened old Peter, after all!

It was no task at all to climb to the high base of the drooping branch. Easily he swung himself out upon a neighboring limb and fitted the saw. A panting sound attracted his attention, and he glanced downward. The dog had arrived at his post in a mad rush. The author muttered an imprecation. So this was the plotted scheme to wait and pin him up there helplessly?

He might aim the ax at the dog's head, of course, but the brute was a thoroughbred, and it might mean more perhaps than the launching of his new book. Gordon bent down and whistled peaceably. A fierce growl followed, echoed suddenly by a girl's smothered laughter.

The author wheeled about on his swaying limb. At the back of the tree stood a young woman. That she had been engaged in silent laughter was evident from the furtive dabs at her still glistening eyes.

"Oh, dear!" gasped the girl. "Oh, dear; it was so funny!"

Gordon, speechless, was acutely aware of the beauty of her mass of bronzed hair gleaming in the sunlight, of the full red lips parting in helpless laughter.

"It has all been so funny," she gurgled—"yesterday when you started over so bravely and—and retreated at the sign of the bulldog, and today when with all those red axes and things you came like a whole fire department." She bent to caress the dog. "What shall we do with him, Bobs?" she asked wickedly. "The poor man is frightened to death."

Gordon made a frantic effort for dignity as he clung to the uncertain bough. "I would like to speak to Peter Stuyvesant," he said stiffly.

The girl shook her head. "You can't," she told him. "There isn't any. Peter Stuyvesant was my grandfather. I never saw him. Bobs is the only relative I have. We come out to the old place to live every summer."

"But—but the note?" murmured Gordon, perplexed.

The girl's pink cheeks grew pinker. "I wrote them," she confessed. "P. Stuyvesant—that means Polly."

For a long moment the girl's blue eyes looked up into the man's brown ones.

"I had to," she excused, "you were so commanding."

"I was," agreed Gordon.

Then the awful thing happened. Bending lower the better to see her face, the man lost his balance and fell, lying there a huddled body at her feet.

After one sharp cry she brushed the dog aside and raised Gordon's suffering face in her hands.

"It's my leg," he said painfully; "broken, I guess."

And it was. Because the physician found it easier to move him into the old house, near by, Martha came down from the bungalow to care for him there.

So the days and the weeks drifted by. It was a very repentant and charming young woman who kept Gordon's room sweet with flowers from her garden, who read to him through long afternoons, who sang to him softly in enchanted twilights, whose hands at last clung to his tenderly, responsive, as he held them close to his own.

"Dear," he said to her one evening, while Bobs blinked affectionately at them both—"dear, we must come back here every summer, and when you are my wife you shall fix this old place over to suit yourself. We will take down the Stuyvesant stone and give to the house its new name."

Polly's radiant eyes twinkled back at her lover. "We will call our summer home the Hanging Bough," she said.

BOLSHEVIKI IN CHICAGO

Police, with Drawn Revolvers, Charged Mob and Ended Uproar.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Heads were cracked and bruised and wild disorder prevailed Sunday afternoon when police, answering riot calls, with drawn revolvers and batons charged mobs of Chicago Bolsheviks who by the power of fist and lung, took possession of a meeting in honour of Prof. George Lomondssoff, president of the Russian Mission on Ways of Communication at the Douglas Park Auditorium.

The trouble began when the hall, with a capacity of 1,400 was filled, and a crowd of approximately 4,000 men and women, mostly of Russian extraction, pounded upon the locked doors for admittance.

1,000 APPLY FOR FARMS.

Returned Soldiers Show Keen Interest in Soldiers' Land Settlement Scheme.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—About 1,000 applications have already been received by the Soldiers' Land Settlement Board from war veterans who have returned to Canada. The board was constituted only three weeks ago. The maority of the applicants so far are men who were on farms or homesteads before they enlisted, and they intend to resume tilling their own land.

FACE NOTHING BUT RUNNING SORES FROM
ECZEMA

No rest day or night for those afflicted with that terrible skin disease, eczema, or, as it is often called, salt rheum.

With its unbearable burning, itching, torturing day and night, relief is gladly welcomed.

There is no remedy like Burdock Blood Bitters for giving relief to such sufferers; no other remedy has done, or can do so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture. Apply it externally and it takes out the stinging, itching and burning, and promotes a healthy healing.

Take it internally and it gets at the source of the disease in the blood, and completely and permanently drives it out of the system.

Miss Mary V. Chambers, Anagance Ridge, N.B., writes: "I used Burdock Blood Bitters for eczema. I had it when an infant, but it left me. Two years ago it came back. I used doctors' medicine, but it did good only while I used it. At last my face was nothing but a running sore. I saw in the paper what B.B.B. did for people. I took it, and to-day I am free from that terrible disease."

Armies Await The Gong, etc.

enough men into France to occupy the attention of more than a division or two of the Teuton forces.

But the tune has changed. I have read extracts from more than fifty German newspapers the last month, and there is a note of alarm at America's preparations running through them all. Germany knows that, unless she breaks up the allied combination of nations or deals the French and English a terrific blow on the western front before America gets into action, she cannot possibly win the war. Her recognition of that is unmistakable from the newspaper editorials and from statements reaching Great Britain through hidden channels.

And so she has decided to mass for the greatest blow of all in the hope of reaching Calais or getting to Paris. That is might be possible for her to get to Calais is half conceded, but none of the military authorities is alarmed on that score. It would appear that the more confident Germany is of battering out a victory on the western front the more satisfied the Allies are.

Can Shift 1,600,000.

The maximum estimates of the new men Germany is able to put in the west as a result of the Russian front withdrawals is 1,600,000. Such a force would nearly equalize the opposing armies as to numbers. I have been told by prominent officials, however, that it is far more likely Germany can increase her force by no more than 900,000, and that these men are not soldiers of the very first class.

From all that can be learned, however, it is very probable that the greatest battle in the world's history will soon start in France and Belgium. It will undoubtedly have a vital bearing on the outcome of the war.

It may be stated on the highest authority that the Allies do not look for anything like a social or industrial revolution in Germany. The nation is too well disciplined, as explained to me. There is much unrest throughout the country, and wage earners are grumbling and frequently going on strike, but the government maintains the whip hand, and short shift is given to any one who is too outspoken. The civil population is suffering for food. The armies get plenty. Stomach disorders and mental diseases have reached alarming proportions. There is plenty of wheat in the Ukraine, which ultimately may be at the disposal of Germany, but at present there is no way of transporting it.

In Austria the economic situation is volcanic. The belief here is that a few reverses might bring chaos in Austria similar to that which reigns in Russia. Hope of peace in 1918, it might almost be said, depends entirely on domestic situations in the dual empires. Great Britain wants peace, but she doesn't want peace until Germany is conquered.

Agreed With Mother.

Gerald's mother had tried to make him understand what conscience is and had told him not to cross the street on his wheel. One day she said, "Gerald, when you crossed the street today, didn't a wee small voice tell you that it was wrong?" "Yes, ma," he replied. "I guess it did, but my velocipede tweeked so much I couldn't hear it."

Firemen's Light.

A new light greatly aids firemen in rescue work. This light, strapped to his back, and elevated slightly above his head, is powerful enough to pierce the densest smoke. With one charge of calcium carbide, the light—3,000 candlepower—will burn for over four hours.

Does Not Affect Charity.

The desire of power in excess caused the angels to fall; the desire of knowledge in excess caused man to fall; but in charity there is no excess, neither can angel or man come in danger by it.

Wit and Money.

While money will take you a long way, it won't always bring you back. Wit will not only take you most anywhere, but also bring you back. Of the two it's the better. So get wit and wisdom!

Law and the Map.

He who tries to harmonize his conduct with the laws of the land will have less trouble than the man who thinks he can make the laws harmonize with his conduct.

Muscle of the Soul.

We do not get perfect character in our sleep. It comes to us as muscle comes, through doing things. It is the muscle of the soul.—Henry Drummond.

Find Out First.

Study to conserve your steps. When you spend an hour looking for something because you do not know where it is, you have wasted that many steps.

Burn Gas Jet Under Water.

In a new European method for producing steam a high-pressure gas jet is burned under the surface of the water in a steel boiler.

Aye, That's the Rub.

It is all right for the modern young man to offer a six-cylinder love—but the sensible girl wants to know who's to keep it in gasoline.

Correctly Defined.

Husking Indian Corn.

The husking of Indian corn is a man-power proposition. Husking and cribbing of this great staple cereal must be done by hand. Machinery has never satisfactorily grappled with the task. Formerly a farmer, single-handed, would husk 50 bushels of corn in a day, but greater skill has raised the possible output per person to between 90 and 100 bushels. That men and boys, women and girls, may become more proficient in the work, husking schools have now been established throughout the corn belt. These schools are for business, and must not be confounded with husking bees, which are mostly for fun.—Christian Science Monitor.

Poetry Comes High.

It is the height of luxury for a Japanese to be able to say that he is reading the words of a philosopher in the original manuscript; and he is willing to pay enormously for that satisfaction. Ancient scripts have risen remarkably in price during the last two years. It is nothing unusual these days for a wealthy collector to pay $30,000 for a little scrap of classic poetry.

The Bald Eagle.

Our national bird, the bald eagle, wild in its native haunts, is so large, so majestic, and flies with an evidence of so enormous strength, that one is impressed with the thought that here is the king of birds. On one occasion while eating my lunch in the shade of a little bush on a Southern prairie, I saw one carry off a lamb, writes T. Gilbert Pearson of the Audubon society.

Children's Resistance.

Children's recuperative powers, generally speaking, are superior to those of older people. Proper rest and care will often ward off serious illness, but this requires care and insight on the part of the parents, as the children themselves are not apt to call attention to their condition until they become seriously ill.

HEALS INFLAMED ITCHING SKIN

A Home Treatment Which Relieves and Cures Eczema, Salt Rheum, and All Itching Skin Diseases, and Leaves the Skin Soft, Smooth and Natural.

Woodstock, Ont., Jan. 9.—As a means of allaying inflammation, relieving the dreadful itching and healing and curing itching skin diseases, ulcers, and eruptions, we believe that we can prove that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most potent preparation that it is possible to obtain.

So many extreme cases have been cured, so much intense and continued agony has been relieved, and such a host of people have volunteered their evidence in this regard that we challenge anyone to produce like endorsement for any Ointment or any preparation which is recommended for such diseases.

Dr. Chase's Ointment certainly stands alone, unapproached, and unrivalled as a healer of the skin, and positive cure for itching skin diseases. From pimples to eczema, from chilblains to ulcers, each and every form of itching skin disease have been cured by this great ointment.

Mrs. J. Chapman, 408 Dundas Street, Woodstock, Ont., writes: "About three years ago, I suffered greatly from an awful rash and irritation of the skin on my chest and back. I could not bear to touch it, and had to wear very loose clothing so nothing would rub against it. At night when I would lie down, I could get neither sleep nor rest. I tried different remedies and doctors' treatments, but never got any relief. At last my daughter advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. I did so, and after the first application I was able to get the first night's good rest that I had for a long time. I continued using the Ointment until I was completely cured."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is known in almost every community. Ask your neighbours about it. There is probably a marked cure at your door which you can investigate. The cures made by this preparation will stand investigation. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. # The Pocket-Piece

By WARREN MILLER

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

Robert Alden had come to Chicago after having been admitted to the bar, because the one intimate friend he had made at college, Harold Barnes, lived there.

Unfortunately for Alden, soon after he had settled in Chicago his chum was sent to South America on an important mission for his firm.

A month later a letter from his friend in South America said: "I have heard from my sister, a young girl of twenty, that she is to spend the winter in Chicago with a married friend. Do not yet know the address. Will send it later on, as I want you to know my sister."

As Alden boarded the trolley one day a young girl got in just ahead of him. The car was full, so both had to stand. He paid his fare from a handful of loose coins and a few blocks farther on the young girl alighted. As she was passing out Alden saw her lean down and pick up something from the floor. A quick glimpse of it in her hand made him think of his pocket piece, a gift from his friend, Harold Barnes, and much prized by Alden.

The car stopped and as the young girl alighted Harold suddenly determined to alight also, follow her and if his surmises were correct, he would be able to reclaim his property.

He followed the young girl as she turned into a fine residential street and saw her go up the steps to a handsome stone front house.

Alden had gotten this far when his courage gave out. He walked past the house, then returned. He must have that pocket piece. Finally he coldly ascended the steps and pressed the button. A butler opened the door and offered the silver salver for a card. Alden hunted in vain, not a card had he with him.

"I would like to see the young lady of the house," he said.

At first the butler seemed inclined to refuse him admission, then said, "Come in, I will speak to Miss Leslie. What name will I say?"

"Oh, never mind; just tell her a gentleman wishes to see her for a few minutes."

Soon a very pretty young woman appeared, but not the one Alden had followed, and he felt nonplused.

"My errand is peculiar," he stammered. "I saw a young woman enter the house and I have followed her for a pocket piece."

"How remarkably strange," said the lady.

"It is indeed," said Alden as he wiped the perspiration from his forehead.

"What I meant to say is, I dropped a very much prized pocket piece in the trolley and I have reason to think it was picked up by the young lady who came into this house a few minutes ago."

About the time Alden was wishing himself at the other end of the world and was just about to make a hasty exit, the young woman he had seen on the car appeared.

As he looked into the bright eyes and smiling face he felt some of his courage returning. "I called," he said, "to ask you to let me inspect the coin you found on the car floor. I think it will prove to be my pocket piece, the gift of a dear friend now in South America." He noticed at that a quick look pass between the two young women.

"I will go upstairs and look," she said. "Is your name on the coin?"

"No only a cross."

"Won't you sit, Mr.—" said the lady, and she paused for his name.

"Robert Alden," said the young man.

Just then the young woman returned to the room.

"How unfortunate," she said. "In my haste I dropped my coin purse and the coins have rolled in every direction. The one you speak of must have hidden away behind something, but if you will call tomorrow evening I will have made a thorough search before then and will hope to be able to return your keepsake."

The next evening the young girl reported the pocket piece not found, but he passed a delightful hour with her.

The following Sunday afternoon he called on the two ladies, but no mention was made of the coin. He was invited to Sunday tea and spent a charming evening.

One evening a month later, while calling at the house, suddenly a pair of the loveliest of bright eyes looked into his and a sweet voice said, "I have found your keepsake."

"Do you mean it?" said Alden. "But I don't know as I care so much about it now. I care only for the wonderful happiness its loss has brought to me."

"Will you give it to me?" she said.

"Yes," said Alden very bravely, for he had been a timid lover, "if you will be my wife."

About half an hour later the young girl ran upstairs and when she came down she had two things in her hand, the coin and a photograph.

"Forgive me, Robert," she said, "but I have known you all along. Look," and she placed in his hand a strikingly good likeness of himself.

"I am Harold Barnes' sister."

"Then you knew about the pocket-piece?"

"Of course I did," laughed the young girl, "and I am always going to keep it as one of my chief treasures."

DRINK HOT WATER AND RID JOINTS OF RHEUMATIC RUST

Why rheumatism and lumbago sufferers should drink phosphated hot water each morning before breakfast

Just as coal when it burns leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste material, toxins and ptomaine-like poisons, called uric acid, is formed and then sucked into the blood where it contin es to circulate, collecting grain by grain in the joints of the body much like rust collects on the hinge as shown above.

Men and women who suffer from lumbago, rheumatism, or sore, stiff, aching joints should begin drinking phosphated hot water, not as a means of magic relief from pain, but to prevent more uric acid forming in the system. Before eating breakfast each morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will first neutralize and then wash out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's accumulation of toxins and poisons; thus, cleansing, sweetening, and freshening the entire alimentary canal, each morning, before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug-store, but is sufficient to make any rheumatic or lumbago sufferer an enthusiast on the morning inside bath.

Millions of people keep their joints free from these rheumatic acids by practicing this daily internal sanitation. A glass of hot water, with a teaspoonful of lime phosphate, drunk before breakfast, is wonderfully invigorating; besides it is an excellent health measure because it cleanses the alimentary organs of all the waste, gases and sour fermentations, making one look and feel clean, sweet and fresh all day.

Those who try this for one week headaches, constipation, bilious attacks, sallowness, nasty breath and stomach acidity may find themselves free from sick

Gardening Indoors.

A small funnel inserted in a fern ball facilitates a continuous supply of water and does away with the necessity of taking the ball down for submersion. It is easy to find out how much water will be absorbed without dripping, and there is never a lack of the necessary water to make the ball come to a fine mature growth.

Lying Down to Smoke.

The Patagonians lie down while smoking, swallowing and retaining some of the smoke, while the Eskimos mix wood with the tobacco to make it last longer. A reason for this is that they must depend upon whalers for their supply of tobacco. In Abyssinia smoking is considered a heinous crime, entailing crucial penalties.

Boxwood Is Expensive.

The most expensive wood in the world is said to be the boxwood, imported from Turkey for the use of engravers. The cost ranges from 4 cents a square inch up to 10 cents a square inch for the best grade. An ordinary wagonload of boxwood would cost many thousands of dollars.

Time Markers in Lisbon.

Correct time is announced every even hour in the port of Lisbon by means of two lanterns placed on iron columns 100 feet high. The lanterns each have three faces measuring 6.5 feet by 8 feet.

Daily Thought.

The moral courage that will face obloquy in a good cause is a much rarer gift than the bodily valor that will confront death in a bad one

The Welcome Guest Has a Good Stomach

Not What You Eat But What You Digest Tells the Story. Eat Anything if You Follow With a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

The Man or Woman Who Can Eat Heartily and Not Fade Away Is the Welcome Guest Anywhere.

Many people just hate to eat in company. They prefer to crawl into some by-place for a dyspeptic's plate of molly coddle. Business men often resort to this form of weakness under the belief they can work better. But it isn't what you eat but what you digest that counts. Some stomachs can't digest even a glass of milk. So they simply keep on feeding dyspepsia and get gas on that the better informed and water brash, sour risings and so hearty eaters entirely avoid. This on that the better informed and they do by using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Many physicians prescribe them for stomach troubles and digestive disorders. They are sold at every drug store, everywhere, price 50 cents a box.

Ask your druggist more about them.

DEMOBILIZATION OF RUSSIAN ARMY STOPPED

The Foe's Offensive On West Momentarily Expected

RUSSIAN TROOPS ORDERED TO RESIST FOE'S ADVANCE

Demobilization of the Army and Fleet Has Been Stopped --Preparations Made For a Stubborn Defence of Petrograd--German Guardship Strikes a Mine and Goes Down With the Loss of Twenty Lives.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Jos. Shaplin)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19—(Delayed)—The demobilization of the Russian Army and Fleet has been stopped, it was announced at noon to-day. The Russian troops have been ordered to resist the German advance, and to evacuate their positions only when necessary, destroying property as they fall back. Preparations have been made for a stubborn defence of Petrograd. The entire press urges the army to fight.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 20.—Twenty lives were lost when a German guard ship struck one of its own mines in e Baltic Sea, according to reports reaching here to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson)

With The American Armies in France, Feb. 19.—(Delayed)—A German aeroplane, after being beaten off twice, this afternoon flew over the American Field Hospital, which had been bombed twice in the last few days. The Boche aviator, however, dropped no bombs.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19.—(Delayed)—The Tsarko Selo wireless station to-day picked up Prince Leopold's address, ordering a German advance against Russia, in which he declared: "We want no annexations or contributions, but the restoration of order. Russia is the centre of anarchy. The contagion is spreading into Europe. Civilized Europe understands the Germans are defending order in Europe."

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Germany's peace treaty with Russia, if forced to signature under the threat of arms, may not stand in the last reckoning of the big peace table. Some international authorities believed to-day that the Allies and America will insist that it is not binding, with its grab of border lands and its reported indemnity, in view of the fact that it would be signed by Russia under duress.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The London morning papers agreed to-day that the Cabinet crisis, resulting from the Versailles Conference, has subsided. Only the Post and the News continue their hostility towards Lloyd George, alleging the control of the British Army has been divided.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—After extensive preparations, silently and systematically carried on, it is apparent that both the Germans and the Allies are ready for the long-expected offensive in the West, Secretary of War Baker says to-day, in his view of the military operations for the week ending Febraury 16.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 20.—We can no longer believe in the Pacific intentions of Russia and must see that peace and order prevails in the occupied regions of the adjoining country, declared Dr. Von Kuehlmann, the German Foreign Minister, in addressing the Reichstag.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 20.—The Federal Council of the German Empire, a despatch from Berlin says, has approved of the peace treaty with the Ukraine.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Naval airmen continue to bomb the docks, aerodromes and other targets in Belgium, and have accounted for four German aeroplanes, the Admiralty announced in a statement issued to-day.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 20.—A German raiding attack on the British, near Arleuxen Gohelle, south of Lens, was repulsed last night by the British, it is announced officially. The statement follows:

After heavy preliminary bombardment the enemy attempted to raid our line last night, east of Arleuxen Gohelle. The attacking party was completely repulsed by our troops with the loss of a number of Germans killed or taken prisoners. A successful local enterprise was carried out early last night, northeast of Wytschaete. Several prisoners were captured by us. Except for some patrol activity northwest of St. Quentin, nothing further of special interest occurred.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The majority of the morning papers accept the statement made in the House of Commons, yesterday, by Premier Lloyd George as a satisfactory explanation, and entirely approve of the Versailles agreement and consider the whole incident straightened out. Hostile newspapers continue to be unconvinced and reiterate their sharp criticisms, but seem resolved to accept the situation. They express the opinion that no Government crisis is likely to arise at present, although they believe the Government has been awakened by recent events.

(By John H. Hearley)

ROME, Feb. 20.—Former Minister Ionoms, Socialist Interventionist, declared in the Chamber of Deputies to-day that Italy should follow President Wilson's advice in the matter of territorial adjustments after the war. "There are two currents of Italian politics—one favoring the dismemberment of Austria; the other, favoring the limitation of territorial gains," said Ionoms. President Wilson supported the latter. Italy should follow his advice.

The Agenzie Centrale predicts the appointment of a Commission to present, personally, to President Wilson, a defence of the justice of Italy's territorial claims.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 20.—The German Federal Council has approved the treaty of peace between the Central Powers and Ukraine, German despatches asserted to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 20.—Berlin is greatly excited over the "Russian surrender," despatches from the German Capital declared to-day.

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 20.—"We have advanced twenty kilometres, about twelve and a half miles, beyond our previous positions on the Riga-Petrograd railway," the German War Office announced to-day.

ALLIES SUPERIOR ON WEST NOW IN MEN AND GUNS

Ready For Any Blow Teutons May Deliver and Opinion of American Experts is That Huns May Have Over-played the Waiting Game

HAVE "OVER-PREPARED"

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner).

(By Carl D. Groat).

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Allies are now superior to the Teutons on the Western Front, both in men and guns.

The United Press was informed of this, officially, to-day, by Allied and American military sources.

Both agreed that the Allies are ready for any blow the Teuton may intend. And significantly the information declared that undoubtedly the Teuton has over-prepared." Advertising his offensive since December he has hunted fresh men from the East front, and weeded out the weaker units from the West line. But he has overplayed his waiting game in the opinion of military men.

It is good strategy to wait as long as waiting means that better preparation can be obtained But in the case of the German he apparently reached his maximum of preparation some time ago, and by his waiting since then has given the Allies a chance to reach the pink of preparation.

Without revealing figures, the experts said the Allied preponderance of men and guns has been maintained despite the fact that the Germans could draw new men from the East lines because of the Russian collapse.

Some high American Army men had begun to doubt that the Germans really intended to make an offensive on the west line. They thought he either intended to wait until he was pushed to it by home developments or other events, or make a smash in Italy or the Balkans, under cover of advertising of a west front drive. Now however, these men believe that the drive is coming. They say though that the Germans have wasted much time and that if he delays much further he will encounter bad spring weather and muddy terrain.

FIRE AT THE ARMOURIES

Blaze Discovered in the West Gallery at 5.40 O'clock This Morning Causing Considerable Excitement But Little Damage

ARMOURIES HOSE USED

There was considerable excitement at the Armouries this morning at 5.40 o'clock, when a fire broke out under a cupboard in the western gallery, and a serious blaze was threatened. the fire was discovered almost simultaneously by the picquet on duty and by Mr. McKee, caretaker of the Collegiate Institute, who saw the reflection from outside. Sergt. McDougall was notified by the picquet, while Mr. McKee called Sergt. Muir, caretaker of the Armouries, who quickly had two lines of the Armouries hose in operation, and the blaze was under control when the Fire Brigade arrived.

It is thought that the fire originated from a cigarette stub, carelessly thrown into a box of sawdust or under the cupboard. Sergt. Muir had passed along the gallery at 4.30 and saw no sign of fire, and the picquet passed at a quarter to five without noticing any smoke. On returning from a visit to the cells in the basement he saw the fire.

The damage was not serious, being confined to the destruction of the cupboard and the burning of a hole in the gallery floor. Some thirty soldiers are sleeping in the Armouries.

INQUEST UNNECESSARY

Death of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice Due to Heart Disease

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—That an inquest into the death of Sir Cecil Spring Rice, as suggested by Mr. Pemberton Billings in the British House, was absolutely unnecessary, is the statement of the attending physician, Dr. Thos. Gibson, who this morning stated that Sir Cecil had been skiing with a Government house party in the vicinity of Rockcliffe during the afternoon, and returned to Rideau Hall considerably exhausted. He partook of a very hearty dinner afterwards, and heart failure resulted. The former British Ambassador was buried in a quiet corner of Beechwood Cemetery.

"I LOVE HIM MORE THAN HE LOVES ME!"

Helen Howard, married after a whirlwind courtship, awakes to this realization.

The wheel of Time has found her still blissfully satisfied—him dissatisfied; he could wish her changed in so many ways!

Blindly wretched, the girl-wife stumbles on alone—far from her mother—locking deep in her heart the silent battle she is waging — the battle to become a woman her husband could love.

And when the great day comes—the day of her metamorphosis—when she attains his ideal—is she rewarded by a love as great as her own

On The Threshold of The World's Greatest Battle

German Offensive in West Is Expected Momentarily—Attack Will Probably Centre in the Cambrai Region—Foe Counting Heavily on Gas.

TROOPS DOUBTFUL

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Feb. 20.—Watch the west front. Civilization is on the threshold of the most colossal battle of all time. The German offensive is expected momentarily. With every gill of fighting blood Germany has left; with every belt and nut of its war machinery in hand; with every ounce of strength of every kind behind them, Hindenburg and Ludendorff may hurl all into a finish fight.

For Hohenzollernism this may be the critical hour. The Germans will use the tanks, like the British, for the first time. Some of these will be equipped with mortars, others with machine guns. They will move at the most four miles an hour. The enemy is counting largely on gas. It is not likely its bombardment will last long. The infantry will be driven forward with unprecedented ferocity—German fashion—after a few hours of intense shelling.

All pieces, from trench mortars to 42 centimetre guns, will smash against the British. The attack probably will centre in the Cambrai region, although synchronized blows are expected all along the front. The Germans probably will play their trench mortars on the barbed wire entanglements and front support trenches, and they will use their heavy guns on the battery positions, rear guards, railways, suspected concentrations and rear approaches generally.

A heavy percentage of gas shells will be used everywhere. High explosives will be used against the works. Then, in endless waves, the Germans will be driven like cattle through holes they will hope to have torn. Like sharpers doping the work-out of race horses, the German officers are telling their men the wildest stories of the infallibility of the scheme. Nevertheless the troops are doubhtful. Impressions outlined in my Swiss despatches are borne out by statements made here by prisoners— unfulfilled pan-German promises of peace, plus the certainty of defeat as soon as America adds the full weight of its force, mean Germany must do or die now. The Germans undoubtedly will fight like Tigers. The whole future of the world probably will be decided. The Britons and their allies know this, and will act accordingly.

NEW WAR AGAINST RUSSIA NOT POPULAR

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Germany's new war against Russia is not popular with the German or Austrian people, according to comment in the press of the two countries. When the Brest Litovsk negotiations closed all talk in Germany was of peace. The public apparently did not discriminate between peace with the Ukraine and with Great Russia, but acclaimed it as a general peace with Russia. George Bernhard, in the Vossische Zeitung, emphasizes this point and wants an explanation of who was responsible for this disappointment. The Socialist Vorwaerts takes the same line.

NINETY PER CENT. OF SOLDIER VOTE FOR GOVERNMENT

That is the Result in Ontario the Counting of the Polls For Which Has Been Completed —Counting for Quebec Has Commenced

235,000 OVERSEAS VOTES

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—The counting of the soldiers' ballots polls in Canada for all the constituencies of Ontario has been completed, and the counting in Quebec has now commenced. In Ontario about 90 per cent. of the votes went for the Government candidates. An an indication of the trend of the voting, the following results in Ottawa are interesting: Fripp (Unionist) 935, Chabot (Unionist) 899, Laurier 150, McGiverin 141, rejected 55.

In Russell county the Government candidate secured 77 soldiers' votes, and Hon. Charles Murphy got 17.

The total overseas vote amounted to about 235,000, of which 130,000 were polled in France.

It is estimated that upwards of 100,000 votes were polled in the Provinces, which have already gone solidly Union. Nearly 60,000 were polled in Ontario constituencies.

ELLIOT'S GREAT SALE DOING BIG BUSINESS

The Enormous Stock is Being Reduced by Much Buying

Mr. Elliot says it is surprising that after almost a month of astonishing business the great sale still draws the people of this city and vicinity as it does. The reason, however, is quite apparent.

The store, previous to the fire, was filled with well bought staple merchandise from cellar to garret. The people know the quality of the Elliot goods and the prices at which they can be bought are so attractive that the public is making individual purchases in large quantities.

There is a fine stock yet of women's and children's wear and it will pay you to see it at once.

BIG VICTORY FOR THE BRITISH IN PALESTINE

General Allenby's Forces Advanced Two Miles on a Front of Fifteen Miles East of Jerusalem Yesterday

FOUGHT ALL DAY

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 20.— Gen. Allenby's forces advanced two miles on a front of fifteen miles east of Jerusalem yesterday, it was officially announced to-day. The fighting continued throughout the day.

OUTBREAK AGAINST JEWS IN RUSSIA

(Canadian Press Despatch)

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 20. — Serious outbreaks against the Jews in various parts of Russia are described in reports by the Jewish Press Bureau here. The bloody programmes are said to have occurred at Lubin, Rashkoff, Tsherkchi, Tiraspol, the Raspol and Kornin.

BIG INCREASE IN EGGS AND CHEESE IN COLD STORAGE

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—There was a one hundred per cent. increase in the quantity of eggs and cheese in cold storage in Canada on February 1st over the same date last year, according to the report of W. F. O'Connor, the High Cost of Living Commissioner, to the Minister of Labour to-day. There was a fifty per cent. increase in fish in cold storage also. In other respects, quantities of foodstuffs in store on this date are about the same as last year. O'Connor again makes it clear that in the selling and re-selling of eggs among egg operators the consumer pays for every shot. "I humbly submit that this sort of thing can be stopped and should be stopped," his report reads.

Spring Wheat Will Likely Be Included In This Year's Field Crop Competitions For Farmers

The first meeting of the Industrial Exhibition directors, under Mr. R. Denne's presidency, last night was opened promptly at 8 o'clock, an assuring augury of the Board's activities this year. It was decided to hold a big field day of sports and attractions on July 1st.

Mr. Albert Roberts presented an excellent report of the principal business at the annual meeting of the Provincial Fairs' Association, and was generally commended by the members upon his concise and practical review of the question discussed at the convention. He informed the Board that to encourage farmers to grow spring wheat this year the Provincial Government offers $75 in prize money, conditioned on a $25 grant from each association, for the field crop competitions. The Peterborough association had decided upon barley and oats for the local competition, but it is expected that at the next meeting, on Tuesday, March 5th, this additional offer from the Government will be accepted.

School Fairs.

It was also suggested that the country school fairs should be held in conjunction with the county or township fall fairs, and also that an effort should be made to stimulate the active interest of girls, especially those at school, in producing vegetables, fruit, honey and war bread.

BRIDGENORTH MAN HURT

Henry Fraser Fell on the Ice and Broke His Arm

Henry Fraser, an elderly resident of Bridgenorth, was the victim of a painful accident yesterday, when he slipped on the ice in front of his residence, and sustained a fracture of his left arm. Dr. Morgan was called and attended to his injuries, after which Mr. Fraser was brought to the Nicholls Hospital.

THE WEATHER

There has been an extraordinary change in weather conditions within a few hours. Yesterday the thermometer was up to 41 degrees; during last night it went still higher, reaching 46 degrees, with the accompaniment of a heavy rain. This morning at 7 it was 3 above zero; at noon 4 degrees below—a drop of 50 degrees in less than 12 hours. Rainfall, .71 of an inch. Prospects for very cold for some days.—W. P.

THE FUEL SITUATION

It is not with a desire to be pessimistic, but with a feeling that we should realize the keenness of the situation that we make the statement not to put too much dependence on promises of coal deliveries for the next few weeks. Only when the coal is here and the situation actually relieved can we feel that conditions are free from worry. This being the case, it behooves every householder and every user of coal to conserve what stock they may have and make it give the limit of service. Every effort is being made to get coal, but then practically every other city on the continent is putting up the same fight.

As to next winter's fuel problem, it will never do to wait until the situation is right upon us, nor to depend solely on coal as our fuel. We must start immediately preparing for next season by saving, gathering and conserving any fuel that will produce heat.

If it is gone about in the proper manner ,this country, blessed with so much wood, should have very little to worry about in the matter of fuel, but the householder is only protected when he has it in his own back yard.

EXTEND THE POLICE PATROLS.

The congratulations of Chief Justice Falconbridge upon the absence of serious crime in Peterborough is a gratifying sequel to the encouraging record set forth in Chief Thompson's anual report, showing a decrease in minor offences that are disposed of in police court. This diminution in the visible activities of the Department is used as an argument by one of the Aldermen in supporting a plausible opposition to Chief Thompson's request for an appropriation sufficient to maintain his force at full strength.

Although two new men were sworn in this week, two vacancies remain unfilled. According to the aldermanic idea Peterborough has more policemen than are required under the present comparative freedom from major and minor crime. It must be recognized, however, that the Department is insufficiently manned for night patrol beyond the business section of the city. It is significant that manufacturers have appealed to the Police Commission for protection in the ouskirts. Their request may carry more weight perhaps than the all too numerous experiences of girls and young women who are accosted at night, not only on the streets in the city's fringe, but even in the more central residential districts. Chief Thompson must receive many complaints of this practice by young men and others who are not so young, and when he recommends that the Commission provide him with a staff that is essentially efficient in numbers he is doubtless moved by the desire to extend the present narrow limits of the regular "beats". Surely his knowledge of the inner workings of the Department, of the occurrences that never reach the police court, and his suggestions based on that knowledge, should carry the weight of plain facts. Of the complaints that reach his office, and there are unquestionably many others that are withheld by unescorted young women who have been subjected to the offensive attentions and approaches of men whose habitat is beyond the streets patrolled by the police.

Desirable and worthy escorts are protecting the very liberties of our girls, and in their absence the least the community can do is make safe the streets at home, especially during the comparatively early hours of evening.

PROFIT SHARING.

The results of profit-sharing experiments in Canadian manufacturing establishments have been collected by Prof. Mitchell of Queen's University, and published in a twenty-six page Bulletin issued by the University Department of Political and Economic Science. Schemes for awarding workmen a partial share in the net profits of various industries have been tried in England and in the United States, but in the majority of instances they have been successful. Thirteen Canadian experiments are reviewed, and the average of failure is found to be just as high there as elsewhere.

One reason for failure has been the persistent hostility of the trade unions. Labour leaders declare that plans for profit-sharing frequently have resulted in a reduction of wages, and that the motive of employers too often has been a desire to damage the standing of the Unions. Friends of the profit-sharing principle contend that it promotes more continuous service and creates a better spirit amongst the workmen. Prof. Michell sets forth fully the arguments on both sides and then gives the experience of Canadian firms. One reason, he finds, for the lack of success on this Continent lies in the fact that workmen have opportunities to become employers in the New World which are not open to them in the Old World. There is no fixed "workmen's class" here as in Europe.—Toronto News.

THE GHOST OF 16 TO 1.

Bimetallism is again to the fore. The popular demand for "more money" has many more than the nine lives of a cat. It is now argued that the great increase in outstanding paper currency requires more metal as a base, and that since the supply of gold is limited silver may advantageously be included.

That is, since we already have a tremendous paper inflation throughout the world, we should now add to it a silver inflation as well. Currency inflation has always been inseparable from war. It affords temporary help, just as whiskey helps the man who has been nearly drowned, and it is followed by the "morning after" just the same as an undue load of whiskey is. It is not more money that creates permanent prosperity, it is more goods. A pound of steak doesn't give us any more nourishment when we pay 40 cents for it than if it had cost 20 cents.

The money problems of the war are hard to solve and they will leave a heavy aftermath when the war is over. Inflation is none the less an evil because it is, apparently, a necessary evil in war times. It must be held in check in every way possible. Bimetallism would degrade the quality of the hard money base beneath the world's power, without any genuine benefit to offset the injury.— The Magazine of Wall Street.

Press Comment On Daylight Saving

"Will Probably Pass It."

Florida Times-Union: "The old set-up-the-clock foolishness has taken hold in official quarters. At the last session of Congress the Senate passed a bill for setting the hands of the clock forward an hour, but it was pigeonholed in the House. It seems probable now that the House will take it up and pass it."

"Greater Promise."

Indianapolis News: "The plan holds greater promise of working satisfactorily as a national than as a local measure. Where applied only to a few cities some confusion, in connection with the railroad schedules, etc., has arisen. This should disappear if the change is made throughout the country, as should other objections that have applied to local enforcement of the plan."

"No Difficulty."

New Orleans Times-Picayune: "If the bill is vigorously pressed by the people with the support it already has from the President and from leaders in Congress and the nation, there ought to be no difficulty in having this law written on our statute books by spring and the United States in line with the rest of the world in this plan for saving daylight."

"Could Adapt Ourselves"

Newark Ledger: "We have become accustomed to rapid changes since the declaration of war and putting into effect a plan to save daylight by making use of an extra hour of daylight would not be regarded as radical. We could adapt ourselves to it as readily as we have adapted ourselves to the restrictions that have been made in the fuel and food saving campaign."

"Should be Enacted"

Rochester Post-Express: "The bill should be enacted as promptly as possible. Objections to the daylight saving plan which would be serious if the change were proposed for any one or for several communities disappear when the suggestion is a nation-wide readjustment of working hours. Certainly the economies resulting from daylight saving will be important enough to overbalance any temporary inconvenience caused by setting the clocks ahead."

"For Victory."

New York World: "Every objection to daylight saving on the score of convenience falls to the ground, every advantage on the score of health, economy and social welfare is immensely strengthened, when the proposed reform passes out of the stage of local experiment into that of national action. Congress should promptly perfect and pass this useful measure. When peace comes we shall probably wish to retain the system for national efficiency. In any case, give us for the duration of the war daylight saving for victory."

Another Benefit."

Providence Journal: "Daylight saving has been urged for the economy it will effect in our use of fuel. The advantage of this is unanswerable. But there is another benefit that will be wrought—think of the millions of added hours of daylight that will be available for farming and gardening this season! It is not enough to say that the added hours of labour could be secured by the simple expedient of getting up an hour earlier. The American people will not do that. But if an extra hour each day is given them before sunset they will raise an incalculably greater amount of foodstuffs during 1918."

A Mysterious Burial in Siam

By WARREN MILLER

In Siam on the banks of the Klawng canal, not far from the city of Bankok, lived Lim Thai in a thatched house elevated on posts and looking more like an antiquated barn than anything else. One night Lim Thai came home from a gambling house in Bankok—the Siamese beat the Mexicans in gambling—having lost what little money he had, and settled himself to chewing the betel nut before turning in on his straw bed.

While thus engaged, the juice of the betel nut dripping through the openings in the floor, Lim looking through the crevices in the back of the house, uttered an exclamation of surprise and cunning satisfaction. His abode, though a primitive one, stood in the vicinity of the residence of Thee Wan, a rich ivory merchant. Lim had very good eyes and could distinguish distant objects with remarkable clearness.

He saw Thee Wan and his wife carrying from the rear of their house a box just large enough to contain a little child. Thee carried the box while his wife held a light. They took the box to a spot about a hundred yards from their house; Thee dug a hole in the ground; the box was placed in it, covered with earth; then the man and his wife knelt beside the spot, and they said their prayers. This being finished, Thee led his wife away, she weeping as though her heart would break.

Lim Thai was overjoyed. He had often gazed upon the palatial residence of Thee Wan and cursed his fate in having to live in such a humble abode as his own while Thee Wan resided in such splendor. Lim did not consider that while the merchant had worked hard for his comforts, he (Lim) had spent his time gambling.

Lim had a lively imagination, and evolved many explanations of the secret burial he had witnessed. This was his favorite theory: Thee Wan's wife had an orphan nephew, a minor, who would inherit a large fortune in elephants. The child had been under the care of his aunt. To get possession of the elephants, the couple had murdered the heir and buried him in the rear of their grounds in the dead of night.

While Lim was asleep that night he dreamed that Buddha had appeared to him and told him that his theory was correct, and directed him to send a message to Thee telling him that he knew his secret and unless he would send him a hundred tekels (about $60) he would inform the king's officers that he had seen him and his wife bury their nephew at midnight.

Now, while Lim had every confidence in his dream and in Buddha, he would rather have examined the grave himself and confirmed the theory. Unfortunately, the grounds of Thee were inclosed and guarded by dogs. Lim would have poisoned the dogs, but the dog is a sacred animal in Siam, and Lim dared not commit such an unholy act. So he proceeded more discreetly, obeying Buddha's instructions, and sent an anonymous letter to Thee demanding blackmail.

Lim waited a week, and receiving no reply, he sent another message to Thee, this time demanding a thousand tekels for keeping the secret. Since this produced no effect he kept on sending demands, till tiring of threats, he sent one more message declaring that it was the last, and that if the money was not immediately forthcoming he would inform the king's judicial officers of what he had seen.

This, like the rest of Lim's messages, not producing any effect, he informed the king's chief prosecuter of the mysterious burial and awaited the result. He was soon summoned to court, where he told the whole story, including the elephant fortune, which had been confirmed by Buddha in his dream.

The king was very wroth when he heard of the elephants, for his majesty has a cinch on the elephants in Siam, and it is hands off by all others. He sent an order for Thee Wan to appear before him and answer to the charge that had been made against him and his wife. Thee appeared at the court, and begged that the king send his chamberlain to his house; the grave should be opened, and the contents of the box exposed.

The same day the chamberlain, Thee Wan, and his wife and Lim, with attendants from the court, stood beside the spot where the burial had taken place. The grave was opened, the lid removed, and there lay the remains of a little monkey.

Thee explained that it had been a pet of his wife's, that there was no nephew, no elephant fortune; indeed, that Lim had coined the story out of his brain.

Lim was taken by the chamberlain to the king and the results of the investigation were given to his majesty. Lim begged to be excused for making a mistake which was a very natural one, and the king might have excused him on the ground that his theory had been confirmed by Buddha himself; but his majesty was greatly disappointed at not being able to confiscate a herd of elephants to attach to his own herd, and consequently not disposed to leniency. He ordered Lim to be beheaded, and the poor man, instead of having a house over his head, however imperfect, was consigned to a home under ground.

To Save the Eyes.

To avoid straining the eyes a person of normal vision should hold the book to be read 15 or 18 inches from the face and on a direct line with the eyes. Never hold a book low while reading. The strain on the eyes is much greater when the book is held in the lap. If you make a practice of reading while lying down you should be careful to hold your book at the proper angle.

Next Largest Island.

The island of Haiti-Santo Domingo is, after Cuba, the largest of the West Indies. The total area of the island is 29,525 square miles, of which 10,200, or approximately one-third, are in the western section, or Haiti; 19,325, or the remaining two-thirds, are in the eastern portion, or the Dominican Republic.

Good Stock, Good Prices.

The Argentine cattlemen pay prices for blooded live stock that only a few fanciers in America would consider. Bulls not infrequently sell for $20,000 or $30,000, canny farmers offering such sums without arousing any sensation. So well does blooded stock pay that amounts of this sort are not looked upon as speculation.

An Evergreen Shrub.

One always associates heather with Scotland, and it is one of the chief glories of that land of colors; but heather, or ling, is an evergreen shrub which grows all over northern Europe, certain species even being found in Africa, where it reaches the height of large bushes.

Judge and Doctor.

"I find this man guilty of larceny and sentence him—". "Kleptomania, your honor. A case for a doctor, not a judge." "Very good. I'm a doctor of laws and I'll prescribe about two years."

It was Billy's duty to keep the wood box filled, which was anything but pleasant for him. "Mamma," said he, "somehow, I don't affectionate toward the wood pile."

Janet and grandpa had a disagreement during the morning, and at luncheon she did not take her usual seat beside him. "Grandpa and I are unspeakable," she explained briefly.

PETERBORO' JUNIORS BADLY BEATEN IN THE RETURN GAME

Lost by 24 Goals to 4 Last Night After Scoring First Two Goals and Holding De La Salle to 4-3 Score in First Period—Big Ice Surface and Speed of the Toronto Bunch Soon Exhausted Visitors.

After scoring the first two goals and holding De La Salle to a 4 to 3 score in the first period, the Peterborough juniors faded away to nothing in the second and third sessions of the return game in Toronto last night, and were finally beaten 24 to 4. The Peterborough youngsters shot their bolt in the first period when they killed themselves by their desperate effort to hold De La Salle. They opened out at the son, and the Toronto crowd was benson ,and the Toronto crowd was bewildered when they slapped two goals past Koster in short order and tied the round up. Then De La Salle started to come and the Petes skated themselves into submission trying to stop the speedy green and white team. The big ice surface and the pace at which they had to travel soon tired the light Petes, and by the end of the first period they were a weary bunch.

The last two periods were a nightmare. The Peterborough forward line were too tired to check back, and the defence were utterly unable to cope with the clever stick-handling of the De La Salle bunch, who worked around them with ridiculous ease. The Petes were almost dropping in their tracks during the last period and Substitute Williams was used more often than in any game this season.

Park was the Petes' most useful player last night. The little right wing man seemed to adapt himself to the Arena's big surface more readily than his team mates, and his good work in the first period was responsible for all three of Peterborough's goals while he himself scored the only other counter the team registered. Hagerman tallied the first three goals for the Petes on passes from Park, two after the right had circled out from the corner and centred neatly to Hagerman, and the third after a pretty rush and a pass at the right moment to the same player. Hagerman was next to Park in usefulness in the first two periods, while Cherrett's best work was done in the last session when he came on after the rest of the team had wilted, and tore off some fine rushes. It was the first game this season in which the Peterborough captain failed to score.

Williams took the eye of the crowd, the contrast between his size and the manner in which he was willing to mix thinks catching the fancy of the Toronto fans, who cheered him when he bumped into big Spring and upset him and then upset Babe Dye.

The game was very clean and only a couple of penalties were handed out. A disagreeable feature, however, came just after the final bell, when Dye sailed into Girard and crumpled him up against the boards. The incident disgusted a lot of Toronto fans.

BASKETBALL

On Saturday night a game of basketball will be played between the Peterborough Collegiate and the Y.M.C.A. junior O. A. B. A. teams. These teams have tied for the district championship and the game on Saturday night will decide the issue. As there is only one point difference between the teams after two games played, the contest is sure to be a close and exciting one. Both teams easily defeated Concord, the other team in the district. Each team is confident and is in the best of condition, and those who enjoy a fast game of basketball will not be disappointed on Saturday night. The winner of this game will meet the winner of the Belleville-Kingston district in the second round.

Adams Cup For Best Premises of Lawn And Garden

The spring options of the Horticultural Society listed at last night's meeting include one peck of early seed potatoes, two small fruits of black and red currants, gooseberries, raspberries or grape vine, twenty-five strawberry plants, fifteen packets of seed, one box of pansies and one year's subscription to the Canadian Horticulturist. There are at least fifty options, and all of them are of greater value than the former spring options, for the reason that the fall distribution of bulbs will be discontinued this year owing to the extreme shortage of suitable stock. The complete list will be published in a few days.

The directors decided to offer the Adams' cup for an open competition for the best home premises, lawn and garden. Applications must be forwarded to the secretary on or before August 1st. The cup becomes the permanent property of a citizen only after he has won it three times. Every one will be eligible for this competition; and this early announcement should provide sufficient time for householders to prepare for this year's work.

The Society will co-operate with the Women's Council by supplying seeds for the pupils in the senior classes in the schools, and arrangements are being made with the Industrial Exhibition whereby the Horticultural Society will supply beet, carrot and onion seed to the children, and the Fair Board will set up special prizes for the crops produced.

GUERILLA WAR ON HUNS

Bolsheviki Intimates as Much in Event of Further Invasion of Russia by Germans.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 20.—Guerilla warfare is to be Russia's method of opposing German's act in invading Russia further, according to intimations from Bolsheviki sources. In an address to the central executive committee of the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's delegates, Leon Trotkky, the Bolsheviki Foreign Minister, said:

"We are not folowers of Tolstoy. We do not say we will not resist the German invasion."

Trotsky proceeded to outline a plan by which the Socialistic army would conduct a bushwhacking compaign, hampering the efforts of the Germans should they endeavour to conduct commerce along the border, especially should they try to secure grain from the Ukraine under what he alluded to as the screen of their so-called peace with the Bourgeoise rada of Kiev.

HUNS TO INTERVENE NOW IN FINLA

London, Feb. 20. — Rumors are current in Stockholm, according to a despatch from Copenhagen, to the Exchange Telegraph Company, that the Germans intend to intervene at once in Finland. MR. F. D. KERR

Elected President of the Peterborough Law Association at the annual meeting, yesterday. Mr. Kerr has been a member of the local Bar for seventeen years.

Mr. F. D. Kerr New President Of Peterborough Law Association

Elected at the Annual Meeting on Tuesday Afternoon—Affairs of the Association During 1917 Reviewed in the Annual Report.

TRIBUTE TO MR. KERR

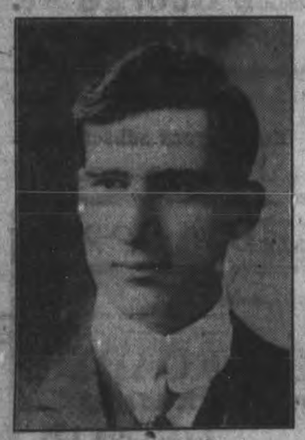
Mr. F. D. Kerr was elected president of the Peterboro Law Association at the annual meeting yesterday afternoon, succeeding Mr. R. R. Hall, who has held the position during the past two years.

The Board of officers for 1918 is as follows:

President—Mr. F. D. Kerr.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. Ozias Laplante.
Secretary and Librarian—Mr. Jos. Wearing.
Treasurer—Mr. B. D. Hall.
Trustees—Messrs. E. H. D. Hall, G. N. Gordon and R. R. Hall.

The honor conferred upon Mr. Kerr is an enviable one and may be regarded as a recognition of his active interest in the affairs of the association. Since coming to Peterboro, 17 years ago, he has risen to the front ranks of the local bar. The legal talent that has marked the practice of his profession is evidently a family inheritance. His father was the late



MR. B. D. HALL,

Treasurer of the Peterborough Law Association, elected at yesterday's annual meeting.

Senator Hon. Wm. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg, and his brother, Mr. W. F. Kerr, is the present Crown Attorney, of Cobourg. Shortly after coming to Peterboro, Mr. Kerr formed a partnership under the firm name of Gladman & Kerr, was afterwards associated with Mr. Daniel O'Connell, and finally joined Messrs. R. M. Dennistoun and E. A. Peck, in 1905. Mr. Kerr has also been a member of the executive of the Ontario Bar Association for five years. He has upheld the best traditions of his profession, and has counted many successes in his extensive practice. Two of his outstanding cases were the Sharpe and Henderson murder trials. In public affairs he has done more than his share of effective service, and the citizens generally will join in congratulating him upon his election.

MR. E. H. D. HALL,

Member of the Board of Trustees of the Peterborough Law Association.

THE ANNUAL REPORT.

The report of the association for 1917, was presented as follows:

On the 23rd of February, Mr. J. Williams Bennet, a member of the firm of Bennet & Goodwill, died after an illness of several years. The late Mr. Bennet was called to the bar in 1888, having been a student in Peterboro previously at the office of the legal firm of Pousette & Roger. The late Mr. Bennet practised for some time alone and afterwards filled the office of Deputy Registrar for a year. Later he became a member of the firm of Roger & Bennet, which later still became the firm of Roger, Bennet & Goodwill. After Mr. Roger became the County Judge of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, the firm continued in the name of Bennet & Goodwill. For many years the late Mr. Bennet was the secretary of the Peterboro Law Association. He was widely known and respected and during his time at the bar enjoyed an extensive practice, and his death was a distinct loss to the association.

The appointment of Mr. Robert Ruddy, K. C., to be Junior County Court Judge of the County of Ontario, dissolved the firm of Ruddy & Burnham. The office formerly occupied by the firm of Ruddy & Burnham is now occupied by J. G. Guise-Bagley, M.I. M.E., formerly of Barrie.

Mr. J. A. O'Brien, formerly of

MR. C. N. GORDON,

Member of the Trustee Board of the Peterborough Law Association.

Stratford, has become a member of the firm of Gordon, Widdifield & O'Brien.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., was re-elected to Parliament as the member for the constituency of West Peterboro at the Federal elections in December.

Major S. T. Medd, of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, who has been overseas for the last three years, has returned home recently on leave.

MEMBERS AT THE FRONT.

Three members of the Peterboro Law Association are still at the front, Captain C. R. Widdifield, Lieutenant J. F. P. Birnie, and Lieutenant J. F. Strickland, Lieutenant Widdifield having been wounded during the year. Lieutenant J. A. New, formerly a student in the office of Mr. G. N. Gordon, is also in France. Lieut. Thomas Allen, a barrister, who took his legal training in Petedboro, was killed in action during the year, and Captain Grant Mowat, who was an articled student at law in this city, was killed at Vimy Ridge.

During the year a large number of new text books have been added to the Library, but it has been found impossible to have the Library arranged in proper shape because of the temporary arrangements concerning the library, and the lack of room. It is hoped that before many months the Library at the Court House will be completed and that the books will be placed there in first-class shape.

The Building Committee has been in consultation with the County Council several times and is making every endeavor to have the Library in the Court House refitted in such a way that it will be a credit to the association and to the County.

The Librarian has had a very great deal of extra work during the year, and a good deal more work must be done during the year of 1918 before the Library at the Court House will be in a satisfactory condition.

If Breathing Is Difficult, If Nostrils Are Plugged, You Have Catarrh

At Last a Remedy That Already Has Permanently Cured Thousands.

Perhaps you haven't heard of the new remedy—it's so pleasant to use—fills the nose, throat and lungs with a healing balsamic vapor like the air of the pine woods. It's really a wonderful remedy—utilizes that marvelous antiseptic only found in the Blue Gum tree of Australia.

The name of this grand specific is Catarrhozone, and you can't find its equal on earth for coughs, colds, catarrh or throat trouble. You see it's not longer necessary to drug the stomach—that spoils digestion—just simply inhale the balsamic essences of Catarrhozone which are so rich in healing that they drive out every trace of Catarrh in no time.

"I look upon Catarhozone as the most valuable medical discovery of recent years," writes R. V. Potter, of Prince Albert. "As a long sufferer from nasal and throat catarrh I was obliged to take considerable medicine, and, although it helped me, my digestion was always disturbed and the catarrh didn't go away. With Catarrhozone it was different. It cleaned my nose and throat of all phlegm and discharges, enabled me to breathe freely, relieved a stuffy feeling in my nose and frontal headaches. To-day I am entirely free from catarrh, and I use my Catarrhozone Inhaler a little every day in order to prevent the disease from returning."

With Catarrhozone experimenting ends. A permanent curative action begins. Lasting relief from Catarrh results. The large size costs $1.00, last two months and is guaranteed. Small size 50c.; sample size 25c. All storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

MOTHER HAD TO PROP HER SON UP IN BED

Could Hardly Get His Breath at Times—Is Now the Picture of Health

"My son, Francis, is the picture of health since he took Tanlac and his recovery has certainly relieved me of a heavy burden of anxiety and worry," said Mrs. Annie Haxby, recently. Mrs. Haxby who is a well known business woman, owns and conducts a grocery store at the corner of St. John and Weston Roads, Mt. Denis, near Toronto.

"Francis is now fifteen years of age," Mrs. Haxby continued, "and has been suffering from something like asthma and catarrh of the head for several years. I have almost worried myself sick over his condition. He couldn't stand the least exposure without catching cold. His eyes would water and his head, bronchial tubes and nasal passages seemed to be completely stopped up. Sometimes the trouble seemed to go down into his chest and lungs and bring on bad spells of coughing. I often had to prop him up in bed at night before he could get a good breath. I have had him treated for years and have also given him the best known household remedies, but he never seemed to get more than a little temporary relief.

"I never had much idea Tanlac would help him, but everything else had failed and I was so anxious about his case that I had him try it. Well it is simply wonderful the way it has helped him. He has taken seven bottles now and his catarrhal trouble is about gone and if he had asthma, that's gone too. His health is better than it has been in years and, in fact he's just like a different boy. He has never been able to attend school regularly before on account of his health, but now he's going every day and is feeling fine. I'm just so glad to see how his health has been restored that I tell everybody who comes in the store about Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd., in Fowlers Corners by W. A. Hunter.

Trinity League At Bridgenorth

Very Enjoyable Visit and Splendid Programme

On Monday evening last the members of Trinity League, numbering about forty, paid a visit to Bridgenorth at the kind invitation of their League.

The evening's entertainment was divided into two parts, viz., concert and refreshments. Trinity League was responsible for the concert and the Bridgenorth members the refreshments. The concert was as follows:

A poem by Miss Lapp, her own composition, on the "Visit to Bridgenorth."

Miss Ellson, president of George street League, brought the greetings of her society to the Bridgenorth League.

A pianoforte solo by Miss S. Elliott was followed by a vocal solo from Miss Greta Giles, whose well-trained voice and fine rendering were much appreciated by the audience.

Master Baden Green, who gave a selection on the violin, delighted everyone by his skillful handling of the bow, and pleased the audience so well that their demand for an encore had to be responded to.

Miss Ada Lane with her oratorical training, afforded much amusement in the rendering of a recitation.

Pianoforte solo—Miss L. Elliott.
Bass solo—Mr. Newton Staples.
Violin solo—Master Baden Green.
Miss S. Elliott as the accompanist.

The chairman was the Trinity League president, Mr. N. Ireland.

After the concert the Bridgenorth friends did their part in first-class style in serving out refreshments, which one and all did ample justice to, the "inner man" being well supplied for the return journey.

The evening proved to be a most enjoyable one and those of the two leagues who missed it will have cause for regret.

The journey out and home was ideal, wind, weather and moonlight combining to add to the enjoyment.

A visit from the Bridgenorth League in the near future is looked forward to with much pleasure by Trinity members.

Next Monday evening the members of Trinity will hold an oratorical contest. Two silver medals presented by Mr. R. J. Kidd will be the prizes for first and second best.

Everybody welcome.

The delicate comedy is introduced by the bringing into this family of a poor relation in the person of a quaint little Irish girl, Peg, portrayed in this instance by Miss Ann Pittwood. The company supporting Miss Pittwood is all that can be desired, and the production is complete in every detail.

TRENCH TEA AT THE EMPRESS ON FRIDAY

The Canadian Kitchener League are still looking after the comfort of the Peterborough boys in the trenches. Thousands of pairs of socks have found their way to the firing-line during the past three and one-half years. The many letters of gratification and appreciation received from the boys have more than repaid the workers for their labour, and have been the means of inspiring them to greater efforts. Funds are required to procure yarn, to carry on the work, and "Tag Day" has always proved successful in filling this need. Parcels being sent by mail overseas necessitates an extra expense; this latter expense is covered by afternoon teas, etc., held from time to time, by the League. One of these teas will be held in the Empress Hotel on Friday afternoon next, from 3 to 5 o'clock. Every one is invited.

Corsetry, Pre-eminent

There are many figures which are good except at some point. It is here that corsetry is pre-eminent. The most familiar example is the need of reduction at hip and thigh; this bugbear is met and vanquished in the line, by gussets and V's of elastic, which effectively control the flesh, while allowing perfect freedom of motion.

If your figure needs correction thru the hip and thigh, or in fact whatever your requirements, there is a Corset, which will satisfy your needs. Prices range

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GRAND RIVER ON RAMPAGE

Canadian Press Despatch,

CALT, Ont., Feb. 20.—The Grand River is already on its annual rampage, and the aggregate damage in this city and vicinity is running high. At 5.45 this morning the ice at the dam here broke, and in a few minutes the waters of the river below had risen 12 feet. In spite of retaining walls, several streets have flooded and cellars are full of water. Almost the entire population is engaged in barricading against further incursions of the river.

AMERICAN OPINION

The "Wall Street Journal" publishes a leading editorial on what is described as a "flare-up in Western Canada over the agitation for government ownership of all the railways, including the Canadian Pacific."

"Not all of the co-operative socialists, advocates of state socialism and proponents of what is called communality, from all the farmers, mercantile and lumber associations combined, could transfer the Canadian Pacific Railroad to the Government, even were the Government itself willing," the editorial insists. "They could eat it up, but they could not hold it a single instant, as it is known to-day and at its value to them to-day, after they got it. . . . Canadians need not go one step beyond their own border to decide whether a government-owned road can maintain its most valuable asset. It is just because it cannot be done that part of the prairie press has for some months past wished to make up the deficits of the government-owned roads by expropriating the Canadian Pacific's current profits. The idea is a chimera. There would be no profits to divide up.

"Less than one-sixth of the company's stock is owned by Canadians; less than one-seventh of the shareholders are Canadians. Canadians are both honorable and capable in business matters. Certainly they would not disturb that one security which has contributed most to the country's growth, and has by its stability and merits lifted Canadian investments to a position of great repute and strength in the financial markets of the world, without at least consulting these shareholders.

"If they did, no one would suffer more than the great farming classes of the west whose exports would no longer receive price stimulation from a growing foreign investment market which constantly rectifies the inequalities of adverse Canadian trade balances. Western Canada's deadliest enemy has been the ghost of single tax. It has successfully withstood that temptation to reaction and decay. On grounds of both good faith and expediency, it will not 'Trans-continentalize' the Canadian Pacific."

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acids and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

PRESENTATION TO RETURNED SOLDIER

93rd Battalion Soldier Enlisted in Apsley Platoon

APSLEY, Feb. 20. — A Valentine basket social was held in the parish hall on the evening of Feb. 14th by the Soldiers' Comfort Club. A good programme was rendered. The proceeds amounted to $29 and will be used in packing boxes for soldiers overseas. During the evening Pte. Bert McIlmoyle, returned soldier, was presented with a fur cap and purse, and an illuminated address Pte. McIlmoyle enlisted with the Apsley platoon of the 93rd Batt. He was wounded at the battle of Vimy Ridge. The following is the address:

Apsley, Feb. 14, 1918.

To Pte. B McIlmoyle:

Dear Friend,—On this the happy occasion of your return from the blood-stained battlefields of France, we feel ourselves called upon to express in some way our admiration for your manhood, which responded to duty's sacred call.

When the whole world was shaken, and when the ring of Germany's sword proclaimed her plighted word, "naught but a scrap of paper," you were among the first from our neighbourhood to hear England's call to all true mother's sons to defend right against might.

We were proud of you the night you offered your services for your country and were among the number who stood in front of the platform in our tow hall, one of which has paid the supreme sacrifice. Your act of loyalty and unselfishness on that night proved as an incentive to others to follow in your footsteps.

From the time you left us we have followed your career with interest. To your lot has fallen some of the severest trials of a soldier's life.

We are glad to see you return from fields of honour, where many of our gallant boys have fallen. A kind and merciful Providence has spared you. We trust that your wounds may soon be healed, and we honour you to-day for what you are and for what you have done. Your brave deeds and gallant service has honored us.

We ask you to accept this gift as a slight appreciation of what you have done and suffered in our cause, and hope that God's blessing may be upon you in the future, and that though of wounds you lay down the arms of our King, you may ever and always be a soldier of the King of Kings.

Signed on behalf of the citizens of Burleigh and Anstruther—

Mrs. E. Tucker,
Mrs. W. Staples.

COMPANIES' COMPLAINTS UNAVAILING

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—There will be no modification in the order placing tractors on the free list, the complaints from the Canadian companies notwithstanding. Neither will any compensation be given to the various tractor agencies because of the purchase by the government of tractors from the Ford company at cost. The order was promulgated for the purpose of increasing production, and expires in a year's time. It applies only to tractors of a value not exceeding $1,400. Canadian companies are not in a position to fill the demand for tractors throughout the Dominion. Neither was it possible to secure the number required from the American companies outside of the Ford company. Already Ontario has asked for 100 Ford tractors. New Brunswick has asked for 5, Manitoba has placed an application for 300 and other applications are coming in rapidly, and will be dealt with by the Provincial Agricultural Department. The fact that such an arrangement has been made with the Ford company is due to the refusal of the company at the present time to sell its tractors to individuals. Great Britain has had an option on practically the whole output of the factory. The arrangement whereby the tractors are sold to the farmers at cost, plus the freight, is a special arrangement insisted on by the Ford company. As a matter of fact it is pointed out that all the tractors available from all the companies will not be too many if Canada is to carry out her present plans for increased production.

FOUR CHIMNEY FIRES.

Notwithstanding the scarcity of fuel four families to-day managed to find enough to set their chimneys ablaze and call out the Fire Department. These were at 7.18 o'clock—166 Stewart street, the home of Mr. W. Timm; 11.45, 298 Wolfe street; 2.20, 287 Park Street. Miss Cook's home, and to 447 Driscoll Terrace, Mr. Hubbell's home. No damage was done in any case. The chemical engine was not used.

"ISLE O' DREAMS"

Last evening in the Grand Opera House, was presented "Isle O' Dreams," a romantic play in four acts. A quaint Irish setting with popular Irish airs were features of the play, which was well staged. Julius Velie as "Ivor Kelway," was prominent in the cast of characters. His rendition of several Irish songs was responsible for several encores. Lionel Dunrobin as "Major McFarlan," was conspicuous in a part ahat was well handled. He was supported by a strong, capable cast of characters. The musical programme was a feature of the production and was well received.

POULTRY DRIVE BY ASSOCIATION FOR PRODUCTION

At the first meeting of the new officers and directors of the Poultry Association, held last night, the secretary, Mr. Fred Holmes, was instructed to apply to the Department of Agriculture for lecturers and other assistance in the local campaign for a greater production of fowl and eggs this year. Mr. George Paxman presided.

Since the Association was organized ten years ago, its members have greatly improved the quality of Peterborough fowl, and has also been instrumental in increasing the number of pure-bred chicks. Now it felt that the Association should concentrate its efforts and its knowledge in the production of fowl as a food. In other words, quantity rather than quality, is to be the object of the spring drive. In this work it is hoped that the citizens will co-operate. Hens and eggs may be obtained for hatching, and the experience of members in the operating of incubators and brooders will also be given to the public. In the meantime public interest will be stirred up by addresses, for which the poultry experts will be brought to Peterborough with the assistance of the Provincial Department.

The Association holds its regular meetings on the second Thursday of each month in the Labour Hall in the Toronto Savings and Loan building, and citizens are cordially invited to attend.

Next winter's show will be held on January 7, 8 and 9.

Corset Fitting As A Fine Art

That her customers may enjoy the complete satisfaction of a perfectly fitting corset, designed alike for comfort and elegance of lines, Miss Mabel Johnston, the corsetiere representing the Gossard Corset Co. at Richard Hall and Son's dry goods store, attended the annual school of corset fitting last week. The school, which is held at the Canadian branch of the Gossard Co. on King Street West, under the skilled direction of Mrs. MacMichael, was attended by thirty-one corsetieres, representing the leading dry goods stores of Canada who carry this important branch. Here the young ladies were taught by practical demonstration by living models the art of perfectly fitting every known figure. Graceful and beautiful lines are revealed, whilst those so desired are softened under the skilled direction of a graduate of the Gossard School. After the demonstration the young ladies themselves fitted the models, and in this manner attained a high degree of perfection in their art of giving every figure wearing the Gossard corset a youthful, trim and distinctive form. Miss Johnston returned to the city with a large supply of the latest models, which are pretty much the same as the winter models, save for a slight inclination to accentuate the waist line. They have advanced slightly with the general advance of all materials and labour, but not enough to affect the purse of the self-respecting women who desire a perfect figure. Mr. Hall to-day received a letter from Mrs. MacMichael, complimenting him upon the intelligent interest displayed by Miss Johnston, and expressing her opinion that she is a first-class fitter. Mr. Hall is arranging to extend the already splendid facilities for fitting customers with the up-to-date Gossard models.

"THE WOMAN WHO CHANGED" A PRACTICAL STORY

One That Every Woman Should Read—Helpful and Interesting

The Examiner will publish on Monday next the first installment of a special serial, entitled, "The Woman Who Changed." It is the story of the early disappointments of a young wife who could not understand her husband, who was a business man, a club man and a good clean sport.

The marriage seemed to be a real love match. The courtship was a whirlwind affair, but not long after their marriage things changed.

Was it the woman?

Was it the man?

May be it was both. Anyway, the wheel of time brought problems—the same as are brought to every married man and woman.

But the day did come when there was a change. The woman changed, the man changed, and at the last, the love was greater than the first.

It is interesting from start to finish. Begin with the first installment on Monday next and you will appreciate it.

"PRETTY PAPA"

The musical comedy De Luxe, "Pretty Papa," comes to the Grand, next Saturday, Feb. 23rd, and amusement lovers will have an opportunity of witnessing an entertainment already O.K.'d by thousands of delighted theatre goers in the larger cities. The press has been unanimous in declaring it to be the most unusual and enjoyable performance. The book and lyrics are by Powelton and Edwards, while Manual Lederer is responsible for the charming music.

"Pretty Papa" has a consistent and hilariously funny plot well sustained throughout. There is a corking chorus of beautiful girls—the kind you have often read about but seldom seen with a travelling organization. There is also the male chorus of dashing young men who possess rare singing voices, and whose harmony assists materially in the rendition of the big ensemble numbers.

The big cast of principles is headed by Halton Powell, an eccentric comedian whose reputation as a funmaker is second to none. Other well known farceurs are Miss Grace Baird, Miss Rita Lawrence, Mr. Lester Donnelly, Mr. Chas. Walcott, Miss Lucile Endicott and Mr. Robt. Stewart.

The entire scenic and electrical equipment is carried complete.

Claims That Cheese Prices Are Too High

Cost of Living Commissioner Says Price For Export Is Now Dominating That For Local Use—Producers Are Preparing For a Demand For Higher Prices

O'CONNOR'S LATEST REPORT

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—Cost of Living Commissioner O'Connor reports amounts of food commodities in storage on Feb. 1, 1918, as:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Butter, lbs | 7,542,447 |
| Cheese, lbs | 7,529,923 |
| Eggs, dozen | 1,560,039 |
| Beef (fresh and pickled), lbs | 40,197,654 |
| Pork (fresh and pickled), lbs | 20,915,495 |
| Bacon and ham and smoked meats, lbs | 13,036,104 |
| Mutton and lambs, lbs | 4,832,230 |
| Fish, lbs | 16,440,734 |
| Fowl, all varieties, lbs | 3,165,585 |

To estimate the quantity available for consumption and export, add about ten per cent. to represent goods in transit and certain comparatively insignificant quantities unreported.

Comparisons.

| | Feb 1, 1917. | Feb. 1, 1918. |
|---|---|---|
| Butter | 7,726,330 | 6,979,209 |
| Cheese | 3,311,801 | 6,457,783 |
| Eggs | 738,337 | 1,480,299 |
| Beef (fresh and pickled) | 34,090,691 | 40,134,094 |
| Pork (fresh and pickled) | 22,873,061 | 19,999,537 |
| Bacon and ham and smoked meats | 16,909,551 | 12,305,433 |
| Mutton and lamb | 5,979,344 | 4,301,106 |
| Fish | 9,472,448 | 15,162,765 |
| Fowl, all varieties | 4,724,179 | 2,345,208 |

Cheese Too Dear.

The commissioner says: "I must again protest that a 100 per cent. increase of egg holdings and an almost equivalent increase of cheese holdings fail to justify prevailing prices. Less than five per cent. of our cheese production will serve our ordinary needs, and a large amount of the stored cheese is the property of the Cheese Commission, but I cannot shut my eyes to the fact that there is an enormous amount stored by private owners, and while the price to the Canadian consumer does not tempt him to occasionally substitute this wholesome food for meat, the producers are reinforcing for a demand for yet higher prices from the Cheese Commission.

MORE ABOUT EGGS.

"It is about time for storage eggs to come off the market. My contention raised last month that the then alleged scarcity was non-existent is borne out by the export figures. Canada exported in Jan., 1917, only 180,430 dozen eggs, while in January of 1918 Canada exported 1,658 dozen, and imports were less by only 175,000 dozen than in January, 1917. The existence of the exportable surplus mentioned was the real reason for a falling off in imports. further, that surplus, principally available in the west, has been fed out to the east as required. For instance, just a few days after the showing of greatly reduced stocks of storage eggs in Montreal as of Feb. 1, 1918, compared with Jan. 1, Montreal stocks were augmented fully one-third. There has been considerable selling and re-selling of storage eggs among the egg operators. The consumer pays for every shot.

MUST BE STOPPED.

"I humbly submit that this sort of thing should be stopped. If I may not so submit I mistake my duty. I may add that this sort of thing can be stopped."

How Tommy Holmes Won Victoria Cross

Details of Thrilling Exploit of Young Owen Sounder at Passchendaele—With One Bomb He Killed Two Gun Crews, Another Quelled Pill Box.

SINGLE-HANDED ATTACK

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 20.—In a letter received here from Lieut. J. M. Dobie, the officer commanding the company in which Pte. Tommy Holmes, V.C., eighteen years old, won his honours, the full details of the heroic exploit are given, which was already reported in The Globe of January 28.

It was at Passchendaele that the unprecedented act of heroism took place. The morning of the attack the first wave, consisting of two companies of the battalion, had gone forward, had captured their first objective, and were consolidating the captured position. While they were still making their position secure, the second wave went through them, moving up the slope to the second objective, which was the crest of the ridge.

This wave included a company in which was Tommy Holmes. Ploughing through the mud and water, plugging from shell-hole to shell-hole, advancing over ground swept by a relentless fire from rifle and machine-gun, they went forward, but that death-dealing hail of bullets were taking an awful toll. Finally, in order to save themselves from what seemingly was going to be complete annihilation, they were forced to take cover in convenient shell-holes. Unceasingly the enemy fire raked the ground where they were, and over which they had to pass in order to reach the position that had been assigned to them to take.

Observers Cause of Hold-up.

It was during this halt that Holmes noticed that the fire which was holding up his company came from a concrete pill-box fort on their right flank. Inside the pill-box the Hun snipers and sharpshooters were keeping up a steady fire from the loopholes, while just beside the pill-box two machine-gun crews, with their guns, had taken up a position, and it was quite apparent that it was the fire from these guns that had temporarily checked his company's advance.

Armed only with a Mills bomb, and without waiting for an order from anyone, his comrades crouching in the shell-holes saw Holmes rush forward through the hail of bullets and spring into a shellhole some yards ahead of the company. A moment later he appeared, and on he rushed again, and again he disappeared. He did this several times, each little spurt bringing him closer to the Hun machine guns.

Watchers Were Spellbound.

The sight of the lad's slight figure making straight for the guns held the men behind who were watching him spellbound, thinking that he could not possibly get through the terrific fire. Every time he showed himself the fire grew more intense, and bullets splattered around him and tore up the mud and dirt, but apparently he bore a charmed life.

As Holmes got nearer to the guns he noticed that occasionally there was a lull of a few seconds in the firing of one or the other of the guns, and he knew that each pause indicated that the crews were changing the belts—in other words, reloading their guns. Then suddenly there came a moment when both guns ceased firing simultaneously. Holmes knew what it meant; that the crews of both guns were reloading at the same instant.

Kills Gun Crews.

It was his opportunity, and, quick as a flash, before the Hun machine gunners could get their guns working, he rushed forward to within about fifteen yards of them, just in time to take cover in a shell-hole before the hail of bullets from both guns opened on him again. But he was within bombing distance now, and pulling the pin of the grenade he carried, he hurled it with unforward, had caputred their first the Hun machine gunners, then crouched and waited. He had not long to wait. "Ping!" sang out the bomb. At the same instant the firing from both guns ceased, and the groans and shrieks of the wounded and dying Huns told of the havoc the bomb had wrought.

Attacks the Pill-box.

But there was still work to be done, for the pill-box remained full of Hun riflemen. Without hesitating a moment, and again risking his life, back Holmes went towards his company, some of whom were beginning to advance again. From the foremost of his comrades he secured another bomb, then turned around and ran straight for the pill-box. Through the entrance at the rear he threw the bomb. There was another explosion and those of the Hun garrison that survived, nineteen in number, came out with their hands up terrified, shouting "Mercy, Kamerad," and surrendered to their youthful captor, who was standing outside the pill-box alone.

But by this time the company was coming forward, for the Hun resistance in that particular place had been overcome, and that part of the ridge was in the hands of the Canadians, thanks to the heroism of the young Owen Sounder.

Won Honour Hundred Times Over.

Through the remainder of the attack he carried on in the same gallant manner, and when it was over, and his recommendation for a decoration was sent in, there was not a more popular award in the battalion, for those who saw what he did unanimously said he deserved the honour a hundred times over.

Besides his decoration, Pte. Holmes has a little souvenir of the Vimy Ridge battle in the shape of a "wounded" stripe, for he was wounded in that engagement, and got back to France just in time to take part in the action in which he won the V.C.

SEAL MEAT REPLACES BEEF.

Food Controller's Department Talk it Over with Dr. Grenfell.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Seal meat is the latest table delicacy being seriously considered by the Food Controller as a substitute for the ordinary bovine species.

This morning officers of the Food Board interviewed Dr. Grenfell, of the Labrador Mission, with regard to this proposal. Dr. Grenfell reported that it would be quite easy to secure twenty million pounds of seal meat, after skinning the animals and extracting the surplus fat. It would be frozen and stored at St. John's, Newfoundland, and Halifax. The meat is said to be palatable, and to possess high nutritive value.

The Leap of the Black Bass.

The leap of the black bass is always directly upward when hooked, and he generally falls tail first into the water. At times, however, this fish, like the trout, will rise vigorously to the fly and, missing it, will make a graceful curve in the air ere he goes quietly head down back to his element. But as a rule the bass rises fiercely to the fly with an accurate aim, and goes instantly to his lair.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

But hour succeeded hour and the house next door lay wrapped in darkness in the clear, moonless night. Dennis dozed, and even McCarty nodded fitfully, but all at once he started, tensely awake. A dull metallic click had reached his ears; the fall of a latch on the neighboring gate.

Arousing Dennis with a heavy hand on his shoulder and enjoining him to silence, McCarty opened the shutters noiselessly and leaned out. A figure black against the lesser darkness, had stolen out, and was slipping down the road in the opposite direction toward the open country.

"Stay where you are unless you hear my whistle," commanded McCarty, and placing his hand on the sill, he vaulted to the soft turf beneath the windows, and was gone.

Dennis hung out as far as he dared, his eyes trying to pierce the gloom, and every sense alert for the signal. But the minutes passed slowly, and no sound reached him save the harsh, strident whirring of the katydids and the tree-toad's croon.

At last the low, singing hum of an engine pulsed on the air, and a run-about without lights shaped itself in the darkness, rolling turning up in the road, drew up, panting like a live thing, before the house next door. A lone figure descended from it and vanished in the shadow of the porch and at the same moment McCarty's hoarse whisper came from beneath the window.

"Denny! Pass me out an armful of those empty whiskey bottles from the closet! Quick now, and mind you don't let any fall. That's it! Grab your hat, and mine, for I'm thinking we'll not be back—and out with you! Come on!"

Wrapping the bottles in his coat to subdue their clinking, he dashed with surprising speed down the road. Dennis a faithful shadow at his heels, muttered excited queries, but McCarty doggedly reserved his laborious breath for the present needs.

Passing a few clustering houses they came into the open, with fields of grain rolling on either side, in great billows beneath the stars. McCarty plodded on for a quarter of a mile, until they reached a clump of trees, where roads forked. There, gasping, he deposited his burden in the ditch.

"Hustle, now, Denny! Help me crack these bottles and strew them in the road; the more jagged the pieces are the better. If this don't rip the tires, I'll shoot!"

"How do you know that they'll come this way?" Denny asked between crashes of glass.

"Didn't the fellow turn the car around before he stopped so that they could make a straight getaway?"

"But what'll you do with them when you get them?"

"What?" McCarty threw the last shattered bottle on the roadway and sank perspiring upon a stone. "I've a warrant in my pocket for June Doe, on a capital charge and I will need none for the man; if I take her up, you'll not be able to lose him. I could not have gone in the house after them without dragging the local sheriff into the game, but this way, they are playing right into my hands. Whist, now, till you hear the car!"

They had not long to wait. The droning purr of a motor detached itself from the nocturnal whisperings, and grew in volume, and the low bulk of the car appeared bearing swiftly down upon them. There was a heavy and sickening crunch as it struck the slivered glass, a series of sharp reports like a miniature machine gun, and the car swerved on two wheels, and came to a dead stop in the ditch.

A shrill feminine scream that ended in a wail was mingled with a man's groaning curse, and then McCarty's deep voice boomed out solemnly:

"In the name of the law! I've a warrant here for the lady——"

His bull's eye flashed, and the young man leaped to the road, but paused at the muzzle of the revolver and the two grim faces behind it.

The girl's slender figure rose in her seat.

"It's all over!" she sobbed. "I know what you want me for—the murder of Marion Rowntree!"

CHAPTER XX.

THE GRAVE YAWNS.

It was Saturday evening, and Wade Terhune was in the best of humors. A smile hovered about his ascetic, and finely chiselled lips, and a faint tinge of color glowed beneath his sparkling eyes.

Just a week had elapsed since the scientific test which had resulted in so unexpected a climax and the atmosphere of his consulting room was miraculously changed. The screen, the lantern slide sheet, the long table and the rows of chairs had vanished, as had every evidence of mechanical device.

Rich, mellow hued rugs covered the floor, book cases and rare cabinets lined the walls and age stained Jacobean furnishings gave to the apartment an air of dignity and distinction which denoted the private sanctuary of a savant and connoisseur.

An ancient brass studded chest, its lid slightly atilt as if warped, flanked the hearth on one side, and on the other a heavily carved bench was set at right angles with the wall. The soft light filtered through a bronze lantern suspended on a chain above the library table, and brought out in burnished points of radiance the gold tooling on the massive tomes on the book shelves. The combined effect was a masterly suggestion of luxurious ease and harmonious, intellectual communion.

The stir of the city came but faintly through the shrouded windows and only the rhythmic, measured beat of the tall clock in the corner broke the stillness, until all at once an electric bell jangled a false note in the scheme and a bourgeois, commonplace figure obtruded itself upon the scene.

"McCarty!" Terhune dropped the ivory pawn he had been fingering upon the chess board, and came hurriedly forward. "Where have you been, man? I've tried to get in touch with you for the last four days, but you had dropped completely from sight."

"I've been away on a little trip, sir." McCarty's eyes roamed evasively. "A friend of mine had his vacation, and I went with him. Were you wanting me?"

"I wanted to shake hands with you! I confess I had underrated your remarkable facility for stumbling upon the truth." He laughed a trifle wryly. "If you had given me the slightest indication the other day, of the probable importance of your surmise as to the identity of Mrs. Doremus's guest, I would have handled the affair myself and finished it conclusively. Your attempt was meritorious, but not sufficiently persevering to be effective, my dear McCarty; you failed to carry it to a successful issue."

"Yes, sir." His tone was meekly ingratiating. "I only thought to see if my guest was right or not, Mr. Terhune, and I did not want to disturb you in your scientific thinking."

The detective shot a keen glance at him, but McCarty's face betrayed only bewildered contrition.

"Oh, well," Terhune smiled in tolerant patronage, "I have taken it in hand where you relinquished your grasp of the situation and although up to the present moment both the woman and Stephen Quimby have adhered stubbornly to their assertion of innocence, the case is practically consummated. Every link in the chain is complete and the end is in sight."

"Yes, sir," said McCarty. "Have you got the man?"

"The cry of the proletariat, the man in the street, who pays his penny for an 'extra' and looks only at the headlines!" Terhune shrugged. "I had hoped, Mac, to open your eyes, to teach you not to grasp wildly at the obvious, but to master the subtleties, the delicate intricacies of each psychological phase which manifests itself unerringly in the defensive readjustments of the criminal mind. However, in reply to your question, I may say that I have the man, my dear fellow. He cannot escape me, and within an hour I shall put him to a final crucial test which will deliver him to justice, a confessed, if unconsciously self-betrayed murderer!"

"Indeed, sir! I am relieved to hear it!" McCarty beamed. "I thought from what the inspector said that it was Mr. Quimby you were going to have the seance with to-night."

"And Mr. Quimby it is, although I should scarcely regard the coming examination in the light of a 'seance.'"

There was a touch of asperity in the detective's tones. "My good man, are you so obtuse as to credit his futile denial of guilt? No shadow of a doubt remains that he killed his stepdaughter. Come! Shall I show you how I am prepared to convict him out of his own mouth?"

"I shall be thankful if you will, sir!" McCarty replied heartily. "I admit I had my doubts about him having killed the girl but if you say he did, Mr. Terhune, that is all there is about it, and I'm glad to know the truth."

"You have a receptive mind, Mac, and if you would further cultivate its possibilities, it should carry you far." Terhune nodded magnanimously, his good humour restored. "Now, the test that I shall apply to Stephen Quimby to-night is one which has long been in vogue in criminal investigations on the continent, but, like the mechanical apparatus I employed a week ago, I have elaborated it and multiplied its efficiency.

USED FOR SHAVING.

Many men are troubled, more particularly in the cold weather, with a sort of roughness of the skin or eczema caused by shaving. The application of Dr. Chase's Ointment after the shave soon cures the trouble and by using it after each shave you keep the skin soft and prevent irritation and soreness. Because of its antiseptic qualities this ointment prevents and cures Barber's Itch.

Can Check Hunger.

According to an Italian physician, the channel from the mouth to the stomach is the seat of the senses of hunger and thirst, which he claims to have suppressed by cocaine injections.

Oil From Palm Trees.

It is proposed to start a new industry in British Honduras for the production of oil from the cohume palm, which grows prolifically in that country.

All in the Family.

Ethel—"Why did you take off your hat to that girl? You don't know her, do you?" Frank—"No—but my brother does, and this is his hat."

Larks Not First Out.

Scientific investigation has ruined the lark's reputation for early rising. It has been demonstrated that there are many birds which are out before the larks.

Dampness.

A few drops of lavendar scattered through a bookcase in a closed room will save a library from mold in damp weather.

You're Next, Sir.

Revolving brushes, operated by a hand lever, clean a man's hat and shoes at the same time in a machine designed for public places.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Task of Mine-Sweepers Is Filled With Perils, But It Has Fascination

THE correspondent of The London Daily Mail, Jackstaff, writing on mine-sweeping and its fascinations and perils, says:

"There is just a hint of Sisyphean labor about mine-sweeping. Throw back your minds to your school books and you will recall that Sisyphus, unhappy wight, had to keep on continuously rolling a stone uphill. Although this job kept Sisyphus so busy that he had no need to go in for 'physical jerks' (fifteen minutes a day immediately after the morning tub; see handbook) in order to keep up his muscle, it did not apparently do anybody else the least bit of good.

"Therein it differed vastly from mine-sweeping, which must be scheduled among the most useful operations of the war. Where a resemblance does come in is in the fact that an area once swept will not stay swept. After the ships have gone over it they must turn back and start again, and so ad infinitum.

"The procedure is something like this: One mine-sweeper in the course of combing over a particular stretch of sea come across a mine field. With great care they destroy this, rooting up and smashing every 'bulb' that has been planted in it. As soon as they have done so out creeps the wily Hun in a submarine and lays a fresh lot of mines. Sometimes the new field is put down so soon after the previous one has been removed that it seems as if the Hun must have been going along in the wake of our 'sweepers' when he laid it.

"In most cases mine-sweeping falls to the lot of trawlers manned by fishermen or other R.N.R. ratings. Nobody else could do the work quite as well as the men who are inured by long experience to the vagaries of the trawler, which in bad weather displays the vices of every other type of ship and the virtues of none. At one minute she imitates a submarine just starting to dive, the next she tumbles clumsily over the crest of a wave and brings up in the trough with a thump that makes all her bones rattle.

"At another time she will stand awhile on her heel and after making a curious swinging motion with her bows burrow headlong into an oncoming roller. With wind and sea abeam, her decks are no place for a timid man nor for the queasy stomached, either. Even experienced sailors accustomed to big ships alone go down like very landsmen.

"The trawlers carry on their rough and dangerous task in pairs. Between them stretches a long wire hawser, and with this they sweep minutely the area assigned to them. No matter how wildly their craft may be boating about, how cold the weather or how stormy the sea, all hands except the engine-room people must be on deck while the wires are out and at their posts ready for whatever may happen. And plenty does happen. Mines caught in the sweep have to be destroyed as the surest way of rendering them harmless.

"Much else may have to be done, too. Above all, eyes must be kept lifting for periscopes, as there is a chance that at any moment a submarine may start shooting 'tin fish' at the vessel. Or they may perchance bump on a mine. No lookout can avail against this, though the danger of such a mishap is smaller than it used to be. Nevertheless, the knowledge that a thing like this may happen at any moment does not help to make life more cheery for the crew. Death, in fact, stands by and grins in their faces all the time they are at work. And it is a great tribute to their nerve that they take his grim presence so calmly and 'carry on' with their duty as steadily as if they were free of his grisly company.

"How many tens of thousands of mines the unassuming heroes of this branch of the navy have destroyed during the way probably nobody can say. But it is very certain that were it not for the mine sweepers there would be no safety in home waters for any of our ships, be they men-of-war or trading 'bottoms.'"

TROUBLED WITH CONSTIPATION

From 16 to 20

Constipation is one of the commonest ills of mankind, and one too often allowed to go unlooked after until some serious complication sets in.

If the bowels are properly looked after there will be no constipation, jaundice, sick or bilious headaches, heartburn, coated tongue, sour stomach, floating specks before the eyes, etc.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will keep your bowels so regulated that in no time the constipation will disappear entirely.

Miss Emma E. Melanson, Halifax, N.S., writes: "I am now 20 years of age, and since I was 16 I have been greatly troubled with constipation, so much so that at times I would be in bed 3 or 4 days a month. I tried all the old-fashioned remedies, castor oil, cascara, etc., with only temporary relief, until my sister-in-law gave me some of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. From the first they seemed beneficial, and I gave them a fair trial. This was two years ago, and with an occasional dose I have kept entirely free from constipation for the period mentioned."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MILLER SOLD BRAN AND SHORTS TOO HIGH.

Alvinston, Feb. 20.—Keen interest was taken by farmers all over the district in a test case that was heard here, when John Wheeler, proprietor of the Alvinston Milling Co., was charged by H. A. Gilroy, President of the Lambton County Farmers' Co-operative Society, with selling bran and shorts at a higher price than that allowed by the Food Controller's orders. When the case was called, Mr. Wheeler pleaded guilty. Mr. S. Wilson of Sarnia, the Crown Prosecutor, pointed out the seriousness of the matter and stated that the maximum fine was $1,000, and three months in prison. Mr. Gilroy asked that the accused be fined $1,000, and sentence suspended. Magistrate Newcombe imposed a fine of $ and costs, and warned the miller.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Father's Helper

By Osborn Jones

Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Dick Stoner, after a stormy and galloping sort of seaside courtship, had actually heard Madeleine return all his vows of devotion he thought his struggles to win her as his wife were practically over. Madeleine was visiting a boarding school chum when the romance occurred, and for that reason, perhaps, Dick had forgotten that Madeleine probably possessed parents and that those parents might have something to say before permitting their eighteen-year-old beauty to become Mrs. Dick Stoner. But Dick knew that, as parents usually rated sons-in-law-to-be, he was not undesirable. His record at college and in business since then, though not actually brilliant, was clean and progressive, and any father-in-law or mother-in-law-to-be would not have much difficulty in discovering that his share of the Stoner fortune was a large one.

So it seemed as if the matter was settled till, after a sudden burst of enthusiasm on the part of Madeleine, as they sauntered in and out around the sand dunes at the seashore, she suddenly changed her tone and her eyes grew round.

"I'd forgotten about father," she said. "He will never let us do anything we want to—we are a great trial to him, you know, and I don't know how in the world I can ever be married if he doesn't consent. I just couldn't elope."

Dick didn't like this intrusion of an objecting father-in-law. It was much nicer hearing Madeleine's guideless praise of his own many manly virtues and good features. So he tried to persuade her that the father whom he had never seen was not such a gruff sort after all and that it would be an easy matter to "bring him around."

"You haven't any idea how strict he is," Madeleine protested. "He's a professor of psychology and this year he's trying to write his greatest book and—and, well, it is very hard to be the father of five daughters and Arthur and Bennet and write a book on psychology. It's hard to be the father of five daughters anyhow, he says, especially when they are the kind of daughters that we are."

"Why can't he shift responsibilities till the book is done?" suggested Dick. "Couldn't your mother manage to keep you within bounds?"

"Oh, mother's just as busy as she can be mending us and darning us and planning meals and things. She has a 'mother's helper' to help her and still she never seems to have time to breathe. And poor old father said he was going to try to get a 'father's helper'—to make his task of being our father easy, just as mother does with her 'mother's helper.' So far he hasn't found anyone that wants the job."

"What would this 'father's helper' have to do?" asked Dick, rather amazed at the turn of Madeleine's conversation.

"Oh, I suppose he would have to help Bennet with his Greek and spank Arthur, and he'd have to come to meals and see that we were all there and maybe say grace, and sometimes just happen in the drawing room when Minerva's suitors were there. Minerva's the stunner, you know, and she has just oodles of suitors, and mother says that father ought to appear once in a while just to show that there is someone keeping track of how often they come. But father can't stand that sort of thing. And I suppose the 'father's helper' would have to scold me sometimes because I am so reckless when I ride—mother keeps at father to scold me for it, but he hates to; and he would have to scold the servants when mother couldn't manage them, and sometimes, if one of us girls didn't have an escort to a dance, I suppose the 'father's helper' would have to go with us. Father ought to, mother says, but he hates to."

"My Greek is a little rusty," announced Dick, when Madeleine had finished her monologue, "but I think I'll take that position. You say your father hasn't found anyone for it. All right, I'll make tracks for your place tomorrow and by the time you have come home I'll be installed and perhaps one of the first things I can do will be to show father that it is to his interest to let his daughter Madeleine become Mrs. Dick Stoner."

When Madeleine reached home at the end of that week she found the young man whom her father had recently employed to be identical with the man to whom she had recently become engaged, except that he was dressed in dark blue serge and her fiance had inclined to light tweeds and white flannels. Besides he spoke in a voice that was subdued and the speech was free from slang—not very much like the explosive discourse of the man to whom she had recently engaged herself. And besides, the man she had known at the seashore had been eager to see her alone and often, whereas the new inmate of her father's home, after having been introduced to her, seemed not to notice her. It was not till the following day that they did chance to come upon each other in the library.

"We mustn't try to meet each other on the Q. T. at all," Dick began. "Those brothers of yours are just the sort to find it out, no matter how we try to conceal it. We can stand it this way for a while. Your father has been telling me his troubles this morning. He's especially worried about you—you wretch. He tells me you worry him so he can hardly write, says you ride the wildest horse in the stable, go off in the woods unattended and otherwise render him incapable of the high degree of concentration that he needs to complete his book. He asked me to watch you especially and to suggest a way to tame you. I'd no idea you were such a wild creature—you wonderful, sweetest girl—there, I couldn't help it that time—but I won't steal another till I am no longer playing this role. It would spoil everything if anyone suspected."

The next communication Madeleine had from the new employee was written and slipped into her hand as she passed him one evening on the stairs. It was brief and dictatorial. "In order to accomplish the aim in view you must become even more unruly. Do everything you can except risk your life. Fake a runaway or two and get lost in the mountains if you can do it safely."

Though Madeleine did not exactly understand Dick's motives in this instruction she followed it to the letter, and even the calm-eyed mother, who took the shocks and anxieties incident upon being the parent of five high-spirited daughters and two sons as serenely as anyone could, became overwrought with worry when, for the second time in a week, Madeleine returned home from a wild ride only after the faithful blue-serged "father's helper" had gone out in search of her.

The next day the professor tried in vain to write a chapter of his book, for his publishers were beginning to press him for the complete manuscript. After wasting hours in the bootless effort he called for the young man he had recently employed.

"Did you reprove Madeleine severely for her escapade yesterday?" he asked. "You know how it tries me to have to attend to that sort of thing—still, unless you are very severe I shall have to take her in hand."

"I reproved her very severely, sir," replied Dick, "but if you will pardon me for saying so, I think reproofs are of little avail."

"Something must be done, man," said the professor peevishly. "I can't let her go on this way wearing out my nerves. Can you think of any possible remedy—some way of calming the wild creature down a little? Mind you, I am very fond of Madeleine—very fond of her—but I can't let her go on in this way."

"I anticipated such a question," said Dick solemnly. "For that reason I studied the girl's nature. Again, pardon my frankness. I think that, young as Madeleine is, she would overcome her rather hoydenish ways if you permitted her to—to become engaged—possibly to contemplate a rather early marriage."

The professor studied the carpet for several minutes, then without looking at Dick, he said: "Yes, that might be just the thing. But Madeleine is not like Minerva. Minerva has some dozen of suitors—they quite drive me distracted. But Madeleine, poor child, has no such charms and fascination as Minerva. Frankly, I do not think there is anyone who wants to marry her, and I am quite sure that she cares for no one."

It was her that Dick hesitated. He had not planned just what to say when he had led the professor up to this point, so he, too, studied the carpet for a full minute and then looked at the professor with embarrassment that he could not conceal.

"But if there were someone who did care for her devotedly and for whom she cared in return—would you consent then?"

The professor was too much of a psychologist not to guess that the young man was speaking of himself, though perhaps in his present mood he could not conceive how a seemingly sane young man would choose to assume the task of being Madeleine's husband.

"Mr. Stoner, my hand. Forgive me when I tell you that from the time I first saw you I realized that there was something in your nature that would find harmony in Madeleine's. My knowledge of psychology is not all theoretical, you see. And, in spite of what I have just said, I realized as you have just done that what Madeleine really needed was a husband. So you see my little scheme has worked. But Madeleine is a very sweet girl, in spite of her hoyden ways, and I know you will be happy."

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign You Have Been Eating Too Much Meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds, and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

GOT WET FEET TOOK AWFUL COLD

COULD NOT SLEEP FOR COUGH

A bad cold accompanied by a distressing cough that keeps you awake at night is most aggravating, and unless it is attended to at once may develop into something very serious.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the remedy you should take. It heals the mucous surfaces, relieves oppression and tightness of the chest, removes the accumulation of phlegm, quiets the most obstinate and distressing coughs, and secures rest and sleep at night, not only to the sufferer, but to others whose rest would be otherwise broken.

Mrs. Ezekiel Acker, Lake Pleasant, N.S., writes: "I got wet feet and took an awful cold; could not sleep at night, and would do nothing but cough. My husband got me a bottle of medicine, but it was not worth bringing home. I was going to call the doctor in when a friend asked me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told her I had little faith in it, but she urged me to get a bottle. I did, and I must say that of all the medicine I ever took, it is the best, and relieved me the quickest of anything I ever saw."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c; manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. Marie Boyd, 1421 6th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

BE READY FOR EMERGENCIES.

The best way is to always keep a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house, ready for emergencies. Then when croup or colds come suddenly they can be promptly cured before they have time to reach an acute and dangerous stage. To meet this requirement we have put the syrup up in family size bottles which contain nearly three times as much as the 25-cent bottle and sell at 60 cents.

Book Proves a Life-Saver.

Mark Twain's "The Innocents Abroad" once saved a life—according to the word of a grateful husband which Twain relates in one of his letters appearing in Harper's Magazine. He said "his wife owed her life to me; hurt in the Chicago fire, and lay menaced with death a long time, but 'The Innocents Abroad' kept her mind in a cheerful attitude, and so, with the doctor's help for the body, she pulled through." In the same letter Twain says that Col. Fred Grant and General Sherman told him they used "The Innocents Abroad" as their guide-book when they were on their travels.

Nature's Way.

The processes of nature are most interesting, even without being fully understood. The why and the wherefore are complex and worthy of deepest study, observes a naturalist, but the bold facts, uncoupled with reasons of any kind, are delightful to contemplate. This interest will grow upon you and the next thing you know, unless you are indeed shallow-pated, you will be keen to make more observations, with a new and charming part of this grand old world, or a small piece thereof, being opened before you. Try it and see.

Crookedest of All Rivers.

The crookedest river in the world, according to the Railway and Marine News, is the Humboldt, which flows southwesterly through central Nevada. At one place the river flows eight miles between two points two and a half miles apart, its course being north 25 times, east 13 times, south 30 times and west 41 times. At 33 different points it is within 150 feet of itself, the current flowing in opposite directions. And it ends its course by fading away into the desert.

A Vise From a Sapling.

To make a vise in the woods, cut a good-sized hardwood sapling, leaving a square-topped stump of convenient height. Split the stump through the middle as far as necessary. Trim the upper part, if needed for the purpose. Then, about 18 inches from the top, lash the stump firmly with a rope and twist it tight with a stick, like a tourniquet. Open the split with wedges, insert the article to be held, knock out the wedges, and—there you are.

German Prisoners Work For the English Farmers And Prove Satisfactory

THE land labor problem has been a vexatious one in England for quite a period, the war draft having laid so tremendous a levy on the agricultural workers. Various tentative solutions were offered, and finally the employment of German prisoners of war was advocated, provided suitable arrangements could be made for the housing and guarding of the men. At first it was insisted that prisoners could be released for service only in large batches, a condition which virtually obliterated the chances of the agricultural employer. Experience has put a brighter complexion on things, however, says a London communication, and already considerable numbers of German prisoners are at work on the land, helping to produce the corn and other articles the country needs so badly.

The example of a prominent landowner on his home farm of 1,200 acres (70 acres arable) in a south-western county is instructive. At the beginning of this year the authorities were induced to allocate to him about 30 prisoners. Most of the prisoners chosen had been engaged in farm work in their own country, and the others were skilled artisans used to country life, and they and the trained hands adapted themselves quickly to the new conditions of work and living. The laborers beside whom they were to work offered no opposition to their employment. Of course, it was made clear to them that it was a choice between German prisoners and reduced food production, and this removed instantly whatever objection was entertained to the introduction of enemy prisoners to the farm and the neighborhood. The idea that the prisoners were to be utilized to produce food for the nation instead of being kept, as many of them were, in idleness, commended itself to the shrewd people of the south-western district.

The number of employers who could provide work and accommodation for as many as thirty men is probably small, but it would be as easy to arrange for ten as for thirty, and if the size of the batch could be reduced, say to ten, or better still, to five, wider possibilities for the scheme would be opened up. The plan involved the erection of new buildings on the farm referred to, beyond an ordinary army hut to increase the accommodation provided by the adaptation of three unoccupied cottages. In the summer some of the men were under canvas, and it was only when winter quarters became necessary that the hut was erected. The cottages form one block, and communicating doors were made in the interior walls for the convenience of the prisoners and the guard of three soldiers. The prisoners draw their rations from the camp at stated times, and one of them cooks for the draft. The men have given proof of their industry and skill in the cottages and in the use to which they have put their inclosure as well as on the farm. The dormitories and living roms are neat and clean, and the area within the barbed wire fence is used for growing vegetables and breeding rabbits in wonderful abundance, the latter the progeny of a few given by the employer.

In a few weeks the prisoners will have completed a year's work, and they have been tested in all kinds of labor. The nature of employment varies as the season changes; some of the men have driven horses in field operations, such as plowing, harrowing, and drilling, others have done carting and others manual work. In all capacities they have shown equal aptitude and willingness to help. The standard of efficiency is high, and there has been no friction between the prisoners and local workers. When I visited the farm the day's program included the carting of mangolds from the field to the homestead, where the roots were being stored in a huge Dutch barn, and although this work entailed the inclusion of both English and German labor, amicable relations appeared to exist, and only the armed guard and the tunics of the prisoners indicated the exceptional nature of the situation. The language difficulty was troublesome at first, but with the aid of dictionaries it was soon surmounted, and the whole arrangement works smoothly and with appreciable advantage to the country, for the work on the farm is far more forward than is common in the district, and the additional forty acres of corn grown this year as a direct result of the labor which has replaced that previously supplied by men at the front will next year be greatly increased, for the 1917 level has already been considerably exceeded. In addition to the work on the home farm, whenever any of the farmers in the neighborhood have been short of labor they have been assisted as far as possible with German labor, and, in consequence, some of them were enabled to turn on a gang of half a dozen men to assist with the harvest, carting mangolds and other work.

The matter would appear to resolve itself into a question of whether it is possible for more landlords to start similar schemes on their estates, or, in the alternative, whether it would be practicable next spring to have in different parts of the country camps of prisoners of war from which farmers could draw further labor as they required it.

NERVOUS DEBILITY SLEEPLESSNESS

Doctor Said He Could Do No More So Peterboro' Woman Turned to the Great Food Cure With Splendid Results

Mrs. Chas. E. Wiley, 136 London St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "About three years ago, I was suffering from nervous debility, sleeplessness and loss of appetite. My nerves were so bad that I could not attend church, or any place where there was a crowd, or excitement. During the night I would lie awake for two or three hours. I had tried several remedies, and taken treatment from doctors. The doctor finally said he could not do any more for me, and it was then I started using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I had read in the newspapers of how highly it was recommended, so I secured some and commenced using it. After the third box, I noticed an improvement, so I kept on taking them until I had used eight or nine boxes. The results were such that I could sleep and eat well and could go to places where there was a crowd or excitement, without any difficulty. My health was generally benefitted greatly. Since that, from time to time, when I am not feeling up to the mark, I take a few of the Nerve Food pills, as I usually keep some in the house. I would recommend this treatment to any one suffering from nervous trouble of any kind."

It feeds the nerves. That is the great secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. That is why cures effected by this treatment are both thorough and lasting.

The great difficulty when the nerves become exhausted is to get enough nourishment from the food you eat to restore the nerves. By supplying the elements from which Nerve Force is created in condensed and easily digested form Dr. Chase's Nerve Food feeds the wasted and depleted nerve cells back to health and vigour.

You feel the benefit obtained by renewed energy and ambition, pain and weakness disappear, digestion improves, the complexion takes on new colour, and in a score of ways you find the proof of the good this food cure is doing you.

When you have decided to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food make up your mind to give it a fair chance to cure you, and then insist on getting the genuine article, bearing the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author. Price 50 cents a box, full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Motorcycle Knocks Deer Out.

Edward Moscow of Carmel, N. Y., was hurled from his speeding motorcycle in a collision with a large deer in the darkness outside this village. He escaped uninjured, but the deer was knocked out, and it lay stunned on the road for an hour. Moscow believed the rays of his searchlight dazzled the deer, for as it emerged from the brush at the roadside and got in his path, it suddenly turned and charged, head-on, catapulted into the ditch and the motorcycle was wrecked. The deer remained motionless. Moscow took his broken motorcycle to a garage, and when he returned for the carcass of the deer, which he supposed was dead, he found it had recovered and fled.

The attendance was good. The addresses were excellent and great interest was taken by those present. The officers for the ensuing year are as follows:

President—S. Jose, Newcastle.

Vice-Pres.—A. J. Tamblyn, Orono.

Sec.-Treas—A. A. Gibson, Newcastle.

Witty War Newspapers From Trench and Ship Keep the Men Cheerful

SINCE the beginning of the war there have appeared in the field of British journalism, despite the discouragement of the censorship, several interesting and audacious newcomers. These are the sheets published by soldiers in the trenches and sailors at sea. A unique instance is the "Maidstone Magazine," with which is incorporated the "Pandora Piffle," and the "Alecto Argus," whose editor and contributors are all officers if the 8th Submarine Flotilla. It contains a little news and a great deal of jollity and nonsense.

The undersea journalists are rivalled by those who ride the billows instead of diving under them. Several papers have appeared on different ships of the battle fleet. In one, the "North Sea Times," a contributor, "Mr. Clinker Cole from the Stokehold," protesting against the uneven distribution of fighting chances, perpetrates a pun that is so bad that it is positively preeminent.

"Well, I dunno, but some blokes seem to scoop in all the luck wot's goin'," he complains resentfully. "Every time there's anythink doin', that 'ere menageries squadring—you know, the "Lion" and "Tiger" and "Indomita (bull)," whatever kind of animile that may be—always gets a look in and does something, where as the remainder of us merely takes the part of aujince."

Even the "Voice of the Benzine Lancers"—motor transport—makes itself heard through a special organ; and more than one enterprising little British sheet, published just behind the trenches "somewhere in France," contains, along with its news and nonsense, advertisements of concerts, private theatricals, wrestling and boxing matches, and football games organized among the men. In all the papers anecdotes of the lighter side of military life abound. Here are a few of them:

"The skipper of a trawler arrived alongside in his dingy last week, having a German mine in tow," reports a naval correspondent. "The worthy man's reply to urgent requests not to bring the thing too close was, 'It's all right, sir. I've knocked off the 'orns with a boat hook.'"

Two brief dialogues were sent in to compete for the leather medal offered by a journal published in the trenches in Flanders:

Orderly officer (severely)—Didn't you enlist to fight for your country?

Discontented Soldier—Yes, but I didn't enlist to eat it.

The second dialogue takes place between an infantryman and a motor mechanic:

Infantryman—Which is your sergeant-major—that man over there?

Friend (of the motor transport)—No, the other one; him with the pneumatic stummick.

Women for Flying Corps.

The response made to the appeal for women for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps in England has so far been very encouraging. The figures received from all parts of the country show a total of 1,900 application forms received. Arrangements are being made for these candidates to be interviewed by selection boards as soon as possible. It is gratifying to note that a large response has been made by domestic servants to come forward and act as cooks, waitresses, etc.

In addition to the 100,000 women which the War Office notified to the Employment Department as being required by the end of October, large numbers are wanted for work under the Royal Flying Corps. These women will be required to work in the aircraft repairing depots, both at home and in France. The numbers notified as being wanted immediately by the Royal Flying Corps are 144 fitters (general machine and turners), 52 instrument repairers, 20 acetylene welders, 37 electricians, 12 draftswomen, 55 painters, 2 tracers, and 145 storekeepers.—London Post.

Wounded Eight Times.

One of the most remarkable officers of the British army now fighting in France is Brigadier-General Adrien Carton de Wiart. Since the war began he has been wounded eight times, has lost an eye and an arm, and has gained several decorations. General Carton de Wiart was born in Brussels thirty-four years ago. He fought in the Boer war at the age of seventeen, and was thrice wounded while serving with Brabant's and the imperial light horse, so that altogether he has been wounded eleven times. When the present war broke out he wnt to East Africa, where he was severely wounded. The general, in spite of the loss of an arm and an eye, has proved himself a brilliant and fearless cavalry leader.

Ages of Common Birds.

An English investigator says the average ages to which some of the more familiar birds live are as follows: Crow, eagle, raven, and swan, each 100 years; heron, 90; parrot, 60; goose and pelican, each 50; sparrowhawk, 40; skylark, 30; canary, crane, and peacock, each 24; pigeon, 20; nightingale, 18; goldfinch, pheasant and partridge, each 15; lark, 13; robin and blackbird, each 12; thrush and common fowl, each 10; wren, 3.

Screw Propeller Is Old.

That a patent for a screw propelled steam vessel had been issued as far back as 1806 recently was discovered in the French patent office.

The Best Nerve Tonic

"If people would only attend to their blood, instead of worrying themselves ill," said an eminent nerve specialist, "we doctors would not see our consulting rooms crowded with nervous wrecks. More people suffer from worry than anything else."

The sort of thing which the specialist spoke of is the nervous run-down condition caused by overwork and the many anxieties of to-day. Sufferers find themselves tired, morose, low-spirited and unable to keep their minds on anything. Any sudden noise hurts like a blow. They are full of groundless fears, and do not sleep well at night. Headaches, neuritis and other nerve pains are part of the misery, and it all comes from starved nerves.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich, red blood. Therefore to cure nervousness and run-down health Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be taken. These pills actually make new, rich, blood, which strengthens the nerves, improves the appetite, gives new strength and spirits, and makes hitherto despondent people bright and cheerful. If you are at all "out of sorts" you should begin curing yourself to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The "Rain Tree."

For many years even scientists believed that there actually was a marvelous tree called the "rain tree," which had the power of collecting the dampness of the atmosphere and of condensing it into a continuous and copious fall of rain. To this power was ascribed the tree's ability to withstand long droughts. It is true, however, that the leaf of the "rain tree"—or, as it is sometimes called, "the traveler's tree"—has a large sheaf at the base, in which water collects, but it is only a mouthful or so.

Caterpillars Travel in Companies.

The caterpillar, according to naturalists, knows that there is safety in numbers, and whole companies may be found feeding side by side while keeping a sharp lookout for their bird enemies; but when a caterpillar is by himself he scarcely dares move for fear of attracting attention. Even when he is obliged to change his skin he does not venture to leave his old coat lying around. The moment he takes it off he eats it.

New Home Treatment For Banishing Hairs

(Beauty Topics.)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from the face, neck or arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and then spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package.

Labor in England.

The immediate course of the labor movement in England will be greatly influenced by the Fabians, or intellectual socialists, who have had a subtle and pervasive influence upon the party. Bernard Shaw, George Lansbury, Philip Snowden, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Webb, and a number of other brilliant minds will go far toward directing the thought of labor leaders, even though unable to convince the country at large.

The great outstanding fact in the British labor movement, however, and the one that should come as a special message to the labor leaders of this country, is the attempt to draw the line, not between wage-earners and other earners, but between all earners, whether of brain or of hand, and the spenders. To the extent that all producers of wealth can be made to see that their interests are opposed to those of non-producers, the way will be prepared for a final settlement of the social and industrial problem.—The Public.

The Neutral Idea.

Neutral countries—Sweden, Holland and the rest—are continually doing us these kindnesses—and the war is prolonged.

We feel toward these dear neutrals like the lady who said:

"I'm a Christian through and through, and I'm always grateful for any kindness, but the one kindness I can never succeed in being grateful for is that of the man who brings my husband home at 3 a.m. with his feet sticking out of the cab window."—Exchange.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp, and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all that you need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

WENT DOWN WITH TRAWLER

British Sea Dog Awarded V. C. After His Death.

Britain has been thrilled by the stirring story of Skipper Thos. Crisp, R.N.R. (killed in action), who has been awarded the V.C. for the glorious fight of the trawler Nelson with a U-boat. His son and second hand, Thomas William Crisp, receives the D.S.M. for his part in the encounter.

The skipper d'scerned the submarine on the horizon. The gun-layer held his fire until Crisp said: "It is no use waiting any longer; we will have to let them have it."

The submarine sent shell after shell at the smack, and the fourth went through the port bow. There was no confusion on board, not even when the seventh shell struck the skipper, passed through his side, through the deck, and out through the side of the ship.

His son, the second hand, at once took charge of the tiller, and the firing continued. All the time water was pouring into the ship and she was sinking.

The gunlayer offered the skipper first aid. "It's all right, boy; do your best," said Crisp, who added to the second hand: "Send a message off."

"Nelson being attacked by submarine. Skipper killed. Send assistance at once."

All this time the smack was sinking, and only five rounds of ammunition were left. Crisp, jun., went to his father lying there on the deck, and heard him say, "Abandon ship. Throw the books overboard." He was asked if they should lift him into the boat, but his answer was: "Tom, I'm done; throw me overboard."

He was in too bad a condition to be moved, and they left him on his deck. The crew took to the small boat, and about fifteen minutes afterwards the Nelson went down by the head.

Skipper Crisp was a native of Lowestoft, and "Sammy," who was with him, is the younger of the hero's two sons.

On a previous occasion he performed a smart and heroic piece of work, for which he was given the D.S.C. and a handsome donation.

Crisp was 46 years of age, and lost his wife only a fortnight before his last heroic deed. His son is 19, and for years had been his father's companion at sea.

New Pencil Holder.

For persons using pencils almost continuously a clip has been invented to hold one on the back of the left hand momentarily when the right hand is occupied for other work.

Tot's Version of Death.

Mary and Tommy were playing "funeral" in the yard. Mary was overheard explaining. "Tommy, when you're dead, your body's no good, but your think goes on."

Question of Rights.

People generally understand that their rights end at the point where the other fellow's begin; but the trouble comes in determining the location of that point.

Roumania Founded in 1859.

Roumania was formed in 1859 by the union of Moldavia and Wallachia, two principalities tributary to the sultan of Turkey.

HE DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

THEY USED TO CALL HIM GRANDPA; NOW THEY CALL HIM KID.

TELLS HOW HE DID IT.

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well known resident of San Francisco, who was called Grandpa and Daddy on account of his white hair, and who darkened it with a simple home made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and 1-4 oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. My friends now call me 'Kid.'"

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You simply say to the drug store man, "Give me a quarter of an ounce of freezone." This will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender aching corn should relieve the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn, root and all, dries up and can be lifted out with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that, while freezone is sticky, it dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

Don't let father die of infection or lockjaw from whittling at his corns, but clip this out and make him try it.

Their Eggs Might Help.

Ostriches in summer will live almost entirely on green alfalfa, and in winter consume each about a pound of grain and three pounds of alfalfa hay a day. It would seem therefore that the sale of eggs might go a long way toward paying for the upkeep of the flocks. Ostriches thrive in the dry and sandy southwest, and upon alfalfa, which is very easily raised in that region wherever irrigation is possible. The average yearly yield of feathers from an ostrich is a little over a pound and their value in 1910 was $20 to $30.

BREWSTER FOR THE CABINET?

British Columbia Premier Intimates That He Likes Coast Climate Best

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 21.— The fact that Premier Brewster had an interview with Sir Robt. Borden yesterday has again given rise to the rumour that he is to be taken into the government. Mr. Brewster himself is not communicative on the matter. The question was casually broached in his presence by your correspondent in the Chateau Laurier. He glanced through the door at the bitter frosty weather and remarked: "My little daughter brought me a big bunch of violets picked out out of my garden just before I left for the east. Somehow the climate suits me better back there. Nevertheless, nobody would be surprised here if Mr. Brewster was taken into the Union Cabinet. As announced recently, F. F. Pardee is almost certain to take the position of Postmaster-General, just as soon as Hon. P. E. Blondin has been officially announced as politically dead.

Jericho, situated north-east of Jerusalem, is famed in Biblical history for having been taken by Joshua's host. The legend says the walls fell after Joshua's forces had marched thirteen times around the city blowing their trumpets.

Service Flag At De Laval

The De Laval Company has in their main lobby a handsome service flag, made by J. J. Turner & Sons, of Peterboro, which is quite unique. The flag is a Union Jack, with a Dominion coat of arms in the centre, to which is worked a background for recognizing enlistments in the overseas forces. On the background is painted so far forty-five maple leaves, and each of these represents a man from the Peterboro plant.

Each branch in Canada of the De Laval Company has similar service flags, and the total number of former employees overseas is quite large.

TRADES AND LABOUR COUNCIL APPROVES RAILWAY PROJECT

A communication from the Hydro-Electric Railway Association, urging the government to take over and consolidate the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways, and "to have done with the giving of public moneys to private railway corporations," was endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council last night, who added a rider that the C.P.R. be included in the mooted scheme for the nationalization of the railways.

"The people ought to get after the C.P.R. lands in the west," said one of the speakers. "The world needs wheat, but immense tracts of the best farms lands in the west are allowed to lie fallow and unused. This land is owned by the C.P.R. and is adjacent to its right of way. In fact, settlers are forced far inland and out of easy reach of the railways by this condition."

"There's not much hope of asking the government to asume the C.P.R.," commented another member.

"It is common knowledge that members of the government are financially interested in that road, and there is a suspicion that they will welcome the nationalization of the other lines. The present opposition will be delivered into their hands."

Frank Jenne Says:

The general public has become so inured to the exorbitant prices prevailing now, that no one believes a reasonable price for a good article to be possible. Semi-ready suits stand on their own merits, and wise men will realize that to buy a made-to-your-special-order suit now at the 1917 price is an opportunity to save money and secure good value. I want my customers to know that this is a money-saving proposition. "Come to me" and have a talk about it—and see the goods

Auditor's Report of the Operations of Local Branch a Most Satisfactory One—Operating Expenses Only 2 Per Cent. of the Money —This Year's Requirements

Below is presented the statement of the auditor, Mr. W. R. Morris, relative to the operations of the Local Branch of the Patriotic Fund for the year just passed. The statement covers the disbursements account, dealing with the distribution of the moneys to dependents of men on service. The subscription account, and the account of remittals to Ottawa, will be presented from the Trustees and those having charge of the detail of collection, the work of which has been done, almost entirely, by Mr. J. A. Aylmer and Mr. J. Crane. Mr. Aylmer has given his third year of this important and critical work, one which has involved much anxiety and assiduous attention. The Fund has been most fortunate in securing his service, given gratuitously and without interruption. And much commendation is also due the Executive Committee and Trustees, who have kept general oversight over the work. The Distribution Committee, which now includes representatives from the Great War Veterans' Association, has given untiring attention, weekly, to the work. It is only by keeping in almost daily connection with these details coming up for consideration that the Fund can be well administered and its interests guarded.

The revenue in sight at the beginning of 1917 has been sufficient to carry on the work and leave a balance available for the opening month of 1918. From the City $60,000.00 was paid, and from the County $36,000.00. This has been remitted to Ottawa, and from the total amount drawings made, month by month, of funds as were necessary to meet the expenditures. The list of dependents remains with little variation, as the number removed is about balanced by additions from all sources. Many families, relatives of men on service, come to the City. Then the additions growing out of the conscription movement has added a very considerable number. So that for 1918 the amount required will be about as it has been in 1917.

While many men return from abroad, all are not discharged. A good number are retained at the divisional point, No. 3 Military District, at Kingston, where they are useful in the service, taking the places of men who can proceed overseas. While at Kingston the families of these men remain on the list, except in cases where a subsistence allowance is being paid. But as such allowances are intermittent, the list may be said to remain practically stationary, so far as the amount of money required from month to month is concerned. The County will this year contribute $2,500 per month, and it is expected that the City will give $5,000 per month, and these sums should meet the allowances.

It was decided by the Distribution Committee, with the approval of the Trustees, to invest a part of the relief funds in the Victory Loan Bonds. This has been done in the bonds of that series that run for five years. A balance is still in the bank for immediate use, if necessary.

Will Curtail Public Works

Canadian Press Despatch:

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—In view of the war demands there will be a still greater retrenchment in the Dominion Public Works is the statement of Hon. F. D. Carvell to-day in his first report as Minister of that department. The total expenditure under this head last year was sixteen millions, which was three millions less than the previous year and thirteen millions less than two years previously.

Cold Storage Business For Government

Canadian Press Despatch:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 21.—The Ontario government will go into the cold storage business in connection with fish in the seasons when the catches of finny foodstuff are plentiful. This announcement was made this morning in answer to criticisms of fish dealers who complained that the government was taking twenty per cent of the catch in the off season when the fish were scarce, thereby working a hardship on the dealers. In the busy season the government will put its surplus into cold storage.

Aerial Fighting on West Front is Almost Unending—British Flyers Drop Huge Quantities of Explosives Behind Enemy Lines.

SPARRING FOR OPENING

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Feb. 21. — Aeroplanes have been successfully and extremely busy during the past few gorgeous days in the high, freezing, sun-filled heavens. Hindenburg's aerial Uhlans are attempting to hold off Haig's cloud-hurdling lancers, which are daily observing the preparations for the German offensive.

Thirty-five German war planes have been destroyed in the last three days and 19 driven earthward, uncontrolled —a total of 54 "quietused" by the British. The British have only ten machines missing, despite the severest and almost unending fighting day and night.

While Hindenburg and Ludendorff are poring over the details of their impending forlorn hope, the air is filled with the throbbing of motors, the faint patter of machine guns and the thunder of air bombs exploding in towns and villages behind the firing lines.

FLYERS ARE ACTIVE.

The British air men have dropped huge quantities of explosives on billets, ammunition dumps, railway stations and aerodromes in Northern France. They attacked enemy quarters from just above the roofs, machine-gunned marching columns, disrupted transport trains and wrecked big gun pits. The fine, freezing weather has aided them greatly.

Meantime British troops are busy raiding and repulsing raids, and short, sharp clashes are constantly occurring on the frozen earth of No Man's Land. The ice in the shell holes is sufficiently strong to support the death grappling men. The British are in fine fettle, not nervous, and ready whenever Hindenburg starts. While this may happen any day the German may try to surprise the allies by a sudden shift or may attempt to produce a state of "nerves" by further delay.

Dog Cather Is On The Job

Fee Will Have to Be Imposed or Practice of Redeeming Dogs Will Become Common

James Gates, who now ranks as a city official, with authority to round up dogs found running at large, did not lose any time in getting down to work this morning. His first capture was recorded just two minutes after he emerged from the city hall, where he was appraised of his appointment. The initial captive proved to be the property of Mr. Peter Getas, who was notified in time to save the animal from an untimely end: "I haven't got my appliances yet," said Mr. Gates, when interviewed this morning.

It will be only a mater of time until the City Council will see the wisdom of imposing a fee for the redemption of dogs after they have been impounded. As it is now the owner can redeem their dogs within a few hours and the city has to foot the bill of capture, which amounts to seventy-five cents. Smith township imposes a fee of ten dollars for every dog that is redeemed within forty-eight hours.

Fifteen below zero was the official registration this morning; no lower during the night. The present cold spell covers the entire continent east of the Rockies, and there is no prospect of any immediate change to more moderate weather conditions.—W.P.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

The report of the auditor, Mr. W. R. Morris, on the operations of the local branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, is a very satisfactory one, inasmuch as it shows that the fund has been administered most economically. In all, during last year, a total of $83,913.70 was distributed to the dependents of soldiers on active service, and the total expenses in connection with the administration of the fund amounted to only $1,686.10, about 2 per cent. of the amount distributed. The report reflects credit upon the Secretary and the members of the committee.

MAKING MAPLE SUGAR.

The appeal of the Food Controller to produce large quantities of maple sugar and syrup this spring should receive a ready response from those who have groves of maple trees. While maple sugar can be made as it was in the early days of settlement, with very simple apparatus, the work is greatly reduced and better products made when a modern equipment it utilized. For the instruction of those not entirely familiar with advanced methods, the Publication Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has issued Bulletin No. 2—B, entitled "The Maple Sugar Industry in Canada." By text and illustration it makes very clear the operation of a maple sugar plant. The time to tap, the utensils to use, the refining and handling of the product are all dealt with. This bulletin is available for distribution to those who apply for it.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Now that the daylight saving scheme is on the eve of adoption by the Congress of the United States, is it not time that Canada began seriously to consider it? Until our neighbours decided to give the scheme a trial, it was not practicable for us to do so alone, but there is now no reason why the two countries, side by side, should not adopt it simultaneously.

The advantages of the plan need scarcely be recapitulated. Following the estimates prepared for the consideration of Congress, it appears that it would save us in Canada over 100,000 tons of coal a year, and over three millions a year in gas and electricity bills. It would stimulate the increase of food production by the extra hour of daylight for work. It will decrease the number of street and highway accidents. It will speed up freight movements on the railways. It will give more time for both work and play—and we need more of both.

On every ground, the change proposed is a wise one. If made nation-wide there would be no confusion. The Star believes the Government would be making a wise and popular move if it put the daylight saving plan into operation this coming summer.—Montreal Star.

A MILD MEASURE OF REFORM.

The Civil Service Bill introduced by the Attorney-General of Ontario is good so far as it goes, but it stops short of attacking the patronage evil, says the Toronto Globe. It is not a root-and-branch reform—it touches only the branches. The Commissioner to be appointed may make patronage more respectable, but he will be the servant of the party, not of the public. Within the limits of the present system he will have an opportunity to effect improvements, but the greatest improvement would be the abolition of the system itself. The new regulations stipulate that no person shall be appointed to any office, clerkship or service until the Commissioner has certified that the appointment is necessary, and the person properly qualified. By means of this rule he may, if he is impartial and otherwise qualified for the post, raise the standard of admission to the civil service. Mr. Proudfoot put his finger on a radical defect when he asked whether the Commissioner could consider applications from those who were not recommended to him by the Government. The reply shows that the Government has no intention of throwing open the doors of the civil service to applicants not of its own choosing.

There is no valid reason why civil service reform should not be as thorough-going in the Provincial as in the Federal sphere. The Ontario government has refused to follow in the footsteps of the Dominion Government because it is not prepared at present to forego a doubtful party advantage. With the extension of the life of the Legislature by mutual consent, it would have been an opportune time for the Administration to banish partyism and place the public service on a merit basis, subject, of course, to preferential treatment of returned soldiers. The present arrangement cannot be regarded as a finality by civil service reformers.

ONTARIO'S CHANCE.

Aside from the philanthropic, the humanitarian, the romantic, or the sentimental duty and pleasure in happy combination, which will fall to Ontario as godmother to obliterated Vimy, Ontario being made responsible for the recreation of this historic French village, is offered opportunity for permanent, practical profitable publicity, the importance of which as a plain business asset should not be underestimated.

Vimy to-day is merely a heap of shattered debris marking as an unuttered monument the presence and passage of Teuton barbarism. It is, even in its desolation however, a shrine sanctified by Canadian blood and consecrated by Canadian self-sacrifice on the altar of freedom. It is a shrine which countless thousands will visit in the years of peace to come and that should be made worthy of the spirit of true Canadianism, which it will typify to the world and of which Ontario is admittedly the foremost civic exponent.

In the rehabilitation of Vimy, Ontario has a unique opportunity unostentatiously to attract to herself, as well as to her French godchild, the kindred attention of the world, and to benefit thereby in proportion to the degree of scientific intelligence displayed in such rebuilding. The ancient village being completely razed, occasion is afforded for its reconstruction upon the most approved modern lines. The Vimy that is to rise from the grave of the old village as Ontario's ward should be, indeed, the model village of France and of all Europe.

Its natural surroundings and environment should be carefully studied primarily, together with its present and prospective characteristic, maintaining, industrial resources, its future arteries and general communication, its commercially strategic features and its historic landmarks.

The ablest landscape gardeners and the most competent model-city architects should find inspiration and lofty incentive in sketching its foundations and planning for its future, so that the centuries to come may recognize their genius and their breadth of vision.

For it is their task to design a model village which shall fully utilize every advantage of location and environment, which shall retain its old-time individuality, quaintness and picturesqueness, its local colour, atmosphere and charm, while combining therewith the most ultra modern facilities in sanitation, lighting, water supply, fire protection, underground services, good streets and sidewalks, improved intercommunication facilities and superior accommodation for residents and visitors.

The Vimy of the future can be and should be made the show village, as the model village of France, Ontario, its fairy godmother, should see that its historic landmarks and its scars of battle are permanently identified—that a pretty public park or square contain a suitable monument to the close union, dating from 1914 of French and Canadian devotion to the cause of democracy and civilization—that the pretty village church of other days be restored with all possible accuracy and contain a fully comprehensive memorial to the heroes of Vimy and the Ridge—that visitors to the town hall, the hospital, the tourists hotel of the future shall have opportunity to acquaint themselves by pictures, literature and some form of civic representation with the characteristics, resources, opportunities and advantages of Ontario, the Vimy godmother.

Just at present Ontario must do much for Vimy. It is a high honour and a distinguished trust to be permitted to do so. Vimy herself is prostrate, exhausted, bleeding from multiple wounds, but with the unconquerable spirit that is France and Freedom undimmed and untarnished. If Ontario's duty of to-day be performed with sympathetic intelligence, the labour of love may be made at the same time a permanent and effective advertisement, returning compounded interest—dividends that ultimately will repay a hundredfold the godmother's investment of the present.

The proposed by-law also provides for half-holidays during June, July and August.

Mr. Fry and his son are both well known in Havelock and Belmont, and his many friends hope he is safe and sound among the rescued.

The three heatless days were well observed in Havelock, practically everybody obeying the order of the Fuel Controller. The village was very quiet during Saturday and Monday.

NEW JEWISH BATTALION.

This British Unit is Model of Good Behavior.

The new Jewish battalion of the British army left during the first week of January for the Palestine front.

The battalion is under the command of Col. J. H. Patterson, an Irishman, and a great lion hunter in East Africa in the days before the war. His experience in command of Jewish troops dates back to the Gallipoli campaign, where he was in charge of the famous Zion Mule Corps, formed in Egypt of Jewish refugees from Palestine. After the close of the Dardanelles campaign, the Zion Corps was disbanded, but some of its members managed to make their way to England and form the nucleus of the new Jewish battalion.

As at present constituted, about fifty per cent. of the Jewish battalion are British-born or naturalized. The remainder includes the members of the old Zion Mule Corps, a large number of Russian Jews, and a curious melange from several Allied and neutral countries. The level of physical fitness, according to the medical officers, is very high, particularly in such matters as teeth and eyesight.

The battalion is practically "tee total," and a wet canteen which was opened in camp a few weeks ago was closed in a fortnight for lack of business. Colonel Patterson himself is an ardent temperance advocate. "Crime in the army," he said the other day, "is due to drink and nothing else. This is shown by the fact that our guard room has been empty practically from the start, and you would have to travel around many training camps to see the like. The disused cells have been turned into bedrooms for the guards."

A great variety of trades and professions are represented in the battalion. There are more tailors than any other single trade, and this fact is reflected in the excellent fit and smart cut of the battalion's uniform. There are several artists and sculptors, the latter including a leading British sculptor, Jacob Epstein, whose work has been a centre of interest in England for the past three years. A prominent concert violinist, Anton Tchaikov, is in the same company with Epstein, which also numbers a young Russian who claims to be a second cousin to Kerensky.

Regimental orders for the new battalion are issued simultaneously in English and Yiddish, and Yiddish is used as much as English in instruction. Some of the soldiers hardly knew the English words of command, but all the non-commissioned officers and most of the commissioned speak Yiddish fluently. The languages represented in the ranks are more than a score in number. One corporal speaks nine languages.

The food served is strictly kosher. Saturday is the day off instead of Sunday, and all the fast-days are observed with as much ceremony as the military atmosphere will permit.

Nelson's Midshipmen.

The following extract from a letter written by Lady Hughes, who took a passage to the West Indies on board the Boreas frigate when commanded by Lord Nelson, will show the manner in which the young men in that ship were trained and gradually inured to hardiness and enterprise by their parental commander:—"It may reasonably be supposed that among the number of thirty there may have been timid spirits as well as bold. The timid he never rebuked, but always wished to show them he desired nothing that he would not instantly do himself. And I have known him say, 'Well, sir, I am going a race to the mast-head, and beg I may meet you there.' No denial could be given to such a request, and the poor little fellow instantly climbed the shrouds. Captain Nelson never took the least notice in what manner it was done, but when they met at the top spoke in the most cheerful tones to the midshipman; and observed how much any person was to be pitied who could fancy there was any danger or even anything that could be called disagreeable in the attempt."—Family Journal.

At Jerusalem.

The surrender of Jerusalem to General Allenby gives further and striking emphasis to the nature of this war as a world-enveloping crusade. It may not be a mere whim of fate that the allied soldiers, the modern crusaders, should be brought to the sacred ground where East meets West, and the civilization of a modern world be soldered with a great and sacred past. Of all the races and religions which send pilgrims to Jerusalem, there are none more strange and pathetic than those Russian peasants who come from the depths of their steppes to visit the holy places of their faith. They may be seen winding their way in small groups along the camel tract which crosses the Plain of Sharon and the Mountains of Ephraim singing their haunting Slav laments. These are the moujiks of old Russia, neighbours, perhaps, in some far-off village, who set out together on this great pilgrimage, for which they have saved every kopeck all their lives.

FORMER LOCAL LACROSSE PLAYER BRIGADIER WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Colonel D. M. Hogarth is promoted to brigadier, and assumes the duties of Canadian Quartermaster General,, replacing Brigadier-General McRae, who has been appointed director of organization in Lord Beaverbrook's new department in the Imperial Ministry. The colonel for the last fifteen months was director of supply transport with the Canadians.

Donald McDonald Hogarth, a real estate broker of Port Arthur, in partnership with Colonel J. J. Carrick, ex-M.P., was born as Oscella, Ont., 38 years ago, and has been a member of the Legislature since 1911. He is well known in Peterborough, having been a member of the old Peterborough Lacrosse Club.

No. 24 Wins Big Pool

The Examiner has been asked to settle a pool on Tuesday's game in Toronto in which there were 61 competitors. The man who made the estimate of 12 to 2 for De La Salle wins the pool, as his score gives the exact winning percentage—857. His number on the list sent the Examiner was 24.

BOWLING On Water St. Alleys

DE LAVAL WINS FROM HIGH ROLLERS.

The De Laval team won all three games from the High Rollers in a 10-pin league match at the Water St. alleys last night.

The De Laval's best game was an 828 count for the second game against 778 for their opponents. Total pinnage was: De Laval 2392; High Rollers 2263.

Solomon was high for the High Rollers with 563 for a total.

For the De Laval, Carter and A. Fitzgerald were the heavyweights, with a total of 547 and 502 respectively. The scores were as follows:

| De Laval— | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| W. Fitzgerald | 166 | 160 | 137 | 463 |

BASKETBALL

Yesterday afternoon an interesting game of basketball was played at the Y.W.C.A. between two of the gymnasium teams—the second Senior School Girls' Team and the Wednesday Intermediate Class team. The line up was as follows:

Senior School Girls — Misses G. Wilson, T. Conner, A. Sanderson, M. Read, L. Green.

Wednesday Intermediate — H. Morphet, G. Hall, A. Sowdon, I. Canfield, E. Borbridge.

The score: Senior School Girls, 12; Intermediate 11.

Game To-night At Brock Street Rink

GAME TO-NIGHT.

To-night's game between Turnbull's Tigers and Lakefield promises to be fast and exciting, both teams having played good hockey all season. The game will start at 7 p.m. The line up will be as follows:

Turnbull's Tigers — Goal, Mahood; defence, Lapp and Perry; centre, Sheehan; rover, Hagerman; wings, Irwin and H. Henry.

Lakefield — Goal, Northey; defence, Murduff and Sabatino; centre, Lennox; rover, Fitzgerald; wings, Nelson and Graham.

Metheral And Kay In Finals Of The Schedule

The finals of the scheduled games are in sight. In group A., J. H. Metheral's rink is out in front with a score of 100 minus 16 penalties, leaving a net score of 84 points. Alex Kay won the "B" group honors with 110 points and not a single penalty. This fact alone is out of the ordinary and probably explains, in part at least, the success of this rink. These two skips will meet in the finals for the club honors. Percy Fitzgerald is the runner-up in "B" group, with a score of 100 minus 2 points, net 98, but "A" group, Jas. Skinner and A. W. Archibald, are tied for the second place; each scored 80 points, but had 4 penalties charged against them, leaving a total of 76.

LINDSAY VS. PETERBORO.

The Lindsay-Peterboro cup game will be played to-morrow. The skips going to Lindsay are Best, McDermid, Hicks and Waddell, while Wightman, Brightman, Morrow and Foote meet the Lindsay visitors here. The games are played simultaneously.

News of Interest From Hastings

HASTINGS, Feb. 20.—The remains of the late Mrs. Dr. Berry, of Port Perry, were brought to town on Friday, and upon the arrival of the 2.30 p.m. train, were met by friends and conveyed to the Trent Valley Cemetery, where interment was made.

Deceased was well known in Hastings, where she was brought up and spent her early married life. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, three young daughters, to whom universal sympathy is extended. Miss Lizzie and Mr. Charlie Fowlds, of town, are sister and brother of deceased.

Mrs. A. Spellman has been seriously ill, but is now thought to be out of danger.

The "thaw" of the past week was warmly welcomed by all, but especially by those who have been experiencing some difficulty in obtaining soft water.

Those who attended the public auction sale on Thursday last at the farm of Mr. R. Beamish, Percy, report a very large crowd, excellent stock, keen bidding and high prices.

The wreck near town late on Saturday night caused considerable delay to the traffic, shippers of live stock being obliged to hold their shipment over for several hours, causing considerable labour and expense.

An interesting League meeting was held on Monday night at the home of Dr. Hess, when an interesting programme was rendered and arrangements completed for a conundrum social to be held some time in the near future.

Special services were held in some of the local churches on Ash Wednesday, the beginning of the Lenten season.

Miss Evelyn Beavis, of Westwood, is lying in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, whither she was removed on Friday, and was operated on for appendicitis. Latest reports are that her condition is quite favourable. Miss Beavis is a sister of Mrs. Jas. Stevenson, town.

The annual sleigh ride and social in connection with the Presbyterian Sunday School was held on Friday evening, and was a grand success. After the sleighing party had returned a sumptuous repast was served in the basement of the church, after which a good programme was given by the School. The proceeds amounted to over $42, which are devoted to the interests of the Sunday School.

Mrs. G. R. Beavis and Miss Margaret returned on Saturday from a pleasant visit with friends in Otonabee.

Mrs. Duncan Fife is visiting friends in Monaghan.

Dr. Hess spent a few days during the week in Toronto on business.

Mrs. J. Staples, of Lindsay, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Tate, town.

Improvement is reported in the condition of Miss Blanche Williams, who is recovering from an attack of appendicitis.

Mr. Winter Runnels, of Toronto, spent a short time last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Runnels, town.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid. Fisher, of Campbellford, spent Thursday with friends here.

Miss Hill, of Peterborough, has been the guest of Mrs. A. Spellman.

NEW MOTOR ENGINE USED

The new chemical fire engine had its first practical try out yesterday afternoon at a chimney fire at the home of Mr. W. Edwards, 35 Lafayette Avenue. The engine made the trip in a little less than two minutes, and was driven by Fireman Howell, who will take over the car as chauffeur from H. Ruggles, the demonstrator sent here by the American La France Engine Co.

Fooling the Patient.

That blisters can actually be produced on the skin by means of hypnotic suggestion alone is the claim made by Mr. J. Arthur Hadfield, temporary surgeon, R.N., describing some recent experiments in the Lancet.

Getting the consent of a seaman patient at the Royal Naval Hospital, Chatham, to try the experiment, Mr. Hadfield hypnotized the man and then suggested to him that his arm was being touched with a red-hot iron and that a blister would form on the spot. The arm was then covered with a bandage pinned on with a safety-pin, and the pin was sealed with sealing-wax to make certain that the arm could not be interfered with in any way. The patient was watched continuously by nurses till next morning, when, in the presence of three surgeons, the seal was broken and the bandage removed, showing a small blister on the chosen spot. This gradually developed during the day to form a large blab with an area of inflammation around.

In two other experiments the skin was actually touched with a red-hot iron. In the first instance the surgeon suggested that there would be no pain, and in the second that there would be the usual pain of a blister. The first blister was perfectly painless, had practically no area of inflammation around it, and healed very rapidly. The second blister was painful from the first, was surrounded by a reddened area, and took longer to heal.

From the fact that the blister which was rendered painless by hypnotism healed so quickly, Mr. Hadfield suggests that hypnosis, by rendering wounds and certain painful conditions such as pleurisy less painful, might with advantage be made part of the treatment of such conditions.—Tit-Bits.

British Women and the War.

Some idea of the huge and important part British women are playing in the war Miss Helen Fraser, a British war worker, who recently arrived in this country, is seeking to give to the American women who are anxious to take up war work on a large scale and more systematically than heretofore.

Here are some of the figures quoted by Miss Fraser:

One and a quarter million women doing work formerly done by men.

Eight hundred thousand women in munition plants.

Two hundred and fifty-eight thousand women on the land.

Eighty-three thousand women in Government offices.

Forty thousand women somewhere in France working at military bases.

Sixty thousand women voluntary hospital workers.

Between six and seven hundred women patrols.

That is only part of it. There are also great numbers of home women who give part of their time to war activities.

Women Smoke in Wales.

A woman was seen smoking a pipe in a Swansea by-street the other day, and seemed to be enjoying it hugely. Of course, this is not quite a new thing. Some old ladies, especially of Irish extraction, have enjoyed their weed in that way for many years past. But it was the way in which this was done which surprised the public. As a matter of fact, in London some women have gone in for cigarettes and pipes in their homes and in the women's clubs the rule that pipes are not permitted has been quietly rescinded in favor of the male visitors, who now smoke vigorously without complaint.—Cardiff Western Mail.

His Influence.

"I thought Jiggs was going to use his influence to get you elected to membership in the club." "He did." "What happened?" "He's been asked to resign."

Changes His Mind.

A man always imagines he has good sense until he comes across an old love letter he wrote to his wife during courtship.

Utilizing Hop Vines.

A German agriculturist has developed a method of extracting the fibrous inner bark of hop vines for use in the manufacture of cordage.

Four Inches Equals 218 Miles.

Engineers estimate that standing four inches away from the telephone when talking is equivalent to lengthening the line 218 miles.

Train Frozen To Rails At Station Near Port Hope

When the weather man opened the flood gates and then dropped the thermometer to about fifteen degrees below zero, he added the spice of variety to his winter campaign against the railways, and effectively tied up traffic last night and this morning.

The C.P.R. was hit on the main line, and the trains that ply the lake-shore route were switched to the road through Peterborough to-day.

Both the Belleville and Port Hope sections of the G.T.R. were in trouble, and only this afternoon were the passenger trains running on a semblance of the schedule. Last night's train to Port Houe was held up at Quay's flag station, about five and a half miles from the terminus. Water in one of the hollows in the descent to Port Hope overflowed the tracks to a depth of about eighteen inches. After wetting its feet, it backed up to the flag station and the wheels froze to the rails. The train was helpless, and its passengers spent the night in a long and weary vigil in the coaches.

This morning an engine was sent down to release it and returned with it to Peterborough. It set out again at 11.55 a.m., replacing the regular that leaves here at 8.10 a.m., and this afternoon there was no further information as to whether it reached Port Hope or not. However, it was expected that the section men would have chopped the ice from the rails and re-opened the line.

Ice Near Hastings.

The train from Belleville ran into an ice barrier about seven inches thick between Campbellford and Hastings and was held up for hours. Finally they dug themselves out, and this afternoon's eastbound train left about two o'clock with every expectation of getting through.

It is expected that this evening's 5.30 train will arrive from Port Hope. West of Peterborough the road is open to Toronto, but the Whitby and Port Perry, Orillia, Sutton and Haliburton branches are securely ice bound.

Road men coming down from Lindsay last night about five o'clock stated that when they were a short distance west of Omemee, water that had been naturally dammed in a nearby field, burst through the restraining banks of snow and poured over the track in a huge stream. And this activity followed the long day's freezing. Most of the rain and melted snow has been frozen in the fields and has not moved off. In other words, there is trouble ahead if the final break of winter should be concentrated in a sudden movement instead of a gradual disintegration of the season.

No Freight.

No freight reached Peterborough today. Both roads were idle, and the disappointing delay of coal receipts was a most discouraging and discomforting announcement.

FARMERS ALREADY MAKING ENQUIRIES FOR SUMMER HELP

High School Pupils Are Being Asked For—Summary of the Ontario Department of Agriculture Reports on Farm Conditions—Dairy Products Are in Strong Demand.

The following is a summary of reports made by District Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Live stock generally are reported to be in good condition, although most animals are receiving a ration with less than usual of grain or mill feeds in it. Butcher cattle are moving slowly, as the roads have been in a bad state for some weeks. While there are complaints of dairymen getting rid of some of their animals owing to the scarcity and high cost of feeds, there are several instances of grade milch cows realizing prices ranging from $120 to $195. The milk supply is described as being all the way from normal to light for this time of the year, but all dairy products are in a very strong demand at good values.

Owing to the comparative scarcity of corn, peas, meals, etc., there is an inclination on the part of some swine owners to market their animals rather on the lean side. For this reason also there is a danger of the hog campaign slowing up in some quarters, although the general nature of the reports concerning this enterprise show a strong determination on the part of Ontario farmers to see the matter through to a successful issue. In Northern Ontario a splendid spirit is being manifested in this regard. Kenora reports: "Have raised $1,100 by public subscription to finance a carload of brood sows to be distributed to farmers and others; "while in Port Arthur the City Garden Club is planning to feed hogs next summer.

Marketing of field crops has been quiet, as the condition of the weather and roads has been unfavourable. The tie-up on the railways owing to unusually heavy snow storms has also affected distribution of some products. Besides this, most of the grains are now being fed on the farm. Oats have been disposed of more freely than any of the other cereals at prices running from 83c. to $1.10 a bushel. Hay is selling at from $10 to $12 in the barn, and at $13 to $17 on the track or in town markets. A considerable quantity of surplus hay is still in the barn or in stacks. Straw brings $5 a ton in the stack, and is retailed at $7, and there is a sufficiency on hand for both feed and bedding. Beans command $7.50 a bushel. Onions are hard to dispose of, but the demand for other vegetables is said to be from fair to good.

Farmers are already making inquiries for summer help. Married men to be employed by the year with house, etc., are in better demand than ever. High school pupils and other town lads are also being asked for, while an early listing of college girls is being arranged for fruit picking and other light farm work.

Battalion Has First Claim On Draftees

New regulations recently issued by the Militia Department covering draftees under the M. S. A., deprive all young men of the free choice they have hitherto had between infantry service and the air service. At the R. F. C. Recruiting Headquarters a statement was handed out explaining that these rules now make it absolutely necessary for men to come within the provisions of the M.S.A. first to join their Depot Battalion. They may, if they are anxious to become aviators, make application to the commanding officer. With that officer's consent, they may re-enlist with the R.F.C.

This change in the regulations, naturally presents some difficulties to men aspiring to flying officer's rank, though it is felt that any young man who possesses the essential qualifications demanded by the R. F. C., will readily be granted the chance to enroll. The effect of the new regulation will be that an accurate record of all draftees will be held by the Depot Battalions.

At present no indication can be given as to how this new procedure will affect the numbers of recruits applying for enrolment in the R.F.C. While the change makes it harder for a man to enter the service, it is presumed that the fascination and romance attaching to the flying man's work appeal so strongly to the Canadian spirit that most men will be keen enough to make the extra effort to join. This conclusion is based on the fact that even though enlistments in the R.F.C. are voluntary, the training school in Toronto is kept filled to capacity.

DOG CATCHER HAS BEEN ADDED TO CIVIC PAYROLL

James Gates is the Official Catcher and Executioner—The Appointee Will Provide His Own Gun and Cartridges and do the Work at Seventy-Five Cents Per Dog—Council Has Power to Kill Dogs on Sight.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING

"Any dogs running at large may be seized, impounded and destroyed."

Thus reads an amendment to the dog by-law which was passed at last night's meeting of the City Council. The amendment removes the forty-eight hours grace that was provided for in the original by-law. The amended by-law gives the authorities the right to kill dogs on sight if necessary.

Ald. Malcolm McIntyre thought that the amended by-law was too drastic. "A valuable dog might stray out. I think you should give them two or three hours anyway," said Ald. McIntyre.

Ald. A. McIntyre thought that anybody who had a valuable dog would not allow them to stray out.

The amended by-law removes the necessity for a pound.

The following applications for the position of dog catcher were received:

Harry Ward, 222 Wolfe street. Two dollars and a half a day.

James Gates, seventy-five cents a dog or thirteen dollars a week, eight hours a day, the applicant to supply his own gun and cartridges. Sixty cents a head if the dogs are delivered to the police.

J. Denno, 571 Romaine street. Three dollars a day.

Frank Peters, 353 Dublin street. Two dollars and a half a day.

The majority of the aldermen were in favour of the piece work basis of destroying dogs.

'Are they going to put on a policeman for every dog that is killed?" inquired Ald. Langford.

"I think so," replied the Mayor.

"That is a business like proposition," said Ald. Dobbin, referring to the tender of Mr. Gates.

He is both catcher and executioner pointed out Ald. Dobbin.

Ald. Edgar said he was convinced that there were rabies in town, and he did not think that the by-law was too drastic.

It was moved that James Gates be appointed official dog catcher and executioner. Mr. Gates will be paid at the rate of seventy-five cents per dog, and will work under the supervision of the Chief of Police. This was carried.

An amendment providing for a six hour stay of execution, moved by Ald. Malcolm McIntyre and seconded by Ald. Langford, was defeated.

Letter Was Received.

"In view of the restrictions placed on the 93rd band instruments, and the attitude of the City Council" towards the Great War Veterans' Association, the Veterans have declined to accept the instruments unless they are turned over unconditionally. A communication to this effect was received.

Resolution of Protest.

A letter enclosing a resolution of protest from the Great War Veterans' Association was received. The Veterans object to the remarks made by Mayor Duncan and other members of the Council at a recent meeting of the committee of the Whole Council.

Estimates Reduced.

The Public Library Board reported that five hundred dollars had been lopped off the estimates for 1918, making the sum required $4,900. "That's fine," echoed several members of the Council.

Monthly Payments.

The City Treasurer was authorized to pay over to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund the sum of ten thousand dollars representing two instalments for the months of January and February.

Daylight Saving.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., addressed a letter to the Council asking for an aldermanic opinion of the daylight saving proposal. "The farming community," said Mr. Burnham, "is not interested as the farmers utilize all the daylight as it is."

By-laws.

A by-law authorizing a grant of one thousand dollars to the Peterborough Healthy Association was read a third time and passed.

The Council adopted a by-law granting to the Children's Aid Society the sum of six hundred dollars.

By-law No. 2083 being a by-law to authorize the issue of debentures to retire debenture numbers 412 to 420 inclusive, amounting to $29,000, was adopted by the Council.

Cheaper Electricity.

It was moved by Ald. Edgar and seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the Utilities Commission be asked to consult with the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario regarding the practicability of providing a cheaper rate for Peterborough.

Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Langford moved in amendment that the matter be referred to the Manufacturers' committee of which the mover is chairman. The amendment was defeated.

Ald. Langford did not thing Ald. Edgar, as chairman of the Railway committee, had any right to encroach what he regarded as his work. "I intend to take it up with my committee anyway," said Ald. McIntyre.

A Combine.

The City Council endorsed a resolution forwarded from a western city favouring the creation of an Insurance Commission to supervise and regulate fire insurance companies operating throughout the Dominion and more generally known as the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association.

"It is a combine of insurance companies," pointed out one member of the City Council.

A petition to this effect will be forwarded to Premier Borden. A cheaper insurance rate is the anticipated result.

A Fuel Supply.

The Board of Works Department will be instructed to cut down all dead trees, resume all dead limbs from trees and secure all wood possible to be sold to persons in need of fuel. The proceeds will be turned into the civic treasury.

A by-law providing for the issue of debentures to the amount of $10,000 to cover the cost of additional fire apparatus was read a third time and passed.

Market Tolls.

The Property committee was authorized to advertise for tenders for the market tolls and report to the City Council.

In a letter to the City Council Adjutant McElhiney, of the Salvation Army requested the Council to keep the Temple Band in mind, providing grants are made to other bands in the city.

COAL FROM LOCAL ARMOURIES

Between ten and fifteen tons of coal is the amount that the city may be able to secure from the Armouries. It is estimated that there is about sixty-five tons of coal in the building, and the authorities in charge are anxious to retain this supply. The military authorities have been appealed to and it may be possible to secure the above stated quantity.

The town of Lindsay secured something like fifty tons of coal from the Lindsay armouries. The building has not been used this winter, and the authorities released the available supply for the use of the citizens.

POLICE DEPT. ESTIMATES OF $16,000 FOR 1918 INCLUDE HIGHER SALARIES FOR STAFF

Sergeant Reid Promoted to Senior Sergeant and Constable Blade Succeeds Him as Patrol Sergeant—Staff Will not Exceed Twelve Men.

NEW SALARY SCHEDULE

The Police Department estimates, aggregating $16,000, an increase of $1,500 over last year, were approved by the Police Commission yesterday afternoon and passed on to the City Council. The appropriation for the salaries of the force totals $13,241.72, as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Chief Thompson | $ 2,000 |
| Detective Newhall | 1,200 |
| Detective Meagher | 1,100 |
| Sergt. Reid | 1,125 |
| Sergt. Kidd | 1,075 |
| Sergt. Blade | 1,075 |
| P. C. Deannard | 1,000 |
| P. C. Lawrence | 1,000 |
| P. C. Wigg | 1,000 |

In addition to the above force two men have been taken on as third-class constables, and two others are to be engaged on the basis of $850 a year; but since the first month and a half has passed, the salaries of the new men for the rest of the year were estimated at $666.68 each.

Other Appropriations.

The other appropriations in the estimates were:

| | |
|---|---|
| Truant Officer Cochrane | $ 100 |
| Chairman Police Commission | 100 |
| Secretary Police Commission | 50 |
| Cleaning station and police court | 130 |
| Morality Dept. | 400 |
| Clothing and equipment | 900 |
| Fuel | 200 |
| Printing and stationery | 200 |
| Telephones | 100 |
| Telegraphing and telephones | 80 |
| Postage | 30 |
| Light | 20 |
| Repairing bicycles | 75 |
| Chief Constables' convention | 75 |
| Incidentals | 278.28 |

Salary Increases.

Chief Thompson's request for a general increase in the schedule of salaries for the Department was granted by the Commission as follows:

| | New Salary. | Inc. |
|---|---|---|
| Chief Constable | $2,000.00 | $250.00 |
| Sr. Detective | 1,163.50 | 63.50 |
| Jr. Detective | 1,063.50 | 63.50 |
| Sr. Sergeant | 1,125.00 | 75.00 |
| Patrol Sergeants | 1,075.00 | 100.00 |
| 1st Class Constables | 1,000.00 | 50.00 |
| 2nd Class Constables | 900.00 | 50.00 |
| 3rd Class Constables | 800.00 | 50.00 |

Although the schedule increases to the detectives is $63.50, their actual salaries reach the sum set out in the estimates by reason of the fact that they receive ten cents a day for good conduct and long service. This amounts to $36.50 a year, and the Commission desired to keep it separate from the regular salary, since it is given as an honbrarium.

Constables Deannard, Lawrence and Wigg are included in the first class and the new men are placed in the third class. There are no second class constables on the force.

Promotions.

The Commission approved Chief Thompson's recommended promotions by which Patrol Sergt. Reid is raised to Senior Sergeant, succeeding Sergt. Brown, who is now Chief of the Sudbury force, and Constable Blade becomes a patrol sergeant, both promotions dating from January 1st, 1918.

Chief Thompson reported that Graham C. Bromley and W. R. McIntosh had been engaged as constables from February 15th.

The Chief was authorized to procure summer uniforms, and was given permission to attend the annual convention of Chief Constables this year at Hamilton.

Force Not Increased.

It was decided not to increase the force this year, and Chief Thompson said he would endeavour to carry on with the usual staff of twelve.

Judge Huycke presided at the meeting, with Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Duncan present.

PETER ROBINSON CHAPTER I.O.D.E. CLOSE A BUSY YEAR AND PREPARE TO CARRY ON

Young Ladies of Junior Chapter Present a Fine Record of Patriotic Work in 1917—Miss Bessie Read the New President—Are Grateful For Public's Assistance.

The annual meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Green Room of the Y. W. C. A. on Friday, 15th inst., at 7.30 p.m.

The following offices were elected for the ensuing year:

Regent—Miss Bessie Read.
1st Vice Regent—Miss Margaret Eastwood.
2nd Vice Regent—Miss Helen Stapleton.
Secretary — Miss Robena Cumming.
Treasurer—Miss Esme Aylmer.
Standard Bearer—Mrs. LeMay.
And Councillors.

The Annual Report.

As Secretary of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., I submit the second annual report for the year ending January, 1918, as follows:

The officers for the year were:
Regent—Mrs. Widdifield.
Vice Regent—Miss Armstrong.
Secretary—Miss Stapleton.
Treasurer—Miss Dunsford.
Standard Bearer—Miss Cumming.

From February, 1917, to January, 1918, there were eight regular meetings and nine special meetings held. During the summer months there were no meetings. I might say that the attendance at these meetings was not up to the mark and hope that in the coming year the members will endeavour to attend more regularly, as it would greatly assist the officers in their work.

Thirty-four new members were admitted, making a total of ninety-one members.

The main object of the Chapter is the support of five prisoners of war, for which we pay ninety dollars a month. For this purpose we held bi-monthly teas at the Empress Hotel, with an occasional Tea Dansant. These teas and dances have been very successful and as most of the necessaries were donated the expense was very light. To Mr. Graham we are deeply indebted for the use of his Grill Room.

During the year we put on two plays in the Opera House under the supervision of Mr. Neville and from both of these we received encouraging receipts.

During the month of March we had a campaign for subscriptions for MacLean's Magazine, from which we received a percentage.

In June we brought Wilmot Goodwin here with the Canadian Amusement Co., which concert was also a success.

During the summer months, while the Tea Room was closed each member denied herself 25c a month, handing in $1.00 in September. In this way we realized quite a large sum of money.

In November, Mr. Coyette of the Peterborough Metal Products Company, presented us with a motor boat, which we have not as yet disposed of.

On November 12th, the Misses Cressman, Scott, Patterson and MacLaren held a tea at the home of Miss Cressman. The proceeds, amounting to $72.26, were donated to the Chapter and we are very much indebted to these young ladies for their generous donation.

The following donations were made by the Chapter:
To the Halifax Relief Fund, $30.00.
To the Navy League of Canada, $40.00.

Mrs. Widdifield, having taken up patriotic work in Toronto, resigned the Regency in September, when Miss Armstrong was elected Regent and Miss Eastwood, Vice Regent. The untiring energies of these two members, and also Miss Spence, who had charge of the tea room, have gone a long way in making our year such a successful one.

The public, as a whole, have been very generous in donating and patronizing our teas, plays, etc., and it is to them and the hearty co-operation of our members that we owe the success of the past year.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

Helen N. Stapleton,
Secretary.

Treasurer's Report.

The Treasurer's report showed receipts for the year, $1,365.33, and a balance of $451.98 now on hand.

The Chapter wishes to extend a vote of thanks to all who so kindly assisted them in their work during the past year.

Urged The Nationalization Of Railways

Big Deputation Headed by Sir Adam Beck Waits on Cabinet—Ald. Edgar Among the Speakers

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner)

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—The immediate nationalization of the G.T.P. and the G.T.R. was the principal among other measures urged by a strong delegation from the Hydro-Electric Association of Ontario and the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association before Sir Robert Borden and members of the Cabinet here to-day. Sir Adam Beck headed the deputation, which consisted of May T. L. Church of Toronto, J. W. Lyon of Guelph and fifty other representatives as far apart as Windsor and Prescott. The delegates made it clear that they did not want the government to take over the G.T.P. unless the G. T. Railway was also nationalized.

These two railways, consolidated with the C.N.R., would give a well-balanced system all over Canada and enable them to compete with the C. P.R. It was pointed out that by electrifying the G.T.R. in Ontario there would be sufficient transportation in the province for all time to come. The Hydro-Electric Commission would be able to furnish the necessary power it was contended, by the time the government was ready for the scheme. The speakers also pointed out the enormous waste of money that would be involved by any duplicate line coming into Ontario in competition with the scheme. The resolution of the Hydro delegates who held a private conference in the Chateau Laurier before the meeting with the Cabinet, strongly urged that the operation and administration of such a national system of railways be free from all political influences. The government was also urged to introduce again in the coming session the revised Railway Act of last session, which was held up in the Senate. Clause 373 and 374, which aim at giving municipalities the right to control their own highways are designed to prevent private corporations from laying lines or stringing wires on public highways without the consent of the municipality concerned.

The speakers included Mayor C. R. Tuson, Windsor, S. Silverthorn, London; B. A. McLachlan, Stratford; E. L. Emon, Owen Sound; Controller J. W. Tyrrell, Hamilton; Controller Maguire, Toronto; Mayor Wilry, St. Catharines; W. B. Burgoyne, St. Catharines; Fred Newman, Picton; Ald. John Edgar, Peterborough; Mayor F. S. Evanson, Prescott, and Geo. Wright, Toronto.

Want Higher Price For Cheese

(Canadian Press Despatch)

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—A large deputation of some five hundred dairymen representing the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, memorialized the Dominion Government, here this morning, through the medium of the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. T. A. Crerar, to use its influence to have the British Purchasing Commission pay a higher price for cheese. The present price paid to the Canadian dairy men is 21 3-4 cents a pound, and while no stipulated price is asked, it was stated privately that the dairymen expect to realize 25 cents a pound for their cheese. Hon Mr. Crerar said that the requests were reasonable and assured the gathering that no measure to temporarily or permanently injure the dairy industry will be passed.

RUSSIAN SITUATION IS MUCH INVOLVED

Germans Have Occupied Dvinsk and Are Advancing—Russian Armies Are Concentrating in Vitebsk—Don Cossacks Are Defeated

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 20.—(Delayed).—The Russian armies are concentrating in Vitebsk, under General Bonchbruyevitch, to halt the German invaders. Vitebsk is a Russian province bordering on Courtland, and Livohia, its capital of the same name, is about 250 miles east of Riga, and 300 miles south of Petrograd.

Commissaries of the army on the whole front have ordered demobilization halted, and wired the soldiers in Petrograd: "Do your duty to defend the revolution." By an overwhelming majority, the Bolsheviki and the Revolutionary Socialists of the Left in the Central Executive Committee, voted to defend at all costs. A mobilization of all workers is being considered. The information was flashed to the Smolny Institute that if the majority of Socialists do not break with the German Government the Independent Socialists will start a civil war. The Germans have occupied Hapsal (a seaport on the Gulf of Finland, 52 miles south-west of Reval) and arrested all the officials and members of the Soviet.

From Dvinsk (125 miles east of Riga) the enemy is advancing toward Pskoff, an important railroad centre, about 100 miles north-east of Dvinsk, and 125 miles south-west of Petrograd. The Austro-Germans are concentrating along the south-western front, while the forces of Ukraine Rada are concentrating at Brest-Litovsk, under German Generals. A report was received from Kieff to-day that the Rada had proclaimed the acceptance of the Austro-Hungarian Protectorate.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 21.—American Ambassador Francis and the Allied Envoys at noon to-day were preparing for a quick departure from Petrograd. They were overwhelmed by the sudden news of Lenine's and Trotsky's "willingness" to sign a German dictated peace. They declared, however, that even a separate peace would not mean a break between Russia and the Allies.

The above despatch said Ambassador Francis and the Allied diplomats were to leave for "Sanfrancis," which may have meant "San Francisco," but was garbled in cable transmission. This would be the only comparatively safe route they could travel. On the north the Finnish revolution is under way on the west, and south-west the Austro-Germans are advancing, while on the south the Cossacks are threatening.

Premier Lenine was the chief advocate of the wireless sent out from here announcing Russia's willingness to sign the German peace; four other commissaries supported Lenine, while four opposed him. The opinion prevails here that Petrograd's fate will be decided within a fortnight.

The Bolsheviki sent an ultimatum to the Don Cossacks, ordering them to surrender. A desperate battle followed. The Cossacks retired to Rostoff, on the Don River, about 25 miles from the mouth, where they are being besieged.

Family Slept In Their Day Clothes In Fireless Home

With all the city's initiative and preparations last Spring to provide a sufficiency of coal for the citizens this winter, there is positive distress and suffering in many homes to-day. And there is no immediately incoming relief. The frozen floods have again hamstrung the railways which were to-day backed up against the wall in a fight to maintain a passenger service.

After last night's deep dip below zero, many persons, mostly women, were apparently forced out of their homes in a desperate hope of obtaining relief—coal, wood, anything that would offer even a little comfort.

At eight o'clock there was a numerous group besieging the Police Station, where they had previously received doles against impeding distress. It was a vain and chilling quest to-day, however.

From eight until ten o'clock this morning the telephone at the Police Station rang incessantly with enquiries and appeals for fuel. Sergt. Kidd stationed himself at the receiver, and answering probably several hundred calls, broke the cold and hopeless news that there was neither coal nor wood available.

Slept in Their Clothes.

One of the most pitiful stories of the entire winter was related this morning by a woman, who stated that she and her children had slept in their clothes last night to keep from freezing.

Another woman stated that she had broken up and burned a "dresser" last night when the last scrap of wood had contributed its mite of heat.

"We haven't had coal in a week, and only a little wood is left. We are using it so sparingly that our home is absolutely uncomfortable," was a typical lament.

Little Children Cold.

Two cases of exceedingly serious lack of fuel have come to the notice of Miss Peck, president of the Progressive Club. One, a family of eight children, one of whom is a cripple, is absolutely without fuel. The second, a family with one 6 weeks old baby. Here the mother has, to save the child from freezing, broken up every available piece of furniture. Both families reside in the south end of the city.

And others slept snugly, indifferent to every silent appeal but their own comfort.

Hospital Wants Garbage Collected

pays Forty-five Dollars a Year For a Service That is Not Provided

City Solicitor Gordon will be asked to give a legal interpretation of the agreement between the city and the garbage collector, and also the bylaw covering the collection of garbage throughout the city. At present St. Joseph's Hospital is isolated so far as the collection of garbage is concerned yet the institution pays to the city each year the sum of $5 as a garbage tax. The hospital is located on Concession street but the property is assessed on Rogers street. The bylaw states that the garbage must be placed on the street line where the property is assessed, which means that the garbage from the hospital must be placed on Rogers street. Last year the hospital authorities made a private arrangement with the garbage collector, and the collection was made on Concession street. This year the contractor refuses to go on Concession street, which is outside of the garbage collecting area. Some of the aldermen are in favor of remitting the tax levied on the hospital and allow the institution to make a private arrangement for the removal of the garbage.

NOTHING DEFINITE IN PREMIER'S REPLY TO THE DEPUTATION

Delegates Who Waited Upon Cabinet Yesterday Somewhat Disappointed —Government Not Yet in a Position to Announce Railway Policy

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—The visit of the Ontario Municipal and Hydro delegation yesterday, headed by Sir Adam Beck, did not meet with unqualified success, inasmuch as Sir Robert Borden was non-committal in his reply to the addresses of the speakers.

Mr. J. W. Lyons, of Guelph, said that the unnecessary duplication of railway lines in Western Ontario was the cause of great waste. The deputation, he said, wanted to urge upon the government the desirability of the Drayton-Acworth report in regard to railways, which would undoubtedly be the best solution of the problem now awaiting action.

"It is," he said, "desirable that Ontario should have a well balanced government owned, but not necessarily government operated, system of railways." He described the Canadian Northern as a "white elephant," which can never pay unless it is linked up with the Grand Trunk and the present government system of railways. The consolidation of railways, he said, would provide the Canadian Northern system with the necessary outlet at Niagara and relieve the congestion. Mr. Lyons told the government that the development of the power system of Western Ontario and the electrification of railways would greatly relieve the coal shortage.

Service Not Adequate.

Mayor Tuson, of Windsor, said that the railway system in the Windsor district was not adequate, and that the adoption of the proposals made would increase their efficiencies and effect a great saving.

President Silverwood of the London Board of Trade, said that resolutions submitted received the practically unanimous support of the people of London. The Grand Trunk, he said, as at present operated, constituted a burden to the people of the London district.

R. M. MacLachlin, of Stratford, also declared that the Grand Trunk is falling down in giving service to that district. He was satisfied that the people of the city of Stratford were never more unanimous in their support of anything than of the proposals now being made to the Government.

Hamilton's Views.

Controller J. W. Tyrell, of Hamilton, said that Hamilton, one of the largest consumers, was vitally interested in the railway situation. The people of Hamilton, he said, had implicit faith in the Hydro Commission, which had done so much for the city already.

Ex-Mayor Burgoyne, of St. Catharines, stated that the proposal to take over the Grand Trunk and electrify it would meet with the unanim support of the two score municipalities in the Niagara district, which adopted Hydro by-laws. The proposal was one, he said, which would have millions of dollars to the people of that district.

Following brief speeches by Mayor Wylie, of St. Catharines, F. W. Ellis, of Toronto, Geo. Wright of Toronto, Alderman Edgar of Peterborough, and Mayor Evanson of Prescott, Sir Adam Beck declared that the only way to handle the railway situation was by consolidation of the lines. The Grand Trunk Pacific in the west was a failure and the Canadian Northern in the east was a failure. Sir Adam said he has heard no objection to an increase being made in freight rates if the proceeds were used in the betterment of the service. The suggestion was made in regard to the C.P.R. that its additional earnings from increased rates might be taxed, as such earnings were not required to pay dividends.

Premier's Reply.

Sir Robert Borden, replying, said that outside the question of electrification of the railways, the government had the other matters brought before it under consideration for several months. He took the opportunity of paying a tribute to the railways of Canada as a whole for their service during the war. He said the government would consider the proposals before them and take action consistent with their other war obligations. Sir Robert intimated it would be difficult to take over the railways and operate them under a boddy entirely separate from government control and influence as had been indicated.

"With regard to the taking over of the G.T.R." continued Sir Robert, "I hope you will bear in mind, in order to be just to everyone, that there has been a large amount of British capital invested in this railway without their having had the slightest return, and holders of preferred stock have had to forego dividends up to the present. It must also be remembered that the G.T.R. has received less aid from the government than any other railway in Canada.

Sir Robert Borden said the government was not yet in a position to announce a policy, but the matter was occupying their attention next in importance to the carrying on of the war. Referring to the suggestion that the body controlling the railways should be free from political influence and operated from outside any government department, the Premier said that when there was government ownership there must be some control in the public interest.

There was nothing very definite in the Prime Minister's reply, and the delegates were somewhat disappointed.

"He stays out evenings, now"

Helen's husband didn't stay out just now and then; he stayed out every evening.

His crackling grate fire—his easy chair and seasoned pipe—his pretty wife sewing in the glow of the shaded lamp—these things no longer held George Howard.

The girl-wife had lost her charm for him. With leaden heart, she analyzed herself to find the cause.

And when she found it, was she able to make home evenings once more attractive to him?

Find the answer in the story, "The Woman Who Changed," which starts Monday in The Evening Examiner.

GRAIN MARKET

The directors of grain exchanges have evidently taken alarm at the rapidity at which grain prices, particularly oats, have soared in the past few days. In an attempt to check the speculative craze somewhat the directors of the Chicago Grain Exchange yesterday decided to limit any further advance in oats to not more than 2 cents in one day. The Chicago market promptly went the limit, at which it automatically stopped. The Winnipeg Board of Directors decided to prohibit trading in puts and calls on oats. This, however, did not prevent that market making the biggest advance made yet in oats in one day. The market closing 3 3-4 cents above Wednesday's close for May oats. Cash oats at Fort William are advanced 3 3-4 cents, and Ontario 3 cents. Rye is quoted 5 cents higher.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store Fort William.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards —Receipts for yesterday, 56 cars, with 846 cattle, 37 calves, 1,790 hogs and 73 sheep and lambs.

Trade was not quite as brisk but on the whole the market held about steady at the advances made earlier in the week. Anything choice among the four hundred or so of fresh cattle received yesterday made the prices all right. For about 400 cattle arrived late Wednesday, and consequently a little full, prices were not quite so firm, and the clean-up was a little slow.

Choice calves were firm.

Lambs firm, a bunch of 20, black-faced, selling at $19.

Hogs finished firm at a quarter higher. A few were sold at $19, but the market settled at $19.25, fed and watered.

Jesus Teaching by Parables—The Growth of the Kingdom. Mark 4:21-34.

Golden Text: The earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah as the waters cover the sea. Isa. 11:9.

1. Verse 21. What ought to be done to the man who has marked ability to do good to his fellows and refuses to use it?

2. Verse 22. Why is it impossible or not for a person to habitually do wrong, if ever so secretly, without being estimated by the community at his true worth?

3. How is an eloquent preached estimated by spiritual people if he is not in reality a man who walks and talks with God?

4. Verse 23. Why should you say or not that our moral and spiritual hearing is under our own control? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by the members of the club.)

5. Verse 24. If we read or listen to unwelcome truth, with prejudice, twisting or resisting it, what is the infallible penalty?

6. Verse 25. What is the nature of the law by which the rich get richer, and the poor poorer, whether the wealth is material, mental or spiritual?

7. Verse 26. What does "the kingdom of God" here refer to, and what relation does the seed bear to this kingdom?

8. Verse 27. After a minister or any other Christian, has sown the 'seed,' what should be his state of mind concerning it, as to anxiety or restfulness?

9. Verse 28. The earth produces a great variety of things by self- propagation, without human instrumentality; would you say or not, and why, that Christianity is in any way analogous to this?

10. In preaching the gospel in heathen lands, what are generally the first results, and what are the various stages in the process to the ripe fruit of Christianity?

11. Verse 29. What reason if any is there to believe that when the seed of the gospel is sown once in a human heart or in a country that it never fails to germinate even if years intervene?

12. What are the fruits of Christianity on the earth?

13. When will the final harvest of Christianity be reaped, and what will the harvest be?

14. Verse 30. What would you compare the kingdom of God to, and what are the comparisons which Jesus makes here and elsewhere?

15. Verses 31, 32. Mention some things like mustard seed, "exceedingly small," upon which vast issues depend?

1. What evidence can you give, to illustrate the fact that the small mustard seed becomes a very large bush?

17. In what respect, or in how many respects, is Christianity like the mustard seed?

18. Verses 31, 32. What is that quality in the gospel which makes its seed so virile?

19. Verses 33, 34. What do you consider to be the advantages, and the disadvantages, of preaching in parables?

20. It is stated here that Christ did all his public teaching by parables; in view of that I am astonished that I know no present day preacher, or teacher, who uses Christ's method; how many do you know, and why do so few imitate Jesus?

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"The method I shall adopt will differ widely from that of the first experiment, however. Mr. Quimby will sit in his chair, you see, facing the fireplace, and I shall read to him 20 separate and unconnected words from a previously prepared list asking him to name what relative thought each brings to his own mind.

"That, as far as he is aware, will be the full extent of the test and he will depend upon the prompt reaction of his mind and consequent evasiveness of his countering to bring him safely through the ordeal. But, Mac, every inflection of his voice, minutely graded to be differentiated by the human ear or controlled by his will, shall be recorded; every infinitesimal degree of time between the words I utter and his reply shall be measured."

"How in the name of goodness!" McCarty was profoundly impressed, and his awestruck glance swept the room as if in quest of material evidence of magic.

Terhune smiled in spite of himself.

"The pendulum of the tall clock in the corner is really a metronome but more finely attuned than any measurer of time and rhythm known to the world at large. It will give us the differences in his pauses to the hundredth part of a second, and note them upon a chart concealed in the mechanism of the clock itself.

"In the chimney back of the fireplace I have adjusted a vibratometer, a small apparatus which, as the subject sits facing the hearth, will measure the vibration of his breath. It is perhaps too subtle a point to have come under your observation, but when the brain reacts suddenly from the shock of a new and unexpected thought, one involuntarily exhales and inhales instantaneously, or, as you might phrase it, catches his breath. That is the instinctive storing of oxygen against the physical demand of the brain, and in studying these vibrations we can trace the degree of mental shock sustained."

McCarty listened open mouthed but in his eyes there was an awakened gleam of comprehension which belied the obtuseness attributed to him. The detective had swiftly crossed the room to the brass studded chest, lifted its curiously warped lid and produced a square, compact instrument not unlike the earlier form of tone reproductive machines, with a circular record and wide-spreading horn.

"This," he announced, "is a projectophone. It records the voice, noting every wave-tone of inflection, and will later reproduce it for us, but exaggerating a hundred fold the differentiations of key and pitch. Thus a note of fear too delicate to reach our sensibilities, will become a veritable wail, a slight tremor will be increased to a discordant jangle, and an all but toneless mutter will reveal itself as a roar of wrath. In other words, his slightest tonal manifestations of varying emotions will definitely and irrevocably betray itself."

"It's wonderful, beyond the power of man!" cried McCarty. "'Tis almost sacrilegious, like usurping the workings of Almighty Providence!"

"Science! my dear McCarty!" The lid of the chest descended. "Science at the disposal of the analytical mind!"

"Mr. Terhune, would you mind showing me that list of questions?" There was a new note in McCarty's voice.

"Certainly." The detective drew a slip of paper from his bill case. "Here it is."

McCarty glanced down it and shook his head.

"Please don't think it is fresh of me, sir, but I'd like to suggest some changes in it. I'm not setting myself up to butt in on this experiment, which I couldn't pretend to grasp the details of, but I have got the general idea, and I know that a few different words slipped in will have an effect that will surprise you!"

Terhune frowned.

"My good man, that list is the result of careful study——"

"I know, sir, but if you'll only let me make one of my own to show you, I'm certain you'd be willing to try it instead."

The detective bestowed a penetrating look upon him.

"Mac, have you got anything else up your sleeve? Have you hit on some fact that may have a bearing on the case? I don't mind admitting that you have given me a few pointers before to-night that I have found useful——"

"Then, Mr. Terhune, just give me one chance now!"

McCarty's tone was differentially pleading but there was an undercurrent of authority which the other man noted and recognized. "Well, make your list! I won't promise to use it, remember but I should like to see it."

For twenty minutes McCarty toiled—his agonized facial contortions and stertorous breathing bearing witness to the profound concentration of his effort.

Terhune watched in covert amusement but his expression changed very quickly when the paper, with many blotches and erasures, was placed in his hands.

"McCarty, what does this mean? You have acquired some information which has been withheld from me. This is no time for concealment or evasion! Out with it man! What have you discovered?"

His attitude was a shade too domineering, his voice too arbitrary for ex-foundsman McCarty, who in his own day and precinct had held unquestioned sway.

"Excuse me, sir! It may be that I have learned a thing or two since I saw you last and I'm offering what I know to you, but in my own way. I would not presume to interfere, however, and if don't want these suggestions from me I'll just take them down and leave them with Inspector Druet and they'll be off my mind. It was what I did on Tuesday, you may remember, when you were too busy to be bothered."

Wade Terhune realized his mistake, and writhed inwardly, but he forced a smile.

"Well, well, we won't quarrel. I've acknowledged my indebtedness to you, Mac, and I don't think I will go far wrong if I adopt this list of yours in place of my own, but I hope that after we are through with Stephen Quimby to-night you will tell me what this all means."

"When you're through with Quimby," McCarty nodded slowly, "you'll know!"

"Would you like to be on hand?" the detective asked.

"Those draperies there, to the right of the fireplace contain an alcove from the main hall. You can reach the front door from there without being seen by any one in this room, and Mr. Quimby's chair will be facing you."

A swift light broke over McCarty's face.

"I'd like it more than anything in the world!" he cried fervently. "I'll run along now, sir, and come back after he gets here. If you will tell your man to leave the entrance door on the latch, I'll not disturb you by ringing. And Mr. Terhune, if you'll be careful to use those words in just the order I've written them down, you'll not regret it!"

Left to himself the detective paced broodily back and forth before the cold hearth. The case was virtually complete in his estimation, and yet several of the test words which McCarty had given him appeared totally irrelevant to the point at issue. Moreover taken in the sequence he had arranged, they contained definite suggestions of a nature which Terhune could in no way reconcile to his preconceived hypothesis, and he realized somewhat uneasily that the confusion of the blunt unscientific ex-roundsman had proved miraculously reliable in the past.

His cogitations were interrupted by the arrival of his anticipated guest. Stephen Quimby, a distinctive figure, in his correct mourning garb, was more pale even than on their last meeting and a harassed expression had shaken the dominance of his glance, but his voice was even as he courteously responded to the detective's greeting and accepted the chair indicated.

Terhune was explaining the obvious system and method of the word test, when his expectant ear caught the soft closing of the front door and the sound of footsteps down the hall toward the curtained alcove. His humble confrere was on hand, and he proceeded at once to the issue.

"You understand now, I think, Mr. Quimby. I speak one word and you a single one in reply, indicating the relative idea my suggestion has evolved in your mind. We will begin, if you are ready. The first word is Money."

"Wealth," responded Quimby without hesitation.

"Inheritance."

"Will." A double stroke of the pendulum had intervened between question and answer.

"Investments."

"Business." The countering word came promptly.

"Failure."

"Loss."

"Atlanta."

There was a pause of three seconds before Quimby's reply, in a carefully controlled voice: "City."

"Cashier."

"Bank." The tone had lowered to a mere whisper.

"Consumption."

"Disease." The whisper was shaken.

"Brazil."

Another pause, and then, in quick evasion: "Copper."

"Death."

"Grave." There were beads of perspiration on Quimby's forehead.

"Twenty-one."

The man on the rack floundered desperately, and finally muttered—"Number."

"Lover."

"Romance."

"Lie!"

Five measured strokes ticked out before Quimby found utterance.

"Soap." He had deliberately chosen to put a far-fetched definition on the obvious word.

"Control."

"Power." He breathed more easily.

"Chauffeur."

"Motor car."

Few People Know This

Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

Save food

IF you cut down your food by one-fifth, how can you still obtain the same amount of nourishment as before? The problem looks impossible, but it is not so in fact, for if you get more nourishment from the food you do eat you will solve it.

Take a concrete instance. If there are 5 units of nourishment in bread when you buy it, you expect to get 5 units when you eat it. As a matter of fact you do not get that at all because a good deal of the nourishment is not absorbed by the body. To take a rough and ready simile, if you put coal on a fire in the evening and leave the fire overnight, you will find that a good deal of the coal is unburnt in the morning when the fire is out. This is much what happens to food in the body, and the "unburnt" food is wasted.

There is a simple way to reduce this loss, a way tested and approved by the highest scientific authorities. It is to take Bovril.

It has long been an accepted fact, proved by independent scientific investigation, that Bovril has a body-building power equal to from 10 to 20 times the amount taken. This is now confirmed in a very striking way in the following report from the "Medical Times":—

"The addition of a small teaspoonful of Bovril to the diet as a pentogenic before meals leads to more thorough digestion and assimilation and thus saves food.

"The diet may be then cut down from ⅓ to ¼ and the body still be adequately nourished."

Extract from the review by the "Medical Times" of the investigations on Food Economy conducted by Dr. J. Campbell, while Food Expert to the Metropolitan Campaign for Food Economy.

Help to save the Nation's food and still keep yourself well fed by taking a cup of Bovril as soup before meals, or by using a little Bovril in your cooking.

Living Water Tank.

Perhaps the most notable specimen of self-watering plants is the so-called "water barrel" which, of about the size and shape of an ordinary beer keg, is in fact nothing more or less than a living water tank. Its whole interior is composed of storage cells so admirably arranged that the pulp which they form contains something like 98 per cent pure water.

Wasted Power.

The United States contains, according to latest estimates, something more than 55,000 latent horsepower in its streams—power that is running unused to the sea—while millions upon millions of tons of coal are being consumed for the manufacture of power.

Greatest Wireless Station.

The world's greatest wireless station has been built in Italy, powerful enough to communicate with North and South America when similar stations are erected on this side of the Atlantic.

Shaving Cup Protector.

To insure the owner of a private shaving cup kept in a barber shop that he is its only user there has been invented a paper cap to cover it which cannot be removed without breaking a seal.

Tallow and Ink.

If ink is split on the tablecloth immediately melt a candle, taking some of the tallow, spread it over the ink patch and leave it to dry. Afterward wash the tablecloth and all traces of ink will disappear.

Don't Diet Yourself TO CURE DYSPEPSIA IT ISN'T NECESSARY

The sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion who has to pick and choose his food, is the most miserable of all mankind.

Even the little he does eat causes such torture, and is digested so imperfectly that it does him little good.

What dyspeptics need is not dieting, or artificial digestants, but something that will put their stomach right so it will manufacture its own digestive ferments.

For forty years now Burdock Blood Bitters has been making weak stomachs strong, and curing severe cases of dyspepsia and indigestion that other remedies were powerless to reach.

It restores the stomach to a normal healthy condition so that the food no longer causes distress, but is thoroughly digested and assimilated, and goes on its way making rich, red blood.

Mrs. Henry Shaw, Campbellton, N.B., writes: "I was for five years troubled with a weak stomach, and could not eat any food that would agree with me. I tried different medicines, but could not get cured. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles, and now I am in perfect health."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Young Fellow

By H. H. Duncan

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A young fellow started out in real estate, and real estate, when one is young and just beginning, is almost as barren of business as the first year's practice of a lawyer. But the young man had an office, with his name in gold leaf on the glass in the door.

As he sat in his swivel chair before the empty roll top desk and eyed the sign, he became dissatisfied. The letters seemed to mock, to tantalize, to tease him. He determined to lock up the office and go see Florence. Just as he was about to put his idea into execution, a visitor crossed his threshold. It was Mr. Thomas Henry, father of Florence, and one of his father's most intimate friends.

"Mr. Henry, I am glad to see you," stated the young man cordially, as he rose to greet the older man. "It was good of you to look in on me."

"I was just passing," said the elder man, "and I thought I would drop in for a moment's rest. How's business, Frank?"

"Neither good nor bad," replied the young man cheerfully. "There isn't any."

"Ugh! That's rather fierce."

"Oh, don't take it seriously, Mr. Henry," remonstrated the young man, shunning pity. "It'll pick up some day. I'm not a bit discouraged."

"That's the way, Frank," approved Mr. Henry. "I'm glad to hear that you're proving—or rather promising to prove—worthy of your friends. One of them said to me today, 'He'll make good. I'll guarantee that he will.' That's what one person thought about your future in real estate."

"Who said that?" asked Frank eagerly. "I didn't know any business man here in town held that opinion. They all said the field was overcrowded and that I was a fool for launching out in it. Who was he?"

It was rather awkward for Mr. Henry. He hesitated. "It wasn't exactly a business man, it was Florence." He looked keenly at the young man as he mentioned his daughter's name and smiled. The young man was not at all disconcerted. On the contrary, he seemed as much elated as if Thomas A. Edison had been his indorser. Of course, poor reader, you can't understand this, as you don't happen to know Florence.

"She's a mighty dear girl," the young man declared. "Do you know, Mr. Henry, she's all right, even if she is your daughter."

Mr. Henry looked at the young man for a cue, and found him grinning. "Frank," declared Mr. Henry, his brow wrinkling, "I'm up against it. I wish you could help me out on a little deal—a big deal, rather. But it's hopeless. The most experienced men in the business have fallen down on it."

"What's the deal, Mr. Henry?" asked the young man. "Give me a chance."

"You couldn't do anything," replied Mr. Henry rather sharply, "unless it would be to drug the old man. It's that Jackson block business, Frank. You know Mr. Jackson, a client of mine, has been wanting that half block for an office building site. He's bought every foot of land from Walnut street clear through to the alley, a solid half block, all except that little lot on which old man Boyd has his shack of an office. That little one-story shed is all that stands in the way of a new building. For my client, I've offered him four times as much as the ground is worth or will ever be worth, but still he holds out. He's jealous of Jackson, that's all. I can't get him to give in. I've tried every way through all kinds of people."

Mr. Henry stopped and scowled. He glanced around the room, scowled at the empty wastepaper basket, at the book shelves, at the filing-cabinet, and even cut the window where a tow-

To this Mr. Henry was willing.

"All right," answered the young man, "it's your lot."

"I don't know."

"I do," declared Frank. "I'll start the ball rolling right away. Kindly remember me to Florence, will you, Mr. Henry? Tell her I'll call just as soon as I bring about this deal. I'll have something important to tell her. Spring the lock as you go out, will you?" Frank bolted into his coat, grabbed his hat and, leaving Mr. Henry glued to one of the installment-plan chairs, darted down the street.

"Hello, Sam," called the young man, after he had traveled several blocks. "I was looking for you." A large negro, carrying a basket of ashes toward an old horse and wagon, wiped his hand on an overall leg and greeted the young man.

"I'se powerful glad to see you."

"How's Mrs. Smith and the babies?" inquired Frank.

"Fine, sir, fine. You jes ought to see my little boy, Mr. Frank."

"And how's the band?" asked the young man.

"Say, Mr. Frank!" shouted the negro, kicking over the basket of ashes in his excitement, "you jes ought to hear that band now. I've been practicin' em regular ebery night, and they'se gettin' on fine. You ought to hear 'em play the 'Swanee Riber.' Mr. Henry, it would make tears melt in your mouth. Oh course, I has my troubles, y' understan', Mr. Frank," the negro continued. "Ebery bandmaster has his troubles, Mr. Frank. Now take that nigger trombone player. He's all right on volume, Mr. Frank. He's fine on volume. You could hear him four miles, I reckon. But the feller won't play in tune. When we're playing flats he's playing sharps, an' he's always a couple of notes ahead of the rest. An' the cornet, an' some of the others, ain't what they should be, but I'se practicin' 'em. We'll get together all right after a while."

The negro smiled hopefully.

"Sure you will," agreed Frank. "Where do you practice, Sam?" he asked.

"We've been playin' in a barn back ob my house. It's a tolerable enough place when it don't rain. I'm looking for a better place, but don't seem to find none. We can't afford to pay much rent."

"Sam," stated the young man, "I'm interested in music, and I'm interested in your band. How would you like American hall for your practices?"

For an answer, Sam grinned like a man on a holiday.

"I can't promise it to you any longer than a week."

"Das all right, Mr. Frank," responded Sam. "A week's better 'n nothin'."

"Want to start to-night, Sam?" asked the young man.

"Yep, seben o'clock. Play straight through till leben."

"Fine," declared Frank. "I'll explain a little, Sam. The reason I'm renting this hall for you is because I want to treat the neighborhood to some good music. See?"

"Yes, sir," answered Sam. But really, you know, he didn't.

"If things work out the way I expect them to," promised Frank, "I'm going to buy your band new uniforms."

"Good heabens, Mr. Frank! Real ones, blue with gold braid? An' a drum-major hat for me to march in?"

"Surest thing you know," answered Frank, grinning. "Only be sure to have the band play loud. You know I want all the neighborhood to be sure to hear the music." This Sam guaranteed. "And see here," added the young man: "If you don't care, I'd like to be known as the manager of your band. May I?"

"Oh course," magnanimously. "It'll be a big thing for the band; Mr. Frank Lucas, manager."

"And remember this, if anybody comes up and wants to cut out the music—some people like music, others don't—or threatens to kill the trombone specialist, you tell 'em I'm manager of the band, and send 'em to me, will you? Tell 'em I'm running the circus, will you?"

"I shore will," promised Sam. "I don't want no scraps wid nobody, I don't. An' t'ank you, sir. The band'll give 'em good concerts all week—nice loud ones. So long, Mr. Frank."

Well, it all came out as we expected. A week's music from Sam's band rehearsing "Swanee River" each night from seven until eleven o'clock in the hall directly opposite his residence, was all the music Mr. Boyd could stand. He remonstrated with Sam in vain—he was sent to Mr. Frank Lucas. The police told Boyd, when he complained, that they had no right to interfere so long as the band was orderly. At last Mr. Boyd went to Frank. Frank explained to Mr. Boyd that he had been thinking of moving his band to another part of the town, but that he was interested in buying a certain strip in the Jackson block site. Boyd saw the plot, but trombone-crazy, he forgot his jealousy and sold the property for its true value, $5,000.

In return for the deed, Frank received from Thomas Henry $15,000, as per agreement. Frank's ledger read: "Received fee, $1,000. Profit, $10,000." The band removed to its old quarters, but marched the following Sunday in new uniforms. Then the cash account in Frank's ledger was credited with $500, charged to personal account. With the $500 Frank purchased a solitaire for Florence.

OUR BOYS IN EUROPE AND HOME PROTECTION

The men on the firing line represent the pick of our country's youth. Many were rejected because of physical deficiency. Many times the kidneys were to blame.

If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals. Then procure at a drug store, Anuric (double strength). This "An-u-ric" drives the uric acid out and cures backache and rheumatism.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month.

Send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial pkg. Anuric—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

Preston, Ont.—"I am pleased to express my experience with Anuric. I have been troubled with rheumatism in right limb and hand for several years, and lately in left shoulder. The only way I could lie was on my back. I had great difficulty to sit down and more to get up. Lately I had a very severe pain in my back. I have taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery several times with the most satisfactory results, so I concluded to give his Anuric Tablets a trial. The pain in limb and shoulder has stopped entirely and in right hand it is very slight and getting less all the time. I can now sit or lie in any position I wish without discomfort or pain. I recommended the Anuric Tablets to two parties and they both claim decided improvement. I certainly will recommend them to any one troubled with the kidneys; there is nothing nearly so good; I tried them all."—George Boos, cor. Duke and Waterloo.

Colds Settle On The Kidneys

Hence the Backaches, Rheumatic Pains, and Lumbago — Relief Comes When the Action of the Kidneys is Aroused.

Kiltarlity, N.S., Jan. 11.—It is not only the lungs that suffer during the cold, damp seasons. The kidneys are almost equally susceptible to sudden changes of temperature, and many a serious case of kidney disease has its beginning with a cold, which settles on the kidneys.

Persons working out of doors are most likely to be victims of such trouble and suffer from backaches, lumbago, rheumatism, and crippled, aching limbs, but anyone is liable to sit in a draught or expose his back to a current of cold air.

Cold settling on the kidneys causes congestion, a clogging of these filtering organs and consequent derangement of the whole digestive and excretory systems. The liver fails to work, the bowels become totally cured. I therefore heartily recommend these Pills to all who suffer from rheumatism, and anyone who doubts this testimonial may write me as proof to the contrary."

(Rev. James A. Collins, P.P., says: "This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Mr. Neil A. Cameron, and believe his statement is true and to my personal knowledge correct.")

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint, constipated, and the stomach gets upset.

Because of their direct and combined action on these organs, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are of most prompt and most lasting benefit for such derangements. They are positive in their effects and are backed by the experience and integrity of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous Receipt Book author.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N.S., writes: "I am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone who is suffering from rheumatism. For about twenty-five years I was bothered more or less with this affliction. I was treated by doctors all over Nova Scotia, and when on business in New York, had an opportunity to consult one of the greatest specialists there; but I never gained more than temporary relief. In an effort to get rid of the accumulating development of the disease, I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and when I had taken eight boxes, I was, to my astonishment, old girl, who was passing, a very good girl, probably, who no doubt helps wipe the dishes at home, and takes care of her little brother, was badly frightened because she thought Mr. Henry was scowling at her.

"Boyd lives just the other side of the half block, doesn't he?" asked the young man.

"Yes, he does," growled Mr. Henry. "What has that to do with it?"

"Everything, if it's worked right," declared Frank. "Do you want me to buy that twenty feet for you?"

"You get a check for a thousand dollars if you do," promised his friend, "and we'll allow you fifteen for the lot."

"Will you give me a week, Mr. Henry?" The young man was excited.

"I will," replied Mr. Henry, looking at him in bewilderment.

"And take the deal out of the hands of the agents?"

His Point of View.

This week's story from the front: One of Gen. Allenby's advance patrols had ridden up a ridge in Palestine, and there, outspread before their eyes like a panorama, was the Holy City—Jerusalem.

It was some miles distant, but in the clear air the flat-roofed houses were plainly visible, broken here and there by domes and minarets.

Ejaculations expressive of surprised admiration broke from the lips of all the troopers—all but one man, who remained silent, his face, however, plainly expressing contemptuous disapproval.

"What do you think of it?" asked his officer, curious to learn the reason for his dissatisfaction.

"Awfu' scarce of chimbleys, sir," was the reply. "Awfu' scarce of chimbleys!"

"Chimneys! But, man, they don't need chimneys in Jerusalem. They burn charcoal."

"Oh, they do, do they? Then I wouldn't like to live there."

"Why not?"

"Well, sir, in civil life, you see, I am a chimney-sweep."

TIRED AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Warren Randles, Rothesay, Kings County, N.B., "I have three small children and had to stay in the house all winter. So when spring came I was all run down doing all my work and looking after the children. I felt all tired out, and looked on the gloomy side all the time. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the results were most satisfactory. I feel fine now, and am recommending the Nerve Food to others."

Lord Mayor's Banquet.

What a lord mayor's banquet was like up to the seventeenth century may be guessed from Dekker's description of one in "The Shoemaker's Holiday," where the chief guest was Henry V. After being told that a hundred tables were filled and to be refilled with beef, pork, mutton, minced pies and marchpane, one reads that "venison pasties walk up and down piping hot, like sergeants; beef and brewess comes marching in dry-vats; fritters and pancakes comes trowling in the wheelbarrows; hens and sausages hopping in porters' baskets, collops and eggs in scuttles, and tarts and custards comes quavering in in malt-shovels."

Gained Fame While Dying.

Antoine Watteau, one of France's foremost artists, painted his celebrated decorative panels while dying of the white man's scourge. He sprang from humble and poverty-stricken surroundings, and was forced to work on the brink of starvation for the greater part of his thirty-seven years. Just as his fame rose to national proportions his tubercular condition became worse and he worked desperately during his last few years to complete as much work as possible before he died.

New Box Carrier.

A new book carrier made of flexible material has pockets in its inner sides into which the covers of a book may be inserted and extension handles.

Sharpening Shears.

When scissors get blunt, sharpen them by opening and moving backward and forward on a piece of glass.

Respectability.

The more things a man is ashamed of, says George Bernard Shaw, the more respectable he is.

Loss of Arabian Literature.

Arabian literature, had it not suffered mutilation, would have remained a treasure house for the scholars of all lands. The disastrous fire at the Escurial, in 1671, probably inspired by bigotry, by which 8,000 volumes, mostly Arabian chronicles, were destroyed, was probably a greater loss than the burning of the Alexandrian library, caused by the Mohammedans.

Psychology.

Psychology is now recognized as a science, and is said to have originated with Pythagoras. Aristotle greatly improved it and stated its most important principle, that of the association of ideas. It deals with the phenomena, states and modifications of the human mind.

Palpitation of the Heart and Nerve Troubles

WERE CURED BY

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills

When the heart begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beat fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm and the least excitement or exertion seems to affect it.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable through this unnatural action of the heart.

To all sufferers from heart troubles we would advise the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which by their action in strengthening the heart and regulating the beat remove all the distressing conditions, and impart vigor and vitality to the system.

Mrs. Thomas Davidson, Mount Brydges, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer in the past with nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart. I tried several remedies, but without any good results. My son came in one day and advised me to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. After using one and a half boxes, I am fully recovered, and am in a perfect state of health, thanks to your valuable medicine."

VALUE OF JERUSALEM.

What the British Gained by Taking Holy City.

What is the advantage gained by the British in the possession of Jerusalem? Strategically the same advantage which the possessors of Egypt have always found in the possession of Palestine. That land is a fortress by which to hold the Asiatic invader far away from the Egyptian frontier, and from which to threaten him with attack. True it is not easy of access from Egypt, nevertheless, given a strong, hostile power in Asia, Egypt has always found it necessary to hold Palestine in order to protect itself. Politically and morally the gain is enormous. The conquest of Jerusalem will find its echo not only among the twelve million Jews, orthodox and unorthodox, infidels and believers, who look to Jerusalem as their sacred city and who are rejoicing everywhere in every land in the hope that its reclamation from Turkish misrule and tyranny may mean a Jewish national revival. Jerusalem is a sacred city for many times twelve million Christians, and many times twelve million Moslems. Its conquest by the British will consolidate politically, by its moral influence, the British position in Egypt, enhance Britain's prestige with its Moslem subjects in India, as also that of her allies in Moslem Africa, and it will tend to range all the Arabic-speaking subjects of Turkey on her side. It will have a profound influence on the minds of countless Russian peasants who look to a pilgrimage to Jerusalem with certainly as great a longing as do the most pious Jews, and it may consequently prove helpful in the general attitude of Russia toward the allies.

It will touch profoundly also the religious sentiment of France and Italy and Spain and Austria, from which Roman Catholic pilgrims in thousands yearly visit Jerusalem as a pious act. The simple people in those countries cannot help but look with a certain favor on the Christian power which has redeemed the Holy City and the sacred sites from the infidel. What part pilgrimages to the Holy Land play in all those countries, those only can realize who have visited Palestine. Enormous sums of money have been invested in hospices and institutions of every sort for the entertainment of pilgrims. Schools, hospitals, and religious establishments, Russian, Italian, Spanish, French, Austrian, German, English, Armenian, and even Abyssinian dot the Holy Land, and cluster especially in and about Jerusalem.—American Review of Reviews.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

BAG MATCHES HAT

This Is the Last Word in Fashion for the Shopper.

Handsome Affairs of Velvet, Silk, Satin and Metal Brocades Have Replaced Those of Cretonne.

We started with lovely cretonne knitting bags, blooming with roses and chrysanthemums, others made gay with gorgeously colored birds and butterflies. These were shirred and ribbon-trimmed and often had clusters of silk fruit as the finishing touch.

But these cretonne bags, attractive as they were, have quite faded into the background, making way for the more handsome affairs of velvet, silk, satins and wonderful metal brocades, writes Ena Shepherd in the Detroit News. Nor are they confined to knitting only. The knitting part is secondary. They are the most convenient and smart shopping bags one can imagine and the most troublesome of bundles disappear like magic into their vast depths.

The last word in fashion is the shopping bag with hat to match. The sketch shows an example of these. A huge shopping bag was developed in metal brocade, done in gold and black, was made on the order of a huge purse. The wide opening, bound with gold braid. The strong handles were of gold braid, too, and were fastened to the bag with gold braid rosettes. It was attractively lined with gold-colored silk. The hat to match made on military lines, was very smart with its erect brim—if brim one might call it—of the gold and black brocade.

The crown was soft and made of black velvet. A paradise spray added height and richness. This set was very striking, worn with a French blue satin coat with collar and cuffs of soft lustrous moleskin. The wide girdle was trimmed with narrow silk braid, and a bit of hand-embroidery, done in blue and gold, was used effectively on the waist.

The Twins Named.

"So you have twins at your house?" said Mrs. Nabor to little Jack.

"Yeasum," he said soberly, "two of them."

"What are they going to call them, my dear?"

"Well, I don't know, for sure, but I think their names is Thunder and Lightnin', 'cause that's the names papa called them when the doctor came in and told him about them."—New Puck.

Lord Mayor's Show in London

NOT for many a long day had London worn such a festive appearance as it assumed on Lord Mayor's day. The sun shone in a sky dappled with clouds, and a fresh breeze set the flags streaming gallantly from the flagmasts, and the pennons fluttered gaily on the cavalrymen's lances. The crowds thronging the route were certainly less dense than in pre-war days, and if there were fewer light-hearted youths to buy the gaily colored paper-ribbon whips, still the whips were there, a delight to the heart of London childhood. Paper handkerchiefs, too, with wonderful orders, and still more wonderful portraits of the King and Queen, wreathed in the folds of crossed Union Jacks, and yards of flimsy paper with gaudy prints of the Lord Mayor's coach were displayed to tempt the more sedate purchasers.

The route followed this year was the usual one, from the city by Fleet street, the Strand, Northumberland Avenue, and the embankment. Punctually at noon the procession left the Guildhall, headed by mounted city police and Canadian mounted troops in the place of honor. Next followed men of the royal naval division, the royal marine artillery, the royal marine light infantry, the navy auxiliary service, and the naval volunteer reserve. As the first strains of the bands sounded down Fleet street office windows flew open and became an animated sea of heads. The wartime office staffs, mostly girls, ran down to the streets, or balanced themselves precariously on window ledges, and scrambled to every available point of vantage.

Following the boys of the Warspite with their guns and crew, and the boys training at the technical school of the royal flying corps, came two motor lorries bearing a captured German aeroplane, the new well-known black crosses showing conspicuously on the wings. Behind the monster marched a sturdy contingent of city volunteers, men for the most part whose volunteering days were long since passed, but who once more had donned a uniform and shouldered a rifle in their country's hour of need. Behind them swung cadets, followed by boy scouts, their gay scarfs adding a brilliant touch of color to the procession.

To most people, however, by far the most significant part of the Lord Mayor's show were the women. For the first time that day they had been included in the procession and had taken their places in the marching ranks with the men. With one voice the crowd cheered, and cheered again as a battalion of women agricultural workers, carrying rakes and milking stools and leading a team of horses attached to a haycart, swung into view, their trim white coats shining in the sun. With an easy stride they march along and many heads turned instinctively to watch them out of sight. Lorries of laughing women munition workers followed, the girls blithely fluttering gamboge-colored hands—stained with the powder in the filling factories—and ready for a jest and gay word with the crowd who gave the "canaries" a rousing welcome. Field guns, strange objects in their "camouflage" war paint, and captured German guns bearing recent dates when they had fallen into the hands of gallant British regiments, were viewed with wonder and interest. Bands blared. Pipers marched with a brave swing of kilts to the skirl of bagpipes, their tartan ribbons streaming in the wind.

Still it was the women in the procession that fired the imagination and held the attention. It was the women that made one think. A contingent of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, in slouch hats and long khaki coats, marched as steadily as any company of "regulars." They lacked wholly the "snap" of the men, but a certain air of quiet and unalterable determination conveyed by that dark line of steadily marching women was prophetic of much, and augured ill for the powers that had set their faces against the great democracies of the world. Women of the W. A. A. C. have been in France for the last six months, and have proved their metal and "made good" with that celerity that has been one of the astonishments of the war. If the women provided matter for reflection, two tanks, with guns protruding like the eyes of a crab, provided the excitement of the procession. They rolled along the Strand as unconcernedly as if it were their natural sphere of action, and when a halt was called and they came to rest like any ordinary "General" they proved an absorbing attraction to some Chelsea pensioners who fought long before the era of tanks and aeroplanes, and 15-inch shells.

London had looked forward to the prospect of the Lord Mayor's show with supreme indifference. It was war time, and everything was different. Was it worth it this year? Yet London was the better for the show. It had taken on a new and deeper significance. The women and men, from all parts of the United Kingdom and the great dominions, marching together in one vast procession, equipped from end to end for national service, were earnest of the resolute determination of the whole empire to keep the sword drawn until victory crowned their efforts. And when it was all over London went about its business once more with refreshed hope, and a stronger resolve than ever to see things through to a finish.

The production of explosives in the United States during 1916 was in excess of 500,000,000 pounds, an increase of about 44,000,000 over 1915.

Thanksgiving Day In Burgess Pass

FOR one who thinks of Banff as the only place in the Canadian Rockies—or for those who think of summer days playing tennis, afternoon teas at the hotels, bridge and dances in the evenings, the following paragraphs may be of interest.

Having spent the summer and fall in the mountains, making my graduating climb of Cathedral (10,453 ft.) to become a member of the Alpine Club, staying in camp south of Hector and spending the remainder of the time at the Club House in Banff, I still had not had enough of the mountains and took the morning train from Banff to Field, where I had a full seven hours before leaving at night.

Where to go in that time was the question as there were so many delightful and charming spots. Burgess Pass was said to be a very beautiful walk, and being fond of walking I started out alone at 1.15 p.m. The trail was good, having been used by ponies all summer going to the Yoho Valley. It was a steady but gradual ascent all the time; the timber was heavy and beautiful, the autumnal tints on poplar trees and fruit bushes gave just the needed touch of color. Added to the beauty of the foliage were high banks of moss in varied shades of green and bronze and the bright scarlet of the pigeon berries was seen along the trail; a stream came rushing madly down the mountain side, as if to retard one's progress, but the usual "stepping stones" were there. I already felt repaid by my first hour's climb. Mount Stephen and Cathedral could be seen to advantage at this point and needless to say the summit of the latter interested me, for I had not forgotten my seven hours climb to reach it.

Time passed, at last the peak loomed up which I thought must surely be my goal. I immediately took a short cut over some rock and shale, thinking it would soon lead to my wonderful view, but alas! nothing but dense timber was ahead. After several attempts the trail was found and it was a steady climb till another ridge loomed up. As Mount Burgess was now on my left and I was walking along the base of the summit, and could see the sky line between some scraggy trees (they were now fewer and farther between) I knew it was no distance to my summit. Two and a half hours had now gone by, though the day was perfect and the sky cloudless, so that one could obtain the best of views, I wondered if it would be worth the climb.

Unless one has climbed, the indescribable expectancy as you reach a summit cannot be understood, nor can it be even by those who climb. You hold your breath and wonder in which direction to look first; each step means so much, like steps taken slowly and deliberately in some great crisis in life. They are of such import. The first snow-capped peak appears—a few more steps are taken when a glacial hung summit comes into view; then more peaks with their snow fields, even the crevasses were discernable, another few steps and the summit is reached; never as long as I live shall that moment be forgotten; looking ahead for the summit I little dreamt of the view behind. Mountains, mountains in all directions, as far as the eye could reach—Mount Burgess to my left with Emerald Lake lying at its base (more green, if possible, than any emerald) in a most beautiful valley.

President and Vice-President ahead of me, Mount Wapta to my right, with its pony trail leading to the Yoho on its side, Cathedral and Mount Stephen southeast of it, and to the south range upon range of snow-capped mountains. I was literally dumb and numb of soul. No thought or words could express such a moment, it was several minutes before I could think, and then I found my soul breathing a prayer of joy—utter joy in the fact that I was alive and could enjoy such a view—it surpassed even the Grand Canyon of Arizona. To be under the canopy of heaven with no living thing in sight as far as the eye could reach, where only silence is heard, for a silence such as that is not silence, for the "Infinite" speaks. It surpassed any service ever attended on Thanksgiving Day. I was not only on the summit, but further away I knew not where, on another plane; another world—at least in the world of thought.

The sun was now dipping behind Mount Burgess and how quickly the colors changed, the Emerald Lake became the color of olivines, the mountains began to grow hazy. It was time to leave or darkness would overtake me, so I started, loath to go. After an hour and a quarter walking steadily I sat down to rest; the coloring was now in all the rich tints of Roman days. The mountains were blues and purples, the pine trees looked dark and dismal, and the yellows and reds of other trees looked deeper and richer than they had an hour ago.

The dusk was falling quickly, and the path was barely discernible when nearing the end of the trail. The lights of Field now began twinkling through the trees like so many stars. There were fifty minutes before my train left, though one had just passed and I wondered if I had mistaken the time on account of the mountain and Pacific time, so why leave! I sat down on the trail, the night had come, the day was passed and my wonderful walk a thing of the past, but what memories, and what a Thanksgiving Day. One never to be forgotten. "Alone!" No, one is not alone when with Nature, for many voices are heard: such were my thoughts at this moment when I heard a sound—what was moving on the trail? A figure emerged from the gloom, and he too was "alone." I spoke first and asked if the train that had just passed was the regular, and to my joy it was not. This "Lonely Figure" I had walked fourteen miles. We went back to the hotel together. Kindred spirits and one with nature. He told me of his travels in the Alps and the Sierras, but nothing touched this for grandeur. He asked if there was much to see at Banff, and I said nothing that compares with this. "I should," he said, "imagine it were rather the edge of things," and my answer said, that expressed it perfectly. We both agreed that to see the real nature of the mountains the beaten trails and high roads should be left and the pony trails and high roads should be taken, either on foot or riding, then the grandeur, the magnificence, and awe inspiring Canadian Rockies can be seen to the best advantage. A few days should be spent at Field, or if time will not allow, at least miss one train to go through Burgess Pass, for the whole trip is certainly worth that one glorious view.—E. C. McD.

Amethyst's Colors.

A man recently brought back to a jewelry store three rings set with amethysts which had faded to a pale yellow within a few months after he had bought them. He then discovered that instead of amethysts the gems were topazes. The latter vary in color from pale yellow to deep violet and purple. Under high temperatures amethysts change color, becoming first yellow, then green, and finally entirely colorless. Under ordinary temperatures, however, genuine amethysts do not change color.

Germans Occupy Whole Northern Portion Of The Russian Lines

Russians Are Retreating in Disorder--Cities Are Evacuated and Vast Quantities of Food Stuffs and Munitions Are Falling Into the Hands of the Enemy--Germany Has Demanded the Occupation of Petrograd as a Guarantee of Her Peace Treaty and Also Wants Three Year Trade Agreement.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Jos. Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 22.—The Germans have occupied the entire northern portion of the Russian front. The Russians are retreating in disorder. Russian cavalry is being rushed northward.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Germany has demanded the occupation of Petrograd as a guarantee of its peace treaty with Russia and a three-year trade agreement, according to a despatch from Petrograd, received here to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The People's Commissaries, "Bolsheviki Ministry," issued a proclamation declaring they agreed to peace with the Central Powers, with enormous concessions, to save the country from final exhaustion and the revolution from ruin, according to despatches received to-day. The Commissaries said they would accept the conditions "until the German revolution changes them."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 21.—A proclamation ordering resistance to the German advance, and calling on all Russians to defend the Fatherland, and declaring Petrograd in a state of siege, was issued from the Smolny Institute, the Bolsheviki headquarters. The proclamation was issued at the order of the People's Commissaries, and is signed by Premier Lenine and Ensign Krylenko, the Bolsheviki Commander-in-Chief.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Austrian and German troops are advancing in the south simultaneously with the Germans in the north, and Ukrainian troops are reported to have joined them against the Bolsheviki, according to a Petrograd despatch to the Morning Post. The Polish legions of the Russian Army have offered an armistice in the prevailing civil war on condition of free passage in any direction, and are now trying to reach Warsaw.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(Official).—Early last night a large party of the enemy raided two of our posts in the neighbourhood of the Ypres-Roulers Railway, and a few of our men are missing. On the remainder of the British front there is nothing special to report.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Defence to the death against Germany is ordered in the proclamation of Russian Commissaries, Reuter's Petrograd correspondent telegraphs. The Commissaries appeal to the soldiers to destroy railways and provisions, and compel the bourgeoisie to dig trenches under penalty of death. The Commissaries appeal to the country, and intimates that the Germans plan the capture of Petrograd.

"The German generals," it says, desire to establish their own order in Petrograd and Kiev. The Republic is in the gravest danger. The duty of the Russian workmen and peasants is the defence to the death of the Republic against the masses of Bourgeoisie and the Imperialists of Germany.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb .22.—(Official).—Heavy artillery fighting on the whole front is reported in to-day's official announcement. The statement follows:

"Heavy artillery fighting occurred along the whole front, especially in the regions of the Forest of Pinon, Chevreux, and Californic Plateau, the Aisne front, Butte Dumosnil, Champagne front and Hartman's Weilerkopf, Alsace. There was no infantry action."

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—A regiment of Russian Esthonian troops has gone over to the Germans, the War Office announced.

Esthopia is one of the Baltic provinces of Russia, into which the Germans began an advance on the resumption of hostilities, giving the official explanation that these provinces were largely German, and that the Bolsheviki were persecuting the inhabitants. Troops from Moon Island crossed to the mainland and captured several Esthonian towns, and another force was taken by boat to Reval.

The German troops advancing in Esthonia have captured Hapsal, on the coast, near the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, and advanced beyond Ronneburg, Wolamar and Spandan. They marched into Rieshitha, about 100 miles south-east of Riga, and were received with rejoicing by the inhabitants, the statement says.

An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Petrograd says the evacuation of Finland has been ordered by the Commissaries.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

MADRID, Feb. 22.—The Spanish ship Marcaspic was shelled to-day.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Russian volunteers and Polish legionaries quartered in the same town entrained for the front to-day, headed by a military band. Their attitude towards each other was most harmonious.

Clouds Of Robins Pass Over Florida Announcing Spring

Great flocks of robins migrating north have recently appeared in Florida. In the absence of present warmth Magistrate Dumble dropped this reminder of returning comfort, stating that a letter from a friend in the south had described the northward flight of the red breasts. Coming from the south tropics they follow the funnel of the continent up through Central America and spread out from the Texas line to all the States and to the Canadian provinces. Apparently the robins return to their native sections. Hence last year's brood born in Peterborough may instinctively come back to this city. It is a wonderful natural phenomenon and is reported to be true of all the migrating birds. Magistrate Dumble remarked that every spring a wren reappears at a little bird house he had set out near his door. Summer is formally opened for the Magistrate when this little visitor calls to him some bright morning with a chatter of greeting that all is well with the world and life is worth living.

DEPUTATION NOT SATISFIED WITH THE RESULT

General Meeting Will Be Called to Discuss the Railway Situation —Mammoth Delegation Will Wait Upon the Government

UNSATISFACTORY REPLY

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—That in view of the unsatisfactory reply of the Prime Minister to the deputation presenting the resolutions passed at the meeting held recently in Toronto, a general meeting of both associations, comprising all municipalities and public service organizations in Ontario, be held in the city of Toronto to discuss the railway situation, and the clauses of the Revised Railway Act, and to prepare for a campaign to secure our rights."

The foregoing resolution, expressing dissatisfaction with the result of the interview with the Government to-day, was passed at a meeting held to-night at the Chateau Laurier by the representatives of the Hydro-electric Association and the municipalities, who to-day asked for the nationalization of the Grand Trunk Railway along the lines laid down in the Drayton-Acworth report, electrification of the branch lines, and the revision of the Railway Act so as to give municipalities full control of their streets.

Sir Adam Beck, Mayor Church of Toronto, and the other delegates were present at the meeting, and it was stated that the resolution was stated that a mass meeting would be called at Toronto within a fortnight, passed unanimously. It was also at which all the municipalities that have passed Hydro by-laws will be represented, as well as other municipalities. At that meeting arrangements would be made for a vigorous propaganda. It was also intimated that a mammoth delegation will wait upon the Government during the approaching session of Parliament to again press the views of the Ontario municipalities upon the Government.

GERMAN RECRUITS MUTINY

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22.—German recruits in a camp at Beverloo, Belgium, thirty miles east of Brussels, mutinied and shot several officers, after one of the latter had sabred a soldier. A number of the mutineers are said to have been court-martialed and shot.

JERICHO IS TAKEN

British War Office Announces That the Town Famed in Bible History Has Fallen Into Hands of Gen. Allenby's Forces

IMPORTANT ADVANCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Feb. 22. — The British have captured Jericho in Palestine, the War Office reports.

Since the capture of Jerusalem, the British have been pushing ahead steadily, striking out to the north and east. Official sttaements from London in the last few days have reported rapid progress and apparently the Turks have offered no determined resistance. Aside from its historical importance, in connection with the British plan to free the Holy Land from the domination of the Turks, the capture of Jericho is of little significance. It consists merely of a group of squalid hovels and a few shops, with about three hundred inhabitants.

The city was entered by Australian troops yesterday. Little opposition was encountered. Subsequently the Australians established themselves on the line of the Jordan and the Wadi Auja. The official statement reports continuation of bad weather. North and northwest of Jerusalem British advanced positions were extended slightly and rendered secure.

NINE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY DIE IN FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PEABODY, Mass., Feb. 22.—Nine persons, all members of the family of Morris Miller, lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the Miller home, near here, early to-day. Reuben Miller, a boy of 19, employed on a neighbouring farm, was the only member of the family who escaped. The dead included Morris Miller and his wife and seven children, the oldest being twenty years and the youngest, two months.

8.4 Mills Separate School Rate For 1918

At a special meeting of the Separate School Board on Wednesday night this year's rate covering the estimated expenditure was struck at 8.40 mills. Last year's rate was 7.52 mills, making an increase of .88 mills.

No Danger Of Food Famine For Canadians

However Canadian Railways Will Carry On Food Drive on an Unprecedented Scale

Canadian Press Despatch:

MONTREAL, eFb. 22.—There is no danger of a food famine in any part of Canada due to the railway tie-up, as is feared in the United States, according to W. N. Neal, General Secretary of the War Board. The conditions overseas regarding food supplies, however, is such that for the next few weeks a food drive on an unprecedented scale is to be carried on by the Canadian railways, in concert with the Admiralty to supply the Allies in Europe. This will not have the effect, it is declared, of interfering with Canada's own food supply, but it will necessitate a further reduction of the passenger service.

99 Cents As Maximum Price For Oats Now

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 22.—A maximum price of 99 cents a bushel for oats was set by the Council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at a meeting this morning.

Majority Of Exemptions Have Been Granted To Farmers

BRITISH LINES HAVE BEEN AGAIN EXTENDED

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Feb. 22.—The British line on the Western front to-day extends from the vicinity of the North Sea to the neighbourhood of the Oise River.

General Haig's forces thus extended their holdings through the taking over of a considerable sector held by the French south of St. Quentin. Except for the French sector, near the coast, and the Belgian sector, the British now occupy the entire front from the coast to the Oise.

SWEEPING CHANGE IN TIME TABLE OF PETERBORO' TRAINS

Removal of One G. T. R. Train Will Save Thirty Tons of Coal a Week —Reduce Service to Lakefield

THE C. P. R. SCHEDULE

Radical changes in the schedule of train service through Peterboro are included in the War Board's order that becomes effective on Sunday, March 3rd.

The following is a synopsis of the time table on the G. T. R., but it is subject to further modification:

The 8.10 a.m. train to Port Hope is cancelled, and also the 12.35 p. m. train from Port Hope.

The morning train that arrives here at 7.55 from Lindsay is withdrawn, and also the train leaving here for Lindsay at 8.30 p.m.

The evening train to Lakefield leaving here at 5.42 o'clock and returning at 7 o'clock, is cancelled.

There will be only one train daily to and from Lakefield. It will leave Peterboro at 12.05 p.m., instead of 12.40 as at present, and returning will leave Lakefield at 1.20 p.m., instead of 1.55.

CONNECTION WITH THE MAIN LINE.

There will be a morning train up from Belleville as usual. It will not only remain here for the return trip in the afternoon, but will replace the train that is now making the Lakefield run.

By these cancellations, the War Board has removed one train from the G.T.R. service in the Peterboro district. This has been made possible by withdrawing the morning train to Port Hope, which, returning at noon, took the Lakefield train. Under the new schedule the Belleville train doubles up on the Lakefield service.

This train from Belleville, under the war table, will arrive here in the morning, go to Lakefield at noon, return here at 1. 55 p.m., and leave immediately for Belleville at 2 o'clock instead of 1.30, as at present.

In the meantime, there is adequate and fast service to Toronto and to the main line at Belleville and Port Hope.

Trainmen have estimated that the removal of this train means a saving of thirty tons of coal a week, representing $240, or a yearly saving of 1560 tons, and its value of $12,40.

And this is only one of a large number of cancellations that might be enumerated. There will be only one to and from Madoc daily. It will leave Madoc at 8.15 a.m., and Belleville at 10 p.m.

THE C.P.R. SERVICE.

The following are the alterations to the C.P.R. schedule, but the running time through Peterboro will not be known for a day or two.

There will be no noon train to or from Montreal. That is the present noon train which now goes to Montreal has been diverted to Ottawa, and will arrive here about 12.20 p.m., and the afternoon train west bound leaves Ottawa instead of Montreal, pasing through Peterboro about four o'clock.

The night Montreal train leaving the North Toronto station at 10 p.m., is advanced to 9.30 p.m., arriving in Peterboro about 11.30 p.m., and the Ottawa train from the Union Station, now at 11.10 p.m., will leave at 10.40, arriving in Peterboro at 1 p.m.

The changes also affect the hours of the morning trains west bound.

A GERMAN DRIVE IN SWITZERLAND MAY COME NEXT

Electric Power of That Country is as Badly Needed by Huns As Were Belgium's Resources at the Beginning of the War

SEVERAL POSSIBILITIES

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—A German drive through Switzerland to obtain the electric power of that country, much needed by the Germans, is predicted as a possibility by Will Irwin, author and war correspondent, who has just returned to the United States from the western front.

"There is an attractive series of possibilities before Von Hindenburg," declared Irwin. "My opinion is that he will strike to put France out of the war, although he may strike to obtain possession of the French ports. The drive may be made through Switzerland. The Germans need Switzerland's electric power as much as they needed Belgium's resources at the beginning of the war and Switzerland will be unable to put up any such splendid fight as did Belgium.

Labour Men Seek Evening Meeting With Council Of Women

Because the meetings of the Local Council of Women are held during the afternoon, the Trades and Labour Council instructed Secretary Stevens to request an evening appointment for a conference the Labour men have sought. The committee of three members would not only lose a half day's pay but also their bonus by meeting the Council of Women during the afternoon. They propose to solicit the interest of the ladies in securing more favourable factory conditions for young boys and girls, especially for the girls.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH ROUMANIA START TO-MORROW

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22.—Peace negotiations between Roumania and the Central Powers will be started to-morrow, according to reports reaching here to-day. The Roumanian Premier and Roumanian Foreign Minister Averescu re said to be in Bucharest, the former capital of Roumania, where Austrian Foreign Minister Czernin was reported to have gone several days ago.

Kaiser Going To Russian Front

(Special to the Toronto Star and Peterborough Examiner).

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22. — Kaiser Wilhelm is going to Riga and Warsaw, it was reported here to-day.

Central Appeal Judge Gives Them Until June 1st to Insure Farm Work Being Done—Further Exemption Depends Upon Results Secured.

NUMEROUS APPEALS

Ottawa, Feb. 21. — So far the majority of the exemptions granted by the Central Appeal Judge, Mr. Justice Duff, have been in the case of farmers. The larger number of appeals to the Central Appeal Court come from those who plead exemption on the score of agricultural production, nearly half of the 4,000 cases already entered being young men who claim they are employed in some form of farm work. The appeals in this case are especially numerous from the western provinces. In each case where the evidence substantiates that the applicant for exemption is a bona fide farm worker, and intends to work on a farm this year, the court is granting exemption.

TO INSURE COMPLIANCE.

With a view to insuring that the condition of exemption shall be complied with, the exemption is granted in the first instance only until June 1. Each person thus exempted is required to report to the District Registrar in May as to his present vocation and plans for the summer work. If he is actually on the farm carrying out the promise to help increase production, the extension will be automatically renewed for the balance of the year. In November, he will have to report again, giving results of the season's work. So long as he gives evidence of reasonable result in food production he will be exempt from military service.

"JUNE 1" NEED NOT ALARM.

This is the policy being adopted to prevent the securing of exemption under false pretences. All those who find their exemptions read only until June 1, need have no fear that they will then be ordered to report for military service, unless they have failed to carry out the promise made on their exemption applications.

OTHER SUCCESSFUL APPLICATIONS.

Other grounds for exemption far granted by the Central Appeal Judge, include the cases of toolmakers and other specially skilled mechanics, whose places could not be readily filled, and the cases of persons ordered to report who belong to families all the other male members of which have already gone to the war.

BANK CLERKS A LARGE CLASS

Next to the farmers the largest class of applicants are the bankclerks on whose behalf the banks have appealed. The decision in the majority of these cases is still pending. Decision is also pending in regard to several score of railway employees whom the railway companies claim are necessary for railway work in Canada.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS.

Conscientious objectors constitute a large class, but their claims for exemption probably will not be upheld unless they can show that their conversion to pacificism took place before

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22ND, 1918.

ECONOMY BUT NO FUEL.

The failure of the fuel supply in Peterborough might have caused less heartburning had the people not been fed on promises of sufficiency. As early as last spring, when the city was empowered to establish a fuel depot, there were glowing assurances that coal reserves would be piled up here, providing a dual protection against a possible shortage and inflation of prices. The emergency, to meet which last year's Council promptly engaged itself, found the municipal depot absolutely empty, and the prices that gradually soared have been far from satisfactory to a public that had been led to expect an effective control.

The officials who assumed the duty of operating the municipal fuel depot probably should not be criticized for their inability to foresee the restrictions that eventually crippled their improvised machinery, but it is generally understood that they have never tapped the $35,000 which they were empowered to borrow for their prospective purchases and expenses. The coal that was bought was paid for in advance by citizens, and the interest their money yielded the City all but covered the expenses of delivery. In other words, this was a "safety first" plan of economy, and seeming efficacy. The fact that the Council's work was voluntary restrains an easy and perhaps futile criticism, yet they were the self-appointed agents of the citizens. Hence it may be said that they laboured not wisely but too well when they devised schemes of saving interest instead of getting coal. When shipments were coming freely last year the orders should have been rushed, and, more important still, the original plan of storing away a reserve supply should have been carried into effect. Six weeks of unrelenting winter with their present climax of acute scarcity of both coal and wood, and consequent distress, have stripped of all merit the near-sighted "pay as you go" plan the Council pursued.

Furthermore, the City officials were always anxious to avoid even the appearance of business opposition to the retail fuel merchants, but the suspicion will not down that some of the dealers were not so solicitous of the Council's interests. For reasons that need not be recited here, the censure of the public is for the most part directed to the City officials, who may have been loaded with a greater responsibility than they believed they were assuming. The City's discouragements have, at any rate, revealed the business fraternity that is practically shut to municipal buying.

SUCH FAILURE COUNTS AS SUCCESS.

One cannot help being even more surprised than pleased, though the pleasure is great, that there should have come from Berlin a despatch declaring that in the thirty-nine air raids made by the Allies over German territory only five persons were killed and nine wounded.

As this statement is followed by another to the effect that the "material damage" done by the raiders was insignificant, the obvious desire of those who wrote and sent out the despatch was to show how inefficiently the Allies carry on aerial warfare. Doubtless, or at least probably, both statements minimize the truth, but at least they give conclusive evidence from the best of witnesses that the aviators of the Allies drop their bombs with great care and seek to accomplish legitimate military results, not to scatter indiscriminate slaughter among civilian populations.

If they tried to do so, of course they could kill as many nursemaids, postmen, notaries public, and patients and nurses in hospitals as have the German fliers. They can well afford to have no such achievements on their records, even though they were excusable as reprisals in kind.—New York Times.

REAL FRATERNITY.

Canada is treated as a part of the United States in the distribution of coal, another step in the consolidation of the English-speaking countries of the world to secure peace and freedom for all. Closer political union is not necessary when the same motives inspire, for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life.—New York Commercial.

KEEP CHICKENS.

"Keep chickens" is a slogan that should appeal to nearly every householder in Canada. The scraps from the table of an average household will provide most of the food necessary to keep half a dozen hens in flourishing condition, and these, if properly housed and cared for, will reciprocate with a surprisingly large number of nice fresh eggs for the family table. Fifteen dozen eggs per hen per year is by no means an impossible production.

Nearly every back yard is big enough to accommodate half a dozen hens, and they are most cheerful and agreeable backyard tenants. The far-seeing householder will put up his little henhouse as soon as the snow is gone, and will make arrangements for his stock of hens at once.—St. Thomas Journal.

CANADIAN WOMEN IN ENGLAND.

According to a staff correspondent of the Calgary Herald, there are 27,500 Canadian soldiers families being supplied with rations by the Quartermaster-General's department in England. That is to say these Canadian women and children are getting from the British army stores the food that is needed for the army. This, if true, can not be right, says the Ottawa Journal-Press. Making every allowance for the natural desire of Canadian women to be as near as possible to their soldier husbands and sons in this time of war, it can not be right that so many should stay in England using food which England is badly in want of. Excuse exists for such women as are useful in war work, but hardly for others.

The Herald correspondent says the British authorities are anxious that these women and children should return to Canada and that arrangements are being made to provide vessels to carry them here. That would be common sense. As a sample of the other thing, The Journal-Press heard yesterday of a case where a Canadian officer, getting three months leave of absence, has just landed in Canada without his wife, who remains in England because somebody in authority ordered women off the steamship at Liverpool. And this steamship sailed, we are told, with just 12 passengers.

Generally speaking, it would be well for Canadian women in England, or thinking of going there, to remember that sure trouble and distress are ahead for those who shall be abroad when the war ends. Probably not for a year after the finish of hostilities will it be possible for them to secure transportation to Canada. Every ship that is available will be used to carry home the soldiers, and the wives and children will have to wait till the men have been accommodated. If they are wise they will take the advice of the authorities and hurry to Canada now.

Gnats of Many Varieties.

The gnat is only one of the many species of mosquito known to dipterists. Altogether there are no fewer than 35 as described as natives of Europe, while as many as 100 different varieties are scattered over the rest of the world. Of this large number some are known by the Spanish name of mosquito—that is, "little fly"—while others are content with the title of "gnat"; but from a scientific point of view there is no difference between the insect known under these different popular names.

A Useful Screen.

A useful contrivance for holding newspapers, books or sewing is made by sewing pockets of a suitable size to a plain two or three section screen about three feet high—procurable at any furniture or department store for a mere nothing. When not in use this screen can be folded together and stowed away in a very small space; but, if prettily covered in chintz, it can be appropriately used in almost any room of the house.

Would Rather Walk.

When Nellie's father came in on his horse he got off, picked her up, and put her on the horse's back while he shut the gate. No sooner had he turned his back than he heard the sound of horse's hoofs and knew that the horse had begun to run for the stable. He looked around quickly, expecting to find her badly hurt, but instead she had slipped off and stood placidly smiling. "I fought I preferred to walk," she replied.

A Wasted Nose.

Between Edinburgh and Carlisle a brawny, middle-aged Scotchman entered a train one day, relates The Youth's Companion. His Highland garb and the fact that he took snuff freely from a large box and offered it to others to "help their ain sels," attracted the attention of the other occupants of the compartment. At Newcastle an Englishman whom nature had gifted with an extremely large nose joined the other travelers. He seated himself opposite the Scot, who beamed with pleasure and at once offered his snuffbox. When the Englishman declined it, the astonished Scot said: "Dinna ye snuff?" "No," answered the Saxon. "Man," replied the Scot, "it's a calamity, for ye hae wonderful accommodation for't."

LOUD LONDON NEWSBOYS.

Objections to Their Variety of "Wuxtry—Just Out" Cry.

The crying of exaggerated news by irresponsible news vendors has lately again assumed the dimensions of a public nuisance.

There was a flagrant instance of this scandal recently. In various parts of London and the suburbs were to be heard newsboys calling out "Great British naval victory!" and in consequence they found a ready sale.

It was hoped that when posters were suppressed, in the interests of economy in paper, another valuable result would also be attained in preventing the nerves of the public being continually excited by "bills" bearing "scare" lines.

At the present time, when most persons are working at great tension, and so many have near relatives whose lives may be at stake in a particular action, it is considered most important in official quarters that every means should be employed to prevent the public being exploited and their nerves unnecessarily worked upon by the scaremongers of the street.

It may be recalled that early in the war the police authorities found means to suppress the nuisance created by the men and boys who made a sudden eruption at certain centres at night and continued yelling their news to the distraction of all the residents in the neighborhood.

Similar action was taken by the police when the thousands of workers in certain Government offices were seriously disturbed in the evening by the irrepressible newsboys, who played on the anxiety of the persons always to be found in the vicinity. It is hoped, therefore, that the recent recrudescence of the "catchpenny" nuisance may receive the attention of the police authorities with similarly successful results.

A high official at Scotland Yard pointed out that to cry false news is, of course, an indictable offence, and that it is open to any member of the public to prosecute the offender. The difficulties in the way of doing so, however, are obvious, for by the time the purchaser of a paper has discovered the imposition of the newsboy he has vanished. A constable has no power to detain a boy while he verifies the truth of his statement, so that he is in no better position to deal with an offender.

The official suggested that something might be done in the matter by the newspaper proprietors themselves by having a conference and taking steps to discourage the bawling of news in the streets.

It is, however, obviously impossible for the management of newspapers to exercise control over the thousands of irresponsible men and boys, whose sole object is to sell out their stock of papers, and the public looks to the police themselves with far more confidence for a redress of the evil.—London Globe.

Entitled to Prefix "Sir."

The Order of the British Empire was instituted in June last. It follows the precedents of other similar orders and consists of five classes, and is awarded to both men and women for services rendered to the Empire at home or abroad. The first two classes, in the case of men, carry the honor of knighthood, and in the case of women the privilege of prefixing the title "Dame" to their names. Sir Charles Gordon, of Montreal, was the first Canadian to receive the Knighthood of the Order of Empire in August last. The five classes of the order for men, with the letters which the different members are entitled to affix to their names, are: Knights Grand Cross (G.B.E.), Knights Commanders (K.B.E.), Commanders (C.B.E.), Officers (O.B.E.), and Members (M.B.E.). The five classes for women are: Dames Grand Cross (G.B.E.), Dames Commanders (C.B.E.), Officers (O.B.E.), and Members (M.B.E.).

Sir Frank Baillie, who has recently received the Order, is president of the Canadian Aeroplanes, Limited, and a director of the Aviation Department of the Imperial Munitions Board. He was at one time private secretary of the late Senator Cox, and later was secretary of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Co., general manager of the Metropolitan Bank and senior member of the stock brokerage firm of Baillie, Wood & Croft. He organized the Canadian Cartridge Co. of Hamilton and refunded the profits of $759,248 to the Empire for patriotic purposes.

SPLENDID ADDRESS ON DEMOCRACY BEFORE COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Mrs. W. R. Morris' Paper Was Most Entertaining and Instructive—Considerable Business Transacted by the Council

At the regular monthly meeting of the Council of Women, held yesterday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., at which the Presi- W. R. Morris gave a most interest- W. K. Morris gave a most interesting talk on "Democracy." In her address, Mrs. Morris covered briefly and concisely a wide range of ideas and thought. The principles of democracy, she said, were brought out by the present war. The national cry is to keep its word and safeguard the rights of small nations and see that they are permitted to carry out their own ideas. In the present war the principles at stake were the rights of a democracy. It is a war of such. In our efforts to safeguard a democracy we have all suffered. The boys and men who went have suffered and died and they found the principles worth dying for and worth living up to. If we feel the price of democracy the boys have so dearly bought, worth living up to, we have come to the new patriotism which means a love of humanity and the wish to educate ourselves to serve in duties of citizenship.

The meaning of a democracy is a government controlled by the people for the benefit of all. In Canada we have had such a government for generations.

The ideals of it are set forth in the teaching of Christ, and it is the duty of the individual to learn these ideals and consider whether we have appreciated the ideals of democracy.

The facts revealed by Mrs. McElhiney make one realize that the citizens' duty in a democracy is heavy, and that the average citizen has failed as a citizen of a democracy when such a condition exists. We have not done our duty to the state. In a country controlled by the people we are far from the ideals of democracy when we find such conditions exist.

If there is a lack of the ideal working out there is a remedy. It lies in the dawn of a new patriotism of education of citizens.

There are two principles contained in the new patriotism. First, we must educate ourselves to the duties and responsibilities of citizenship in a democracy and to spread a spirit of knowledge and service. Good citizenship contains two principles — our duty to our neighbour and our duty to the state. The first means to uphold the standards of Christianity, the second to learn what responsibility rests on the individual in a democracy, and that rights cannot be maintained if duties are neglected. With the whole world at war for democracy the standards are not hard to see. In fulfilling our duty to our neighbour we are doing our duty to the state, and when we consider our neighbour we are becoming better citizens and are helping the state. All points lead back to one start. If we believe it worth living up to the teaching of Christ we have come back to a new patriotism which forces us to educate ourselves to our duty of good citizenship which is based on intelligent citizenship and willingness to serve.

Labour Deputation.

The deputation of Messrs. Dillon, Doris and Marchant, who, representing labour, were to have met the Council of Women, regarding shorter hours for factory girls, did not appear.

Nicholls Hospital Alumnae.

Nicholls Hospital Alumnae have joined the Council and will send a representative.

Finance Report.

Miss Davidson reported a balance on hand of $27.48 in the bank.

Food Conservation.

In the mater of food conservation the three sub-committees were heard from. The school committee reported that they had approached the Board of Education, asking to have the children taught food conservation, and value, but the Board had replied that they were hampered by the regulations of the Educational Department. The Vacant Lots committee reported that no work had been done as yet but the Horticultural Society is willing to help and will go to the School Board. The Speakers' subcommittee reported that Mrs. Johns had been active securing a list of speakers to address the different societies.

National Council.

Mrs. F. C. Neale read a splendid and comprehensive resume of the meeting in November of the National Council in Peterborough. The report indicated a debate over the support or non-support of union government. One party maintained the support was delving into party politics; the other, that it being a national asset was permissable.

Decision Was Left Over.

The National Council will petition the Government to adjust the storage of eggs in vast quantities. They will also petition the government that the play "Damaged Goods" shall be allowed for educational purposes.

Women at Police Court.

Mrs. McElhiney appeared on behalf of the Local Council's idea of sending two representatives to the police court. She said the support of another lady present would be very helpful and would probably bar the idlers who come to be entertained, and bar the young boys from attending. In her talk Mrs. McElhiney revealed what horrible social conditions exist, generating mostly from common dances. After a spirited discussion on the remedies for such condition, in which Miss F. Hatton expassed her opinion that a change in law alone could rectify them, Mrs. Neale, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Medd and Mrs. Walter Rogers were chosen as representatives at the next sitting of the court at which a woman or girl was involved.

Board of Education.

The suggestion of two lady members for the 1919 Board of Education was confirmed.

Miss Hatton, Delegate.

Miss Hatton was chosen as representative to the annual convention for the care of the Feeble Minded, to be held in Toronto on Tuesday next.

National Executive.

The meeting of the National Executive will be held in March, 21—22, in Ottawa.

75 Tons of Coal From Factories And Armouries

Investigation of Alleged Case of Hoarding Ordered by Chief Thompson This Afternoon

MANY HOMES ARE COLD

TO-DAY'S COAL SUPPLIES.

| | |
|---|---|
| Armouries | 25 tons. |
| C.G.E. Co. | 30 tons. |
| De Laval Co. | 20 tons. |
| | 75 tons. |

As a last resort, the city turned to several of the big industrial plants for supplies of coal, and to-day 75 tons were sold in small orders of from 200 to 300 pounds. First, Mr. E. G. Patterson placed 30 tons of egg coal at the disposal of Chief Thompson, and Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, of the De Laval Company, responded with 20 tons of soft coal, and the Armouries first offer of 15 tons was later increased to 25.

The Chief stated this afternoon that the number of orders received will approximate one thousand. Early in the day he marshalled a delivery system, and finally rounded up six teams, one single sleight and all the express men that were willing to haul coal.

Three teams, each with two men, were set to work on the soldiers' excess stores. This coal was weighed at the city scales. Two teams were allotted to the C.G.E. Company's surplus, with Mr. Barry Evans in charge. This coal was bagged and drawn to the Taylor company's yards, where it was weighed by Detective Meagher and Mr. F. W. Miller, who also handled the cash receipts.

One team, the single sleigh and various nondescript outfits worked from the De Laval Company, where the orders were filled, and weighed on platform scales.

Saved the Day.

This timely assistance from the factories and the Militia Department was appreciated beyond expression by the hundreds of citizens who shared in this temporary relief. This afternoon the stream of applicants was reduced to a trickle, and their disappointment, sometimes peevishness, was not mollified by the promises that the railways might roll in with overdue cars to-morrow.

Innumerable stories of distress bordering on extreme suffering might be recorded in to-day's experience by the Police Department.

In one home the mother is an invalid, and the daughter is going to the hospital. There was no fuel in this house.

"I broke up the woodbox to get breakfast with this morning," said a man, who was not content until he was assured of a supply.

"We have no heat except that from a coal oil stove," was the statement of a woman, and so on.

Chief Investigating.

This afternoon Chief Thompson sent a policeman to accompany Mr. Miller in an investigation of the quantity of coal in a certain house. A persistent rumour alleged that this citizen had five tons of coal, and had received another ton yesterday. If this is established as a fact there will be a little Police Court case for Magistrate Dumble.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Of approximately 750,000 tons of export freight at New York on February 1, about 400,000 tons were munitions of war which had been put out of date by the changes in fighting methods and which will not be exported at all. This left 350,000 tons of export freight, or enough to load 70 ships carrying 5,000-ton cargoes, without counting grain cargoes.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The American General Staff is watching a new German sweep into Russia with little more than academic interest, quite convinced that Russia is no longer a military factor to be considered, and that the situation has little bearing for the present at least upon other battle fronts. Large captures of military stores bear little relation to the equipment of troops on the Italian or Western fronts, officers here say, as guns and rifles captured can be of use only as long as the ammunition supply caputred with them holds out. Observers, both here and in Russia, it is understood, are satisfied that as the German drive continues it will meet with more effective resistance. The greater distance the Germans advance the more effective would be that resistance, military experts say, since it would require great numbers of troops to maintain the German transportation lines and give the best opportunity for guerilla warfare. The taking of Petrograd, it is conceded, might be desirable for its effect in Germany, and particularly in Austria.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 21.—Russian forces are reported to be evacuating Pskoff and Polstska. The capture of Minsk gravely endangers Holmel and Mohileff, where huge supplies of ammunition and foodstuffs are stored. The Austrians were reported to have taken Lutsk and Dubno.

Charity Board Wood Supply Being Conserved

Department Has No Intention of Distributing Wood as Ald. Dobbin Suggests

A few nights ago Ald. F. H. Dobbin made the announcement that the Charity Board had in stock something like forty cords of wood. Alderman Dobbin suggested that the wood be distributed. As a matter of fact the Charity Board has only twenty cords of wood, which, according to those who are in a position to know is just about sufficient to last the Charity Department two months. If this wood was disposed of now the Charity Department would be in the same position as he city when it purchased three thousand tons of coal and immediately proceeded to sell it. Had the coal been conserved like the wood which Alderman Dobbin referred too, present conditions would have been very much minimized. When the city was busy selling coal under the direction of Alderman Dobbin many of the local coal dealers were holding back and wondering whether it would be safe to order larger supplies of coal. Had the coal been stored the dealers would have had a free hand and much larger supplies of coal would have been secured for Peterborough.

Many Canucks And Britishers Are Eligible

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont, Feb. 22. — In the armouries at Niagara Falls last night a meeting was held in the interests of getting Canadians and Britishers in that city and district eligible for military service to come forward and register. Dr. Kee and Lieut. Forgie, of Toronto, both spoke, stating that there are 550,000 British and Canadians in the U. S. eligible for military service. First paper men among those who are seeking citizenship with Uncle Sam, it was announced, are still subject to call by Britain.

The Acadien was formerly the steamer Senlac of Halifax. She was bound from Louisburg, N.S., for St. Pierre, Miquelon.

Wife Confesses To Murder Of Her Husband

BUFFALO, Feb. 22.—M. Julia Marone, aged 48, after a severe grilling by the police, finally confessed that she killed her husband, Joseph Marone, aged 53, in their home early to-day. Marone was employed as a truck driver. The police say she signed a statement that she stabbed him with a bread knife when he abused and attacked her.

Taking No Risks.

An M. P. who had to speak in a northern town traveled up from London the night before, taking only a small handbag with him. The train was very late in arriving, and the M. P. engaged a room at the first hotel he came across. A servant showed him his room and, after shuffling a bit, said:

"Please, sir, my instructions are, when a man hasn't any luggage to ask him to pay in advance."

"But I've got luggage!" said the M. P., indignantly, pointing to the little handbag.

"I know, sir," said the servant, sternly. "But you've stayed too long on that already!"—London Answers.

Optimism.

To face the changing fortunes of life with equanimity, to brace ourselves against the shocks of fortune, to learn to smile at pretentiousness, to cultivate poise in the face of losses, to let no scarcity in the non-essentials touch our inner repose, to adjust our sense of value so that we need not miss what we do not need—these may be the fortunate products of our first lessons in the art of doing without.

The Sandwich Man.

The name "sandwich man," as applied to the men who parade the streets between two boards, on which are advertisements, was first given to them by Dickens. Although it would appear that the custom originated in the nineteenth century, the profession was without a name until Dickens conceived the humorous title, which he first employed in his "Sketches by Boz."

"Finished Mystery" Circulated Here

The Police Are on the War Path and Arrests May Follow Unless Literature is Delivered Up

"The Finished Mystery" is the title of a book that has been circulated in Peterborough to some extent. The book has been banned by the Dominion censor and the persons responsible for its distribution in a number of places have been placed under arrest. Similar steps are being instituted in Peterborough, where a limited number of copies have been distributed. Persons having this book in their possession may be well advised to communicate with the Chief of Police if they would avoid further trouble. Several houses in the city are being visited and some early disclosures are looked for.

Brantford, Feb. 22.—Following the action of the authorities in Toronto and elsewhere the police visited the local quarters of the International Bible Students' Association, 17 George street, and seized several hundred copies of a text book of the association, "The Finished Mystery," alleged to be of a seditious nature. George Oliver, an employee of the Canadian Express Company, and a member of the association, was taken into custody pending an examination. His home is in Beverly Road.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 22.—The Kingston police confiscated about seventy-five copies of "The Finished Mystery," one of the publications recently banned on the Dominion censor's orders. The books were found at the home of a member of the International Bible Students' Association.

FEW APPEALS YET FROM QUEBEC.

So far comparatively few appeals have reached the Central Appeal Judge from the Province of Quebec, although about 20,000 are expected. Under arrangements recently affected by the Military Service Council in regard to the reorganization of the staff charged with the operation of the act in the Province of Quebec, the work of hearing appeals and presenting evidence is now proceeding much more expeditiously. New officers in charge at Quebec and Montreal have remedied the lackadaisical way of presenting evidence. In the case of appeals preferred by the military representatives Appeal Judges have now no excuse for dismissing the appeals because of lack of evidence substantiating the claim of the State.

MAY NEED NEW JUDGES.

In the Montreal district there are now some 20,000 appeals pending before the fourteen judges who are trying the cases. In the Quebec district there are about 12,000 appeals. The congestion of work before the judges is badly delaying other judicial business of the province, and it is probable that unless the disposal of case is speeded up to very much more than the average of 10 or so per day, which is all that some of the judges are handling, the Minister of Justice will shortly intervene to create temporary new judges.

BETTER RESULTS FROM QUEBEC.

The next statement issued by the government showing the results of the operation of the act in Quebec, will be much more satisfactory than the last statement. In the Quebec Military District, where, according to the statement of men reported up to February 18, only 294 had actually been put in khaki, there are now some 600 more ready to be called up. Within three months it is expected that from 15,000 to 20,000 men will have been drafted from the province.

A TRIP THROUGH A DE LAVAL PLANT

Booklet Recently Issued Describes and Illustrates a Journey Through One of Peterborough's Industries

"A Little Journey through the Plant of the De Laval Company, Limited," is the title of a well prepared brochure recently put into circulation. A perusal of its pages not only unfolds details of local interest to Peterboro readers, but to the non-resident or visitor it graphically and pictorially describes and explains the various factories, warehouses, and departments contained within the ten acres of buildings occupied by the company, and it up-to-date plant. It shows twenty-four splendid views of the works beginning with a general view in prospective of the office buildings and all the factories. "The De Laval Lines" are featured by excellent photographic reproductions printed on heavy coated paper, the letterpress being well chosen and in good typographical taste.

The "Journey Through" is explained in a very concise and interesting manner, and with a modest, almost inferential brevity, seeing that the subject matter might easily have borne more elaboration, without any danger of verbosity. The photographs are from the Roy Studio and have been executed and brought out in very clear detail.

Freak Ideas In Bolshevist Rule

Criminals Invited to Be Good or Be Shot—Press Is Tightly Gagged —Anarchy Openly Advocated

PETROGRAD, Feb. 20.— The last few days have seen some interesting examples of the legislative ingenuity of the Bolsheviki. We have had a law relating to newspapers. Nowadays a newspaper can only come out on condition that it prints all orders and enactments issued by the Petrograd Soviet on its first page. There are other restrictions but this is the most serious, as after a busy day at the Soviet a paper may find itself compelled to surrender the whole front page to advertising its enemies' doings—the only form of advertisement, by the way, now permitted to appear in the columns of the non-Soviet press.

Then there are restaurant regulations coming into force in a few days' time. All restaurants which have the necessary accommodation will have to provide a certain number of cheap meals fixed at a low price in accordance with the new card system. Then there is "Spitzberg's Marriage and Divorce Bureau." Apparently the Government institution only found twenty-one couples willing to submit to its ministrations during the six weeks of its existence. Spitzberg, the barrister who runs the bureau, is preparing an extensive advertising campaign, and when in the Spring the Bolsheviki fancies lightly turn to thoughts of love, posters will tell them what to do about it.

Metropolitan of Kiev Murdered.

These days have also seen a heavy assault on the Russian Church. Vladimir, Metropolitan of Kiev, has been murdered by Hooligans, who entered his rooms at the Lavre, robbed him, stripped him, and finally drove out the old man of 70 and killed him. Tikhom, Metropolitan of Moscow, who also is Patriarch of the Russian Church, has been prevented from coming to Petrograd, while the sacristy of the Moscow Kremlin has been looted. The gold and silver removed alone is worth many millions of rubles, to say nothing of such things as very early text Slavonic manuscript gospels and articles of inestimable historical value.

The amount of robbery and murder now proceeding has led the Petrograd Soviet to appoint a special commission to devise means of suppressing the disorder. The chairman of this body is Bonch-Bruevitch, who is a sort of secretary to the Bolshevist government. He was known before the revolution as the editor of an enormous work of innumerable volumes on Russian sectarianism. Yesterday Bonch-Bruevitch published a plan for restoring order. All criminal elements will be invited either to adopt an honest method of earning a living or leave the town within 24 hours. At the expiration of this time limit, all criminals caught red handed will be shot forthwith.

Incidentally it may be pointed out that the line between ordinary criminality and anarchism, inspired by the loftiest motives, has now completely vanished. The front page of Sundays's Burevestnik an anarchist daily, consists of an appeal addressed to hotel porters. "You have been watch dogs long enough, guarding the wealth of others," it says. "The poor do not need protection. It is a crime to protect the rich. Open the gates, let the real masters, the poor, enter, and take what is theirs. Owners of palaces and private houses, if you do not desire equality, go live in the cellars, under the stairs, in damp corners. We, where there is light and sun, create anarchy."

Presentation At Garden Hill

The Women's Institute of Garden Hill made a presentation to Mrs. Irwin, one of the oldest members of the Institute, who is leaving for Battle Creek, Michigan, where she will reside with her daughter.

THE ADDRESS.

Dear Mrs. Irwin,—We, the members of Garden Hill Women's Institute, on this our first meeting since your bereavement by the death of your husband, wish to extend to you our sympathy, and having learned of your departure in the near future from our midst, take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the efforts you have made on behalf of our Institute. You were one of our first members, and have held nearly every office in the gift of its members, and always discharged the same with credit to yourself and the advancement of our Institute, and your valuable service and timely advice will be a great loss to us, and we could not let you go without, in some way, showing our admiration of your devotion to our Society. We ask you to accept this ring and pendant, not for its intrinsic value, but in the spirit in which it is given, and may it remind you in future years of the pleasant times spent in our midst.

Signed on behalf of Garden Hill Women's Institute,

MRS. GEORGE CALDWELL.
MRS. WARREN DUNBAR.

The ring is a gold friendship ring, with Mrs. Irwin's initials, and the pendant set with eight pearls and a diamond.

Mrs. Irwin, who was completely taken by surprise, was equal to the occasion, and made a neat little speech, thanking the members for their nice gifts, which she would always treasure as mementos of the many pleasant hours spent with the members, and wishing the Institute continued prosperity as in the past and unity with the members with the good work.

Ford Cars Are Higher In Price

Two Popular Models Are Each One Hundred Dollars Higher

Changes have been announced in the prices of Ford cars. The runabout model, which has been selling for $475 is now listed at $575. The touring car, formerly priced at $495, will now command $595. This is an increase of one hundred dollars in each of the two models named.

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, a coated tongue, or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day drink a glass of real hot water with teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter of a pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

DOG BY-LAW IS TO BE ENFORCED IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

The Council then adjourned to meet again on Monday, March the 11th, at eleven o'clock.

Cool Reception By Cabinet To Hydro Delegates Yesterday

Speaking of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association's interview with the Cabinet yesterday, Mayor Duncan stated this morning that the deputation wasn't overwhelmed by the greeting from Premier Borden, Hon. Mr. Rowell and the other members. In fact there was a noticeable coolness in the welcome and so marked was it that it evoked warmer criticisms from the municipal delegates at a meeting subsequent to the Cabinet hill. The Association decided to arrange another visit to the Capital in the near future instead of quitting after yesterday's attempt to secure the nationalization of the G.T.R. and G.T.P. railway, electrification and items in the Association's programme.

SIX FREIGHT CARS WRECKED

Lindsay, Feb. 22. — A bad wreck occurred on the Haliburton line between Peel and Wellington streets, around the midnight hour on Wednesday, when six G. T. R. box cars left the track, and were piled up in a heap across the avenue.

The shunter had run the cars up the line for the night, owing to the congestion in the yards, and the train had just passed Maunder's mill when the wreck occurred. The roadbed at this point is covered by ice to a depth of several inches as a result of the heavy downpour of rain on Tuesday night. As soon as the train reached a point nearly opposite the Maunder residence, the first car left the track quickly followed by the five others. Three of the cars were thrown over on their sides, while the others were thrown across the avenue, completely blocking the traffic. One car crashed into the residence on the east side of Victoria avenue, occupied by Mr. Wm. Moore, and owned by Rev. Mr. Johnston. The verandah was wrecked, and the walls were badly damaged inside. Several contractors were called in to inspect the house in order to ascertain the full extent of the damage done.

HE COULDN'T WORK FOR FOUR MONTHS

Kennedy Says Rheumatism Makes Joints Feel Like They Would Break

"For four solid months, before I began taking Tanlac, I couldn't hit a lick of work," said Abe Kennedy, a well known cigar and tobacco dealer at 88 Geary avenue, Toronto, recently.

"I don't believe anybody ever had a more stubborn case of rheumatism than I did," continued Mr. Kennedy, and I just kept going from bad to worse for ten years. All through my shoulders and arms and muscles there was a dull heavy pain that seemed to go clean to the bone. My joints would swell until I could hardly bend them, when I did they felt like they were breaking in two and at night I was in so much pain I could hardly sleep. I finally got in such a bad fix I had to give up my work entirely. I tried all kinds of liniments and medicines but nothing helped me.

"Before a great while after I began taking Tanlac I had improved so much that I was able to go to work and I haven't lost any time since. I'm not bothered by the stiffness and pain in my joints and muscles anything like as bad as I was and am improving every day. Tanlac just seems to be driving the rheumatism right out of my system. I am already feeling better than at any time in ten years and so I have the best of reason for praising Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter.

Montgomery Has Been Arrested

Peterboro' Man is Wanted in Lindsay

Lindsay, Feb. 22. — Wm. Montgomery, who forged cheques on Lindsay merchants some weeks ago, has been arrested in Southampton, and is held there awaiting the arrival of a constable from Lindsay to bring him back Chief Short will bring the prisoner back.

Montgomery is well known in Peterboro, where his home is. When arrested he was visiting his sister in Southampton.

It appears that the accused has been an old timer in the cheque game having been implicated in a similar deal in Southampton some time ago, but the manager of the bank, for reasons known only to himself, withheld proceedings in court.

Music & Drama

"PEG O' MY HEART."

"Peg O' My Heart," J. Hartley Manners' success, was presented last night at the Grand Opera House, with Miss Ann Pitwood in the title role. The play is a charming comedy of youth in three acts. The production has been seen to better advantage in Peterboro, especially last winter, when it apepared twice durperformance was good and was enjoyed by a fair sized audience.

AL H. WILSON AND COMPANY

In a New Irish Military Song-Play "The Irish 15th"

It is a pleasure to chronicle the date of the appearance of Al H. Wilson and company in a new Irish military song-play, "The Irish 15th" at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday next, Feb. 27th.

Those who admire this talented singing comedian's ability to entertain will have a treat in store when they witness this new offering—for it will serve to present him in something so vastly different in style that it may be compared to a diamond in a new setting—and a more brilliant one it will be—since the background will be the charm of the present war to give an additional sparkle to the gem. Dick Dale, a loyal Irish lad, is the role enacted by the star, and his remarkable adventures form the entertaining story of the play—at first he lends his talents to joining an Irish Regiment and when about to be called to the fornt, he accidentally is compelled to sscrifice his career to save the family honour and thus fate plays freakish pranks with him all through only in the end to reward him for the trials he has endured. It is certainly good entertainment of the kind that theatre goers seek and seldom find.

Many songs are introduced by Mr. Wilson, which add a new measure of delight, their titles being, "I Want You Then Machree," "Ireland is Your Home Sweet Home," "My Mother's Wedding Ring," "A Lily From Heaven" and "The Irish Will be There."

The scale of prices will be 25c. to $1.00.

10,000 Troops In Big Parade In New York

(Canadian Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—A parade of 10,000 troops from the 77th Division of the National Army at Camp Upton, part of the Metropolitan division, was the distinguishing feature of Washington's birthday celebration in New York to-day. Six thousand additional soldiers from the camp were given leave of absence and joined with the vast throngs in what was perhatps one of the most noteworthy patriotic demonstrations here since the United States entered the war.

OGILVIE'S STANDARD

SPRING WHEAT FLOUR

THIS is the WAR FLOUR of the OGILVIE MILLS—a loyal product to conserve Canada's resources and, at the same time, give the public the best possible flour that can be milled according to the Government standard.

This War Flour is excellent in quality and flavour—but it is slightly darker in color than "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" to which you have been accustomed.

It is just as hard for us to give up milling "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" as it will be for you to forego your favorite brand; but our "STANDARD" Flour will nevertheless make delicious bread, rolls, biscuits, cake, pies and pastry. If you have any difficulty—just drop us a line; we have a staff of expert chemists and bakers, whose experience is at your service.

Just as soon as the Food Controller will allow us to mill "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" again, we will tell you of this happy fact.

In the meantime, the new regulations—being in the best interests of Canada and the British Empire—demand the whole hearted support of the Millers and the Public.

Certain stores and dealers have stocks of "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" still on hand. In order to avoid any confusion or misunderstanding, all "STANDARD" FLOUR will be plainly branded as such.

When all your "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" is gone, make sure of getting the next best grade by ordering

OGILVIE'S STANDARD

Grocers everywhere have it,—don't forget to stipulate, "OGILVIE'S". It will be your surest guarantee of the highest grade obtainable.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Would you allow me a space in your most worthy paper to explain how I was talked to by one of the express men in our fair city. I went down to the police station for coal on Wednesday, as I had been freezing, and they were most kind to me, and on the Thursday my husband went to them at noon and they told him they would get an express rig and send me out some. Now, Mr. Editor, to make a long story short, when this man brought the coal I asked him if he would take it around to the shed for me, and he turned on me like some one out of his mind and went on to say that if I did not want the coal he would take it back sooner than he would take it around to the shed for me, and me nearly without a fire. He went on to say that my house was too grand for him to bring coal in and that he would never bring me any more coal, so what do the people of Peterborough think of this for one who tries to keep tidy and to be a good householder in your fair city. Is it right to be used in this way? Now I will leave my name and address in the Examiner and if anybody wishes to know who I am and who this express man is I can tell them about it. There are a thousand other things he said but, Sir, I don't care to publish it, but just to let the people in Peterborough know who you have to deal with, I thought of just letting the people know. Thanking you, Sir, for this space in your paper.

An English Woman.

Turnbull's Tigers Win Once Again

Beat Lakefield By One Goal to Nothing Last Night

Another notch was cut in the Turnbull Co's hockey stick, when they defeated the Lakefield septette last night at the Brock Street rink, by one goal to nothing. Owing to the late arrival of the Lakefield train only 40 minutes of hockey were played, but during that time five penalties were meted out, four to Lakefield and one to the Tigers. The game was rough and fast, and the only goal was secured by a Lakefield man, who accidentally knocked the puck into his own nets during a scramble in front of the goal. The return game will be played in Lakefield on Wednesday next.

The line up was as follows:

Turnbull's Tigers: Goal, Mahood; defence, Perry, Girrard; Rover, Lapp; centre, Sheehan; wings, Irwin and Henry.

Lakefield: Northey; defence, Murduff and Nelson; rover, Hull; centre, Lennox; wings, Sabatino, Graham.

C.G.E. Win Three From Centrals.

In a ten-pin league fixture last night at the Water street alleys, the C.G.E. won all three games.

Fielder for the C.G.E. was high man with a 537 total. Early and Langley also reached the 500 mark, with 520 and 521 totals. Early had high single of 214.

For the Centrals Weber and Pidgeon were high with 496 and 483 for 3-game totals. The scores were as follows:

Seaplanes Are Active

Aiding the Destroyers

In Fighting Submarines

THE report of a squadron commander of the Royal Naval Air Service, after a recent hostile air raid, shows the odds which British pilots cheerfully accept in beating off the raiders. The officer in question had been flying continuously under war conditions in France, bombing and fighting, for upward of eighteen months.

"When 11,000 feet," runs his report, "I saw ten Gothas coming inland. I climbed up to them, and engaged one on the right of the formation about three miles out to sea at something over 12,000 feet. Fired 100 rounds from straight behind his tail at 100 yards' range. Bullets were seen to enter the Gotha's fusilage. Machine started into a slow spin. I followed and fired about 25 more into him to make sure. My gun then jammed, and in trying to clear, I got into a very fast spin with my engines on. Got out of this just in time to see the enemy crash into the sea. I then landed, had my gun jam cleared and went up after the remaining eight Gothas—one had been shot down in flames—and caught up with them at 13,000 feet and engaged them in turn from both above and below. Then devoted all my attention to one Gotha, and after firing 200 rounds into him, silenced both his guns. I think both German gunners must have been hit, as I was able to get within 60 feet of him without being fired at. I finally ran out of ammunition." The story ends with his ammunition.

Two British seaplanes on submarine patrol above the North Sea, sighted a submarine on the surface travelling at about fourteen knots. Two men were observed on the conning tower. Like a pair of hunting kestrels, the seaplanes swooped down to a height of 800 feet, and the leading machine dropped a bomb, which burst on the starboard side of the submarine, half-way between the stern and conning tower. The submarine heeled slowly over to port and remained in that position. The bow rose into the air as she stopped and began to sink. The second seaplane then dropped her bomb, which burst in front of the conning tower, and as the submarine sank another bomb was dropped by the first machine, which had wheeled round and passed over the spot 15 seconds later. Having disposed of their quarry, the two then circled round for a quarry of an hour searching for possible survivors. None were seen, however, and they accordingly returned to make their report.

On another occasion a seaplane on patrol overheard a hostile wireless signal, apparently in close proximity; shortly afterward a large submarine was sighted lying on the surface a mile ahead. Flying at 80 miles an hour, the seaplane whizzed over the enemy and released a bomb. The submarine simultaneously fired a round with his foremost gun, the shell bursting 50 feet in front of the seaplane. As the latter turned, the bomb which he had dropped exploded, tearing a great rent in the hull of the submarine. Flashes of flame were then seen spurting from the water ahead and through the mist three most hostile submarines were sighted in line abreast, reinforced by three hostile destroyers and two seaplanes. All were firing at the British seaplane, which, however, turned and again flew over the sinking submarine. A second bomb was dropped, and the submarine sank, leaving a large quantity of oil, air-bubbles and wreckage floating on the surface. Her bombs exhausted, the seaplane returned, having first photographed the sinking submarine and its would-be avengers.

Recent honors for the destruction of submarines rest by no means with the Navy-that-Flies. The Navy-that-Floats has also a tale or two to tell.

A division of destroyers on patrol in the North Sea sighted a large submarine on the surface, about three miles distant. Telegraphs were at once put to full speed, and course shaped for the enemy, who promptly dived. The speed at which the destroyers attacked, however, brought the leading boat over the submarine before the swirl of her dive had left the water. An explosive charge was dropped over the spot. This detonated, and blew a large dark object to the surface, which promptly sank again. The next destroyer in the line then dropped her charges, which covered the surface with small pieces of wreckage and oil.

On another occasion a force of destroyers acting in company with some light cruisers sighted at dawn a small sail on the horizon. This was watched carefully through glasses, and as the vessel pitched in the swell her bow and stern were visible and were recognized as those of a submarine. The destroyer which was the first to penertate this disguise at once altered course toward the supposed enemy, who was about seven miles distant. The sail promptly vanished and the conning tower of a submarine was seen as she dived. Five minutes later the submarine raised her periscope for a look-around, and submerged again in 10 seconds. It was long enough, however, to betray her whereabouts to the destroyer, which made for the spot half a mile away, and opened fire as she rushed toward her. The bow dipped and the stern arose, showing a glimpse of the conning tower and the large vertical rudder. Midway between these two points the destroyer rammed, at a speed in the region of 30 knots. The enemy sank vertically, bubbling like a gigantic empty bottle, in over 100 fathoms of water.

Tommy at the Opera.

Whole battalions of Thomas Atkinses, now that the long-expected snowfall has buried the Austro-Germans in deep Alpine drifts, have been paying visits to the Milan Opera House and receiving immense ovations. By way of acknowledgment, Tommy gave the laurel-crowned "Tipperary" and created a sensation, as well he might, in that sacred Mecca of Italian opera. Flowers were showered upon him in most embarrassing fashion. The reason of this delicate attention may be the kilts, at which the people gaze in undisguised amazement. One veteran peasant exclaimed, "Fancy, women as well as men go to war in that country, and yet they look as though they would make mincemeat of the Germans." Little wonder that some of these kilted "ladies" received not only flowers, but equally embarrassing kisses.

What Is a Night Well?

In the desert of Western Australia there are wells which yield water only at night. Before the water begins to flow weird hissings and the sound of rushing air may be heard. The phenomenon is believed to be due to a change in the form of the rocky channel through which the water flows, and to the extreme change in temperature between day and night which occurs in this region. The hissing is due to the escape of air before the advance of the water.—Popular Science Monthly.

AN ANGLO-AMERICAN ALLIANCE.

How College Editor Views Vital Problem of the Future.

The necessity for close co-operation between all the English-speaking peoples and also the moral and rational justification of such a combination, are recognized by all who have devoted serious thought to the problems of the future and are willing to face the world as it really is. In Germany, and also in Japan, such an association is widely considered to be inevitable but the question still remains what, if any, outward form shall this essential co-operation take. As the Germans deny the reality of the world community and base their policy upon the assumption of an inherent antagonism between juxtaposed states, they cannot conceive of this future relation as other than an offensive and defensive alliance of the older type with its aggressive and selfish purposes. To them the project is merely the expression of the self-regarding, but entirely justifiable, nationalism of a world-wide group of closely related states. But an association of this character, as alliance of Governments, would mark no real advance to a better international future. Unless it were an alliance of peoples based upon their common deals as well as upon the common needs, it would be an ephemeral arrangement. Fortunately the spiritual foundations exist. As Viscount Grey has expressed it: "The more closely the two peoples come into contact, the better they get to know each other, the more I believe it will be apparent to each not only that they speak the same language, but that they use it to mean the same things, that they both have the same idea of freedom and liberty, and desire the same sort of world in which to live. A popular democratic alliance based upon such like-mindedness points the road to new types of political association which will permanently unite under a common law different nations and states. Such an organization based upon the will to co-operate would give some assurance of the possibility of an ultimate world state. Otherwise the outlook would indeed be black if mankind is to be forever split up into the water-tight political compartments of the modern state system. If each state is to cling forever to its sovereign independence, there will be no ultimate prospect of an effectively organized world community and war will continue to demand its human holocaust.—Yale Review.

A Delicate College.

Unless certain Montreal physicians are mistaken, a situation exists at Laval University which makes it advisable to consider whether the strain of student life there is not too great for the average young man or whether that seat of learning presents attractions as a sanatorium. A considerable number of Laval students have appealed against decisions of local tribunals appointed under the Military Service Act and to confute the findings of the medical boards which examined them, have been re-examined by civilian doctors.

The body of evidence thus prepared for the appeal tribunals in Montreal shows a remarkable prevalence of serious malady among the Laval students. Of 177 young men examined by civilian doctors, it is stated here, 164 were pronounced physically unfit for military service. Of the latter number, 40 suffered from tuberculosis, 26 from diabetes, 27 from nephritis, 32 from heart trouble and 11 from bronchitis. Further, there were 18 cases of flat feet and 10 sufferers from defermities.

Self-confidence of a Captain.

"You have made a lot of money," "Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "I have gotten to a point where I almost wish I were poor in order to have the fun of making it all over again."—Washington Star.

Less Drunkenness.

Toronto, with a population of 500,000, recorded only twenty-nine prosecutions for drunkenness during the first week of prohibition, compared with 276 the corresponding week in 1915.

It has been noticed that the collar bone is more frequently broken than any other bone in the body.

RIDDLE OF THE SPHINX.

Several Vandals Have Tried to Destroy Ancient Image.

The Germans now threaten to wipe out Venice. Already, for a long time past, the Austrians have been trying their best to destroy by bombing (aids the priceless architectural monuments of the erstwhile Mistress of the Adriatic.

Such stupid barbarism has been characteristic of nearly all the wars of history — senseless destruction without any military object to furnish an excuse for it.

When Napoleon invaded Egypt one of his artillery officers, just for sport, fired a cannon at the Sphinx. It was a good shot. A 300-pound ball hit the huge image square in the nose, scattering its features all over the neighborhood.

The Sphinx was perhaps the most interestig of all structures of antiquity. Only within recent years has its riddle been solved. As now known, it did not represent a woman, but was an image of the God of the morning, the Conqueror of Darkness, and on this account it faces the rising sun.

In the course of many centuries the desert sands overflowed and covered up the lower part of the image, which was carved out of the rock of a small and isolated hill. But not long ago archaeologists undertook to dig away the sand, thus exposing to view the forelegs and paws, as well as a temple hollowed out beneath the Sphinx.

Inscriptions on the temple walls revealed the facts about the image—what it stood for; how very ancient it was; and that the temple was for the worship of the God of the Morning. They showed that it was very old in the time of Cheops (who built the Great Pyramid in 300 B.C.), and that Cheops himself "restored" it with elaborate repairs.

Remnants were found of a stone cap, bearing the sacred asp, which doubtless covered the head of the Sphinx like a royal helmet, and was probably gilded. Sandstone masonry was used to make the outlines of the image perfectly symmetrical, but this artifice was hidden from view by a procelain-like coat of enamel of brilliant hue that covered the entire rock-sculpture. Traces of this enamel still remain.

The Sphinx's body (that of a crouching lion) is fifty feet long. Its outstretched forelegs are sixty feet in length. The head is thirty feet from the neck up, and the face is fourteen feet wide. The whole figure is seventy-two feet high.

When King Cambyses invaded Egypt and made it a Persian province his soldiery did all the damage they could to the Sphinx. Fortunately they had no explosives. If the Germans ever arrive in that country as conquerors they will probably illustrate the value of Kultur by blowing it up.

Sugar Beets in England.

For several years Great Britain has experimented with the sugar beet, but now, facing a sugar shortage and with the need of making the country less dependent upon foreign supply, the Government is taking an official concern in the possibilities of this industry. Accordingly, the Government has made a loan towards the creation of a sugar beet factory near Newark, capable of dealing with a large daily tontage. The British Sugar Beet Growers' Society has purchased land, and it is hoped that this area, with additional land in the vicinity cultivated by separate farmers, will produce eighty thousand tons of beets a year, which should yield eleven thousand tons of sugar.—Emporia Gazette.

In Italy.

Poor Tommy Atkins! He has no sooner obtained a workable knowledge of French, that is to say of French as it is spoken in the British fighting zone, than he is sent off to Italy. But one thing is quite certain, he will manage somehow, declares The Christian Science Monitor. According to one of the correspondents with the British troops on the Venetian plain, Tommy has not hesitated, until he can do better, to address himself in his own mother tongue to his Italian comrades. He puzzled them much at first by saying, very often, "Cheer up!" At last the Italians inquired of an interpreter what kind of sirup it was the British soldiers wanted.

Diplomat Says Central Powers Are Preparing Drive Against Salonika—Allied Drive on Sofia Would Cut Off Turkey

GREECE LACKS EQUIPMENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Military intelligence received here leaves no doubt in the minds of the Balkan diplomats that the Central Powers are planning a big drive on the Balkan front. The information indicates that the enemy powers have as their objective Salonika and uneasiness is manifested on account of the alleged lack of adequate Allied preparations for the shock.

The Greek and Serbian Governments, it is understood, fear that the Entente Governments are neglecting one of the majojr phases of the war in postponing assistance expected by Greece, particularly in the mobilization of her army, and also in their hesitancy to adopt an offensive attitude in the Balkan theatre, with the double objective of severing the communications between the Teutonic Powers and Turkey, and of establishing physical contact with Roumania for the relief of that country.

A Balkan diplomat said to-day:

"There is no longer any doubt that the enemy forces will strike for Salonika, and intelligence received from various parts of the Balkans reveals that they are preparing for a drive. It is up to the Allies to give us the means of facing the blow.

GREECE LACKS EQUIPMENT.

"Greece is not prepared to reply to the expected attack, as she has neither guns, ammunition nor other equipment for her army. She is ready to put 400,000 soldiers in the field whenever this assistance is received, provided, of course, it does not come too late.

"Every day there is increasing evidence of the enthusiasm of the people of Greece over the war, and the Allies ought morally, as well as materially, to support her. It would be a pity for them to make the mistake of giving German propaganda an opportunity of taking advantage of the present situation to convince the people that the Allies are not giving Greece the help she requires.

"That such propaganda may be effective is proved by the success it achieved in the Italian army. It would not be strange should it have success in Greece, which has not even yet been enabled to play a full part in the war on account of lack of war supplies.

"Then, morally, too, the Allies can sustain the Greek spirit by assuring the country that the integrity of the territories shall be maintained. It is a matter of wonder to some that such assurance has proceeded neither from the Allies nor from the United States.

"It is Utopian to think that either Bulgaria or Turkey will retire from the war and abandon the Teutonic Coalition. Bulgaria might be induced to desert her Germanic supports only by guarantees from the Allies that she would be given Greek and Serbian territory, which concession by the Allies would give the lie to their professions of non-imperialistic principles, and this, of course, is not conceivable. The Allies would never betray their own friends and allow an enemy to accomplish, at the expense of themselves, what they deny to themselves.

CANNOT BETRAY TRUST.

"So, too, with Turkey. The Allies cannot abandon their projects for liberating the oppressed nationalities in Turkey without betraying a trust of civilization, but otherwise Turkey never will consent to a separate peace.

"The only thing for the Allies to do is to strengthen their army at Salonika, assume the offensive and move upon Sofia. There they would cut the communications between the Central Powers and Turkey, and thus Turkey would be compelled to sue for peace. This also would make it possible for the Allies to establish communications with Roumania, which now occupies an impossible position."

GRAIN MARKET

The action of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in setting a limit to the price of oats quickly found its response yesterday in a sharp decline of 4 to 5 cents from the high level to which the recent speculative orgie had sent them. ## CATTLE MARKET

Receipts of cattle for the past week, were about normal for this season of the year, and therefore the market generally was about back to conditions as to values as prevailed before the recent abnormal conditions due to the severity of the winter, and the consequent almost complete tie-up of the railroads. With the freer movement of live stock in, and of beef out, there was a strong active demand for cattle and all the branches of live stock for the early markets this week. Prices as a result took a strong upturn, the advance on the first three markets for the week averaging about 50c. for good to choice butcher cattle. Butcher cows and bulls were in good demand, with prices correspondingly strong.

The stocker and feeder trade has been decidedly quiet throughout the week, owing to the strong demand and high prices prevailing for everything that could be used for butcher purposes. Prices, in fact, were generally too high to be attractive for stocker buyers.

Calves were generally in good strong market, while baby yearlings of fancy quality sold at correspondingly fancy prices.

Sheep and lamb receipts were comparatively light, the market holding firm, choice quality black-faced fetching high prices.

Hog receipts again disappointed the packers, their efforts to get prices down a little proving quite unavailing, the market as persistently going up, and settling in the week-end market at $19.25, fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards —Total receipts this week, 428 cars, with 5,186 cattle, 688 calves, 11,514 hogs, 579 sheep and lambs and 67 horses.

City Cattle Market—25 cars, with 248 cattle, 189 sheep, 589 hogs; 15 calves, and 74 horses.

Poor Tommy Atkins! He has no sooner obtained a workable knowledge of French, that is to say of French as it is spoken in the British fighting zone, than he is sent off to Italy. But one thing is quite certain, he will manage somehow, declares The Christian Science Monitor. According to one of the correspondents with the British troops on the Venetian plain, Tommy has not hesitated, until he can do better, to address himself in his own mother tongue to his Italian comrades. He puzzled them much at first by saying, very often, "Cheer up!" At last the Italians inquired of an interpreter what kind of sirup it was the British soldiers wanted.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"Sanatorium."

"Hospital."

The replies to the last three questions had fallen from Quimby's lips with a regularity and precision which equalled that of his inquisitor, but now he showed unmistakable signs breaking beneath the continued strain. His lips were painfully compressed, and his long slender fingers tenaciously grasped the arms of his chair.

"Escape——" the detective's voice droned monotonously on.

"F-freedom." The reply came in a convulsive gasp.

"Murder——"

"Crime." The word was merely shaped with quivering lips.

"Resurrection——"

"Religion."

Terhune crushed the slip of paper in his hands and fairly shot the final word at his victim:

"Look!"

Instinctively Stephen Quimby raised his eyes. Then they started from their sockets, and his face became a distorted mask of horror as he leaped to his feet, for the curtains of the alcove had parted and slender figure stood before him in the dusky glimmer of light. It was that of a young girl, with soft brown hair and a wistful drooping mouth, and her direct, reproachful gaze seemed to be searching his soul.

He threw up his shaking hands as if to ward off an unnamable terror, and his last reply came in a choking scream:

"Marion!"

CHAPTER XXI.

THE WARNING.

The four walls of Wade Terhune's consulting room had enclosed many and varied scenes in the years of his occupancy; scenes which ran the gamut of human emotion, but none more strange than on that July night when Stephen Quimby stood at bay before the girl he thought had lain for nearly a fortnight cold in death.

The seeming apparition shook even Terhune's self-possession, and he too bounded forward, then paused with every nerve tense.

"It was not I who was killed, you see." The soft voice seemed to fill the room. "You were overready to put me in my grave since I frustrated your purpose, but I have come back to face you, and to see that justice is done."

"Who are you?" demanded Terhune, for Quimby's nerves were gone and he had collapsed in the chair his face buried in his hands.

"He has already answered you, Mr. Terhune. I am Marion Rowntree, or rather, that is the name the world knows; I am the wife of Anthony Leonard."

"McCarty!" The detective almost helpless turned to the curtained enclosure. "Mac, are you there? Will you come out and tell me what this means?"

The draperies parted once more, and a very sheepish McCarty appeared.

"You'll forgive me for springing the surprise on you, sir?" he begged. "I didn't want to spoil the little party you had planned for to-night, the way I did the last one; and it's a good thing that you can hear what the young lady has to say for herself, in the presence of him that would have done her as much harm as murder if he had been left the chance."

Quimby had gathered himself together by a supreme effort, and at McCarty's efforts he sprang to his feet once more, his clenched fists up raised as if he would strike down the slender figure which stood in his path.

"What damned trick is this?" he shouted, his voice thick with rage. "Who was the girl whose dead body you foisted off on us all as yours? How came she to be in your clothes? Are you a murderess? You devilish crazed brain has brought trouble enough upon us, but I'll put you now where you will do no further mischief!"

"Not so fast, Mr. Quimby." McCarty stepped forward with a stern, hard light in his eyes. "It's too late in the day to try that old game of yours, and I've a piece of paper in my pocket that if you're sensible enough you'll not compel me to produce. 'Tis a warrant for your arrest, charging you with conspiracy, fraud and misappropriation of funds; and with a little more time I could dig up a few more counts to add to it, but it'll be enough to hold you for a while as it stands. Only by the wish of this young lady am I putting off serving you this minute. 'Tis not by slandering her you'll help yourself now!"

"But the other—the girl who was killed!" exclaimed the detective. "She—then—was——"

"She was Ivy Collins." Marion turned to him. "I never saw her in my life until a half hour before—that frightful thing happened. I was in the room with her, in the living room of Mrs. Foxe's apartment, when she was killed!"

"Then it was murder?"

"Yes, Mr. Terhune. But I don't know by whom, it all came so suddenly. I owe you an explanation, and I shall be relieved to get the burden of what little do know off my conscience. I have been in deep trouble all these days; I felt that it was not fair to the poor girl who had trusted me to keep silence when I might, perhaps, help you find the man who killed her, but I was afraid, not only of being accused of the crime myself, but of continued persecutions from my stepfather.

"My liberty was in far greater danger from him than from the police, and I was panic stricken in my trouble. I thought only of myself. When Mr. McCarty found me out west, he said if I would come to you and tell you the whole truth you would join my husband in protecting me."

McCarty carefully avoided the detective's eye.

"Her husband," he observed, "is the young man who lived in the next flat, the inventor, Mr. Antonio."

"If I am under arrest on these preposterous charges that you have brought, I demand to be taken where I can send for my attorneys and arrange my affairs." Quimby's voice was broken, but he held his head indomitably high. "If not, I will go. I have no desire to listen to a reiteration of the accusation of this girl, whom it would be more charitable to consider out of her mind than as wilfully insubordinate and undutiful as her own confession will show her to have been. Unless, of course, she chooses to claim I murdered the other girl."

"Oh, no!" Marion said gently. "I didn't even know you were in the apartment house that night."

"Mr. Quimby, I am afraid, I must insist on you remaining. Miss Rowntree, will you tell us your own story of that night?" Terhune pulled forward an armchair and waved McCarty to another. "I think it will be to our several interests that Mr. Quimby shall hear what you have to say."

Quimby sank down, sullen in his defeat, and his step daughter took the chair offered and turned her thoughtful, earnest eyes straight to Terhune's.

"You have discovered something of our affairs," she began, "but I am not sure how much you know, and I had best tell you the whole story, so that you may understand the causes which led up to my action a week ago last Monday night. It would seem inexplicable, as crazy a proceeding as my stepfather would claim, unless you comprehend the entire situation.

"You know that when my mother died she left a large sum of money in trust for me with my stepfather, the principal and accrued interest, which exceeded my expenses, to be placed unreservedly in my hands when I became of age. I shall be twenty-one next week."

She paused, but her glance never wavered.

"I would not accuse my stepfather, I would not even voice a suspicion of his motive, but it has been proven beyond the possibility of denial. He was not prepared to make restitution of my property; he could not do so, for he had misappropriated it and lost the greater part!"

"It is a lie!" Quimby snarled. "A lie!"

"Silence, if you please!" exclaimed Terhune sharply. "Miss Rowntree, tell your story in your own way."

"Two years ago, just after I graduated from school, there was a young man, the brother of one of my girl friends, who—who liked me. He was very attentive and, I thought, deeply serious, when all at once, for no reason, his visits ceased, and when we met casually he appeared confused and tried to shun me. I had not been particularly interested although naturally my feelings were hurt by his defection, and I soon put it out of my thoughts.

"Last summer, the incident was repeated with Mr. Sturtevant, only he had actually reached the point of asking me to marry him. I did not care for him in that way, but I was lonely and not any too happy at home, and I was undecided, when he came to me and wriggled out of his proposition as gracefully as he could. I was astounded; I felt that there must be some tangible reason for a man of the world such as he was to act in the same unaccountable manner as the impetuous boy of the year before. I could not of course demand an explanation, but it worried me all summer.

"In the autumn I accidentally overheard a conversation between my stepfather and my aunt, Miss Beckwith, which revealed the truth to me; he—Mr. Quimby—had told each of the young men who had wished to marry me that I was of unsound mind. It was hideous, almost unbelievable! He claimed that I had inherited it from my own father who had died insane. That was a cruel perversion of the facts; my father was mentally incompetent when he died, but it was caused by an accident in the hunting field.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SIMPLY HUMAN

By Jessie Ethel Sherwin

"Wild and perverse," proclaimed Rev. Willis Gascoyne. "I must decline to interfere. The girl is willful, her relatives indifferent. What I might say to her would only antagonize her and do no good."

"I think you misjudge her," spoke Bliss Warden warm-heartedly. "She is a child of nature, simply human."

The speaker turned away rather unceremoniously, while the other shrugged his shoulders delicately and resumed the paring of his well-kept finger nails. The latter never mingled in common and unpleasant affairs outside of his ecclesiastical functions. Why should he? Was not his sole duty owing to his devoted flock?

What would become of the charity circle, the Ladies' Aid society, the lawn entertainments, if he wasted his efforts on the outside community?

It was all about a girl, a mere waif on the ocean of life, Leila Trask. She was the neglected drudge of the Mercils, a wretched family living at the edge of the town. Neither toil nor deprivation, however, could beat to earth the cheery, dauntless spirit of the lonely one. She romped with the little ones whenever free from duty and made them love her. She rode the wildest horses in the district, famed them for their owners. A hoyden who had never known a kiss or a caress, she loved nature and the laughing ways of life and was content.

Bliss Warden was a city lawyer, come down to Summerdale to visit friends and incidentally continue his wooing of proud, aristocratic Marcia Burrell, heiress, beauty and social queen. The day previous he had seen Leila Trask meet a man in the woods.

He knew the man at a glance. He had imparted his history to Rev. Willis Gascoyne. The latter betokened interest in the story, but none in the girl.

"A bright young spirit, with a soul clear as crystal," ruminated Warden. "Surely, if I am a real man I will not grudge the time and effort to save her from the wiles of a villain."

So, he sought Leila Trask. He found her digging potatoes in the little patch back of the mere hovel in which she lived. He nodded to her in a friendly way. She smiled back radiantly.

"Can I speak with you for a few minutes?" he asked, and she moved to where he stood, looking up into his eyes trustingly.

"You are Mr. Warden," she said. "Little Ned Billings told me how you waded into the creek to save his toy sailboat. You are a good man and you are going to marry Miss Burrell. Oh! how happy she must be, and how lucky to have all those beautiful gowns and jewels."

Her artless innocence appealed to Bliss Warden more strongly than ever.

"I am going to call you 'Leila,'" he said, "because I see you are my friend. Leila, will you trust me as a brother in a matter close to your interest, believing that I seek only to save you from trouble?"

She nodded her head, but staring wonderingly at his earnest, friendly face.

"I saw you with a man near here yesterday. Is he a lover?"

She flushed up instantly. The rosebud lips bore a momentary resentful expression. Then she lowered her eyes in confusion.

"He says he wants to be my beau," she fluttered. "And I never had one, like other girls, and—and he says he can get me work in the city so I can have fine dresses and a beautiful room, and he will marry me."

"I am very sorry to make you feel grieved Leila," said Warden, "but this man is a villain. Twice in the city courts he has been sentenced to prison, the last time for bigamy."

The girl swayed as if from a stunning shock. She could not doubt the words spoken. She burst into tears with the passionate outbreak.

"If you know how I long for some one to speak kind to me, to think of me, to love me, you would know how hungry my heart is! Oh! I don't want to see him again, if he is as you say, but oh! I must love somebody, something. Oh! why am I not like other girls—so poor, so lonely, so despised!"

Warden quieted the distracted spirit with gentle words. Then he went his way to the village. Within the hour the treacherous ex-convict was ordered to leave the town within twenty-four hours, or the city authorities would be notified. He slunk away like the cur he was.

Perhaps Leila was more subdued and serious after that. The revelation concerning the man she did not love, but whose false, flashing ways had interested her, opened her innocent eyes sorrowfully to the ways of the world. Then, too, a strange peace had stolen over her spirit.

"I must love somebody," she whispered longingly to herself. "No one need know it. He is far high above me and can never be anything to me, but I can love Mr. Warden, and that will fill my poor life."

One day Leila did a wonderful act. Miss Burrell, coming in her phaeton down the road, dropped both lines as one snapped, and the nettled steed dashed forward at breakneck speed. Miss Burrell screamed and clung to the seat rail.

Leila tore off the ragged skirt she wore, posed to meet the onrushing horse, made a daring spring, flung the skirt over its head and clung to the bridle, dragged, trodden on, and finally flung upon a heap of stones, but the runaway brought to a halt.

Leila lay upon her poor bed, bruised and bandaged. The next day when Miss Burrell visited her she drew her skirts closely to evade contact with the bare floor. She sniffed the plebian air of the hovel with contempt.

"I am glad you was not hurt," spoke Leila. "That was all I thought of, because you are Mr. Warden's true love, and I would do anything for him; he has done so much for me. Don't tell him," whispered Leila, "but I love him, and that makes me happy all the time. Oh, I would willingly die for him!"

"Indeed?" breathed Miss Burrell loftily, and Leila shrank at the hidden fire of suspicion and hate in those basilisk eyes.

"She is not good enough for you," the open-souled, artless Leila told Warden, when he, too, came to see how she was getting along, and within a week the amazed young man thought so, too. Miss Burrell had seized upon the circumstance of the mysterious interest of Warden in Leila to create a quarrel. As a matter of fact, her fickle fancy had been transferred to a new flame and she seized a ready excuse to break with her fiance. The enlightened Warden was abashed and hurt, but he kept his suffering to himself. The real soullessness of Miss Burrell showed in her neglect of Leila after one call. It was weeks before Leila could get about.

Warden had returned to the city, but several times he ran down to visit the little invalid and the day she was able, resting on his arm, to go out into the garden, he disclosed to her his future plans.

"I am going away, Leila," he explained—to cure his heartbreak. He did not tell her, but she guessed it, and regarded him pityingly. "I shall be gone a year. Your people here have agreed that I shall care for you and give you a chance in the world. You are to go to my sister in the city, who will look after you and place you in a school, and help you to enjoy the bright new life your true, gentle spirit deserves."

"I am learning to write," a little scrawl from Leila reached Warden three thousand miles away on his wanderings. "Just see if it isn't plain. 'I love Mr. Warden more than anybody else in the world.'"

And a year later, as the travel-weary man was longing to turn his face homewards, in perfect handwriting came a second note. "I can read anything now and they say I am the best writer in the school, see—'I love Mr. Warden and always shall.'"

His heart warmed at the artless message. His gaze took in with surprise and gladness the new Leila Trask who greeted him at his sister's home.

"Kiss me, too," she told him, as he took his sister in his arms, and Bliss Warden recognized the unsullied love of an unspoiled being, and knew that he had found a treasure he must cherish to the end of life.

With the accuracy of a scientific instrument—or a calculation in mathematics—the Maxwell Motor Company, Limited, has BALANCED the price of its car.

That balancing of the Maxwell price means this:

While materials cost what they do now, the Maxwell Company finds, it is impossible to build, and sell for less than $1045, any motor car in which efficiency, durability, economy, comfort, beauty and standard equipment are all present, as they are present in the Maxwell.

On the other hand, these being co-ordinated in the Maxwell, all you could get by paying more money for a motor car would be either larger size or greater luxury of furnishings.

In other words, the Maxwell is built and sold on the MIDDLE LINE of real value.

This finding of the Maxwell builders is based on the lessons learned in many years of production on a vast scale.

We believe it to be scientifically—absolutely—correct.

One of the most remarkable instances of phosphorescent light appearing on living creatures is found among the herons. Among the quays and at the extreme end of Florida these birds are found in countless numbers. Mullet fishermen and sportsmen often noticed peculiar dim lights standing motionless over the water among the mangrove-thickets. They were discovered, however, to depend on the presence of the birds. When they were approached in the dark the flapping of wings as a heron flew away would mean the last of the lights. The Ardea Herodias, or great heron, has on its breast a spot about as large as the open palm, where the feathers are covered with a thick yellow powder that is easily shaken off, and evidently exudes from the body at this spot as a secretion, drying into a powder when exposed to the air. The bird stands motionless in the water, and the spot is undoubtedly used for or accomplishes the end of attracting the smaller fishes within reach of the bird, and if it is a decoy it is a most remarkable provision of nature.

TOGETHER WITH MANY MERCHANDISE PRIZES

Above will be found the picture of a modern Tank of the kind that is being used with such success in the present war. At a glance the Tank appears to be all there is in the picture, but by careful scrutiny the faces of several soldiers will be found. There are 11 of them in all. Can you find them? It is no easy task but by patience and endurance can be accomplished.

You may win a cash prize by doing so. Many have done this as will be shown by the names and address which we will send you. If you find the faces mark each one with an X, cut out the picture and send it to us, together with a slip of paper on which you have written the words "I have found all the faces and marked them." Write these plainly and neatly, as in case of ties, both writing and neatness are considered factors in this contest.

This may take up a little of your time but as TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS in cash and many merchandise prizes are given away, it is worth your time to take a little trouble over this matter. Remember all you have to do is to mark the faces, cut out the picture and write on a separate piece of paper the words, "I have found all the faces and marked them."

WE DO NOT ASK YOU TO SPEND ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY IN ORDER TO ENTER THIS CONTEST

Send your answer at once; we will reply by Return Mail telling you whether your answer is correct or not, and we will send you a complete Prize List, together with the names and addresses of persons who have recently received over Four Thousand One Hundred Dollars in Cash Prizes from us, and full particulars of a simple condition that must be fulfilled. (This condition does not involve the spending of any of your money.)

Winner of cash prizes in our late competitions will not be allowed to enter this Contest.

This Competition will be judged by two well known business men of undoubted integrity, who have no connection with this Company, whose decision must be accepted as final.

Upon receipt of your reply we will send a complete list of the names and addresses of persons who have won $4,100.00 in Cash Prizes in recent contests held by the publishers of this advertisement. Although these persons are entirely unknown to us, they are our references. An enquiry from any one of them will bring the information that our contests are carried out with the utmost fairness and integrity. Your opportunity to win a good round sum is equally as good as that of anyone else, as all previous winners of cash prizes are debarred from entering this contest.

The Brooks Rupture Appliance Is Sold Round the World.

While the home of the Brooks Appliance Co. is at Marshall, Mich., its business extends to practically every corner of the civilized world

The home building at Marshall is the largest establishment of its kind in this or any other country, and occupies 16,000 sq. ft. of floor space exclusively devoted to the manufacture and sale of the Brooks Appliance. (This does not include printing offices, or other interests.)

In London, England, the Brooks Co. maintains a large establishment in the Kingsway House, Kingsway, W.C.

In Amsterdam, Holland, the European business is conducted from No. 4 Paleisstratt.

You will be most welcome and will receive most careful personal attention in any of the Brooks Institutions, either in this country or abroad.

Even in China, Japan, Africa, South America, Asia, Alaska, and in fact all over the world, even to remote islands of the seas — wherever civilization has forced her way —you will find the Brooks Rupture Appliance bringing relief and comfort to rupture sufferers.

Cured By the Brook Discovery

From the battle front in Europe comes a letter written by Private John Carter, whose home address is No. 2 Shaw View, Flixton, telling of his complete cure of rupture from wearing the Brooks Appliance.

C. E. Brooks,
Dear Sir:

I received your letter by first post this morning. I beg to thank you for your Appliance which was instrumental in the way it cured me of my rupture. I have now been in Kitchener's army seven months, and I have gone through all the training and I have never felt anything and not had the slighest trouble. I remember when I passed the doctor he remarked, "There is nothing wrong with you, young man, you are in the best condition," and he sounded me all over, and I again thank you for the same, and give my consent to use my letter as a testimonial to anyone, as I have been cured. Hoping you and your firms much success.

Yours truly,

MOTHER THANKFUL THAT SON CAN GO TO THE FRONT

And here is a letter from a mother who is thankful because a Brooks Appliance cured her boy so he could go out and serve his country.

2 Orchard Road,
Richmond,
Surrey.

Mr. C. E. Brooks.
Dear Sir:

A line to thank you for what your Appliance has done for my son. After wearing it from December to the following September I can say he is quite cured and is now serving his country in France at his own trade, a shoeing smith. You can make what use you like of these, my thanks.

I am yours,

Mrs. E. Whittle

(Mrs. E. Whittle.)

Brings Instant Relief Perfect Safety and Everlasting Comfort.

The Brooks Rupture Appliance is beyond question the most universally endorsed appliance of any kind in the world for the retention and cure of a ruptured condition in men, women and children.

It is the result of more than 30 years' experience and the percentage of actual cures effected by its use is a little short of miraculous.

The Brooks Appliance has so many imitations, that it is never sold in drug stores, or in any other way than by mail, direct from the maker. This is further necessary because every Brooks Appliance is especially made and fitted for the case for which it is intended.

Many hundreds of Physicians and Surgeons recommend the Brooks Appliance and condemn trusses as more harmful than almost any other method of retaining or treating rupture.

You may not think that a rupture appliance can ever be truly "comfortable" —but that is because you have never tried Brooks'.

CHILD CURED IN 3 MONTHS.

Brantford, Ont.,
11 Richardson St.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Mr. Brooks— Just a line to let you know your Appliance has completely cured our little boy and we are very well pleased with it. We had it on him for about three months, and since he has had it off the rupture has not showed at all.

Yours truly,
MRS. G. SUDDABY.

NOW DOES HARDEST KIND OF WORK.

Cayuga, Ont., Can.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:

I wore your Appliance one year and was surprised, needless to say pleased, to find that I was cured. Two years have now elapsed without my wearing or using anything even while doing heavy lifting, and there are no signs of its return. You now have my heartiest thanks and recommendations. I shall always remember to speak its merits to other sufferers.

A. M. EVANS,
R. R. 1.

HIS RUPTURE A THING OF THE PAST.

Cordova, Man., Can.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:

I am thankful that I can say my rupture is entirely healed up. I used your Appliance about a year and a half. I do all kinds of farm work, lifting heavy stones, etc. I wish to thank you from the bottom of my heart. No one, but those who have rupture, knows the relief and satisfaction there is in realizing that it is a thing of the past.

W. J. WITTER.

PLEASED WITH RESULT.

Thorold, Ont., Can.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:

My boy was ruptured when he was about two years old. I tried a couple of trusses from local doctors without much success. About five years ago I sent for one of your Appliances and I never noticed the rupture come down after he wore it. When it was worn out (about a year ago), he discarded it. He is now 11 years old—skates—plays football, hockey, and all kinds of games—without trouble, for which we are very grateful.

MRS. HUGH GRANT.

DOCTOR THOUGHT BOY WOULD NOT RECOVER.

Komoka, Ont., Can.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:

My little boy has stopped wearing your Appliance, as he seems to be entirely cured. It was the only thing that helped him. We thought he would never recover, as did the doctor also. Thanking you,

ALFRED E. CAMPBELL,

If for any reason whatever you do not wish to keep the Brooks Appliance after you try it, all you have to do is to send it back. You don't have to give any reason, you don't have to write us why, you don't have to send to us for any return instructions or labels. There will be no argument, no dispute, no misunderstanding — but you will find that doing business with Brooks is just like doing business with a First National Bank.

I would have willingly paid ten times what you charged for your Appliance for the cure I now enjoy. I am writing this testimonial so you may use it if you see fit for the benefit of others, as there are so many humbugs. This is written of my own free will, and I take pleasure in recommending your firm as being entirely reliable.

RUSSIANS PLAN TO MAKE A STAND BEFORE PETROGRAD

People's Commissaries Favour a Continuance of the Retreat Until Neighbourhood of the Capital is Reached---High Defence Council Formed by the Russians---Germans in Livonia Have Seized One Hundred Railway Engines and Thousands of Cars.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23.—The People's Commissaries are in favour of the Russian armies retreating until they make a stand before Petrograd. This is especially true of the workmen's representatives. Officials opposing this plant point out that the evacuation of Ukraine means that Northern Russia will starve.

Lettish Riflemen have announced they will go to the front to fight for the freedom of Lithuania and Esthonia. The Bourgeoisie in Petrograd seem to be awaiting the coming of the Germans gleefully, hoping they will be able to save the property they held before the revolution.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23 (Evening).—Men, women and even prisoners of war are rallying to the defence of the Russian Revolution. A thousand women have offered themselves for the army. Fifty thousand workmen soon will take their places in the battle line, it is declared. Even thousands of war prisoners in Petrograd and Moscow—mostly Austrians and Hungarians and Slavs, but including some Germans—are willing to join the defence, the Bolsheviki assert. Telegrams received from Soviets in all parts of Russia urge a fight to the finish.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 22 (Afternoon).—A "High Defence Council" has been formed, composed of Premier Lenine, Foreign Minister Trotsky, Stalin, Proshian and Karelin. The city has been placed under martial law. The Petrograd Soviet and the Pan-Soviet Executive Council have endorsed the People's Commissaries' policy regarding peace. (Probably refers to the Ministers' efforts to sign a separate peace, if Germany will permit, and to fight, if Germany continues the invasion). The workmen are eagerly preparing to fight. The soldiers are hesitating. Hurried preparations for the defence are marked by confusion and desperation.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23.—The Russian west front military quarters have been hastily moved to Smolensk (fifty miles west of Vitshak, 300 miles south of Petrograd, and 250 miles west of Moscow).

It has lost touch with separate armies. The Germans in Livonia have seized a hundred railway engines and thousands of cars.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23.—Members of the Constituent Assembly have decided to convoke that body as soon as possible.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 22.—The Allied Embassies will leave Petrograd in the event that the German advance threatens the city. They are ready, however, to aid Russia to fight the Germans.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Fred S. Ferguson).

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Feb. 23.—Standing on firesteps, crouching in listening posts and machine gun positions, or concealed in dugouts, where telephones and other war instruments are hidden, American soldiers observed Washington's birthday yesterday.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Chronicle said to-day it understood a delegation of Allied Socialists were going to Washington to confer with President Wilson.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—It is believed here that peace negotiations with the Russians will not be resumed immediately by the Germans, and guerilla warfare probably will be instituted by the Bolsheviki to impede the German advance, which apparently is not moving as swiftly as in the first days of the week. The Germans, however, are meeting with little resistance on the long line, and Austrian and Ukrainian troops are approaching Kiev.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(Official).—A successful raid was carried out last night by Scottish troops in the neighbourhood of Monchy Lepreux. We captured a few prisoners. Prisoners were also brought in by our patrols east of Wytschaete. The hostile artillery was active during the night in the neighbourhood of the Menin Road and south of Houthoist Forest.

AUSTRIA OUT OF NEGOTIATIONS.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23.—Austria will not participate in negotiations with the Russian Foreign Minister Trotsky at Brest-Litovsk on Monday, according to the Reichsanost, copies of which were received here to-day. The newspaper added that Trotsky wishes to deal only with a government whose armies are invading Russia.

ALLIED LABOUR SUPPORTS WAR PROGRAMME.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Inter-Allied Labour Conference, in session here, reached an agreement to-day to support the British war aims programme.

FRENCH RAIDED HUN POSITIONS.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(Official).—French troops last night raided German positions north of the Ailette River and in the Champagne. Prisoners and war material were brought back by the French.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—In the new invasion of Russian territory German forces have reached Pskov, in Livonia, 98 miles north-east of Riga, it was announced to-day by the German General Staff.

TRAINMEN ON STRIKE

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 23. — The platform men in the employ of the Nova Scotia Tramway Co. went on strike to-day. All cars were tied up.

COAL SITUATION UNCERTAIN.

Mr. Charles Petrie, of Montreal, the Canadian manager of the George F. Lee Coal Company was in the city yesterday and stated that he did not know how anyone could figure out the coal situation for the coming year.—Toronto Star.

SPANISH STEAMER IS SUNK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MADRID, Friday—The Spanish steamer Maria Caspio has been sunk by a submarine on her way to New York with a cargo of cork. The crew was picked up by the Spanish steamer Claudio Lopez, which also was stopped by submarines, but later was allowed to proceed.

GERMAN PATROL WANDERS INTO THE CANADIAN LINES

Maple Leaf Front Subjected to Projector Gas Attack as Well as a Bombardment With Gas Shells But German Attempts at Raid Are Broken Up

AGRICULTURAL ACTIVITY

(By W. A. Willison.)

(Canadian Press Despatch)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Feb. 23.—More prisoners have wandered into the Canadian lines since my last cable, giving up additional valuable identifications. Sent out as patrolling party they lost their way south of Avion and finding themselves close to our trenches surrendered before being fired on.

After our last successful raid the enemy subjected our front to a projector gas attack as well as a bombardment with gas shells. Early Wednesday morning he launched a raid against our lines in the Lens sector. It was broken up indecisively before it reached our wire.

Last night in the Medicourt section a hostile party of sixteen was bombed out by our patrols.

To-day things have been quieter. For four or five days perfect spring weather has prevailed. All along the front the general battle activity is slowly increasing.

There has been great bursts of agricultural activity behind our lines. Our men are vieing with one another in cultivating vegetable gardens. The corps has now well over one hundred acres split up into little plots and scattered here and there around the whole area.

MR. HUYCKE'S FAREWELL SOLO

On Sunday evening Mr. Asa Huycke will sing a solo at Murray Street Baptist Church. This is the last time Mr. Huycke will be heard as a citizen of Peterborough, as he leaves for Chicago on Tuesday morning next. The evening subject will be "An Ancient Type Seen To-day."

Dr. Reitman Through With Anarchism

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Dr. Reitman, former anarchist and associate of Emma Goldman to-day is doing special work for the city at the Iroquois Memorial Hospital. Friends announced he is through with anarchism, and he admitted he is "practicing medicine trying to make a home and writing poetry."

Gerard Is Out Of Danger

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany, is ill at his hotel to-day, recovering from an operation performed for an abscess in the nasal sinues contracted during one of his visits to German prison camps.

Dr. Lee M. Hurd, his physician, declared that while his condition had been critical he had passed the danger point, and his temperature and pulse were normal this morning.

FOUND FOUR TONS OF COAL

Investigation of Fuel Supply at Dr. Harvey's Residence Made By City Officials Yesterday

ONLY ONE CAR TO-DAY

The determiantion of the Police Department to investigate reports of alleged hoarding of coal was shown by the prompt action yesterday afternoon in following up rumours, that were apaprently well authenticated, that Dr. E. E. Harvey, Brock street, had received a ton of coal a few days ago as an addition to a considerable supply on his premises.

Mr. F. W. Miller, the official investigator, accompanied by P. C. Lawrence, found about four tons of coal in Dr. Harvey's bins, and presumably there were three tons in the house when the fourth was received. Chief Thompson stated this morning that the order-in-council permitted persons to have a two months' supply on their premises, and it would have to be determined what requirements Dr. Harvey would need for his large residence when the fourth ton was delivered.

One Car of Eggs Coal To-day.

One car of egg coal, received by the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company this morning, was quickly snapped up. Citizens whose bins have been swept bare, even of dust, were out in force early. The news quickly spread that a single car had reached the city, but there was no definite information as to who the consignee was. Hence some of the chilled residents visited the Fitzgerald yards, where 480 applicants were counted, and others went south to the Wedlock office. Some of the latter waited from seven until ten o'clock, and their chagrin and, in many cases anger, may be imagined, when they discovered that the orders for this coal had been accepted at the police station, where other hundreds had thronged.

Mr. T. F. Matthews' Offer.

Mr. T F. Matthews notified Ald. Dobbin this afternoon that the Matthews-Blackwell Company could supply the city with twenty-five tons of soft coal if it were needed and would be acceptable.

That most of the rumours of hoarding are entirely groundless was apparently proven by an investigation of the quantity of coal at the residence of Mr. Wm. Irwin, who is spending the winter under the sunny skies of California. An examination disclosed one ton and a half of coal, and this was more than members of the family expected to find. Employees of the Peter Hamilton Company will share in this little hand-out.

Rooms of School Closed.

The Kindergarten and first book pupils of the South Central school are out on an indefinite holiday. Inspector Mowat stated to-day, following the closing of these rooms to permit of a conservation of the limited supply of coal. They have already enoyed a week of unexpected holidays.

A Pile of Pea Coal.

The police hve been asked to explain why a small pile of pea coal in the north yard of the R. Hicks Company is not offered to the public. One reason given is that this a reserve from which the Charity Board's dependents have been supplied when other sources failed.

Four Cars of Soft.

Imagine the dismay of the long-suffering and winter-harassed public this morning when they discovered that four cars of coal which they expected to divide contained steam coal for the Quaker Oats Company.

"What about those four cars of coal on the long siding near the De Laval Company?", was the burden of many telephone calls to the police station and G.T.R. station; but these were Quaker Oats coal awaiting delivery.

Three Italian Convoyed Ships Are Torpedoed

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Feb. 23.—An account of the sinking of three Italian ships in the Mediterranean, who were under convoy was given out by passengers arriving to-day on the Italian passenger liner Dante Alighiery. The lost vessels were the Duca, Geneva passenger vessel, the Ville De Veidun and the Capreal, all Italian. The presence of the submarines in their path was learned by the master of the Dante Allighieri through a wireless warning. All were saved from the sinking ships.

NATIONALIZATION IS COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATION

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—According to the Ottawa Journal Press this morning the Sub-Committee of Canada's Railways Problems, reviewing the Ackworth-Drayton report, has recommended to the Government that the Grand Trunk and Trunk Pacific be nationalized and consolidated and operated with the Intercolonial and Canadian Northern as one great State-owned system. It is also recommended that the Canadian Pacific be retained as a privately-owned and operated system, but provision be made for the war taxation of abnormal profits.

AUSTRIAN AND UKRAINIAN TROOPS ARE NEARING KIEV

Ukrainian Capital Held by Bolsheviki is Threatened—Germans Are Merely Disarming Russians and Then Liberating Them

BOLSHEVIKI DEPRESSED

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 23.— Austrian and Ukrainian troops are nearing Kiev, the Ukrainian capital now held by the Bolsheviki, according to d espatches from Petrograd in the late editions of the morning newspapers.

It is said that the Polish legionaries aided the Germans in occupying Minsk. Petrograd newspapers, it is added, report that Russian soldiers on the northern front seized twenty-seven trains which are being used to carry 40,000 of the soldiers to Moscow.

The Germans are taking no prisoners, merely disarming the Russians and liberating them.

German airplanes, the Petrograd correspondent of the Times says, are distributing proclamations, calling on the Russian people to remain calm and keep order as the Germans are coming to suppress anarchy and to bring food as soon as possible.

The Bosheviki are greatly perturbed and depressed. Foreign Minister Trotsky is reported to be sick in consequence of the renewal of hostilities, and is unable to attend meetings of the Council of People's Commissaries, which are being held constantly.

Improvements In George St. Church

Extensive improvements are being made in the George Street Methodist Church. New carpet is being laid in the aisles and on the platform. New chairs are being installed in the gallery and the lighting system greatly improved. The chairs will be in place for to-morrow and promise to add comfort and convenience to those who sit in that portion of the church.

The Pastor Rev. A. J. Thomas, will speak at both services. In the evening his topic will be "The woman who is a hindrance to her husband's religion." Mr. Asa Huycke will sing.

A cordial invitation is extended to all the friends of the Church.

Wide Powers To Health Officers

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Legislation which will be brought down by the Government next week for combatting venereal diseases will give the medical health officers very wide powers. They may order any infected persons to undergo any treatment which seems necessary, and may, if necessity demands it, order their isolation in a special hospital. There will be no special hospitals provided by the Government for giving treatment, but where the affected person is too poor to pay for treatment, it will be supplied free of charge.

PASSCHENDAELE AS DESCRIBED BY A PETERBORO' BOY

Pte. Percy Kennedy, Formerly of the 93rd, Says That Fighting on the Flanders Front Was the Worst the Canadians Have Experienced

MANY WERE DROWNED

Mr. E. F. Mason has received the following most interesting letter from Pte. Percy Kennedy, formerly of the 93rd, and who has been at the front with the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles:

Can. Military Hospital,
Lyminge, Kent, England,
January 27th, 1918.

My Dear Mr. Mason,—Just a few lines in answer to your most welcome letter of Dec. 16th, and was very glad to hear from you. I knew your writing as soon as I saw the envelope. Mr. Mason, I was sorry to have seen in the paper yesterday of Peterborough's having such a big fire and loss. I do hope that there were not many business places destroyed and no loss of life. It must have been a bad fire and will certainly make times worse for a while. I suppose people will think it was a German spy, the same as usual. That was a big explosion at Halifax, too. Am glad to hear that the Cereal has been built up again.

A Lot of Change.

Well, Mr. Mason, I have often thought of you and the time I remember well that you told me conscription would come, and sure enough it has. You made a true statement then, and I think a lot of changes will be made in Canada before this game is over, but still I think from my experience that it will be over this year, and perhaps very soon if this big smash comes off soon, and which I think will. But believe me it will be be one of the worst games that old Bill has ever tried, for it will be an awful loss and slaughter of men, and the more men he sends over the more there will be killed, for we have lots of artillery, but old Bill has some too, you bet. I wish it was over, but time will tell. I suppose more men will soon be over from Canada. I hope there are, for it takes a lot to keep the divisions filled up.

A Costly Victory.

If you could have seen us coming out of Paschendaele, in Belgium, you would think so too. We won our objective but we sure paid for it. It was the worst place I have been in yet. I thought the Somme, Vimy, Lens and Hill 70 were bad, but this place was the worst yet. We had not much chance for there were pill boxes all over, and could not see a lot of them until we got quite close, and there would be perhaps 3 to 5 machine guns in them and from 10 to 30 men, but the ones that were got killed or were taken prisoners. There were not any trenches up there, only shell holes, and full of water at that, and the mud was fierce, so we had to stay in water and mud in order to keep our heads down at all. It is a very wet country up there, but Fritz has been driven off all the ridges now. Many a man got wounded and never got out, would get in mud or water and had to stay there.

Many Drowned.

Quite a few I saw were drowned. I certainly was glad when our relief came up. Old Bill came over three times the afternoon after we went over that morning, but was driven back and cut to pieces. The poor pack horses and mules had a hard time get-

NEW TIME TABLE

Detailed Explanation of the Railway Situation in a Letter Received by Mr. T. F. Matthews—Changes Demanded by the Government and Railway Commission--No Serious Inconvenience to Peterborough Traffic.

THE NEW TIME TABLE

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Greater Peterborough Association, has received from Mr. W. M. Howard, District Passenger Agent, at Toronto, of the C.P.R., a detailed explanation of the traffic conditions and causes that have led to the establishment of the new schedule of passenger service through Peterborough and its connections at the terminals.

The letter is as follows:

Dear Sir, — On January 6th, we made a number of alterations and reductions in our passenger service, this to assist in the conservation of coal, power, etc., and to permit of the more expeditious handling of the more important traffic, viz: — overseas freight.

On Feb. 24th we will be required to make further alterations and reductions, with a view to greater conservation.

When the Canadian Pacific new line between Toronto and Smith's Falls via the Lake Shore was opened, over three years ago, it was necessary to make a number of changes in the then existing train services.

The main object of the new line was to provide an even low grade route for freight and passenger traffic through Toronto and Smith's Falls, thereby relieving the pressure of traffic on the line via Peterborough, this to enable that route to cope successfully with the large volume of Great Lakes steamship traffic moving from Port McNicholl via Peterborough.

When the new line was opened the through passenger trains between Montreal and Toronto, London and Detroit, were placed in service via Belleville for the following reasons:

First—To reduce the passenger service on the Peterborough line and thereby expedite freight movements.

Second—To move via the natural route, the even and low grade route, the heavier trains which are the through trains.

Third—Satisfactorily to handle the larger through traffic moving to and from points on that line, owing to the greater density of population on the Lake Shore route.

The Original Plan.

At the time, the through day trains were established via the Lake Shore route, the C.P.R. placed a service between Smith's Falls and Toronto whereby passengers from Montreal and beyond via the through train to Smith's Falls might connect with the day train from Smith's Falls to Toronto via Peterborough, and at Toronto again connect with the through train. Similar service was placed in effect east bound. That is, after the arrival of the through night train from Chicago, Detroit, etc., at Toronto in the morning a day train was arranged to take the through passengers for points on the line via Peterborough and pick up on that line passengers who wished to connect at Smith's Falls with the through train for Montreal and beyond.

Time Was Extended.

After a short trial of this arrangement it was found that on account of the extraordinary number of stops, and the more difficult grades on the line via Peterborough, the day trains

HIS WORK WELL DONE.

A scholarly man, quiet and unostentatious; a man of broad vision, yet with an infinite capacity for details, Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice rendered his country most valuable service as its Ambassador at Washington. It would be difficult to over-estimate the importance of the part he played in bringing together in what is practically an alliance, the two great English-speaking peoples—one of the most momentous developments in world history. What Sir Cecil accomplished was made possible by his understanding of the American people, and his ability to make his government understand them.

During the doubtful days of American neutrality he never lost faith. When he was subjected to unthinking criticism at home for his failure to imitate the methods of Count von Bernstorff, he refused to be swerved from the straight and honest path. He believed thoroughly in the intelligence of the American people, their ability to solve for themselves their own problems, their fidelity to the great principles upon which this Republic was founded.

Events justified that faith. Happily, he lived to see its full fruition.

A PENSION CASE.

The Union government is receiving much sharp criticism from friendly journals for failure to live up to its pledges respecting Civil Service reform. An important appointment at Montreal and another at Ottawa, are represented to be snarply at variance with the Premier's pledge concerning the "abolition of patronage." Besides these cases, there is another, in relation to the Superannuation Act, in which the proceeding adopted is hard to justify. It was abuse of the Superannuation system under a former government that led the Laurier administration, many years ago, to abolish it as respects all new appointments. In the light of experience the wisdom of that step may now be questioned. The abuse of any system is not always a good argument for its abolition. A sound pension fund is undoubtedly of much value in building up an efficient body of public officials.

The amount of pension that may be paid to those who are eligible is governed by the amount of the salary, and the length of service. There is an old provision in the law which gives the government power to increase the allowance of years to the official's credit. It is a bad provision, one that is easily capable of misuse. The Laurier government disapproved of it strongly and for many years, down to the time of their resignation, resisted every effort of retiring officials to be allowed for years which they never served. Sir George Murray, the British official who, at the request of the Borden government, made a report on Civil Service reform, pointed out the dangerous character of this provision in the law. Yet this practically obsolete section of the law, rejected by the Laurier government, and condemned by Sir George Murray's report, is brought into action for the purpose of giving Mr. J. W. Borden, on his retirement from the Militia Department, a pension that he had not earned. Mr. J. W. Borden was a capable and efficient officer. Of that there is no question. But so were many other officers who have been retired without receiving the benefit of the allowance for imaginary service that is accorded to him.

The case can hardly be regarded as one of the pleasing features of the Union government's work.—Journal of Commerce.

THE GERMAN WAY.

Now the Germans are whining about the use of poison gas, and urging that it be placed under the ban of the Red Cross, says the Montreal Star.

When this war broke out poison gas was under the ban of international agreement. Germany was pledged in honour against the use of such a foul weapon. Germany was also pledged in honour against unwarned sinking of merchantmen, against the bombing of peaceful towns, against the poisoning of wells, against the deportation of civilians for war work, against the ravishment and destruction of unoffending civilian life and property, against the use of flame-throwers and explosive bullets. Germany, with cold and cruel deliberation, has violated all these guarantees, as in the beginning, it broke its signed treaty by the invasion of Belgium.

Now Germany wants us to quit the gas game. We have fought the Devil to a whimpering standstill with his own fire. Soon he will want to welsh on his murderous bombing game also.

But what can we do? We have always fought decently—have always made a god of British fair play. Heaven knows we want to get back to the rules of man-fashion fighting. But how can we trust these treacherous treaty-breakers, who are confessedly bound by no ties of honour or good faith when national values are involved What guarantee can we get that, having surrendered an advantage hardly won in their own murderous game, we shall not again be betrayed?

The German Government is an international bankrupt, whose signature, without satisfactory endorsement, has no negotiable value.

HOW WILL THEY FEEL?

"There were not any trenches up there! only shell holes and full of water at that, and the mud was fierce. We had to stay in water and mud to keep our heads down at all. Many a man got wounded and never got out—he would get into the mud or water and had to stay there. Quite a few I saw were drowned. There were enough dead men and horses on that front to cover George street from Smith street to the Exhibition Grounds. I am the only 93rd moy in my company now; my chums are all gone and only seven of us came out of my platoon."—From a letter describing the battle of Passchendeale by Pte. Percy Kennedy of Peterborough.

Men who came through that terrible ordeal will be coming home shortly, and will undoubtedly as ninety per cent. have done, join the Great War Veterans' Association. How will they feel when they find that the Council of their home city has refused to do anything to contribute to their comfort when they come home? And when they contrast the treatment received in Peterborough to that accorded returned men in other cities they are very liable to feel like doing what Corp. Pat. Duggan did the other day—depart to some city where the valour of the Canadian troops is appreciated.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Keeping the Home Fires Burning" is not as easy a task as it was in the early days of the war."

Why not stock the Municipal fuel yard with some of the planks from the election platforms of the Aldermanic candidates?

Peterborough's canines, with Jimmy Gates chasing them from pillar to post, will get some idea of how the Russians feel just now.

It is to be hoped that that promise of fifty cars of coal Mayor Duncan received in Buffalo is more substantial than the promise given the Veterans that the city would pay the rental of their club rooms.

Any way the City Council doesn't need to worry about the fuel problem. The Veterans are making it warm for them.

How would you like to head a deputation before the City Fathers to ask for free swimming baths?

Citizens appreciate the action of the militia authorities in turning over some of the coal at the Armouries for the benefit of the sufferers. And they need lots of coal up there on account of the drafts.

No use assigning the Kaiser to Jericho now. The British are in possession there.

DISAPPOINTING RESULTS.

By the enforcement of the Military Service Act it was hoped and expected that reinforcements for the Canadian army to the number of 100,000 would be enrolled, says the Hamilton Herald. The Act came into force about five months ago, and it may be recalled that the minister of militia announced his intention of having 20,000 troops overseas by the first of the year.

Compared with the expectations the results are meagre and disappointing. To date, the total number of men drafted under the Act is 21,978, of whom 1227 are recruits for the British army; so that the Act has produced for the Canadian army recruits to the number of only 20,752. Of this number Ontario contributes 9556 or nearly half. Quebec's total contribution is 2038, of whom about half are English-speaking recruits from the Montreal district. Only about a thousand French-speaking recruits in Quebec have been drafted into the ranks.

Ontario's showing is none too good; but there is this to be said for Ontario, that the province had been heavily drained of its effective manpower under the volunteer system. The total French population of Quebec contributed a smaller number of volunteers than did the city of Hamilton. That its attitude has not changed under conscription is proved by the fact that not less than 30,000 Quebec appeals for exemption are awaiting decision. It is clear that the Quebec people are offering passive resistance to the Act, and it is to be feared — to judge from the work of the exemption tribunals and the appeal judges in that province — that they are being backed by the French-speaking judges and the officials chosen and paid to enforce the Act.

It remains to be seen whether the militia department and the Union government are going to permit the people of Quebec successfully to use the machinery provided by the Act for the purpose of obstructing the enforcement of the Act in Quebec.

But the results produced by conscription are disappointing in the other provinces as well as in Quebec. Too much laxitude was allowed the exemption tribunals, and there have been far too many exemptions granted. If the need for reinforcements of the Canadian division is as urgent as it has been represented, it is hard to see how the calling up of men of the second class, and perhaps even the third class, can be avoided. It certainly cannot be avoided if the war lasts another year and Canada continues to bear her share of the burden.

HUSSEIN KAMEL.

The Man Who Helped the Reconstruction of Egypt.

For many years before the British Government called upon Hussein Kamil to assume the difficult position of the first Sultan of Egypt, as it did in the December of 1914, Hussein had been one of the best-known and most-respected figures in Egyptian public life. A keen agriculturist, and a strong believer in the benefits of education, he devoted all his energies to raising the standard of both. Thus, the hard lot of the Egyptian fellah made special appeal to him, and he did much to make it easier, whilst he gave evidence of true statesmanship in that he recognized the impossibility of his country ever rising to any worthy position as long as its women remained uneducated. He was himself, of course, a man of liberal education, and spent a great deal of his time, as a young man, in Europe. After attending various schools in Egypt, he went, in 1867, to Paris to complete his education. There he became the guest of Napoleon III., and two years later, when the Empress Eugenie visited Egypt, at the opening of the Suez Canal, Hussein returned to that country so as to act as one of her chamberlains. Later on, after having, in the meanwhile, returned to Paris and succeeded in getting away from it just before the siege, he went back to Egypt and threw himself whole-heartedly into the public service. His father, Ismail Pasha, appointed him Inspector-General of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Egypt, and, during the years 1872 to 1878, he held many important ministerial posts in the country, thus gaining that intimate knowledge of affairs which he was to put to good use later on. Then when Ismail was deposed, Hussein went into exile with him, but, after the suppression of the Arabi rebellion, returned once more to Egypt, and once more devoted himself to public work.

Hussein Kamil was a firm believer in the British occupation, and was never tired of insisting that the prosperity of Egypt depended on a loyal co-operation with the occupying power, maintaining that this might, at all times be effected without any loss of Egyptian ideals. And so it came about that he was ever the trusted counsellor of the British authorities. Lord Cromer made him his friend, as did also Sir John Gorst, whilst Lord Kitchener never failed to take counsel with Hussein Kamil before embarking on any one of the many great schemes for the betterment of the fellaheen with which his name is associated. Hussein's work was, indeed, for the most part, carried on in the background. Only once, in recent years, did he accept a prominent position, and that was in 1909, when, in the hope of raising the tone of the deliberations of the Legislative Council and General Assembly, he accepted the presidency of that body. He resigned the position, however, the following year, after the fiasco of the debates and vote on the proposed extension of the Suez Canal concession, and, from that time until he ascended the throne as the first Sultan of Egypt, some three years ago, he resumed that position of friend and counsellor which he had occupied for so long and with such success.

When he accepted the position of Sultan, it was with all his usual modesty, and with all that recognition of his responsibilities which was always characteristic of the man. He knew well, too, what he was doing, and how his action would be viewed in Constantinople. It came from the shores of the Bosphorus outlawing the new sovereign, and practically inviting his assassination. Twice during the following year that assassination was attempted, but Hussein Kamil went on his way undisturbed, and declined to let threats deter him from carrying out the arduous tasks he laid upon himself as the ruler of the country. The Sultan's day, as one writer has said of him, was a continuous round of public duties, and his audience chamber was attended, not only by officials, but by hosts of native notables from all parts of the country, who approached him for counsel or assistance. Thus he was able continually to influence native opinion in the right direction, and, at the close of his reign, the ill-feeling which had been stirred up against him, when he ascended the throne, had been completely swept away, and its place taken by an affection and regard enjoyed by few.

A Terrible Record.

The following record gives the number of lynchings that took place in the United States last year. The division of records and research of Tuskegee Institute show that there were thirty-eight persons lynched in 1917, of whom thirty-six were negroes and two were whites. Thirty-seven were males and one female. Twelve, or a little less than one-third, of those put to death were charged with rape or attempted rape. The offences charged against the whites lynched were: Rape and murder, 1; fomenting strikes, 1. The offences charged against the negroes were: Attempted rape, 5; rape, 6; murder, 3; killing of officer of the law, 2; for not getting out of road and being insolent, 2; attacking women, 2; disputing white men's word, 2; entering woman's room, 2; wounding officer of the law, 1; molesting women, 1; stealing coat, 1; intimacy with woman, 1; killing man in altercation, 2; accidentally killing child by running automobile over it, 1; vagrancy, 1; wounding and robbing a man, 1; attacking an officer of the law, 1; opposition to war draft, 1; insulting girls, 1; writing insolent letter, 1.

The States in which lynchings occurred and number in each State were as follows: Alabama, 4; Arkansas, 4; Arizona, 1; Florida, 1; Georgia, 6; Montana, 1; Oklahoma, 1; South Carolina, 1; Tennessee, 3; Texas, 6; Virginia, 1; Wyoming, 1.

General Allenby's Official Story Of Fall Of Jerusalem

Interesting Account of the Operations is Given in British General's Despatch—Many Difficulties Had to Be Overcome by British Forces.

Sir E. Allenby, in his despatch describing the fall of Jerusalem, gives the following account of the operations:

The situation on the Palestine front in the second week of July, 1917, was as follows:

The Turkish Army in Southern Palestine held a strong position extending from the sea at Gaza, roughly along the main Gaza-Beersheba Road to Beersheba. Gaza had been made into a strong, modern fortress, heavily entrenched and wired, offering every facility for protracted defence.

My force was extended on a front of 22 miles, from the sea, opposite Gaza to Gamli.

The difficulties to be overcome in the operations against Beersheba and the Sheria-Hareira line were considerable, and careful preparations and training were necessary. The chief difficulties were those of water and transport, and arrangements had to be made to ensure that the troops could be kept supplied with water while operating at considerable distance from their original water base for a period which might amount to a week or more.

The transport problem was no less difficult; there were no good roads south of the line Gaza-Beersheba, and no reliance could, therefore be placed on the use of motor transport.

During the period from July to October the enemy's force on the Palestine front had been increased. It was evident that the enemy was determined to make every effort to maintain his position on the Gaza-Beersheba line.

READY FOR ATTACK.

On the evening of October 30th, the position of the Eastern force, which was to make the attack on Beersheba, was concentrated in positions of readiness for the night march to its positions of deployment.

The plan was to attack the hostile works between the Khalasa Road and the Wadi Saba. After a preliminary bombardment the works were occupied with little opposition by about 7.30 p.m.

Meanwhile, attempts to advance in small parties across the plain toward the town made slow progress. In the evening, however, a mounted attack by Australian Light Horse, who rode straight at the town from the east, proved completely successful. They galloped over two deep trenches held by the enemy just outside the town, and entered the town at about 7 p.m., capturing numerous prisoners. About 2,000 prisoners and 13 guns were taken, and some 500 Turkish corpses were buried on the battlefield.

The attack on Gaza was ordered to take place on the morning of Nov. 2nd. The objectives of this attack were the hostile works from Umbrella Hill (2,000 yards south-west of the town) to Sheikh Hasan, on the sea (about 2,500 yards north-west of the town).

The attack was successful in reaching all objectives, except for a section of trench on the left and some of the final objectives in the centre. Four hundred and fifty prisoners were taken and many Turks killed.

On the early morning of the 1st November the 43rd (Welsh) Division with the Imperial Camel Corps on its right, had moved out into the hills north of Beersheba, with the object of securing the flank of the attack on Sheria.

The 53rd (Welsh) Division, after a long march, took up a position from Towal Abu Jerwal (6 miles north of Beersheba) to Muweiloh (4 miles north-east of Abu Irgeig). Irish troops occupied Abu Irgeig the same day.

Tel el Khuweilfeh was to be attacked at dawn on the 6th, and the troops were to endeavour to reach line Tel el Khuweifeh-Rijim el Dhib.

The attack progressed rapidly, the Yeomanry storming the works on the enemy's extreme left with great dash; and soon after noon the London and Irish troops commenced their attack. Sheria Station was captured before dark. Some 600 prisoners were taken and some guns and machine guns captured.

The bombardment of Gaza had meanwhile continued, and another attack was ordered to take place on the night of 6th - 7th.

OUTPOST HILL.

The attack on Outpost Hill and Middlesex Hill met with little opposition, and as soon, after they had been taken, as patrols could be pushed forward, the enemy was found to be gone. East Anglian troops on the left also found at dawn that the enemy had retired during the night, and early in the morning the main force occupied the northern and eastern defences of Gaza. It soon became obvious from the reports of the Royal Flying Corps, that the enemy was retiring in considerable disorganization, and could offer no very serious resistance if pressed with determination.

By the 9th, therefore, operations had reached the stage of a direct pursuit by as many troops as could be supplied so far in front of railhead. Orders were accordingly issued to press the pursuit and to reach Junction Station as early as possible, thus cutting off the Jerusalem Army.

Operations on the 10th and 11th showed a stiffening of the enemy's resistance on the general line of the Wadi Sukereer, with centre about El Kustineh; the Hebron group, after an ineffective demonstration in the direction of Arak el Menshiye on the 10th, retired north-east and prolonged the enemy's line towards Beit Jibrin.

The situation on the morning of November 13th was that the enemy had strung out his force (amounting probably to no more than 20,000 rifles in all) on a front of 20 miles, from El Kubeibeh on the north, to about Beit Jibrin to the south. In this region the Katrah-El Mughar line forms a very strong position, and it was here that the enemy made his most determined resistance against the turning movement directed against his right flank. The capture of this position by the 52nd (Lowland) Division, assisted by a most dashing charge of mounted troops, who galloped across the plan under heavy fire and turned the enemy's position from the north, was a fine feat of arms. Some 1,100 prisoners, 3 guns and many machine guns were taken here. After this the enemy resistance weakened, and by the evening his forces were retiring east and north.

The infantry, who were sent forward about dusk to occupy Junction Station, met with some resistance, and halted for the night, not much more than a mile west of the station.

EFFICIENT FOOD

Dr. Alexander Bryce, M.D., D.P.H. (Camb.), a famous authority in dietetics, has compiled a table showing the number of calories per ounce in different foods.

Calories are the units of food values. The number of calories per ounce contained in food proves its value.

This is what Dr. Bryce found and published:—

| (CALORIES PER OUNCE) | |
|---|---|
| Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes | 103. |
| Eggs (poached) | 48.3 |
| Macaroni au Gratin | 44.5 |
| Milk | 20.6 |
| Oatmeal (cooked) | 18. |
| Potatoes (baked) | 32.7 |

Not one of these staple foods contains one half the number of calories per ounce that Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes do—some of them are less than a fifth efficient in calories.

This is a real test of food values.

Put Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes on your daily menu—they are good to eat three times a day. Delicious, digestible, nourishing.

"She is attracting my husband!"

Yes, sophisticated Madge Loring is deliberately fascinating little Helen Howard's husband.

Madge has poise, dignity, presence--those qualities which George Howard is repeatedly asking his simple girl-wife to acquire.

But wait! Nineteen-year-old Helen has a sweetness--a lack of venom in the face of the older woman's duplicity--in short, a dignity of soul, which keeps her a lady throughout this greatest test of a woman's refinement.

And when, at last, she adds to her innate nobility the veneer of social decorum, does she appear to George Howard as the finer of the two women? Does she hold her husband?

Read and see. This story--"The Woman Who Changed" starts Monday in The Examiner.

COMFORT SOAP

The new big bar makes soap cheaper now

The bigger Comfort Soap bar for the same money is pretty good news these days of high prices isn't it? What does it mean? Simply that our tremendous buying power in the Soap-materials market can give you infinitely better value in Soap than it can in premiums.

Owing to the war hundreds of factories are now making more essential goods than premiums and those still offered are too far under Comfort Standards of quality and too high in price to be good value for you.

No Premiums now—
we give you more Comfort soap instead

So we will discontinue Premiums until after the War, anyhow.

All premium-bearing Comfort Soap wrappers and coupons now out can still be redeemed from our present ample Premium stock.

Comfort Soap is a welcome clothes saver and work saver in thousands upon thousands of homes in Canada. The bigger, new bar at the same price will be a boon to them.

General Allenby's Official Story

Early next morning they occupied the station.

SIXTY MILE ADVANCE.

In fifteen days our force had advanced sixty miles on its right and about forty on its left. It had driven a Turkish Army of nine Infantry Divisions and one Cavalry Division out of a position in which it had been entrenched for six months, and had pursued it, giving battle whenever it attempted to stand, and inflicting on it losses amounting probably to nearly two-thirds of the enemy's original effectives. Over 9,000 prisoners about eighty guns, more than 100 machine guns and very large quantities of ammunition and other stores had been captured.

By the evening of the 15th the mounted troops had occupied Ramleh and Ludd, and had pushed patrols to within a short distance of Jaffa, which was occupied without opposition on the evening of the 16th.

ENEMY CUT IN TWO.

The situation was now as follows: The enemy's army, cut in two by our capture of Junction Station, had retired partly east into the mountains towards Jerusalem, and partly north along the plain. On our side the mounted troops had been marching and fighting continuously since October 31st; and had advanced a distance of seventy-five miles, measured in a straight line from Asluj to Jaffa. The troops, after their heavy fighting at Gaza, had advanced in nine days a distance of about forty miles, with two severe engagements and continual advanced guard fighting. The 52nd (Lowland) Division had covered sixty-nine miles in this period.

On the 21st a body of infantry moved north-east by a track from Kuryet el Enab through Biddu and Kulundia towards Bireh. Progress was slow, but the evening the ridge on which stands Neby Samwill was secured.

Favoured by a continuance of fine weather, preparations for a fresh advance against the Turkish positions, west and south of Jerusalem proceeded rapidly. The date for the attack was fixed as 8th December. Welsh troops, with a Cavalry regiment attached, had advanced from their positions north of Beersheba up the Hebron-Jerusalem road on the 4th. No opposition was met, and by evening of the 6th the head of this column was ten miles north of Hebron. The infantry were directed to reach the Bethlehem-Beit Jala area by the 7th, and the line Surbahir—Sheratet (about three miles south of Jerusalem) by dawn on the 8th, and no troops were to enter Jerusalem during this operation.

The troops moved into positions of assembly by night, and, assaulting at dawn on the 8th, soon carried their first objectives. They then pressed steadily forward. During the day about 300 prisoners were taken, and many Turks killed. Our own casualties were light.

Next morning the advance was resumed. The Turks had withdrawn during the night, and the London troops and Yeomanry, driving back rearguards, occupied a position east of Jerusalem, while Welsh troops occupied a position east of Jerusalem across the Jericho road. These operations isolated Jerusalem, and at about noon the enemy sent out a parlementaire and surrendered the city.

At noon on the 11th I made my official entry into Jerusalem.

In the operations from October 31 to December 9, over 12,000 prisoners were taken. The total captures of material have not yet been fully counted, owing to the large area covered by these operations; but are known to include about 100 guns of various calibres, many machine guns, more than 20,00,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, add 250,000 rounds of gun ammunition. More than twenty aeroplanes were destroyed by our airmen or burnt by the enemy to avoid capture.

Up-To-Date Methods Of Store Keepers Help To Reduce The H.C.O.L.

Peterborough has been in the past, and is still to-day, exceptionally fortunate in having a large percentage of storekeepers who belong to the progressive type of business men; men who not only move with the times, but who lead the way in many of the more radical advances made necessary by the changing order of things.

One of the foremost men of this type is Mr A. W. Paskins, the well-known grocer at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets.

Over a year ago Mr. Paskins recognized the fact that a very considerable saving could be made in the price of foods to the consumer if business was done on a cash basis instead of the universal credit system, and with this end in view converted his business into a strictly cash one. The proof that this was a step in the right direction lies in the fact that not only did his customers endorse his action by staying with him, but his turnover was very substantially increased in the ensuing twelve months by a large influx of new trade. And now the fact that others are following his example goes to prove that the enlightened section of the public are fully awake to the advantages of this system.

Another thing Mr. Paskins has always contended is that the merchants themselves are somewhat to blame for so much of the mail order business that goes out of the city. At that time he offered to fill any grocery order at the price and on the terms quoted by the cash mail order houses, and that offer, which still holds good, was taken up and numbers of orders filled to the complete satisfaction of a great many customers.

And it should be remembered that in buying in the home city, the purchaser does not get unknown or unbranded goods, but every article is the same as you've seen and known and used before. This in itself is a strong argument for home buying.

And remember every order placed in your own city indirectly helps you, as the prosperity of the city as a whole must ultimately, although perhaps indirectly, benefit each citizen.

Therefore if you would do your duty as citizen, and at the same time have the added pleasure of getting the best of the lowest cost, support the men who are trying to help you, by giving them your patronage.

Children Had Whooping Cough

Whooping cough, although specially a disease of childhood, is by no means confined to that period, but may occur at any time of life. It is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria, and is more common in female than male children.

Whooping cough starts with sneezing, watering of the eyes, irritation of the throat, feverishness and cough. The coughing attacks occur frequently, but are generally more severe at night.

On the first sign of a "whoop" Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup should be administered, as it helps to clear the bronchial tubes of the collected mucous and phlegm.

Mrs. George Cooper, Bloomfield, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure I can write and tell you that there never was a better cough medicine made than Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Our children had whooping cough last winter, and that is the only thing that seemed to help them. It loosens up the phlegm so that they could raise it easily. I will never be without it."

"Dr. Wood's" is 25c. and 50c. a bottle; put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; manufactured by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Peterborough, Feb. 22, 1918.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Allow me to express myself of what I think of that poor lady and how she was used, as she wants to know what the people of Peterborough think about it. I for one think she was used well. She got her coal brought to her; she was lucky. I saw a lot of poor people standing in the cold waiting for their turn and they were pleased to have the pleasure of carting it home on small sleighs themselves. Most of the'r husbands are no doubt in France. I wonder if this good lady knows there is a war on. I think if she would do the same as my wife had to do while I was away she would be a long time getting frozen. My advice to this lady is to use the bucksaw till the warm weather comes and think herself lucky to have wood to saw and don't forget to say a prayer for the boys over there, for there isn't much coal in the trenches to cheer up. There is lots worse off than us. (I have had some).

A Contented Returned Englishman.

FOOD { Conservation / Substitution / Production

This Column is Written in Connection With the Food Campaign Now Being Carried on by the Local Council of Women

Save Or Starve

The signal letters, S.O.S. immediately brings to our minds a picture of a ship in distress, tossed by the waves, her crew and cargo in dire danger of death and destruction

But the letters have now another meaning, and they are flashed to us over the land instead of over the sea. Would that in their new meaning of Save or Starve, they could reach every man, woman and child in our fair Canada.

This new call for us, is barely less urgent than the call from the sinking ship for help. We cannot imagine ourselves ignoring such a call from a vessel in distress, if it were in our power to help. But hundreds even in our own fair city have as yet not taken seriously this new call.

That it is serious, no one who thinks can deny. If men do not think in such times as these, we are either lacking in the power to think, or else the locality where our hearts should be is an empty, desolate place.

If it were not serious, would such men as Lord Rhonda, warn his people that unless the extreme limit of production were reached in 1918, the allies would be facing "that starvation which is followed by disease and death."

That means much more than living on shortened rations. Hence, do not let us wilfully blind ourselves to the present food situation. They tell us women that the winning of the war depends now, more upon us than upon the men. What a wonderful opportunity we have, then, to show ourselves worthy of this great responsibility.

One writer tells us that "our fate is conquered, when we accept it cheerfully." Apropos of this, let me quote the following message sent by the eminent dramatist, Mr. Louis N. Parker to the troops at the front.

We know how much must still be done
Ere you'll have finished with the Hun;
We watch you, wonder at you, where,
Heroes on land, on sea, in air,
Laughing at death and scorning pain,
You fight, and fight, and fight again,
And we fight with you. Yes! although
Ours is a paltry little show.
We're elderly civilians, and
Women and children, but we stand
As firm as rocks to help you win.
We welcome Gothas with a grin.
No tea? All right. No sugar? Good.
No meat? A kipper's healthier food.
No coal? No bacon? butter? beer?
No Christmas cheer?
All right, all right! The less we eat
The sooner you'll march down our street!
In God's name, what are eggs and tea
Compared with final victory?

Was At Sale At Same Place 43 Years Ago

At Mr. T. M. Hunter's sale in North Monaghan, which was conducted by Auctioneer Jackson of Port Perry, he was asked, at the request of Dr. Berrie, who also resides at Port Perry, to inquire at the sale if there were any people present who were in attendance at the last auction sale on the same farm, which took place 43 years ago, when Dr. Berrie's father, the late Luke Berrie, was selling out. The only hand that went up was that of Reeve McIntosh, who while yet young in years, has been a resident of the township for more than 60 years, and his own farm has been the birthplace of five generations of boys in the McIntosh family.

TRENCH TEA WAS A SPLENDID SUCCESS

Every one "did his or her bit" at the Trench Tea given yesterday afternoon at the Empress by the Kitchener League. The whole affair was an unbounded success, and Mrs. Joseph Knox, whose clever idea the whole affair centred upon, is receiving the heartiest congratulations from all who attended. The League, which has done so much since the outbreak of war, and provided comforts for the soldiers turned, with the aid of the War Veterans, the grill room of the Empress into a most warlike appearance, which was in keeping with the object of their work. At the doors an exact reproduction of a dugout formed a novel cashier's cage, and to further carry out the war-like idea, a shrapnel helmet, loaned by Lieut. Elliott, M.C., was used as a collection box. The tables were delightfully arranged. Miniature cannon were placed behind tiny sand bags made of oatmeal and these again concealed by a camouflage of evergreens. Trench candles also added to the effect, and when lit, anything more artistic than the entire effect could scarcely be found. Flags of the allies adorned the walls, and prominently placed on a table were some very interesting relics of Vimy Ridge, loaned by Veterans.

Those Who Assisted.

The fair assistants were all charmingly dressed for the different ranks of the army they represented.

Mrs. Gear, Mrs. Decker and Mrs. Walton, on fatigue, looked after the tea and refreshments, all of which were of a war like nature, consisting of 'bully' beef, beans, brown bread and 'khaki' coloured cake.

Mrs. Joseph Knox and Mrs. Knowles (Lieuts.) in Red Cross nurse costume, acted as ushers. In the dug-out Mrs. D. McQuaig and Mrs. Kimberley acted as cashiers. Mrs. Kearns and Mrs. Beall, also in Red Cross costume, looked after the card tables.

The girls who assisted at the different tables acting as "orderlies" were Mrs. W. J. Wilson, Mrs. Pitchford, Mrs. Edgar Burnham, and the Misses Edna Parvis, Helen Kearns, H. Austin, H. Clementi and Mrs. Hartley.

Played Cards.

In the card room Mrs. Aylmer took first prize at bridge and Mrs. Rose for five hundred. Those who served the tables were: Mrs. Sanderson, Mrs. Kent, Mrs. Ernest Girven, Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Aylmer, Miss Kingan, Mrs. Perks, Mrs. Gardiner, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Pulkinghorn, Mrs. Cleming, Mrs. Donnelly, Mrs. Coon, Mrs. Bletcher, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Sedgwick, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. J. D. Doris, Mrs. R. Hunter, Mrs. Haslam, Mrs. Borbridge, Mrs. Crowe, Mrs. Weir, Mrs. Cranfield, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Jamieson, Mrs. Cooke, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Lytle, Mrs. Yenney, Mrs. MacFarlane, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. Gemmell and Mrs. Hooper.

The Tea Room.

After the Red Cross meeting a large number of ladies and gentlemen came into tea, all of whom expressed themselves delighted with the novel idea of the function and the clever manner in which it was carried out.

Loaned Diamond Disc.

Mr. Greene, with his usual generosity, kindly loaned an Edison Diamond Disc, which Mrs. Edgar Burnham kept busy during the afternoon.

I took them for liver trouble. I came out of the hospital on May 3rd, last, after having had a serious operation which might have been saved had I taken your remedy sooner. # PASSCHENDAELE AS DESCRIBED, ETC.

ting through the mud with ammunition up to the guns, had to shoot hundreds of them when they got down. There were enough dead men and horses on that front to cover George street from Smith street to the Exhibition grounds. I think the Canadians have done their bit this summer and never lost a foot of what we had taken either. I am the only 93rd boy in my company by now. My chums are all gone and there were only seven of us came out of my platoon.

I met a few of the Peterborough boys while on leave, and I met Stanley Kerneghan in Calais on my way over. We were sure surprised to meet each other. I saw a lot of places and sights and had a good time while on leave. It certainly is a great place, but so crowded all the time, things seem so different to old Canada, but Canada has them all beat in many ways. The women do a lot of different work there, bar-tenders and motor drivers; it's a busy place. I came over on the 5th of November on leave, 14 days, and I reported sick, was sent to hospital, and am here yet, but feel much better. Have been in bed since Nov. 27th; hope to be out soon.

It is a rest for me anyway and I am very glad to be out of France and away from the mud and horrors of war. I did not feel well all last summer, but never complained, for it would not have been any use anyway. I got some gas on Oct. 30th and can feel the effects of it yet, and for this reason I am likely to be sent home with the first lot of married men returning to Canada.

Well, I suppose the weather is cold over there now. Here it has been fine lately, but foggy at times. The big steam ploughs are working every day around here. Old Fritz was over here last night again. I could hear the planes and guns; it gets on my nerves now, for they are well shaken up. I suppose Laurier is feeling sore over his defeat. He did not get my vote anyway. But good old Canada will look after her sons you bet.

Well, Mr. Mason, I guess I will say good-bye for now, wishing you the compliments of the season, I remain,

Yours truly,
Percy Kennedy,
5th C.M.R., 23rd Reserve.

BRITISH PLANES DROP 672 BOMBS

In Air Fighting on Thursday They Accounted For Nine German Machines

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 23.—British airmen on the western front continue their bombing raids and in air fighting on Thursday accounted for nine German airplanes. Four British machines are missing. During the night our airplanes dropped 672 bombs of which 300 were on an airdrome southeast of Lacateau.

"A BUSINESS BUILDING PLAN"

This is the title of a new book of thirty-two pages containing a large number of valuable and timely suggestions for the use in a novel way of G.N.W. Telegraph service in our daily business life. An important feature of the book is the use of facsimile letters from well known Canadian manufacturers and distributors that show in a graphic way what substantial results can and have been achieved by adopting one or more of the plans suggested by the Telegraph Company. These letters emphasize in an unusual manner the value of the telegraph in advertising, promoting sales, collecting accounts and in a general way speeding up business. Copies of telegrams that have been used in advertising and selling campaigns are also shown and the layman cannot help expressing astonishment at the results obtained through the use of the telegraph in the manner suggested by the Telegraph Company. Copies of "A Business Building Plan" are being distributed free by the Company, and can be obtained at any Great North Western Telegraph Office.

ENGINEERS TO DISCUSS HEATING BY ELECTRICITY

At the March Meeting of Their Club At The Empress.

Mr. A. J. Grant's address on "The Panama Canal" at Thursday night's meeting of the Engineers' Club in the Empress Grill was one of the most interesting of the series the Club is holding this winter. It was illustrated by one hundred colored views of the most picturesque stretches of the canal and the engineering features including the immense locks. Mr. Grant introduced his subject with a brief history of the former efforts to link the Atlantic and Pacific. There are no official reports of the tonnage locked through. The cost to the average ocean liner of making the canal trip is about $3,000.

At the March meeting there will be several papers followed by a discussion on heating by electricity. This subject should be unusually attractive.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Almost Helpless From Rheumatism

Only Able to Move About on Crutches—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Activity

Inflammatory rheumatism, acute rheumatism and rheumatic fever are different names of practically the same thing. It comes on with hardly any warning. The pain is excruciating, and there is a tendency of the disease to attack the heart, when it may have fatal results.

Any one who has suffered from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism knows that the usual treatment is highly unsatisfactory. External applications of hot cloths and liniments and internal doses of salicylates to relieve the pain, are not enough, for they do not drive the poison from the blood, and the sufferer is liable to renewed attacks whenever exposed to cold or dampness.

To cure rheumatism so that it will stay cured the rheumatic poison in the blood must be driven out, and the blood made rich and red. When the blood is pure there can be no rheumatism. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood, make it rich, red and pure and in this way cure the most obstinate cases of rheumatism. Mr. George Harbottle, R. R. No. 1, Feversham, Ont., is one whose cure through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is most striking. His mother gives the particulars of his attack and cure as follows: Some years ago while my son was working as a blacksmith in a Michigan lumber camp he was attacked with rheumatic fever. He was at once taken to a hospital at Marsenett, and was there under medical treatment for four months with but little or no relief. He then decided to go to Mt. Clemmens, where he took the baths for three weeks, but did not find any benefit from them. By this time he felt that his case was hopeless and decided to return home. When he did reach home he could only move around by the use of a crutch and a cane. One knee was so stiff that he could not bend it, and most of his joints were swollen and out of shape. He could neither dress nor undress himself and had to be helped like a child. I urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and finally he consented to do so. He had only been taking the pills a few weeks when he could limp about without the crutch, and his appetite greatly improved. This gave him new courage and as he continued the use of the pills he showed constant improvement and was able to walk about outside. He continued to use the pills for some four months, by which time every symptom of the trouble had disappeared, and he went to his work in Michigan a cured man. His case was well known to the neighbors around here and his cure was looked upon as marvellous, for everyone thought that at the best he was doomed to be a rheumatic cripple.

It is because they have made such wonderful cures as Mr. Harbottle's that Dr. Williams Pink Pills have a world wide reputation, and are the only medicine used in thousands of homes. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

When Spring Fashions Make Their First Appearance

About Braiding and Other Trimmings

New York, February 22.

The shops are showing such bright hued frocks and suits, the materials are so gay and spring like, one almost forgets the bitter cold weather we are having at the present time. It would seem that the very colors of the materials were doing their best to make us forget the gray war cloud that hangs over us. If we must have clothes let them at least be gay! Trimmings we can forego, wool be sparingly used, but the example of Paris, Paris in war time, has shown us clearly where our duty lies. Never have there been such fascinatingly simple modes. Perhaps it is the coquette in the woman which makes it necessary for her to prove she is fascinating in calico as well as in velvet; perhaps the motive is a deeper one: at any rate there are new and becoming styles, styles that improve the appearance on account of their very simplicity.

Those who are going south are, of necessity interested in thin materials

8151—8167
Simple Model, Developed in Foulard

and summery designs but even stay-at homes must plan ahead, and are glad to do so with the many modes and opportunities we have to study the matter of the Spring wardrobe carefully and at length.

BRAIDING COMES TO THE FRONT.

"The first lady of the land" is setting an example to American women everywhere. At the informal teas she has once or twice a week, her costumes are the simplest and the most effective. Soft crepes, crepe de Chines, or Georgette crepes, are the favored materials for the most part and every detail is carefully studied. Braiding is effectively used on these simple frocks. Braiding in narrow soutache, very flat and artistically arranged. Sometimes there are panels on the skirt, side panels with large designs placed near the hem. Sometimes the waist has braiding on the collar with perhaps a touch of hand embroidery to enhance the effect. We look to Washington for our example in things of national importance, and we find our answers there.

MODELS FOR SOFT MATERIALS

Clingingly feminine are the new modes, so the materials chosen must of necessity be soft and clinging. Foulards, crepe de Chines and Japanese silks are the favorites. The designs in the foulards are rather more interesting than those of other years. The combinations of colors, too, are more artistic, for America has devoted much time and study to dyes and the results are very successful. The model illustrated here is of creamy yellow foulard with a Chinese blue figure in it. The interesting collar, buttoning on to the belt, and the odd cuff arrangement are of the same shade of blue in heavy satin. The skirt is caught up in the back with two rather wide tucks to give the bustle effect.

PEARLS FOR ALL OCCASIONS.

Pearls seem to be the most precious of jewels to the woman of fashion. She wears them with afternoon or evening dresses and with those half way affairs suitable for the afternoon or evening. As a rule the strands are long, coming below the waistline, although the demure little necklet of olden times gives an attractive touch to the decollete gown. There are no more "ball gowns," those elaborate costumes of peace times; even the gowns of the type of the dinner gown of before the war, have taken their places.

THE VOGUE OF ORGANDIE.

There seems to be no end to the uses of organdie. Of course whole dresses are made of this crisp material, dresses for morning afternoon and evening, depending on the way they are trimmed for their place in the fashionable wardrobe. Then collars, cuffs and vestees have long been made of organdie. But this season it has advanced a step further into the ranks of trimmings for more formal costumes. Combined with velvet, it is found on stunning afternoon and semi-evening dresses.

STORMY WEATHER HARD ON DABY

The stormy, blustery weather which we have during February and March is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic drug freezone recently discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn or callus and instantly all soreness disappears and shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you lift it off with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet, shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is almost magical.

Ladies! Keep a tiny bottle on the dresser and never let a corn or callus ache twice.

Will Be Drafted As Fast As They Reach 20 Mark

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—The Star to-day states that at the coming session of Parliament the Union Government will propose an amendment to the Military Service Act bringing within its operation young men who have reached the age of 20 since the Act was passed. The present measure specifically exempts those who should reach 20 years after it became law. It is expected by this amendment that 45,000 additional troops will be secured.

Toronto's share is estimated at about 2,500, or two and a half battalions at war strength. The military authorities estimate that a total of 77,500 troops will be obtained by calling out the first class under the Act. This estimate, of course, is based upon expectations that the question of exemptions in Quebec will be cleared up fairly and impartially. It also includes volunteers coming in continually from the United States. A similar amendment has already been introduced in the United States, but the age set is 21 years.

ALBERT BROWN IN A REVIVAL OF "THE WHITE FEATHER."

"The White Feather,' the famous British War Office secret service drama, with Albert Brown as "Kit" Brent, his original role, comes to the Grand next Thursday, Feb. 28.

In speaking of this great play the Toronto World had the following to say:

"If there be any form of art so engrossing, so amusing, so thoroughly delightful, or more calculated to render one oblivious to everything outside of the immediate present than a good play, the public has not yet discovered it. Last night's performance of the "White Feather"' at the Royal Alexandra filled all the requirements and the audience, which completely filled the house, were eatisfied. Lechmere Worral and J. E. Harold Terry, its authors, have accomplished an excellent piece of workmanship in "The White Feather.' It is nothing like Ibsen, or Strindberry or Brieux, or any of the psychological experts and dramatic pioneers who have cultivated the academic taste until it can not enjoy plain fare, but while good roast beef and apple pie are the staple fare of Great Britain, plays of "The White Feather" variety will never lose their appeal. The character drawing is not subtle but it is typical and all the people do what they ought to do under the circumstances in which they find themselves, and they do it cleverly and in such ingeniously new circumstances that only the blase critic and the superior persons who prefer Ibsen to Shakespeare, will fail to enjoy every minute of 'Kit' Brent's circumvention of Carl Sanderson. The play has been here before but this will only increase the interest for it bears seeing over again, and there is nothing so pleasant as to take a friend who has not seen a good play along with one to watch the effect upon him as he is convulsed with laughter or sits tense with interest. Albert Brown repeats his success with Brent, and if the London original is any better it must be a remarkable performance. There is something of Captain Kettle, and Sherlock Holmes, and Laurence D'Orsay about Mr. Brown, and the combination is perfectly bewildering." Mr. Brown will have the support of an all-English company.

Painter Gets A Bad Fall

Alexander Vinette Injured at Quaker Oats Plant

Alexander Vinette, 183 London street, a painter in the employ of Mayor Duncan at the Quaker Oats plant, was badly hurt t his morning when he fell from the ninth to the seventh floor of the building.

Mr. Vinette, who is a well known resident of Peterborough, was riding up on the elevator, which is operated on the endless chain system. For some reason or other he failed to get off at the ninth floor and was carried over, falling to the seventh. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Constipation Cured in His 78th Year Without Drugs

Did you ever know any person who was permanently cured of Constipation by taking drugs of any kind? Drugs seem to assist Nature at the time, but as time goes on larger doses are necessary until the trouble becomes chronic.

Internal Bathing is the only real cure for Constipation. It keeps the Colon or Lower Intestine free from all accumulation. Soon the system performs its regular functions unaided, and there is no further trouble.

Mr. A. McLean, of Conger Lumber Co., Parry Sound, writes:—"I have been troubled with Constipation for the last 35 or 40 years, and could not pass one day without taking medicine. I have used the 'J. B. L. Cascade' since getting it 21 days ago, with wonderful results. Will recommend any person to use it."

Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell of New York invented and perfected the "J. B. L. Cascade" for Internal Bathing, which is to-day the only efficient means of accomplishing the desired results. Dr. Tyrrell has published an interesting book on Internal Bathing, called "Why Man of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient," which can be had free for the asking at the Warne Drug Co., Peterborough. They will also be pleased to show and explain the "J. B. L. Cascade" to you.

Adjusting Exchange Rate

Problem is Engaging the Attention of Finance Department

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 23.—The problem of adjusting the unfavourable exchange rate now existing between the Dominion and the United States is one which is seriously engaging the attention of the Finance Department and the Government here. Canada now has an adverse balance of trade with the United States of nearly $400,000,000, and as a consequence the rate of exchange is very unfavourable to the Dominion.

The adverse balance is largely due to the fact that there is very little wheat movement from the country across the border, and that the United States has embargoed a long list of imports.

If the adverse rate of exchange cannot be adjusted somewise, then Canada will be compelled to heavily curtail her imports, as she depends on the United States for much of her raw material, of her munitions and other manufactures. This will be somewhat difficult to do to a degree which would be effective. It has been suggested that Provincial and Municipal Bonds might be deposited in the United States against a credit to obviate unfavourable exchange rates.

A further suggestion, and on which the Government is at present working on, is that Great Britain make a loan of $400,000,000 from the United States, to be placed at the disposal of Canada in return for an equal amount which Canada might raise to finance British orders here.

Borden And Laurier For Big Conference

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MONTREAL, P.Q., Feb. 23.—La Patrie to-day announces on what it styles the "authority of high political personage," that both Sir Robert Borden, Prime Minister of Canada, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Opposition, will attend an imperial conference to be had in London in March. La Patrie says the conference will be presided over by King George and has been called so that the overseas Dominions can be consulted in connection with the Allied spring drive and other steps to be taken to effectively prosecute the war.

Skin On Fire With Eczema

The Most Torturing of Skin Diseases —Few Doctors Have Satisfactory Treatment to Offer, But This Ointment Cures.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Jan. 12.—Eczema's itch is torture, the skin seems on fire with the burning, stinging humour; at times it becomes almost unbearable, and in desperation you could tear the skin to pieces. You dare not exercise for fear of aggravating the itching, neither can you sleep, for no sooner does the body become warm than the trouble begins, and instead of restful, refreshing sleep, it is scratch, scratch, scratch all night long. There is scarcely a moment's respite from this maddening malady at any time. Of course you have tried nearly all the washes, salves, lotions and medicated soaps, but, like thousands of others, have been disappointed and disgusted.

Mrs. Alex. Perry, 18 Ross St., St. Thomas, Ont., writes: "I cannot recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, as it cured me of a very bad case of eczema. For six years I was ashamed to go near my door when anybody called, my face was so affected with this terrible disease. I consulted several doctors, but they could not help me at all. When I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment being good for eczema, I tried it, and before I had used two boxes I could see it was helping me. Now, since my face is entirely healed, they want to know how I was cured, and I certainly recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment. I cannot speak too strongly in its favour, as I paid out many dollars for doctors' medicines, but did not get any relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment."

You may be skeptical regarding the ability of Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure you. Most people are, after trying in vain to get relief from a host of remedies, but Dr. Chase's Ointment will not disappoint you. You will be surprised at the marvellous control which it has over all itching, burning inflammation of the skin, and the wonderful healing powers which it possesses. It takes time to thoroughly cure eczema, but Dr. Chase's Ointment will do it. You will find relief after a few applications, and gradually and naturally the cure will follow. Besides being a positive cure for eczema, Dr. Chase's Ointment comes useful in a hundred ways in every home for every form of skin irritation and eruption, chapped skin and chilblains.

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

DE LA SALLE BEATEN BY KINGSTON JUNIORS

KINGSTON, Feb. 22.—Kingston won the O.H.A. junior second round game here to-night, defeating De la Salle of Toronto by 7 to 4 in a very keen game, which was witnessed by a big crowd of spectators. The locals appeared to be the better team on Kingston ice and think they can hold De la Salle down in the return game in Toronto next week.

Dye of the visitors met with an accident in the last period, being knocked heavily into the boards and sustaining an injury to his leg that forced him to retire from the game.

The visitors led at the end of the first period by 1 to 0, Cain notching the first goal after about eight minutes of play. Elmer evened up two minutes after the second period started. Then De la Salle forged ahead again, Green and Dye each scoring. Kingston took a scoring spurt and tallied three, Brown getting two and Elmer one. Kingston pulled ahead again in the last period when Gratton scored. Dye followed for Toronto and Elmer and Gratton finished the tallying by adding two more for Kingston. The teams:

De la Salle—Goal, Koster; defence, Cain and Spring; centre, Green; wings, Dye and Travers. Sub—Ingoldsby.

Kingston—Goal, Connell; defence, McKelvey and McLaughlin; centre, Gratton; wings, Brown and Elmer. Sub.—Spoor.

Referee—S. Vair, Toronto.

Jimmy Metheral Won Curling Final From Alex. Kay

The group winners of the scheduled games that have been played nightly all winter at the Curling Rink were J. H. Metheral in group "A" and A. C. Kay in "B". In the finals last night Metheral won out by the score of 12 to 10 in a contest that was hard fought from the first to the last end. The rinks were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| B. M. Manning | H. Hair |
| A. L. Kilfaly | T. A. Donaldson |
| Jas. T. McCabe | W. T. Hall |
| Jas. H. Metheral | A. C. Kay |
| Skip..... 12 | Skip..... 10 |

Score by Ends—

Kay .....12212*11—10
Metheral .....1121*211*11—12

It will be noticed that all the ends were small with the exception of Metheral's three in the 11th end with which he cut down a lead of four and actually turned the tide of the game. Both rinks curled in good form, but fell short of the brilliance displayed in "No. 8" where every stone counted. Jimmy Metheral has had a big season in the scheduled games. A newcomer in the place of the mighty, he has defeated some of the best skips in the club. He celebrated his first season in the select circle with a clean cut win of the primary honours in the scheduled games. Alex. Kay has also hung up a fine record, and at one stage last night seemed to have secured a firm hold on the final game.

The runners-up will play off next week.

PETERBORO' WON CURLING CUP

In the Peterborough-Lindsay Curling Cup fixture played yesterday in this city and in Lindsay, three rinks from each town playing simultaneously, the Peterborough curlers finished with a total of 11 up. | Peterborough | Lindsay |
|---|---|
| J. H. Metherall | B. Scott |
| W. D. Campbell | W. J. Carlisle |
| W. J. Thompson | J. M. Knowlson |

| A. H. Moore | P. J. Campbell |
| T. Brightman | T. J. Tilly |
| Skip.....13 | Skip.....13 |
| Total.....46 | Total.....36 |

The skips who played in Lindsay were as follows:

| Lindsay | Peterborough |

| W. E. Reesor, sk. | Best, sk. |
| W. McLennan, sk. | W. M. Lang, sk. |
| E. Gregory, sk. | D. Davidson, sk. |

AL. H. WILSON.

The appearance of Al H. Wilson and company in a new Irish song play, entitled, "The Irish 15th," is announced for Wednesday next, Feb. 27, at "The Grand." It is said that this new vehicle of Mr. Wilson's has been constructed out of smiles, laughter and merriment, and that it is filled with rare comedy, brilliant witticisms, snappy dialogue and entrancing songs. The propelling power is supplied by a company of merrymakers of which Mr. Wilson is the directing spirit of liveliness. Scenery which describes the localities in which the different scenes are laid has been provided by Manager Sidney R. Ellis and the characters are clothed in appropriate costumes of the period. The new musical numbers provided by Mr. Wilson include "I Want You Then, Machree," "Ireland is Your Home Sweet Home," "My Mother's Wedding Ring," "A Lily From Heaven," "The Irish Will be There."

New C. P. R. Schedule, etc.

between Toronto and Smith's Falls via Peterborough could not make the trip as readily as the heavier through trains via the Lake Shore line. It was arranged, therefore, to put extra time into the through trains via the Lake Shore line to give the trains via Peterborough more time to make the run and better insure connections at both ends.

In fact this experiment was repeated three times, in all about half an hour being added to the time of the trains via the Lake Shore route an hour being added to the time of Falls-Toronto trains via Peterborough waiting connection at one end and making connection with the same train at the other end.

Broke Connections.

The business men of Peterborough who do considerable travelling are no doubt aware of some of the difficulties of maintaining such a service. If for any reason the east bound through trains via the Lake Shore route were delayed west of Toronto it very often meant breaking the connection with the train via Peterborough from Toronto or missing the connection at Smith's Falls as the through trains would naturally make up considerable time on their through schedule in that territory. The same thing applied to west bound. If the train via Peterborough was held at Smith's Falls for the through train and encountered any delay in reaching Toronto, it would be a case of holding the through train a considerable time at Toronto or breaking connection.

Under the pressure of the present fuel shortage and after conference with the Government and Railway Commission, the Canadian Pacific as stated along with all other lines in Eastern Canada is required to make further reductions in passenger service.

To effect these reductions more time is being placed into the through trains between Montreal and Smith's Falls and between Toronto and Windsor which makes it impossible to add further time to the through trains via the Lake Shore route via Toronto and Smith's Falls without breaking connections of through services at Montreal and Windsor.

The New Schedule.

As a very large portion of the through traffic to or from points on the line via Peterborough starts from or terminates at points on the west end, that is between Torono and Havelock, and as the through traffic to and from that territory is almost wholely to and from points west of Toronto, it has been decided to schedule the day trains between Smith's Falls and Peterborough to best serve that traffic and better insure connections each way at Toronto. This necessitates breaking connection each way at Smith's Falls.

As 90 per cent of the day traffic from all points on the Peterborough line to and from points beyond Smith's Falls is to and from Ottawa and vicinity it has been arranged with the new schedule effective, Sunday, Feb. 24th, to place a new daq train between Toronto and Ottawa via Peterborough, Smith's Falls and Carleton Place scheduled in such a way as will insure better connections at Toronto. The west bound day train will leave Ottawa at 8:15 a.m., Smith's Falls at 11 a.m., arriving at Peterborough at 3:26 p.m., and reach Toronto at 6:15. This will give 45 minutes for connection with number three from Toronto at 7 p.m. for Winnipeg, one hour for connection with No. 19 from Toronto at 7:15 p.m. for London, Detroit, Chicago, etc., and 45 minutes for connecting with train leaving at 7 p.m. for Hamilton, Buffalo and New York.

East bound, the day train via Peterborough will leave Toronto at 9:30 a.m. that is one hour and ten minutes after the arrival of the night train from Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury, fifty minutes after the night train from Chicago and Detroit and thirty-five minutes after the morning local from Hamilton. This train will arrive in Peterborough at 12:28 p.m. and run through to Ottawa, arriving at 7:15 p.m. Each train will carry buffet parlour car daily except Sunday, between Toronto and Ottawa.

The only service to and from Peterborough that will be affected is the day service to points between Smith's Falls and Montreal and beyond, but this will not, we believe, be considered a serious matter when it is considered that practically all the traffic between Peterborough and Montreal moves on the present night trains running between North Toronto and Montreal, and which are being scheduled at slightly more convenient hours for Peterborough traffic.

As the changes are greatly in the interest of the through traffic to and from points west of Toronto, I feel that you will agree that the changes will result advantageously to the business interests of Peterborough.

Playing Cards.

Ordinary playing cards are made of three or four sheets of paper pasted together. In making them the sheet on which is printed the back of the card is laid down on a table and the white side brushed with paste. A sheet of cartridge paper is laid on this and covered with paste. Perhaps a second sheet which is to form the face of the card is placed on top.

When the workman has a great stack of these pasted sheets he puts them in a strong press and squeezes out all the water from the paste. Then they are separated and dried which makes them rough and wrinkled, so that they have to be ironed between steel rollers and pressed between smooth sheets of zinc in another press. After this they are brushed with a mixture of white lead, water, and glue. When this is dry they are rubbed with flannel dipped in soapstone and polished with a brush to give them a smooth bright finish.

Smart.

The quick wit of a traveling salesman who has since become a well known proprietor was severely tested one day. He sent in his card by the office boy to the manager of a large concern, whose inner office was separated from the waiting room by a ground glass partition. When the boy handed his card to the manager the salesman saw him impatiently tear it in half and throw it in the waste basket; the boy came out and told the caller that he could not see the chief. The salesman told the boy to go back and get him his card; the boy brought out five cents, with the message that his card was torn up. Then the salesman took out another card and sent the boy back, saying: "Tell your boss I sell two cards for five cents." He got his interview and sold a large bill of goods.

Against the Rule.

The Huns' latest crime, murdering merchant seamen by man-of-war the same as by U-boat, led a speaker to say:

"The Germans think their method will win. Their method will never win, but, even if it were a winner, it would be exactly like the method of Smith."

"I've discovered a labor-saving device,' said Smith, 'which is going to make me a rich man.'

"'Yes?' said his listener. 'And in what does this device consist?'

"'In poisoning,' Smith replied, 'my millionaire grandmother.'"

Old Winter Coughs Now Easily Cured

A New Remedy Now Cures Without the Use of Cough Syrups or Drugs.

Just think of it—you can clear away that hard, racking cough, drive it completely out of the system, make yourself perfectly well by the new breathing cure that employs no medicine at all.

You wonder how; very simple, indeed; you simply breathe in through a Catarrhozone Inhaler, rich balsamic essences that heal and soothe away the cough in a few hours' time.

In using Catarrhozone you bathe the lining of the nose and throat with that powerful antiseptic of the Blue Gum Tree of Australia, which is probably the surest cold and cough cure in the world to-day.

Clarence E. Cromwell, writing from Medicine Hat, says: "To cure a sneezing cold in about ten minutes the one thing I know of to do it is Catarrhozone. To relieve an irritated throat quickly, nothing can excel Catarrhozone. It simply eats up a cough or cold of any kind. I know of colds that have hung on for months that Catarrhozone cured quickly. Nearly 'every man I know carries a Catarrhozone Inhaler with him day and night, and in this country it makes a wonderful protection against all winter ills."

Get the dollar outfit, including the hard rubber inhaler, and medication to last two months; medium size 50c., sample size 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Address And Cane To Mr. T. H. Hunter By His Monaghan Friends

Mr. T. M. Hunter of North Monaghan, who is about to join the ranks of retired farmers, was surprised by his neighbors last night, when to the number of one hundred or more, they called at his home and presented him with an address and a cane. Reeve McIntosh supervised the festivities, and Mr. F. E. Wilson and Mr. W. E. Ball made the presentation. Mr. Hunter not only made a suitable reply to the enconiums of his old friends, but provided a hospitality that was much enjoyed. A programme of short speeches together with an oyster supper made the occasion an exceedingly pleasant one.

The address to Mr. Hunter, signed by Reeve McIntosh, F. E. Wilson, Alex. A. Lang, W. E. Ball and R. A. Robinson, was as follows:

To Thomas M. Hunter, Esq., Ex-Reeve North Monaghan:

Dear Sir,—Your many friends regret to learn that you have decided to remove from the township in which you have spent the many years of your life, and to retire from the active duties and business of a farmer. Because, sir, you have been most progressive, alert and efficient in your occupation and stood at the very front of those who are identified with the agricultural interests of the township. The profession of farming has gained by your work, the example set by your operations, the long and careful public service that you have given has been recognized by the approval of the public. As a citizen you have given freely of time and thought and the affairs of the vicinity have reflected your valuable assistance ever since you engaged in taking a share of the burden. You have filled the positions of township councillor, Reeve of the township and that of county councillor, all with much credit to yourself and benefit to the community.

In your immediate locality you have been a valued member of the Springville church, and as such have taken a material interest in its affairs and progress. Your many personal friendships made and gained during the last forty-three years of your residence among us will ever remain to you a green and pleasant memory, as it will to us.

In enumerating the personal excellencies that have enriched your life as a citizen we make only one remonstrance, that you have remained a bachelor. We do not find that this has been for lack of opportunity for the field of endeavour is ever wide, and we shall greet with generous acclaim and approval your decision, if it ever come, to retire from the ranks of the bachelors and line up with the benedicts. And in so doing you will be in most excellent company.

Your friends and neighbours desire that you will accept from them these words of appreciation, which are most thoroughly merited, and most honourably bestowed. That your steps in life may have an accompaniment and that your hand may be full we ask you to take the gift of this cane. Of material things you have a plenty, and the munificence of any gift would not the more enhance us in your esteem. And with this cane goes hearty wishes for a long life, much comfort and happiness, and a continuance of the friendly relations that have brought to us all so much of satisfaction in the past.

Farmers Met This Afternoon

A meeting of farmers and citizens was held this afternoon in the City Council Chamber for the purpose of discussing some of the agricultural problems of the day. At three-thirty the discussion was still in progress with little prospects of a definite conclusion. One thing was evident and that is the average farmer is thoroughly conversant with the seed shortage and the labour problem. What he needs most is a modern Moses who will supply the necessary action and punch. This was strangely lacking in the meeting held this afternoon.

British Steamer "Florizel" Ashore

AT CAPE RACE---ONE HUNDRED LIVES LOST

Vessel Will Be a Total Loss—Wreck Occurred Miles From Any Human Habitation

ABOUT FORTY SURVIVORS

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 25.—The British steamer Florizel went ashore at Cape Race early Sunday morning. The steamer carried a great number of passengers. Several bodies have been washed ashore. Persons returning from the scene of the wreck say that only a few of the passengers or crew could survive. The vessel is believed to be a total wreck. The Florizel is a steel steamer of 3,108 tons, and was bound from St. John's to New York. The point where the vessel went ashore is miles from any human habitation.

A LATER REPORT.

St. Johns, Nfld., Feb. 25.—Monday morning bulletins say reports from the Florizel wreck indicate there may be forty survivors among the one hundred on board.

The total loss of life will be in the neighbourhood of one hundred, including passengers and crew. The isolated character of the point where the steamer went ashore makes rescue work very difficult. Several bodies that were washed ashore have not been identified. Several rescue parties have been rushed to the scene in the hope of saving passengers and crew who may have put out in boats.

Reduce Deliveries— More "Take-Withs"

How the National Cash Register Helps to Reduce the Big Expense of Deliveries!

Alert merchants are discovering that the delivery system eats into their profits.

Yet it is too bold a step for most merchants to cut out deliveries from their store service.

The best solution is to induce customers to take more of their parcels with them.

Stores which have installed a modern National Cash Register find that the number of "take-withs" is appreciably increased.

This is a natural result of the N.C.R. type of service.

Customers do not have to wait while clerks make out sales-slips. The National Cash Register handles money and cash records promptly. It makes out sales-slips for every transaction automatically---in two seconds.

So even with less help and less efficient help the National Cash Register speeds up store service, reduces the "delivery" overhead by making it easy for customers to take their purchases with them.

And this is but one of the many pressing problems that a modern N.C.R. system solves for merchants.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"I was dismayed, aghast that such a thing should be said of me. I could not understand his motive and I was afraid. My aunt was always easily influenced and he had made even her believe this dreadful thing so that I felt I had not a friend in the world whom I could trust.

"Then Anthony Leonard came to work for my stepfather. In my fear and trouble I had kept away from every one and was thrown upon my own resources for a method of passing the time. I took long daily drives in the motor, and I—I became interested in Anthony. He was my ideal of what a real man should be; straight-forward, clean, honest and sincere. I knew he cared, too, but he wouldn't speak, Mr. Terhune; he is no fortune hunter, please be assured of that, for I think it is a point my stepfather will try to raise against him, if he can. I actually had to propose to him myself.

Again she paused and this time a little smile curved her lips and a flush rose almost to her starry eyes. In the deepest shadows of her trouble her romance bloomed as a warm and lovely thing to her as if the knowledge of it alone had saved her from utter despair.

"He wished to go openly to my stepfather and tell him how matters stood between us but I was very much afraid, not that he would believe or even hesitate before the tale he would hear, but that my stepfather would find means to separate us. It was by my wish that we drove over to Jersey one afternoon in April and were quietly married. I had told Tony previously of my stepfather's slander but he scouted it and could scarcely believe that I had heard him aright.

"I felt sure once we were married that nothing could keep us apart, no efforts of my stepfather could harm me ever again, but I was undeceived when we told of our elopement, and it was then too that I first realized my stepfather's reason for preventing my marriage before, and making every effort to hold me helpless in his control. To save himself from exposure and ruin, my acquiescence in his continued possession of the trust fund was imperative.

"Tony wanted me to reliquish all claim to it and go away with him; heh ad just patented and sold a motor device which would enable him to take care of me modestly. Besides that, he had other inventions on the way, and we would have been happy; but my stepfather realized that I was almost of age, and the day of reckoning close at hand.

"He tried to influence my husband at first to agree to a complete separation. He told him of my alleged insanity, but Tony laughed at him; then he attempted to buy him off, and there was a frightful scene. The result of it was that my husband was turned from the door and I was made a virtual prisoner. I did succeed in communicating with him through my old mistress, but that means was removed. My aunt, whether she really believed then in her heart that my mind was affected or not, felt that I had married beneath me, and disgraced them all, and she was like putty in my stepfather's hands.

"Of course my husband could have compelled them to produce me in court, or taken the law into his own hands and rescued me by force, but my stepfather swore that if any such attempt was made, he would have me declared incompetent by specialists and unassailable witnesses and confined permanently in a sanatorium.

"The profusion and the seeming weight of the false proof against me, which he boasted that he could bring, was staggering, and we knew that we would be worse than helpless in the face of what the money and influence which my stepfather could command, would do. Sane people have been railroaded to asylums before this, Mr. Terhune, and my stepfather would stop at nothing.

"The only thing to be done was for me to dissemble and allow him to believe that I was slowly realizing my mistake, and might in the future consent to annulment of my marriage. The instant that I became of age I could defy him and Tony and I could fight him ponely, if necessary.

"At that stage, too, my resentment was at white he I was burning with a sense of injustice and I determined that my stepfather should not profit by his dastardly schemes against me; that he would account for what was mine to the uttermost farthing!

"I did not give a thought to the material side of the case; I have never considered money because I have not known what it means to be without it, and Tony hated the idea. He would have been better pleased had I been penniless, I know. No matter what my step father may allege Tony cares for me for myself alone!"

Again that rapt look stole over her child like face, transfiguring yet maturing it, and Stephen Quimby's cold, adament gaze shifted and fell.

"We endured the separation, hard as it was, because we felt that it was only temporary, and I tried to be docile and patient, but my life was hideous! Pressure of all sorts was brought to bear on me; things that I have never dared tell Tony were attempted. I think that he would kill my stepfather if he knew. But I would not yield and consent to an immediate annulment, and my stepfather realized what the near future would mean to him.

"I had not seen Tony in all these months, when two weeks ago yesterday I managed to elude my aunt at the dressmaker's and slipped away to my husband. He had taken a tiny apartment at the Glamorgan under the name of Antonio and was waiting there until he could claim me. It was there that I went to him, and had we known then what my stepfather was planning we would have run away together that afternoon. Tony wanted me to but there still remained nearly three weeks before my birthday, and I was afraid that my stepfather would find me and carry out his threat.

"In the last letter which Tony had been able to smuggle to me he told me of his apartment and the number but I did not dare ask for him openly there, for fear that my aunt might succeed in following me. I pretended to be looking for an apartment, and the boy showed me several vacant ones. Then he was called away, and, seizing my chance, I ran to Tony's door.

"When I reached home, I made an excuse to my aunt for my absence and whether she believed me or not, she was too much afraid of my stepfather's anger to tell him that I had escaped her vigilance. I fancied that no harm was in store for me, but on Monday I learned the awful truth. Tony and I had one confidant—the aviator, Luke Edwards. He was a staunch friend, and we knew that we could trust him. Oh, if we hadn't I would now be in a far worse plight than that poor girl who is buried under my name!"

Her voice died in a shudder, and she bowed her head. For a moment the room was very still and only Stephen Quimby's breathing, convulsive and panting like a trapped animal, could be heard. Then the girl lifted her eyes once more to Terhune.

"Sunday, my stepfather went out to the aviation field. Another man met him there, seemingly by appointment, and a flight was attempted, but the wind was too uncertain. Luke recognized the stranger as a physician of questionable reputation, who maintained a sort of sanatorium near by for so-called nervous cases, and he happened to overhear a few words, which made him deliberately listen. He heard just enough to gather that I was to be a patient there and he realized that it must be a part of some plan to separate me from Tony.

"He had learned a great deal about the establishment from one of the female nurses there whom he knew and that evening he went over and took her motoring. She told him all the details of the horrible plan my stepfather had made and after he left her, he drove straight into the city, hunted up my manicurist, and paid her to slip a little note to me when she came to do my nails in the morning. He didn't know where to find Tony.

"Monday morning, right before Aunt Pauline's eyes, the manicurist pushed a tiny wad of paper into my palm. As soon as I could make an excuse to be alone I smoothed it out. It was just a line, but it frightened me almost to death:

"Awful danger for you. Meet me sure Manhattan bridge, five to-day.

"I shall never forget it, every word seemed burned into my brain!

"You know how I managed to escape from my aunt, and reach him. He drove me out around Steinway, where no one would be likely to recognize me and told me that the physician was to call for me at my home at half past nine that evening, and remove me in a limousine to the private asylum. My stepfather had arranged to be out; I believe that he wanted to avoid a scene with my aunt for he knew she would object to such a scheme but the physician would bring the necessary papers authorizing him to take her away. Aunt Pauline would not have the courage to take any active steps on my behalf at least before my stepfather's return, and he was sure that his influence over her was great enough to prevent her from openly defying him.

"Luke would have taken me at once to Tony, but he had gone out of town over Sunday to see the manufacturer who had his patent and would not return before eight o'clock, and I had no means of getting into his apartment.

"Besides, I did not know whether my stepfather knew where Tony lived or not, and was afraid that he would look there for me. For the same reason I dared not stay away from home for those intervening hours, fearing that if my stepfather discovered my absence he would do something to Tony. I realized at last how desperate he was.

"I don't know how I ever had the courage to go back to that house, but I did and made a pretense of dining with Aunt Pauline. I was tempted to throw myself on her mercy but I realized that it would be useless and I thought that awful hour would never end. I made an excuse to retire almost immediately after dinner, and just before nine o'clock I managed to slip out of the house.

"Luke was waiting for me near the corner with his little car to take me to Tony, but the limousine drew up at the door just as I ran down the steps. I couldn't help crying out in my terror, and the physician heard, and understood.

"I managed to reach Luke and he pulled me into the car and raced off. The physician chased me in the limousine—a great high powered one—and we had to drive around for an hour or more to try and elude him. They didn't dare to have us halted in the street for fear of publicity. My stepfather's plan had been to keep Tony in absolute ignorance of my whereabouts until they had forced me, by the isolation and horrors in that awful place, to agree to an annulment.

(To be Continued.)

KORNILOFF IN MONGOLIA.

Crossed Asia on Horseback to Secure Information.

The Chinese Government, disturbed over the energy displayed by the Russian Government in establishing new consulates and consular guards in Mongolia and in furnishing loans to Mongol princes, decided to take measures to checkmate Russia's advances in Mongolia. In the summer of 1911 the Manchu Government informed Russia that it intended to convert a part of Mongolia adjacent to Manchuria into a province. It was apparently the intention of China to transform the whole of Mongolia into one or more provinces, thus putting an end to the autonomy which it had hitherto enjoyed as a dependency and which had left the way open for Russian intrigue. China also displayed great energy in sending colonists to Outer Mongolia and began to construct barracks for a division of troops at Urga, the capital of Outer Mongolia. These measures greatly worried the Russians and all through the summer of 1911 there was a great deal of talk in Russia of war with China. Gen. Korniloff, who was then Russian military attache at Pekin, made an overland journey across Mongolia from Kalgan to the Altai region in order to observe the situation in Mongolia. It is characteristic of this energetic man that he avoided the comfortable sleeping cars of the Trans-Siberian railroad and rode home on horseback, traversing the length of Asia in order to bring his Government reliable information. A newspaperman had a conversation with him the day he started. He said, "I intend to ride across Mongolia to Russia, coming out somewhere in the Altai region, the home of my ancestors. You see, I myself am a Turkoman." Gen. Korniloff is a type of the brilliant men that the Russian Government has for a number of years stationed in Pekin to observe the trend of events.

Nerves On Edge Feared the Future

Twitching of the Nerves Made Sleep Impossible—Had Nervous Headaches and Indigestion—Is Cured Now.

Mrs. C. French, 104 Lansdowne St., Peterborough, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervousness, sleeplessness, frequent headaches and indigestion. For many years I was troubled with a twitching or fidgetty feeling about my limbs after retiring, causing me much loss of sleep. If wakened up out of my first sleep, even had I been asleep only five minutes, I would lay awake for hours and could not get asleep again. Any sudden noise or a door slamming would set my nerves going and I would fear that something dreadful was going to happen. I had tried different remedies for this trouble, but without success. A friend asked me one day why I didn't try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I thought I could at least give it a trial. I secured some and commenced using them, and found they benefitted me so much that I have taken fully a dozen boxes. My nervousness or fidgetty feeling in the limbs is entirely cured. I can now eat and sleep well. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food strongly, and would advise anyone suffering from nervous trouble of any kind to use them according to directions."

"If you have been reading the reports published in this paper from day to day of cures effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you will have some idea of the great good it is accomplishing.

In fact it cannot fail to benefit, even in the most extreme cases, because it works hand-in-hand with nature, and cures by supplying the elements from which rich blood and new nerve force are created.

This building up of a depleted and worn-out nervous system must necessarily be slow, and for this reason a little patience and perseverance is necessary.

A condition which has been months or years in development cannot be overcome in a day, but you need have no doubt of the final results if you use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food regularly and persistently. 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.75, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. # OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Shining Black Feathers

And How the Lost Gold Was Discovered

By Ethel Holmes

Phil Manton of the Far Eastern bank in Shanghai went out into the streets feeling dull and out of sorts.

Each morning for a week he had found a mysterious envelope on his desk. No one could explain whence it came. It was not in the morning's mail—it was simply there!

The envelope was one of those long, narrow oriental affairs, perhaps two inches in width by twelve inches or more in length. Sometimes it was longer or shorter, to accommodate its contents.

The contents were invariably the same—a black feather, narrow and shining.

The inscription in Chinese was familiar to him now. "A feather from the wing of the black pheasant" was the meaning of the ideographs.

"A feather from the wing of the black pheasant," he was repeating to himself as he went down the Bund, unmindful of the curious glances sent in his direction by friends and acquaintances.

"What's the matter with Manton?" they asked each other, for the president of the Far Eastern bank was normally a practical, well balanced, cool headed business man. "Hope nothing is wrong with the bank."

Manton confided his business to no one. He had lived in the east long enough to guess that some evil influence was working against him, some secret power that was trying to weaken his efficiency, to break down his nerve.

Some one had whispered that Oscar Blare, the former president of the Far Eastern, had committed suicide because "he had seen things."

What had he seen?

Money had vanished at the time of Blare's death, but no one could ever trace it or could account for the manner in which it had been spent. The money, gold in canvas bags, had vanished.

Phil Manton could have told another tale—that for two months now there had been a steady pilfering at the bank. One gold piece after another had vanished from the strong room.

Privately he had had the different employees watched, and each one was proved impeccable.

Of course there was Wong Suong, the watchman, but Wong Suong was poor and had a big family to support, and he was proved to be impeccable as well as the others.

And the shadow of the black pheasant's wing darkened the days for the young president of the Far Eastern.

The next morning he found another feather in its envelope and put it away. The accompanying card he studied carefully.

Phil Manton had tried many devices to find if his employees were trustworthy, and, nothing having developed in that line to help him, he was at his wits' end. Even his friends were beginning to take notice of his abstractedness, and, worst yet, it was getting on his nerves to the extent of interfering with his heretofore splendidly restful nights. Certainly something must be done, and he was feeling that he must be the one to do it.

Finally, after long deliberation, he made up his mind that in the afternoon when it was time to leave he would secrete himself in the strong room and, revolver in hand, grimly wait for the thief to appear.

From his corner behind a heap of canvas sacks Phil watched the clerks as one by one they came into the strong room to put away cash and books. Each one went about his business in an open, honest way, and the last one locked the steel doors and threw the heavy bolts of the combination lock.

Phil Manton knew that the strong room of the Far Eastern was well supplied with fresh air from a ventilating pipe which ran up to the roof, so that even if his imprisonment had lasted for several days he would not have suffered except for food.

In the dimness of the strong room thoughts crowded heavily upon him. He found himself remembering many things that he had forgotten in the rush of daily life.

One thing was that Oscar Blare had been discovered dead in the strong room, in this very spot, perhaps, with an empty pistol in his lifeless hand.

Then the gold deficiency had been discovered.

A cold horror took possession of him. Was history going to repeat itself? Was he, Phil Manton, unwittingly guilty of the thefts? Would he, too, be found dead in the strong room?

Suddenly he laughed his fears to scorn.

"That wretched black pheasant feather business is getting on my nerves," he muttered. "I wonder if Blare knew the black pheasant?"

Still laughing at his own vague fears and regretting that he had immured himself in the strong room for the night, Phil made himself comfortable behind the pile of canvas sacks, feeling that the president of the Far Eastern bank was lowering his dignity.

He had dozed off to sleep when he was suddenly awakened by a rush of cold air.

The brick wall back of him seemed to vanish, leaving him tottering on the edge of the floor. He fell—fell down a few feet—and dropped to a heap of soft mats in a perfectly strange place.

Here all was silence—a vague, ominous silence that oppressed his heart. From a lantern in a far corner there were disclosed the outlines of a long room, with a matted floor and many rich rugs. There were some articles of furniture, teakwood chairs and tables and many more mats.

Phil removed his shoes and crept to a screened corner. From the privacy of the screen he watched down the length of the room. There was no visible door in the walls. He could not even see an aperture where he had fallen from the strong room of the bank, but he suspected that the entire back wall of the strong room had pivoted into this strange place and pushed him down.

Suddenly a sound smote the silence, the sharp intake of a Chinaman's breath when he is surprised.

Phil looked from his hiding place.

A strange figure was approaching down the length of the room, a human form completely covered with a strange dress of black feathers. It was a small, bent form, and the veil of black feathers hanging before the invisible face fluttered in and out with the breath of its wearer.

In its hand the strange being carried a wicked looking knife.

"Ah, ha!" thought Phil, and his hold on the revolver tightened. "Here is the old Black Pheasant himself! I'm to be unnerved by threats, stirred by thefts, and when I attempt to discover the thefts I am decoyed here and murdered. Well, two can play at that game, my somber bird!"

When the Black Pheasant had reached the spot where Phil had carelessly left his shoes he bent over them for a moment, and then, uttering a shrill staccato yell, he turned and began to search the room. When he poked his evil head around the corner of the screen Phil was ready for him. The pistol spoke, but by a rapid turn of his arm the Black Pheasant sent the bullet flying to the ceiling.

Phil made a rush for the man and grasped the wrist that held the ugly knife, forcing the hand to the floor. There Phil struck it such a blow with the knuckles of his other hand that the knife dropped from the nerveless fingers. Both men made desperate efforts to regain it, but neither could distinguish in the dim light where it was.

Phil in grasping the other's wrist had been made aware that the skin was oiled. The feathered man thus had a great advantage over Phil. The latter had the advantage, however, in being a man of herculean strength. He threw himself upon his antagonist, grasping his throat. This, too, was oiled, but Phil managed to get a grip of both hands on the muscles of the neck, including the windpipe. That grip he held till one after another he felt the muscles of the body relax, and he knew the man was dead.

Phil crouched there in a listening attitude.

Would the dim shadows of the long room give up any more of these grotesque black feathered pheasants?

He waited until an eternity appeared to have passed; then he crept out cautiously, peering behind screens and searching all the dark corners.

The result of his search was a huge chest filled with canvas bags of gold—the gold which had been stolen during Blare's time and the last thefts. It was all there intact. The thief had stolen but was afraid to spend.

Who was the thief that he or they lacked the courage to spend what they had stolen?

Phil went back to the prone figure of the Black Pheasant.

He drew aside the veiling black feathers and saw the wizened face of old Wong Suong, the night watchman who had been proved of impeccable honesty because he was openly so poor!

Wong Suong was the Black Phantom. He was the writer of the mysterious messages, he was the thief of gold, the murderer of Oscar Blare, the would be murderer of Phil Manton.

Phil never discovered when the back wall of the Far Eastern had been tampered with, but he suspected that it had been known to Wong Suong for a long time.

No one save the officials of the bank ever knew the history of that night. Phil managed to escape and secure help. The gold was returned to the strong room and the rear wall rendered firm. The mysterious room in the rear was taken for a director's room, and the memory of Oscar Blare was cleared of the stigma of suicide.

People say that the Far Eastern bank must have passed through a financial crisis, for Manton lost his worried look and has ever since then been his genial self.

But Phil smiles and tells himself that the shadow of the Black Pheasant has passed away forever and that the Far Eastern is as firm as the rock of Gibraltar.

But he cherishes a profound respect for old Wong Suong's powers of ingenuity.

SUFFERED WITH NERVES
COULD NOT KEEP QUIET

Diseases of the nervous system are very common.

All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and wornout by household duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with their nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the shaking nerves, strengthen the weak heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. F. Bailey, 221 Earl St., Kingston, Ont., writes: "I was suffering very much with my nerves, so much so that I could not keep myself quiet at all. I was recommended to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I bought three boxes, and I must say I have derived much benefit from them, so much so that my friends have all noticed the change in me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Nitrogen Acid In Rainfall.

A committee of the British Association for the Advancement of Science has recently collected samples of rainfall during a period of one year, at sixteen stations scattered over the continent of Australia, and examined them quantitatively to determine their content of nitric and nitrous nitrogen. About 1,000 samples were examined and the results were compared with the records of the weather conditions under which the rainfall occurred.

The general conclusions are that, for a given type of weather, the concentration of oxidized nitrogen in the rainfall varies inversely as the amount of rainfall, and that the total amount of oxidized nitrogen per unit area found in the rainfall accompanying a storm depends upon the type of weather and is practically independent of the amount of rainfall. The highest total amounts of oxidized nitrogen were found at southern and inland stations in rain water resulting from moonsonal storms following a heat wave.—Scientific American.

Saw Improvement.

Ian Hay, the famous autho of "The First Hundred Thousand," tells an amusing story against himself. It seems that after his great war-book had brought him popularity his publishers received some of his earlier stories and republished them. They were well received, although the author regarded them rather as amateur efforts. But a critic in New York waxed enthusiastic over them and congratulated him on his improvement as a writer since the production of his popular book.

A Suggestion.

A certain Scottish soldier in a hospital had been operated on four times in an endeavor to extract a bullet from the vicinty of his lower ribs. On the last occasion he stated he had a request to make before going under chloroform. Permission having been granted him to ask it, he remarked to the surgeon: "Oh, it's naething much. I just want to suggest that if you are unsuccessful this time and think you will have to try again, don't sew me up; jist put buttons on me."

Thick Skins.

One of the thickest skinned animals in existence is the walrus, which is found in great herds on the ice fields of the ocean and in winter on Behring Sea. Hides one inch or more thick, especially around the shoulders, are common, and they can be split many times, every layer a tough, strong, durable leather. The hides are used for making bags, trunks, and buffers for polishing in the shops of gold and silver smiths. Beneath the hide of the walrus is a laye. of fat often six inches thick, which protects the animal from the cold. He will sleep on the ice floe till he melts a great basin in it from the warmth of his ponderous body.

Thunder Clouds.

Thunderstorm clouds are very variable in height—from 500 to 2,000 feet. The clouds in thunderstorms may be very deep—from two to five miles and more—hence the appearance as to distance is very deceptive. Cumulus clouds are intermediate, and generally occupy a position from 2,000 to 5,000 feet above the earth.

Bolshevism A Menace To Germany, And Russians Will Fight, Says Duras

Col. Back From Petrograd, Thinks Invasion of Russia Will Help Allies' Cause—Trotsky Fooled by Germans, and Break Between Him and Lenine is Expected.

ALLIES SHOULD AID RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The invasion of Russia by the Kaiser's troops is going to be one of the best things that have happened to the allied cause in Russia since the revolution, according to Colonel Victor H. Duras, formerly American Vice Consul in Petrograd, who has just returned from there. It is Colonel Duras's belief that the advance of the Teuton forces into Russia after every effort has been made by the Russian Government to obtain a just peace will rouse the fighting spirit of the Slavic people and result in the rebirth of a new Russian nation, animated by a zeal similar to that which broke Napolean and drove the Grand Army in disorganized flight from Moscow.

The former Vice Consul was emphatic in his assertion that there was hope for Russia, in spite of the reports of universal disorder and chaos which might have come from the stricken nation. He said that anarchy there was not at its lowest ebb, and that it was almost certain that from now on things would improve from an allied point of view. Colonel Duras prophesied a break between Trotsky a nd Lenine, which would result in some strong leader becoming dictator. He said that it was the belief of the diplomatic corps in Petrograd that the Kaiser would seek to establish a dynasty with Nicholas Nicholaivitch as ruler, so that Germany might make a permanent peace with Russia. Germany, Colonel Duras declared, would never consent to a peace with the Bolsheviki.

"There has been a world-wide lack of comprehension of the situation in Russia," said Colonel Duras in an interview yesterday. "Governments and men have come and gone with kaleidoscopic rapidity until the popular attitude has come to be expressed in the words 'your guess is as good as mine as to what is going to happen in Russia.' It is the unievrsal mistake to overlook the real rulers of Russia, the common people, the peasants. The peasants are in the army; they are tilling the soil; they have come in thousands to Petrograd and the large cities where they listen open-minded to whatever a skillful orator chooses to tell them.

Gullibility Cause of Trouble.

"It is this open-mindedness, this simplicity of the true democrat, and there is no more real democrat than your Russian peasant, that has caused things to go topsy-turvy in Russia. The Russian people believe whatever they are told, if it is told plausibly. After the overthrow of the Czar and the setting aside of the Provisional Government, when Kerensky came into power, it looked as if things were going well for the Allies. Then came Trotsky and Lenine.

"Now, understand first of all, it is an error to think for a minute that Trotsky and Lenine are German agents. They are not. They are the most radical of the radicals, and it was the oratory of Trotsky that persuaded the crowds to give them a chance. Both men are far more radical in their vews than any of the peasants.

"Well, Trotsky began to preach that the German people wanted peace. He declared that the workers in Austria and Germany were being forced to fight Russians against their will, and he urged the Russians not to kill their Teuton brethren. Against such words as these Kerensky's warnings went unheeded and Kerensky found himself supplanted by Trotsky, Lenine, and Bolshevism.

"As soon as possible Trotsky began to try out his theories on the Kaiser. At Brest-Litovsk he found that he had been deceived, and that he had unwittingly deceived his followers. His plan of campaign up to that time, as we saw it in Petrograd, had been simple. He had intended to permeate Germany with Bolshevism, also Austria, and, it must be admitted, the Allies did likewise.

"The Kaiser, however, and the German high command, soon made it evident to the Bolshevist leader that he was going to fail. The German workers did not respond to Bolshevism and the German armies have already begun to strike.

"Let me digress here a minute to take up the German side of the question. The Kaiser stands to lose more out of Trotsky's Bolshevism than the Allies. That is certain. Germany cannot afford to make peace with the Bolsheviki, and she never will. In the first place, the German high command realizes that it would be suicidal to leave an army on the eastern front idle, a target for the most skillful and persistent propagandists in the world. Also, it realizes, the German high command does, that it would be almost as bad to have peace which would leave the frontier open to the same propaganda that undermined the former Czar. Here you have what, in my mind, is the true answer to the advance the Germans are making on a nation the Government of which has already signified its willingness to agree to any terms of peace.

White Elephant to Kaiser.

"From a military and political point of view the Bolsheviki are a white elephant on the Kaiser's hands. Of course the Germans are getting supplies from Russia, and also prisoners of war are returning, but I do not think the benefits to Germany weigh an instant against the troubles the Kaiser is getting from the present disorder in Russia.

"So far as I can see, and my views are those held by the majority of the diplomats in Petrograd, it is the Kaiser's aim to re-establish some form of autocracy in Russia. He will possibly select Nicholas Nicholavitch and support him with German troops. The German-made Russian Emperor will be expected, as the price for his throne, to crush Bolshevism for all time. The Kaiser realizes that for Germany to attempt it would be paramount to playing with dynamite.

"These, then, are the German aims, as I understand them; now what will Russia do? In the first place, when the Russian people understand that they have been deceived, that the German working people—that portion of them in the Kaiser's army at any rate—are marching against Russia, the Russians are going to be very angry, and right here, I look to see Trotsky have his troubles.

"Trotsky, I think, has been just as badly fooled as the rest of Russia about the willingness of the German people to make peace, and if he wants to save his position, if not his life, he will have to act. I look for a break very soon between Lenine and Trotsky for this very reason. Lenine is a dreamer and will hardly listen to discussions of practical matters, while Trotsky, whatever you think of him, is an able, practical man.

"It is my guess that Trotsky will turn against the Kaiser and will do everything in his power to reorganize the Russian Army he helped to destroy. He will see, I think, that it is war against war, and he will also see that he must act or perish. He and Lenine will disagree over any action, that's certain, and I believe Trotsky will attempt to take over the Government.

"If Trotsky doesn't act, then, mark my words, a strong man will rise in Russia who will unite the people to fight to the end against the German peril. Anarchy, I believe, has passed for good and all, and the day the German troops marched across the border that day marked the rebirth of a new Russia, a fighting Russia.

"The Allies have a duty in this situation, which I hope and pray they will not overlook. It is to sympathize with and help Russia. Russia is a stricken nation, and will never forget, hereafter, the nation that holds out a helping hand now. It must be practical help, too, Remember that 75 per cent. of the munition factories of Russia are located in Petrograd and will probably soon be in German hands. The Allies must remember that the Slavic people are at heart for the Allies and against Kaiserism.

"I have no fear for the future of Russia. Three years' study has convinced me that finally a pure democracy, based on the old Grecian ideals, will evolve from the present turmoil."

Col. Duras will go to Washington to-morrow, where he is to make a report to the State Department. He was in the Consular Service in Liege, Belgium, when the European war started, and was sent in the Fall of 1914, to Petrograd.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

ASHAMED TO GO OUT

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face is sadly marred by unsightly pimples, blotches, flesh worms and various other blood diseases.

Their presence is a source of embarrassment to those afflicted as well as pain and regret to their friends.

Many a cheek and brow cast in the mould of beauty have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost and their possessor rendered unhappy for years.

Why, then, consent to rest under this cloud of embarrassment?

There is an effectual remedy for all these defects.

It is Burdock Blood Bitters. This remedy will drive out all the impurities from the blood and leave the complexion healthy and clear.

Mrs. Katherine Henry, Port Sydney, Ont., writes: "Two years ago my face was so covered with pimples I was ashamed to go out at all. I tried several remedies, but they were of no use. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I got a bottle, and by the time it was used I could see a difference. I then got two more, and when I had used them the pimples were completely gone. I can highly recommend B.B.B."

Many War Weddings.

"Crudely stated, the war has resulted in 200,000 persons in the United Kingdom being married between August, 1914, and June, 1917, who in the ordinary course would not have married," says Sir Bernard Mallet, president of the Statistical Society.

The loss of potential lives to the belligerent countries by the decrease in the number of children born was perhaps the most important effect upon vital statistics produced by the war, he said. In births the United Kingdom had suffered far less than Germany and Hungary, the United Kingdom having lost 10,000 to a million of the population. Germany 40,000, and Hungary 70,000.

The infant mortality in the summer of 1917 appeared to have been very high in several German cities, and the German rate remained some 50 per cent. higher than in England.

An alteration in the sex ratio of birth appeared to be established by the figures of the United Kingdom, the proportion of males having noticeably increased. Contrary to expectations, the war had produced no effect on illegitimate births.

HAS ROMANTIC PAST.

South Africa Possesses No Literature to Tell Its Story.

"Of all the dominions of the British Empire, South Africa has had the most varied and romantic history," Ambrose Pratt writes in "The Real South Africa." "From north to south, from east to west, the country is dotted with monuments to commemorate battles, treaties, and other critical events. . . . South Africa, moreover, is a land of extraordinary scenic splendor, of fascination and of mystery. In no other part of the world are there to be found vaster stretches of high tableland so weirdly broken and relieved with strange shaped hills, deep gorges and dongas, and dark inaccessible ravines. There are taller mountains elsewhere, but none more bold and starkly menacing in form; none that fling out such endless successions of jagged, frowning spurs; none that offer a more powerful appeal to the imagination.

"The most experienced traveler meets startling surprises in South Africa at every turn. The country has been built in a fashion peculiar to itself. The veld is without a foreign prototype. It resembles nothing so much as the flat roof of a mighty battlemented Gothic castle pushed sheer upward into the blue on tier on tier of precipitous Cyclopean rocks, and supported and defended from the lower world by a multitude of giant flying buttresses—each rock a straight and lofty mountain, each buttress a naked mountain spur incomparably bleak, magnificent and stern. The air has a quality of clarity that makes even the limpid brightness of the Australian atmosphere seem like mist. The sunsets surpass in gorgeousness and brazen glory the sunsets of all other lands; and the vivid coloring of the 'bush,' the dour scarlet starred monotone of the veld, are facts and contrasts that strike like shafts of fire into the fancy. Inexorably the thought arises in the traveler's mind: 'Here is a country to compel into existence an original and peerless literature, to breed a race of poets, with a brand new message for mankind.' He merely prepares for himself another astonishment.

"This wonderful land is practically destitute of an indigenous literature; it has almost absolutely failed to inspire its own children. Olive Schreiner has written 'The Story of a South African Farm.' Sir Percy Fitzgerald has written 'Jack of the Bushveld.' The prose achievements of South Africa that are worthy of note very nearly begin and end with those two books. The country is equally tongue-tied in poetry. One hears of a few English versifiers and reads their songs only to be sharply disappointed. The Dutch Afrikanders have no prose literature deserving of the name at all, and but one singer, Mr. Jan Cellers, has ever reached a reputation. The Taal has no grammar. It is a wretched patois, merely the slang of half a dozen languages jumbled together. That Mr. Jan Cellers is acclaimed a poet at all, confining himself to such a medium, is remarkable; yet even his warmest admirers admit that his voice is 'still and soft,' and his range narrow."

Came From Newfoundland.

The Daily Mail says it is feared that the Antarctic relief ship Aurora, which took part in the Shackleton expedition, has been lost with all hands while returning to England. It is understood the vessel sailed from Wellington, N.Z., in June with a crew of about 22, and nothing has been heard from it since. Vessels sent out to search for it found only a life-buoy marked Aurora and some wreckage. Lloyd's recently posted the Aurora as being considerably overdue.

The Aurora, formerly a Newfoundland sealing steamer, carried the Mawson Antarctic expedition to Adelie Land in 1913 and rescued the expedition later in the same year. While going to the assistance of the Shackleton expedition early in 1916 the Aurora was damaged and returned to New Zealand, after leaving some of its crew at Ross Barrier. Sir Ernest Shackleton set out to rescue the members of the Aurora's crew in December, 1916. He found seven of them alive, but three others had perished.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Suphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A Poisoned Sea.

For the eighth time since 1844 fish have been killed along the west coast of Florida in an area of poisoned water. Not only the water, but the air has been charged with a suffocating gas, odorless but irritating to the air passages. The last mortality was reported in October, and November of 1916. The Bureau of Fisheries sent experts to the spot but they were obliged to admit, after a careful investigation, that the cause of the strange occurrence is a mystery. One explanation advanced is that earthquake shocks, possibly due to West Indian hurricanes, released poisonous gases from the sea-bottom.—Popular Science Monthly.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

Why is a man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy-healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

GERMAN PEACE TERMS ACCEPTED BY RUSSIANS

384,000 SQUARE MILES HANDED TO HUNS

RUSSIA YIELDS TO FOE PEACE TERMS ACCEPTED

Germany Gains 384,000 Square Miles of Russian Territory With 50 Million Population---"Their Knees Are On Our Chests" Says Trotsky in Urging Acceptance of Foe's Terms--American Troops Carry Out Successful Raid on Chenin Des Dames Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Ed. L. Keen).

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Russia's acceptance of Germany's peace terms changes the face of Europe.

It cuts off from Russia 381,000 square miles of territory, 50,000,000 population and shoves her back from the Baltic, leaving her helpless and impotent in Germany's power, economically and physically.

The morning press to-day had not yet time to comprehend the full meaning of the situation. The head lines contained such words as "Tragic, Dismembered, Humiliating, Impotent."

The Post says there "is no other hypothesis but treachery."

"She is disarmed and helpless," says the Chronicle.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 24.—"Their knees are on our chest," declared Nikolai Lenine, Bolshevik Premier, in the course of his long speech to the Central Executive Committee of the All-Russian Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates, in which he insistently urged the acceptance of the Austro-German peace conditions, however oppressive and unfortunate they might appear. "This peace must be accepted as a respite," he continued, "enabling us to prepare decisive resistance to the Bourgeoisie and Imperialism. The proletariat of the whole world will come to our aid."

"Then we shall renew fighting." M. Martoff contended that the proposed peace meant the end of Russia, so far as her political independence was concerned, and that the day after the signing of peace the Soldiers' and Workmen's Government would be in bondage to Germany.

It is announced by Bolsheviki that their troops have entered Rostov, on the Don, and that fighting is proceeding in the streets.

BRITISH TEN MILES FROM HIT.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—British forces in Mesopotamia occupied Khana-Burayat, and are within ten miles of Hit, it was officially announced to-day. Hit is on the Euphrates River, about 75 miles west of Bagdad, a city of about 5,000 population.

(Canadian Press Despatch.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(Official).—Early this morning a hostile raiding party was repulsed with losses east of Armentieres. The enemy's artillery has shown activity south-west of Cambrai, and in the Messines sector.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Feb. 24.—An American patrol in the Chemin Des Dames sector, in conjunction with a French patrol, early yesterday penetrated a few hundred yards into the German lines and captured two German officers, 20 men and one machine gun. There were no American casualties.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Via London, Feb. 25.—German troops have occupied Pernau, a Russian seaport in Livonia, 99 miles north-east of Riga, and Dorpat, 157 miles north-east of Riga, the German War Office announced to-day.

This flying detachment travelled 130 miles in five and one-half days.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The Morning Post, remarking on the appointment of Grand Duke Hesse as German Commandant in the Riga provinces, points out that the former Czarina of Russia is his sister, and hints that she may be made Regent of Russia by Germany as guardian of her son, the former Czarevitch. Russia's surrender to Germany means that nearly four hundred thousand square miles of territory and all the Baltic Sea pass over to German domination.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

HONG KONG, Feb. 25.—Ten thousand persons lost their lives in the recent earthquake in Amoi, Hinterland.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 25.—Bolsheviki forces have occupied Rostoff, it was announced to-day. Street fighting continues.

Rostoff is an important city in the territory of the Don Cossacks, located on the Don River, a short distance from the north-easternmost arm of the Sea of Azov.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Count Von Herteling, Imperial German Chancellor, will address the German Reichstag to-day on foreign affairs, probably with the most attention to the Russian situation and the peace terms now offered by Germany. The Chancellor has not yet replied to the recent war aims statements of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George, and if he speaks he may take this opportunity to state Germany's case once more.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—British forces operating along the Euphrates River, in Mesopotamia, have occupied Khana-Burayat, meeting with little resistance from the Turks, the War Office announces. They are now one hundred miles west of Bagdad.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—General Brujevitch has been appointed dictator and successor to Ensign Krylenko, as Commander-in-Chief of the Russian armies, according to a Berlin despatch. The General has ordered the Russian troops to fight to the last.

MAJORITIES INCREASED

Soldiers' Vote Registered on this Continent and in France Adds Considerably in vote Polled for Burnham and Sexsmith

GOVERNMENT MAKES GAINS

As a result of the soldiers' vote in the recent election the majorities of J. H. Burnham and J. A. Sexsmith, the Union Government candidates in West and East Peterborough have been substantially increased. The figures of the voting in England have not yet been given out, but the figures of the balloting in France, and the military vote in North America add considerably to the Government vote in the two ridings.

The figures show that of the 585 votes cast by Peterborough soldiers in France, 553 were in favour of Burnham and 32 for Hall, while the soldier vote in North America gave Burnham 161 to his opponents 13, a net gain from the military vote without counting the ballot in England of 669.

The figures for West and East Peterborough are as follows:

West Peterborough.

| | Burnham. | Hall. |
|---|---|---|
| Civilian vote ..... | 5186 | 2904 |
| Soldier vote in North America .... | 161 | 13 |
| Soldier vote in France | 553 | 32 |
| | 5900 | 2949 |

Burnham's majority—2951.

East Peterborough.

| | Johnston. | Sexsmith. |
|---|---|---|
| Civilian vote ..... | 1375 | 2314 |
| Soldier vote in North America .... | 3 | 35 |
| Soldier vote in France | 9 | 112 |
| | 1387 | 2461 |

Sexsmith's majority—1074.

The figures from the voting in England will add considerably to these totals as the votes taken ther include all the Canadians in training as well as those undergoing treatment in hospitals or convalescent homes, or in England on leave from the front.

Government Majority 60.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—The official soldiers' and naval vote taken in France, in Canada and in the United States, announced to-day by Mr. W. F. O'Connor, General Returning Officer, has increased the majority of the Union Government in Parliament to 60. It was 45 when the civilian home vote was counted. The soldiers' vote taken in Great Britain has all been allocated to the various constituencies, and a staff of sixty officers commenced to count it yesterday. Mr. O'Connor expects it will all be in by Wednesday, when the Government's majority may be further increased. The standing of the Government and Opposition at present by Provinces is as follows:

| | Govt. | Opp. |
|---|---|---|
| Prince Edward Island .. | | 4 |
| Nova Scotia ..... | 12 | 4 |
| New Brunswick ..... | 7 | 4 |
| Quebec .. ..... | 3 | 62 |
| Ontario .. ..... | 72 | 10 |
| Manitoba .. ..... | 13 | 1 |
| Saskatchewan .. ..... | 16 | .. |
| Alberta .. ..... | 11 | 1 |
| British Columbia ..... | 13 | .. |
| Yukon .. .. ..... | .. | 1 |
| Total .. ..... | 147 | 87 |

Government majority—60.

There is one deferred election — Nelson, Man.

Where Results Are Reversed.

The seats which have changed from the Opposition to the Government column are Cape Breton South and Richmond, where Kyte and Carroll were defeated; Cumberland, where ex-Speaker Rhodes is elected over Hance Logan; Hants, where Martell's majority has been wiped out, and Pictou, where McGregor has defeated MacKay, all in Nova Scotia; South Essex, Ontario, where Brien, Government, has defeated Atkin, Liberal; West Edmonton, where Col. Griesbach has a large majority over Hon. Frank Oliver, and Skeena, British Columbia, where Col. Pock, another soldier candidate, has been elected over Stork, Liberal.

Opposition Majorities Reduced.

In several other Ontario constituencies the Opposition majorities have been materially reduced. These include Nipissing, South Perth and South Renfrew, and the vote in England may put these seats in the Government column.

Dr. Molloy, Liberal, still leads in Provencher, Manitoba, and White, the Opposition candidate in Victoria, Alberta, is still about 500 ahead of his opponent.

No Endorsation.

For Kent, Ontario, where neither candidate was endorsed, 451 soldiers' votes were rejected, while for Welland, where a similar condition prevailed, the rejections numbered 113. Where official endorsation was lacking, the only soldiers whose votes were counted were those who wrote on the ballot the names of the candidates for whom they desired to vote.

Treachery Believed Responsible For Loss Of The "Florizel"

Tampering With Compass is Thought to Have Been Cause of Wrecking of Red Cross Steamer With the Loss of Over One Hundred Lives.

TALES OF HEROISM

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 25.—Treachery aboard the ship is believed to have sent the Red Cross liner Florizel smashing on the rocks off Broad Cove. That Captain Martin, one of the best skippers in the business, should take his ship fifteen miles out of its course is regarded as astounding. Tampering with the compass is believed to have been responsible. Persons here are inclined to blame the tragedy on German agents.

The officers of the line stated to-day there were 138 persons aboard the Florizel. Of these 77 were passengers. Reports that 44 were known to be alive would leave a death list of 92, provided no others are found.

Rescue work began at dawn to-day, courageous fighting craft, sailors, men from the life saving stations and others joined in the almost impossible task of getting the survivors off the wrecked croft. Seventeen were left aboard alive after the first work had been done, and 27 drenched, shivering persons landed.

All day Sunday the beach near the pounding steamer was lined with lookers on, helpless to send aid. Huge waves lifted from the cold sea and, rising over the vessel, descended crashingly and swept her decks. Men could be seen after these torrents of water had receded. Some of them appeared to be lashed to mast or the rail. The stern of the vessel was submerged. Only her forward part was offering a haven of refuge for the miserable humans who struggled tenaciously with waves and cold for their lives. The foggy, ice filled waters near Cape Race have taken a heavy toll of steamships in the last forty years. Among those which have gone down are the Rhonda, Assyrian, Granbrook, Delmar, Louisa, Scottish King, Titanic, Lady Beatrice, Ivydevine, Palchina and fifteen others. In addition more than fifty sailing vessels have been sunk.

Tales of heroism by Newfoundland sailors and inhabitants along the rocky coast go hand in hand with records of the local vessels. They were there again to-day lending superhuman efforts to a task of getting survivors off the Florizel.

40 SURVIVORS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Forty survivors of the steamer Florizel have been taken off by the steamer Prospero, which is now on her way to St. Johns. Two are Captain Martin, master of the ship, and another seaman named James.

Canadian Press Despatch:

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 25.—Twenty-six survivors of the Red Cross liner Florizel, wrecked at Broad Cove, near Cape Race, yesterday, were rescued at daylight to-day. A message from the coastal steamer Prospero, which had stood by all night while the Florizel was being pounded on the rocks, reported that twenty others were alive on the ship.

The first batch of survivors was taken off in three lifeboats and four dories, but the sea was so rough that they were unable to approach the shore, near which the Florizel struck early Sunday morning while on a voyage from this port to Halifax and New York. All had suffered terribly from cold and exposure. Steamers met the boats and took the rescued aboard. A wireless message from the Prospero to John Crosbie, Minister of Shipping, early to-day, was the first word of hope that any of 77 passengers and crew of 69 had been saved. The Prosepro reported that every effort was being made to transfer them from the battered hulk.

THE EARLIER REPORTS.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 24. — The crack Red Cross Liner Florizel, from St. John's for New York by way of Halifax, with 140 persons aboard, including 78 passengers, piled up on the ledges near Cape Race during a blizzard to-day.

ANOTHER CANADIAN MAKES HIS ESCAPE

The escape of another Canadian from a German war camp is revealed in a post-card received by the local Red Cross Society from Corp. J. L. Davis, of the 3rd Canadian Battalion, who has looked after by the Peterborough Society since he has been in the hands of the Huns. Corp. Davis writes from Sittard, Holland, on Jan. 28th as follows:

Kindly stop all my parcels to Germany, having escaped on Jan. 20th and arrived in Holland on Jan. 23rd. With best wishes for past kindness. Believe me, yours faithfully,

HUN PROPAGANDA ON WEST FRONT PROVES A FAILURE

Every Method to Create a State of Terror Among Troops and Civilians Has Resulted in a Fiasco—Allies Are Ready For Drive

RATIONS ARE REDUCED

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Feb. 25. — German war party propagandists have bungled the job and over-cooked the pudding.

A careful study of to-day's situation on the west front reveals the most stupendous propaganda drive the Prussians have ever attempted, and for the biggest stakes, is a total failure.

Despite the utilization of every method to create a state of terror among troops and civilians, to increase the tension and prolong the nerve strain before the offensive, their methods have resulted in a fiasco. Troops and civilians are chuckling over the "hob gobblin."

The British staff expects the Germans will put up a stiff fight but receive a drubbing. Indications are that the German troops themselves are gradually acquiring a cold sweat. Some prisoners admit they do not believe the Prussians plans will succeed, although they will make mincemeat of their own troops.

French civilians openly doubt an offensive will be launched, asking "why so much hullabaloo."

The soldiers shrug their shoulders, saying "let it come."

Confirming reports of good conditions in Germany, prisoners say that not only civilians and non-combatants, but line troops not actually slated for the push, are now on reduced rations.

THE PETERBORO' PLANING MILL BADLY DAMAGED

Blaze of Unknown Origin Destroyed Large Portion of Dublin Street Factory—1500 Shell Boxes Are Ruined

MACHINERY DESTROYED

The plant of the Peterborough Planing Mill Company, Dublin street, was badly damaged by a fire of unknown origin, which broke out shortly after five o'clock on Saturday evening. The greatest damage was done at the rear of the plant and in the shell-box factory at the south west corner, where a quantity of valuable machinery and some fifteen hundred shell boxes were destroyed, as well as a large amount of valuable stock. The damage in the carpenter shop and other departments at the front of the building was not so extensive, being chiefly caused by water.

The blaze broke out just after the day's work was through; in fact all of the employees had not left. Mr. Harry Baker, head of the Company, and Mr. Jas. Bogue, were in the office at the front of the building, and Mr. Baker was carrying on a conversation over the telephone when a glance through the window at the rear of the office, revealed the fact that the back part of the building was in flames. Mr. Baker immediately called the fire hall and gave the alarm.

The back of the plant was a wooden structure and the inflammable nature of the contents caused the blaze to spread very quickly. So fast, indeed, was the progress of the fire that Mr. Chas. Westlake, who was in the carpenter shop, on the second floor, was cut off from the stairs, and had to jump to the ground. Mr. Baker broke his fall and he escaped uninjured.

By the time the fire brigade arrived the fire had spread across the entire rear portion of the building. The hydrant at the corner of Union and Dublin street, was found to be frozen and this mishap caused a delay that added to the difficulty of the fire fighters. For a while it looked as if the whole plant would be utterly destroyed and people living in the houses east and west of the burning building grew decidedly uneasy—so much so, indeed, that the furniture of Mrs. Dineen was carried out of the house.

However, the Brigade succeeded in holding the flames out of the front of the building, getting three streams through the second floor windows, and with a number of other lines of hose playing on the blaze at the rear, had the fire under control by 6.30 o'clock. The policemen on duty did good work and volunteer helpers were of valuable assistance to the Brigade.

The fire could not have come at a more inopportune time as the plant was very busy. In addition to the manufacture of shell boxes there were orders from the Quaker Oats Company for fittings, window sashes, etc. From the Boston Cafe for tables, and from other firms, in hand. Some forty-five employees will be thrown out of work.

Seen by The Examiner yesterday, Mr. Baker could hardly estimate the total loss. A large amount of valuable machinery, including a nailer, worth $1,500, and three screw driving machines, valued at $500 each, were destroyed, while 1,500 shell boxes were burned or badly damaged. The belting through the building was ruined.

The plant has several times been practically destroyed by fire.

AN EXPLANATION NEEDED.

Considerable valuable time seems to have been lost at Saturday's fire at the Peterborough Planing Mill because of a frozen hydrant, and many people have been asking the pertinent question as to why hydrants should be allowed to remain frozen. There paratus if their value is negatived by paratus if their value is negatived by a hydrant that is out of commission just when it is needed. It is a matter that should be investigated at once.

GATHEk IN THE EVADERS.

Among many people who voted for the Union Government because they believed in compulsory service as the only feasible means of providing reinforcements for Canada's army overseas, there is a growing feeling of disappointment at the manner in which the Military Service Act is being operated. In the first place, the number of men so far secured has been smaller than was expected, and secondly, the Province of Ontario, which contributed so splendidly to the volunteer army, has had to supply the larger portion of the draftees while Quebec has flooded the Courts with exemption apepals to such an extent that it will be months before she contributes anything like her proper share.

Not only that, but there is a feeling that it is only the most willing of those who were left to be drafted who have been put into khaki. The young men who reported for service, or who promptly answered the call on their application for exemption being refused are already in the army, some of them indeed, overseas. What about the others who ignored the law, who did not either report for service or claim exemption? So far there has been no real attempt to round them up. A few have fallen into the hands of the police here and there, and in some of the larger cities the Dominion Police have gathered in a few more, but the campaign has not been vigorous enough to satisfy the people who want to see the Act administered strictly and impartially. How many young men in Peterborough have been asked by any one in authority to show good reason why they are not in khaki?

As a matter of fact the last official report reveals the fact that in the whole of No. 5 Military District which includes Quebec City and twenty-three counties in Quebec Province only two defaulters have been apprehended. And the same report indicated that Peterborough and the district immediately surrounding this city which held the record of being second in Canada under the voluntary system has put nearly as many in khaki under the Military Service Act as the Quebec district has enrolled.

The Government should round up the defaulters.

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA.

The French are lovable and worthy of all the sympathy and affection we can give them. But Britain is still nominally a monarchy, and our patriot thinks of its people very much as the cowboy used to regard citizens of New York. They all lived on Fifth Avenue. For the cowboy, the residents of the dreary side streets simply did not exist. We have been wont to think of all the British as aristocrats, while they have returned the compliment by visualizing all Americans as plutocrats—despite the fact that one-tenth of our population is said to own nine-tenths of all our wealth!

But the war will change that, is already changing it. "Tout comprendre c'est tout pardonner." We have been soaked in the same common law, literature and traditions of liberty—or of chaos, as one likes. Whether we all be of British origin or not, it is the mind that makes the true patriot and there is no American so dead as no to feel a thrill when he first sets foot on British soil. Our school teachers felt it when they began to travel some twenty years ago, and the thousands of our soldiers who pass through on their way to France are feeling it to-day, and writing home about it. Our soldiers and sailors are being cared for and entertained in England just as they would be cared for and entertained at home. So are their officers. Not long ago one of the finest town ho ses in London was donated by the owner for an American officers' club, the funds were raised by contributions from British officers, and the club was inaugurated by the King and Queen—and Admiral Sims. Hospitality and good will have gone much further than this. Anyone who knows London will understand the sacredness of those private squares, surrounded by proprietary residences, where every tree and every blade of grass has been jealously guarded from intrusion for a century or more. And of all these squares that of St. James's is perhaps, the most exclusive, and yet it is precisely in St. James's there is to be built the first of those hotels designed primarily for the benefit of American officers, where they can get a good room for five shillings a night. One has only to sample the war time prices of certain hostelries to appreciate the value of this.

From "A Traveller in War Time," by Winston Churchill, in the March Scribner.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We are all ready for the first robin of the season story.

That some people are more afraid of no fire in this world than too much in the next was evidenced by the size of the coal lines yesterday.

Time was when a load of coal excited no more interest than a passing street car. And now watch the covetous look in every eye as a few sacks pass by on a truck.

The Ottawa Board of Control has signed contracts for a supply of wood for next season. The local Council should waste no time in considering this question. From present indications the coal situation will not be any better next winter, and an ample supply of wood will solve the fuel problem.

Members of the City Council who were in attendance at Saturday's fire, writhed in mental anguish as they watched the new motor engine cavort gaily over three or four lines of hose. The aldermen had visions of another demand for hose in the near future.

Motor trucks, aerial towers and all the hose in the world are useless without water. It is up to the authorities to see that the hyrants are kept thawed out.

JUSTIFY PUBLIC CONFIDENCE.

The deputation that visited Ottawa to interview the Union Government in connection with railway matters came away rather dissatisfied with what they had learned of the attitude of the Prime Minister, says the Toronto Star.

It has been very generally assumed that the intention of the Government is to go at least as far in the nationalizing of railways as to take over not only the C.N.R., but the whole Grand Trunk System. It has been generally assumed that the question under deep consideration by the Government was as to whether the policy of nationalization should go the whole length and take over the C.P.R. as well.

Yet the members of the delegation that waited on the Government this week had their confidence shaken as to the Government's intentions, even as regards the carrying of the policy of nationalization as far as to include the old Grand Trunk System along with the Grand Trunk Pacific.

If public ownership were only to be applied to the C.N.R. and the G.T.P. it would mean that the policy was only being applied as a sort of hospital relief for crippled private railway interests, instead of being entered upon as a stroke of national statesmanship. It would mean the taking over of two roads without sufficient eastern branch-line feeders that their owners cannot carry—it would mean the taking over by the country of such railways as are lean and unprofitable and leaving to private owners such parts of the railway services as are fat and profitable. It would give the country two very long railways without giving it one complete national system.

This is not the policy of railway nationalization that the country was led to expect from the Union Government. Such a policy as that would cut the throat of public ownership in railways. It would be better for the Union Government to well consider the matter before disappointing the hopes aroused throughout Canada as to its policy of railway nationalization.

There is another matter in regard to which the Union Government ought to take thought. Strong efforts are being put forth at Ottawa just now to pry open again the liquor question which the Union Government closed down and sealed tight for the period of the war. The distilling and brewing interests want the question reopened—they want another year in which liquor can be manufactured in Quebec.

It was generally assumed that the Union Government had fully determined its course in this matter, knew what it was saying and meant what it said when it stopped the manufacture of liquor for the period of the war and called the whole world to witness the vigor and decisiveness with which it could make and execute its purposes.

It was charged against the former Government that its greatest fault was that it would never "stay put." The charge was that it made decisions which were never allowed to stay made. It was charged that no matter what decision was arrived at, somebody was sure to come along, shove an influential shoulder against the former Government, and push the decision over so that the whole question sprawled all over the Council table once more as unsettled as it had been before, and somewhat more unsettleable.

The Union Government would do well to avoid acquiring any such reputation as that earned by the former Government—the reputation of never knowing its own mind, of never staying put, of backing and filling, shifting and changing, so that there could be no confidence in the stability and permanence of anything to which it set its hand.

The country ought to be given a policy of railway nationalization that will mean something and will have courage, punch, and purpose in it. The country ought to take over railways, not merely accept what private interests are unable to carry. As for modifying its liquor policy for another year or any other period, or reopening the question at all, we do not know of anything that would so completely destroy public confidence in the supposed strength of the Union Government as to see this one most outstanding action of the Government pushed over by the first hand that gave it a shove.

CASTE IN GERMANY.

Only Members of Ruling Classes Eligible for Appointment.

For the years James W. Gerard was Ambassador from the United States to Germany jurisprudence in that country held an impelling appeal because of his service in New York as a Justice of the Supreme Court and the diplomatist-jurist made an exhaustive study of the subject, the result of which he related to some Supreme Court justices recently. The impotency of the middle and lower classes of people in attaining high judicial offices was emphasized by Mr. Gerard, who told of "caste" rule governing the appointments to the higher courts.

"Judges are not elected in Germany," he said. "There is no such thing as an election for a judge, or in fact of an election for anyone holding any office which carries any power whatever with it. It is true that in the cities they elect the Burgomeister and the Ober-Burgomeister, but they have absolutely no power. Then the police president of each city is appointed by the Central Government. A young man in Germany enters the career of the Government services just as he enters diplomacy or the navy or the army, and then he may be, first, an assistant chief clerk, a 'referenda' they call it, or he may move on to be an assistant district attorney in a small town.

"After that he may be assistant police president in a larger town. Then he may be a judge in a small town; then a clerk of the court in a large town, and so on, gradually moving up the official ladder.

"The Chancellor, at the head of the personnel of the military, marks the great appointments, and they, in turn, make the smaller appointments, and all these appointments are confined, in Prussia at least, to the noble ruling class. In Prussia you can today create a form of estate abolished 500 years ago in England.

"That is to say, as we can tie up an estate for only two lives in being in 21 years, a man in Germany who has made a fortune can buy 15,000 acres of ground and create what they call a mazura. For instance, Count Esterhazy was made Premier of Hungary. He has ehormous estates that were handed down to him from ancestor to ancestor over five hundred years ago.

"It is the condition of marriage that he cannot marry and have children unless he marries a girl having a certain number of quarterings of nobility. These quarterings are so great in number that only 13 girls in the world come up to the specification. So, if he wants to have his children inherit his estate he must choose from those 13 girls.

"It was part of my business in Germany to go about inspecting the camps of prisoners-of-war, and very often I encountered a judge in command of these camps. These judges, in their youth, had been members of the army, usually second lieutenants, and then had volunteered at the opening of the war and had been given back their rank and uniform and were put in command of prisoners camps."

The English Detective discovers the German wireless machine in "The White Feather," which Albert Brown will present at The Grand next Thursday evening, Feb. 28. The seat sale opens To-morrow morning.

It will be with genuine pleasure that local play-goers read that Albert Brown has, in compliance with a general request, revived that great English melodramatic comedy success, "The White Feather." His return to the Worral-Terry play, which first served to introduce him in Canada as a star, gives him an opportunity to quote one critic, "to do his bit," which he does most entertainingly and convincingly in disclosing the many ways that the German secret service agents adopt in carrying on their work and incidentally the methods to circumvent which that are employed by the ever watchful and resourceful "Kit" Brent, the English detective, aided by Miriam Lee. Mr. Brown is assisted by a company of English players of wide experience. Miss Lenore Phelps has a role differing greatly from that of the Quakeress which she played so charmingly when Mr. Brown presented "The Love of a King" here.

TORONTOS WIN EASILY FROM THE SENATORS

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—Reversals of form are becoming quite regular in the National Hockey League, and Ottawa, who were expected to provide Toronto with strenuous opposition at the Arena Saturday night, failed to play up to their best form, and were beaten by 9 to 3. Unlike the contest of Monday night, however, between Canadiens and Toronto, when Toronto was beaten 9 to 0, the Senators tried hard at all stages. Realizing in the second series of the N.H.L. that defeat would probably cost them their chances to capture first honours in the second series of the N.H.L. race, they placed their strongest team on the ice, but it was not equal to the Blue Shirts.

Although the second and third periods witnessed close, hard play, the first period was the most interesting from a spectator's point of view. Toronto secured five in the first, holding Ottawa to one goal. In the second Toronto added three more and Ottawa was blanked. In the closing period Ottawa scored twice, holding Toronto to one tally.

Benedict's Off Night.

The victory of the Blue Shirts can be attributed to their persistent backchecking and the fact that Clint Benedict, Ottawa's good goal-tender, was not anywhere near his usual good form. He was beaten with ease on long shots, shots from scrambles in front of his net and close-in backhanded jabs. On the other hand, Holmes, in the Toronto goal, was in excellent form, stopping and clearing in clever fashion. Once or twice he came out of his goal after the Ottawa forwards had beaten his defence and blocked what appeared to be sure goals.

COLLEGIATE WON FROM PORT HOPE

The local P. C. I. hockey team defeated the Port Hope High School team on their own ice Saturday by the score of 10 to 2. The Port Hope players were fast at times and displayed some good combination, but the hard checking and accurate shooting of the Peterborough boys told. They played little combination, but they raced up and down the narrow rink with individual effort that scored time and again. Rutherford, the George Street crack centre man, worked hard, and had a large share of the scoring, finding the nets on three occasions. The back checking of Hunter was of great service to the forward line, while Thirnbeck and Armstrong proved themselves to be very efficient and of remarkable service to the team. Capt. Catchpole proved to be a brick wall in the nets. The team lined up as follows: —

Goal—Catchpole, (Capt.)
Defence—Armstrong and Thirnback.
Centre—Rutherford.
Right Wing—Hunter.
Left Wing—Elliott.
Sub.—Fitzgerald.
Mascot—Freddie Green.

Church Hockey League Meeting To-night

A meeting of all the representatives of the Church Hockey League is called for to-night at 8 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. All mebers are asked to be present on time.

What Thumbs Are Worth.

One has only to grasp a pen or a tool of some sort to realize that the different fingers are far from having the same value in regard to their usefulness in performing work. The most important is the thumb, for without it seizing or holding would be very imperfect. The hand is no longer pincers, but merely a claw when deprived of the thumb. It may be estimated that the thumb represents fully a third of the total value of the hand. The total loss of the thumb is estimated by competent authorities as 15 to 36 per cent. for the right and 10 to 15 per cent. for the left hand, except for workers in art, when 40 to 50 for the right and 25 to 40 per cent. for the left hand comes nearer the value.

The total loss of the index finger causes an incapacity estimated at from 10 to 25 per cent. for the right hand and 10 to 15 per cent. for the left. The middle finger is less important than the index. The ring finger is least important, and the little finger may be compared to its neighbor, except in the professions in which it serves as a point of support for the hand.

Ex-Czar's Superstition.

The ex-Czarina's belief in the unspeakable Rasputin proves that she was of a strongly superstitious turn of mind, and she is generally regarded as the true maker of the revolution in Russia, but an incident which occurred whilst the ex-Czar was traveling from Petrograd to Moscow proves that the superstition is not all on her side.

It appears that the ex-Czar wears a ring in which he believes is embedded a fragment of the true Cross. It was originally one of the treasures of the Vatican, and was presented to one of the Czar's predecessors for diplomatic reasons. The value he places on this supposititious relic was proved when he accidentally left it behind him when traveling to Moscow. He had the train stopped instantly, a special express chartered, and a trusty messenger sent post-haste to fetch the missing ring, nor would he allow the train to budge an inch till, his messenger returned hours afterwards, with the relic!—Tit-Bits.

Turks and Caicos Islands.

Turks and Caicos Islands form a dependency under the government of Jamaica, but geographically they are a portion of the Bahamas, of which they form the two southeastern groups. There are upwards of 30 small islands with an area of 165 square miles, but only eight are inhabited. The population is about 8,000, of whom only 300 are whites. The most important industry is the salt raking.

COURT SCANDAL RECALLED.

Favorite of Francis Joseph Dies in Vienna.

German newspapers announce the death in Vienna of the actress, Katharina Schratt, for years an intimate of the late Emperor Francis Joseph and to whom he left $250,000 in his will. She was one of the most lurid figures in the scandalous life of the old Emperor.

Katharina Schratt first met Emperor Francis Joseph in the early '80s, when she had won considerable reputation at the Stadt Theatre in Vienna as a mimic, and soon became known as "the woman behind the Austrian throne." Mme. Schratt, however, lived to see the day when permission was refused her to view the Emperor on his bier.

At the time of her first meeting with Francis Joseph the young actress was the wife of Nicholas von Kiss, a Hungarian, who died in 1909. Court gossip had it that the Empress Elizabeth, who had been known as the most beautiful Princess in all Europe, was first to call her royal consort's attention to the young woman's loveliness of face, and that the next day Katharina Schratt was appointed court actress of the Hofburg Theatre. Throughout the remainder of the Empress' life she befriended the actress, and apparently encouraged the intimacy between her and the Emperor, about which the country soon was gossiping.

Katharina Schratt was described as an extremely handsome woman of the brunette type—tall and classically formed. Her eyes were large and blue, and she had a wealth of dark hair. She was possessed of much personal magnetism, and her manners were said to be charming.

The actress remained on the stage for many years as leading lady of the Hofburg Theatre. She occupied an establishment near the palace, and nearly every morning Emperor Francis Joseph took breakfast with her.

After the Empress Elizabeth was assassinated in Switzerland in 1898 Mme. Schratt wore the deepest of mourning. The Emperor more and more sought her companionship, and she was appointed "official reader" to amuse him with books. He caused to be published in the State paper of Vienna the following paragraph:

"The perfectly innocent character of the relations between the monarch and the actress are known to every one here who has the slightest acquaintance with Austro-Hungarian court life."

Katharina Schratt, the actress, then became a participant in affairs of State, playing behind the scenes but wielding an influence over the aged Emperor that made Austro-Hungarian statesmen eager to gain her counsel. In politics she was at first an opponent, and then a partisan of the Hungarians, who desired greater legislative privileges than the dual monarchy permitted. It was the actress who persuaded Emperor Francis Joseph in 1905 to receive in audience Francis Kossuth, son of the great Hungarian patriot and radical leader.

Mme. Schratt's career as a political power ended with the death of Emperor Francis Joseph in November, 1916.

Mme. Bernhardt.

Mme. Bernhardt made her first appearance in America thirty-seven years ago. She broke her contract with the Comedie Francaise in Paris and was fined $20,000, in order to make her first tour of Great Britain and America. Before returning to Paris she toured North and South America and all of Europe, except Germany, refusing to visit the latter country. From the first Mme. Bernhardt was a favorite on this side of the Atlantic.

A Vicious Bear.

While the track laying crew was recently engaged in laying rails on the Alaska railway, near Mile 195, a brown bear attacked one of the laborers, chasing him down the right of way. One of the men shot the bear, which weighed 800 pounds.

Responsibility.

"Prohibition has made a great change in Crimson Gulch," commented the occasional visitor.

"Yes," replied Three Finger Sam. "I never saw the settlement so quiet an' polite."

"How do you account for it?"

"Well, liquor is no longer handy an excuse for reckless talk, and everybody's nerves has steadied down so that if a man should reach for a gun it 'ud have to mean something."

FINNISH FOLK SONGS.

Expert Speaks of Beautiful European Music.

"The Finnish folk songs are not purely Finnish in origin. Modern research shows that the popular melodies of most countries have wandered about from one land to another, and those of Finland are no exception to the rule. In them we do but find Finnish characteristics stamped on to what was originally a common European stock. Nevertheless the national note is strong in them. It is both grave and gay, seeming in the one case to embody the surging joy of the summer on which no darkness ever falls; in the other, the long snow-lit twilight of the winter, when for months on end the sun scarcely peeps above the level of the frozen earth," Prof. Arthur Reade of Halsingfors University, writes in "Finland and the Finns." "The ancestral love of song is also clearly expressed in the actual life of to-day, and one cannot help realizing that it springs out of the inmost heart of the people. In the long summer evenings people sit together and sing. On anniversaries choirs sing before the statues of Finland's great men. At dinners given to honored guests, singing is often part of the entertainment afforded. The Finns imprisoned in Russia for defending the constitution have often been sent off with singing and welcomed with singing on their return. From emigrant ships upon the Atlantic floats the sad cadence of Finnish songs, and in the new world the Finns meet together and sing their country's immemorial songs in a strange land."

"Finnish composers have, as might be expected, turned mainly to folk songs and the 'Kalevala' for their themes. The latter, with its vast indefiniteness, is full of suggestions to musicians, and, if Finland develops a modern opera, will no doubt furnish its heroes and heroines, as Homer did for Greek tragedy. In this way Finnish legend may become more widely known to the rest of Europe.

"Among Finnish composers Jean Sibelius is by far the greatest. While transcending the limits of nationality and forming part of the main current of European music, he is yet distinctively Finnish, in his love of nature and his patriotism. The latter is discernible in his choice of subjects, both for orchestral music and for songs, but it is best described as an atmosphere pervading all his work. Not only did he often turn to the 'Kalevala' for his inspiration, but also to that other great source of national feeling, the poems of Runeberg. He is not only a great lover of nature but there seems to be something peculiarly Finnish in his way of apprehending her, the Finnish landscape in all its moods being often brought most vividly into the mind of the hearer. . . . He excels in depicting poignant moments, especially in his songs, which are among the finest of modern times.

"It is appropriate that a nation in whose music the song has always played so great a part should be unusually rich in fine voices. Their quality is clear and metallic, like the physical atmosphere of the country. Finnish singing is rich in spontaneous feeling and has a fine primitive quality. Probably we shall hear much of Finnish singers in the near future. . . . Lieder singing has been but little developed among them. . . It is rather in opera and folk song that they shine, where finesse is less requisite and their simplicity and strength tell. When they sing the songs of their native country really well, one has the impression, not of exquisite art, but of the simple utterance of nature, heartfelt and inevitable, the sublimation of peasant songs."

About Drownings.

Numerous drownings occurring recently in lakes of high elevation have pointed out a serious menace to swimmers as well as the necessity for the utmost care on the part of fishermen or others from the lowlands who sojourn about such waters. It is a well known fact that persons physically sound, dwelling in locations near sea level, find themselves short of breath under the slightest exertion when in high altitudes. Thus when such a person plunges into a mountain lake he finds that the exertion of swimming quickly exhausts his energies. It is the shortage of oxygen due to the elevation that accounts for some of the recent tragedies of Big Bear and Little Bear lakes in the San Bernardino mountains. These lakes, more than a mile above sea level, are frequented by fishermen and pleasure seekers from the lowlands.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

A Much Married Soldier.

Mr. Justice Bray's recent complaint that the war has led to a serious increase in bigamy echoes what French moralists said during the Napoleonic war. The Emperor's soldiers were notorious for marrying a new wife in every place they were stationed, and one young brave, Jacques Nottier, aged twenty-five, when called before a criminal tribunal on a charge of marrying three women within eight months, acknowledged that, so far as his memory served, he had wedded fourteen French, one Italian, one Swiss, and two Dutch wives in the course of his brief career.—Tit-Bits.

Duelling In France.

The war is likely to see the end of the "affair of honor" in France, surmises the Christian Science Monitor. Just as Cervantes laughed chivalry out of existence in Europe through "Don Quixote," a certain publicist in Paris has unwittingly brought such ridicule to bear upon duels that he may go into history with Prince Albert, who abolished duelling in England with a stroke of the pen. The Parisian had written a letter to an engineer and grossly insulted him. The case was taken before the judge, who brought to light the fact that the insult was offered solely for the purpose of getting the engineer to fight with the writer. Now "fighting" in France means only one of the two things, the sword or the pistol. But to-day the Frenchman is permitted only one enemy, the invader at the front. So the judge fined the publicist five francs and ordered him to pay the engineer 300 francs damages.

THE PIRATES' DOCTRINE.

Facts About the Laws of the High Seas.

By direct authority from God, as he stated, Alexander VI. in or about 1493, divided substantially the whole of the high seas between Portugal and Spain. At a later period, when called to the attention of the Dutch, this conclusive disposal of the matter did not please them, so they captured a "Portegee," took him into harbor, sat on him and condemned him as lawful prize, first thoughtfully hiring Mr. De Groot to write a brief in their favor, largely to the effect that the Pope had misunderstood God's real intent in the matter in thinking that only two nations need be considered. Some time thereafter, the English developed the idea that both the Pope and the Dutch had erred in relation to the Lord's intentions; that it was they, the English, to whom the great gift had been intended to be given, so far as it was to be exclusively donated to any one. After a while British common sense came to their rescue and they concluded that the Dutch were right and that the high seas were the heritage of man. Germany is now in process of so conducting herself as to bring the whole subject up for review.

In considering the maritime neutral and belligerent rights one must bear in mind certain fundamentals. They are: The theoretic equality of right in the high seas of all nations regardless of disparities in power and size, with its corollary, an equal right to the uninterrupted use thereof; also that elsewhere on the sea than in its own territorial waters no nation can exercise power over other than its own citizens or subjects, which is necessarily to some extent infringed on by belligerents in the prosecution of war at sea.

It seems as though the point should be hardly worth elaboration that the employment of a novel means, or of some new marine engine or instrument, or the application of a known instrument to a new use, in waging war at sea, cannot of itself vary a rule. The first employment of steam in warships, as the first employment of sails for propulsion, enlarged the radius of operation of the engine of offensive power of the belligerent who employed it, but did not give that belligerent greater "rights" in its employment within such enlarged radius of action than had existed theretofore.

When vessels of war first utilized sail propulsion they did not on that account gain the right to take sails and cordage from the vessels of neutrals to repair or replace losses suffered in action, nor those first employing steam power, coal. So also any other limitation or weakness inherent to the engine of war employed cannot be undertaken of rule to have occurred because the implement employed is novel or put to a new use.

If the attacking vessel be weaker than a merchantman (in speed or armament) it may be that the merchant vessel will escape (or beat off her opponent). But that fact — her exercise of her right of evasion or resistance — does not authorize or justify a stealthy or murderous attack on her in the first instance by the vessel of the belligerent. An open boat with an armed crew might be enabled to capture a merchant vessel by concealing its character until close aboard and then shooting the helmsman without hail or warning, or if the merchant vessel were armed, shooting her gun crew. But the fact that without resorting to murder the open boat was too lacking in power to bring the merchant vessel to terms does not vary the rule and permit of murder to offset inherent weakness. In other words any "inherent vice" in the instrument by which an exercise of power at sea is sought to be employed by a belligerent, is an element the burden of which, whatever it may be, must fall on the belligerent electing to employ the instrument. This is the whole root of the pretended "submarine controversy"—which is no controversy at all and was only made to appear so through Germany's murderous course and by conduct on our part which can be charitably ascribed to unfamiliarity with such subjects.

It is subversive of the general right, of neutral nations to pursue their commerce on the high seas that mines should be laid therein by a belligerent. Nevertheless, in 1914, in less than five days after a state of war existed between Germany and Britain, Germany planted contact mines indiscriminately in the open sea without regard for the consequences therefrom to neutrals or to any other merchantmen. This original mine laying by Germany was an unlawful attempt on her part to offset the superiority of the British fleet to her own. It was a subscription by Germany to "the doctrine of necessity," a phrase she has taught the world, wherewith to describe all conceivable and dastardly horrors.—Charles Edward Davidson.

Unlucky Bagdad.

A writer in Pearson's tells us that Bagdad, where the British are now firmly established, has well earned its reputation of the world's unluckiest city. Not a square inch of the soil on which it stands but has been soaked with the blood of its citizens.

When the Mongols, under their terrible Chief Hulaga, took the city in 1258, 1,000,000 of its inhabitants were put to death. Worse still, Hulaga ruined the whole system of irrigation canals which made Mesopotamia perhaps the richest country in the world, "thereby destroying the work of 300 generations in as many hours."

In 1393 Timur the Tartar sacked the city. He killed all its inhabitants, "save only the holy men," and 900,000 skulls were piled up in pyramids before the walls.

The Persians under Shan Abbas, captured Bagdad in 1623, after a desperate resistance, and in revenge he ordered 500 of the principal citizens to be tortured to death in public, the executions lasting over an entire week. Three hundred others were executed by hanging them head downward in the city's 300 wells, thereby poisoning the water supply.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

SYNOPSIS

After a three months' courtship, elen Milner, a country girl of nineen, has married George Howard, ged twenty-six, and gone to live in e Middle West.

George Howard is a man of the asterful, dictatorial type, who adires only conservative qualities in oman. He soon discovers that his pontaneous girl-wife does not conorm to his ideal of womanhood, and enders her miserable by contrasting er with Madge Loring—a woman of e world before he met Helen.

Madge Loring is a handsome, cynial, perfectly poised and dressed woan who lacks belief in man—or preends to. She puts ideas into Helen's ead, wrong ideas, puzzling the young wife, who is trying in every way to djust herself to her husband and to ity ideas and conventions.

Helen has a beautiful home and a ar—which George will not allow her o learn to drive, although she longs o do so; he considers such things "unladylike" and "mannish." She herefore devotes herself to the runing of her pretty home. Proudly ngenuously, she exhibits the little ouse to her callers—until her husand, hearing through Madge Lorng of her doing so, begs her to de ist from what he considers so childsh a practice.

Helen, making the mistake of tak ng is displeasure for waning love, unwisely reproaches him for his changed manner toward her, constantly reminding him of his devotion of other days—which naturally tends to weary a man of George Howard's impatient nature. When he contracts the habit of staying out evenings, she waits for him tearfully, upbraiding him on his return.

Then an incident happens which makes Helen think that she has overdrawn his neglect of her and tortured herself unnecessarily with groundless imaginings regarding his love; in a slight automobile accident, in which she is merely bruised, the young husband gathers her to him fiercely, thanking God that she is not killed.

After this, Helen takes heart and believes that she can yet save their marriage ship from running on the shoals. Loyally keeping her struggles to herself, not even writing her mother about her little troubles, she begins to remodel herself, determined to become thewoman her husband would have her.

Then an incident happens which plunges her, once more, into the depths of despair; just as she believes that she is attaining her husband's ideal, she overhears, quite accidentally, this conversation between her husband and a business friend who are smoking in the library:

"I never could have married a woman who did not in the first place have beauty—that I might be proud of her in public, as well as have something attractive to look at in private She had to have a fine figure, as well as a pretty face. I detest looking at a woman who does not know how to wear her clothes. It would mortify me to death to go about with a dowdy woman. I hate to look at them! Of course a woman, to be companionable, must be bright and amusing, even though not clever. In most things, Madge Loring is a type a man becomes fond and proud of. I am glad Helen has won her friendship." "Mrs. Howard is far lovelier than Mrs. Loring, and younger," the other man had replied. "Yes, she is so young that she will be amenable to correction where it is needed." George had answered.

That George Howard wanted children, Helen never knew. It had been an obsession with him to build up a big business for sons, but he accepts her excuse when, after a serious illness, she absolutely refuses to bear children.

The man, denied, finds his comfort—the fulfilling of his ambitions—in helping the boys of others, his attitude is misunderstood, and out of this comes the entanglement that makes the story of Helen Milner and George Howard one of intense and growing interest.—To-morrow, The Intolerance of Youth.

WILL IRWIN PREDICTS BIG GERMAN OFFENSIVE WILL FAIL

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Speaking at a meeting of the National League for Women's Service of his recent visit to the French and Italian fronts, Will Irwin, the writer, who returned from Europe last week, stated that in his opinion the much-advertised German drive would begin soon and would probably result in such terrific losses on the part of the Germans that the way would be opened for a peace acceptable to the Allies. Mr. Irwin also prophesied a social and economic revolution abroad after the war. Concerning the German offensive, he said:

"Undoubtedly, in any opinion, which is that of a 'cafe strategist,' the much-heralded offensive is coming. There has been so much preparation and moving of troops and artillery in Germany to the western front that it would be too expensive a proposition merely to be carried out by way of a 'bluff.' But I am confident that the Germans cannot mass any vastly superior forces against us. It must also be remembered that the Allies have been conserving their forces and steadily preparing by increased manufacturing of munitions. The Germans have at present a slight advance in the air, which can be overcome by superior tactics on the part of the Allies.

"Of course the Germans may be planning something new in the way of propaganda, but it must be remembered that they have an altogether different morale to deal with on the western front than in Italy. Nothing can ever weaken the morale of the British."

Speaking on the effect in Paris of the news of an impending German offensive, Mr. Irwin said:

"There was consternation in Paris at first, but as time was given for the people to recover no harm was done to the courage of the people. The time when the Germans should have pushed their drive was just after the news of it reached Paris before the people had time to recover from their fright. Now the feeling in France is, 'Well, let 'em come.' It is my belief that Hindenburg is planning an attempt to put France out of the war by striking a smashing blow at the French portion of the line, although he may advance through Siwtzerland, as the Germans have nothing to lose by the violation of its neutrality."

Mr. Irwin said that social revolution was the topic of conversation in every circle abroad. In England, he said, it had practically taken place in a peaceful way. France, he said, was too much torn by the war to think much about economics, but after the war the question of socialism was bound to arise. On the way in which the French people adapted themselves to it, he thought, would depend whether the revolution would be peaceful or violent.

Mr. Irwin described in detail the Italian disaster, which he ascribed to German peace propaganda.

LITERATURE IS BEING TURNED IN TO THE POLICE

Police on Trail of "Finished Mystery"

The police department have gathered in a number of copies of "The Finished Mystery," and the "Bible Students' Monthly." There are several more copies outstanding, according to the records of the police department. Unless these copies are turned in the owners will be charged with having in their possession and under their control copies of the above described literature, contrary to an order in Council of the War Measures Act. It is not difficult to find out the extent of the local circulation and it is less difficult to ascertain the names of parties having such books in their possession. On Saturday last five men in a western Ontario town were very heavily fined for having such books in their possession. The safest plan is to turn them over the police department before the real round-up starts. Several have already profited by this advice.

RETURNS AFTER AN ABSENCE OF THIRTY-ONE YEARS

After an absence of thirty-one years Mr. William Giroux, of Hibbing, Minnesota, U.S.A., returns home for a visit with his brother, Mr. George Giroux, 306 Stewart street. Mr. Giroux recognizes very few of his old Peterborough friends of over thirty years ago. He scarcely recognizes the old home town and is more than surprised at the rapid growth. Mr. Giroux is a member of the Government Forestry Service of the State of Minnesota.

Scene from "The Irish 15th," Al. H. Wilson's new play at The Grand next Wednesday evening. The seats are now on sale.

If personal magnetism is the great indefinable power that ensures success, then Al. H. Wilson, the singing dialect comedian, must have a reserve amount of that property, for he has not only made a success of his chosen profession, but he has gathered under his banner a host of admirers who never fail to witness a Wilson performance whenever the opportunity presents itself. On his present tour Mr. Wilson is presenting "The Irish 15th," a new Irish military play which is said to be original in theme and construction. A feature of the performance will be the new Wilson songs.

GOOD QUARTERS FOR THE VETERANS IN KINGSTON

The Kingston Standard says: During this morning and afternoon many citizens took advantage of the opportunity offered them by the Great War Veterans' Association of Kingston to inspect their new club rooms on Princess street. Inasmuch as the veterans desire the hearty co-operation of the civilian population in the work they are doing for the returned soldiers, they are extending every courtesy to any citizen who takes an interest in this cause.

All visitors were met at the club rooms by officers of the Association and were shown through the entire building The comfortable and artistically decorated quarters of the veterans met with expressions of delight and approval from all who availed themselves of the opportunity of viewing the rooms The club of the Great War Veterans is exactly what the soldiers have been desiring for some time. The location of the quarters is ideal, and for a place of amusement rest and business headquarters is all that could be desired

PONTIUS PILATE WAS PRINCE OF PACIFISTS

Powerful Sermon By Priest Well-Known in Peterborough Quoted By New York Times.

Rev. Jas. M. Gillis, preaching at the Paulish Church, New York, recently on "The War As the Waterloo of Theories," defined pacifism in a few left strokes that have been applauded by the New York Times. Nearly 3,000 persons crowded every corner of the church.

"Jesus Christ," said Father Gillis, who is vividly remembered by the Catholics of Peterborough in the several missions he conducted here, "is the Prince of Peace; but Pontius Pilate was the Prince of Pacifists. He washed his hands as they do of the right and wrong of the whole matter. But while he was washing his hands with water he was drenching his soul with blood."

And again: "If my neighbour calls 'Help! Murder!' in the night, and I bury my head in the bedclothes and pretend to hear nothing, I'm a pacifist. And, incidentally, I'm a liar and a sneaking coward." Pacifism has been summed up more politely, but never with more completeness and finish, comments the Times. Neither is there anything which can be dissented from logically, even though the description makes its victim writhe; not, at least, unless the victim wishes to argue that a Belgian or a Pole is not a neighbour, and Father Gillis had deprived him of that argument by demanding where the geographical bounds of neighbourhood were located.

YOUTH KILLED BY A CAKE OF ICE

LINDSAY, Feb. 25.—A most distressing and fatal accident occurred on Friday at the Thurlow Cheese factory, situated in the 2nd Concession of Thurlow Township, when Ernie Howe, a young man, met his death. It appears that the victim of the accident was assisting in storing ice at the ice-house in connection with the factory, and was standing beneath the aperature where the ice was being hauled up. A cake, from some cause, slipped and fell, striking Howe on the head, killing him. The victim's head was terribly crushed by the cake of ice which probably weighed 200 lbs. Howe was 21 years of age, being a son of Mr. W. Howe, whose home is in Thurlow township. He was a young man well and favourably known, and his untimely death has caused much regret in the community where he resided.

Catarrh or Colds Never Quickly Cured By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup, Tablets, etc., go to the Stomach, Perhaps Sicken It, But Don't Kill the Germs of Catarrh.

The Direct Breathing Cure is Best.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to rout out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. This is why no other remedy has achieved such world-wide success as Catarrhozone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhozone mix with the breath and descend through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essences that ease, heal and cure.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well-known resident of Bridgetown, W. I. "My head ached terrifically, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Ten minutes inhaling Catarrhozone gave me a little relief, so I continued to use Catarrhozone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhozone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

There is no remedy so certain and safe as Catarrhozone, but being a good remedy it is imitated. Beware of the substitutor. Large Catarrhozone lasts two months, price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c. and 50c. At all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

FIREMAN JUMPS THROUGH WINDOW

LINDSAY, Feb. 25.—A peculiar accident occurred on the evening train from the east Friday night, which was due to arrive in Lindsay at 6.20 o'clock When nearing the Sturgeon Street crossing at Omemee the right side driving shaft of the six-wheeler engine snapped in two and scattered the running board and other parts of the engine high, wide and crooked. Fireman Jack Mackin thought that the engine was about to leave the track and jumped through the window, sustaining several cuts about the head as a result.

Engineer Harry Wilson brought the train to a standstill and with the assistance of Conductor Jones and other hands succeeded in taking the broken shaft off, as well as the one on the opposite side, and after a three-quarters' of an hour delay the train started on its way again, arriving in Lindsay about 8 o'clock.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Just a small space in your most worthy paper to let "Constant Reader" know that there is war on. I had one dear son killed in action and my husband was turned down as unfit, for service, and I have another son going shortly as a volunteer, so let him ask himself the question if I know that there is a war on. I would like to meet this "Constant Reader," and tell him all that was said to me about the coal, and I am sure he would pity me more than bite at me, seeing I am not in my health to draw coal, and if he likes to see me and have a talk with me on the matter, my address they will give it to him, I am sure, at the Examiner. Sir, what was said to me was not fit to be published.

Thanking you, Sir, for this space, and hoping people will stop to think before they speak.

AN ENGLISH WOMAN.

P.S.—He ought to be thankful to God that he has been able to return to his wife. A good many of us mothers and wives will never have our dear ones return.

Two Candidates Lose Deposits

(Canadian Press Despatch)

STATEMENT BY DR. HARVEY SHOWS NO COAL HOARDING

In a statement to The Examiner to-day, Dr. E. E. Harvey, Brock street, explained the circumstances under which he received a ton of coal last week, the delivery of which gave rise to street rumours of hoarding that prompted the investigation by Mr. F. W. Miller, the official inspector.

"Last spring I purchased eighteen tons of coal from H. B. Taylor & Son," Dr. Harvey said. "Sixteen tons were delivered in May, and I had an understanding with the Taylor Company that they would deliver the remaining two tons when I needed them. The only coal I received was from H. B. Taylor & Son. My house is heated by a hot water system, and requires continuous heat, otherwise there is the danger of the pipes freezing, with a consequent damage form water flooding the building. One home in this city suffered damage to the extent of $1,000 by the freezing of the hot water system, this winter. It requires two and one-half tons a month to operate the heating plant in my home. I delayed ordering more coal until the supply in my bins had been reduced to less than two tons. I then asked the Taylor Company to send me one of the two remaining tons I bought in May, last year. With a hot air system there would have been no cause for uneasiness, for when the fire goes out there is no danger of water trouble. With the ton of coal I got last week the supply was then not more than sufficient for a month."

Under the Fuel Controller's regulations two months' advance supply is permitted, and under that provision Dr. Harvey might have had five tons.

Ukrainians Petition The Government

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 25.—That classification of Ukrainians settled in Canada as alien enemies is totally unscientific and absurd and is furthermore in keeping with pan-German propaganda, was the contention of a delegation which waited upon Sir Robert Borden, Hon. A. L. Sifton and Hon. C. J. Doherty. The delegation consisted of J. A. Shandro, M.L.A. for Westlake, Alta., Ivan Petrushivich, Secretary of the Ruthenian farmers' elevator, Winnipeg, Peter Zvarich, of Vegreville, Alta., and H. W. Stepehenko, of Saskatoon.

The delegation contended that to class the Slav coming from within the Austrian empire as enemies, was a dangerous propaganda. They declared that repudiation by the government of citizenship of such men had caused bitterness and disappointment. As a result of the propaganda, thousands of peaceful and law-abiding Slavs had been interned and kept for years in idleness at the expense of the country, while shortage of labour is keenly felt. Pressure was now being brought to bear upon the government for further curtailment of their liberties, for imposition of special taxation and for their conscription for labour purposes. The delegates maintained that the Ukrainians had no sympathy with the Central Empires whatever. They had accepted Canada's invitation to get away from Austrian control and oppression.

MISS AILEEN BRAUND GAVE HER GRADUATION RECITAL IN TORONTO

Coll, M, played the second piano in the Concerto in G minor.

Miss Braund is to be congratulated upon her success. She was the recipient of some beautiful bouquets during the evening. She is a pupil of Mrs. Greenslade.

EMILY FARMER TAKES PASTEUR TREATMENT BITTEN BY MAD DOG

Cleveland Bailey, son of Sidney Bailey, a young Emily farmer living near Fowler's Corners, was bitten on Friday by a dog that died of rabies on Sunday. He left this morning for Toronto to take the Pasteur treatment. Mr. Bailey informed Dr. Johnston that the dog had attacked him. He was instructed to tie up the animal and was told that, if it died within five days after first showing symptoms of rabies, the authorities should be notified. Paralysis and other antemortem signs were conclusive evidence of rabies, and it is feared that other dogs in Emily have been infected. Several dogs are known to have left their homes recently, and Dr. Johnston stated that the township authorities should lose no time in combatting this out break. The provincial authorities have announced that action devolves upon the communities who have been given plenary powers for the stamping out of rabies.

PEOPLE FROM ALL SECTIONS OF GLOBE ARE NOW PRAISING IT

Tanlac is Most Widely Talked of Medicine in the World To-day

Unquestionably the most widely talked of medicine in the world to-day is Tanlac. Its remarkable reconstructive powers have been tested by people from almost every quarter of the globe and in each case the verdict has been the same. Another striking instance in connection with this fact is evidenced by the statement of Mrs. Rosetta Russell, formerly of England and now residing at 321 Durie street, Toronto, who after a few days' use of the medicine, says:

"I certainly do think Tanlac is fine for any kind of stomach trouble, because it has helped me wonderfully already and I have just finished my second bottle. My stomach has been upset and out of order for several months now. In fact, ever since I came over from the old country I have not been able to eat without it hurting me until I began taking Tanlac. After every meal gas would form on my stomach, bloat me up and cause shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and dizzy spells. My mouth had a bad taste, especially in the mornings, and I had gotten to the point where it was little, or no, pleasure for me to eat because I suffered so from indigestion.

"My sister-in-law recommended Tanlac so highly that I decided to try it out and it has proven to be the very thing I needed. I can eat now without being bothered by gas or indigestion nearly so much and my stomach trouble seems to be leaving me entirely. I don't notice the shortness of breath and palpitation like I did and my food tastes better. My general health has improved a great deal and judging from what Tanlac has already done for me I will soon be myself again."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter.

Treachery Believed Responsible

train from this city, shot a line across the bow of the partly submerged ship to-night, but waited in vain for it to be hauled aboard. Just before darkness blotted the wreck from view five men, driven from the forecastle by the giant seas, were seen to climb the forward rigging, signalling feebly for help. But when they failed to make fast the line it was feared that they had succumbed to the cold and exposure. Those five men were the only ones visible on board several hours after the boat struck.

Somewhere beyond the white maelstrom of breakers two staunch rescue steamers, the Terra Nova and the Home, manned by Newfoundland sailors, lay in waiting for a favourable moment to send a boat through the surf, but though the storm appeared to be subsiding, it was feared that it would be daybreak before the sea moderated enough to make it possible to approach the wreck.

SIX AVIATION CADETS LOST.

Included among the passengers were twelve women and four children. Among the first cabin passengers were John Shannon Munn, managing director of the firm of Bowring Brothers, Limited, owners of the liner, and his three-year-old daughter, Betty. They were going to New York to meet Mrs. Munn and Sir Edgar Bowring, one of the owners of the line, for a stay of two months in Florida. Six cadets of the Royal Flying Corps, on their way to join their commands in Toronto, were on board. The body of one member of the detachment, Fred Snow, was included among the six washed ashore to-night. Another Newfoundlander, who, it is feared, was lost, is Major Michael Sullivan, commanding the Newfoundland Forestry Battalion, returning to his battalion, which is now cutting timber in Scitland.

Capt. Joseph Kean, one of the best-known commanders of the Newfoundland sealing fleet, also sailed on the Florizel for Halifax, where he was to take over his ship, the Sable, in readiness for the sea fisheries next month.

$200 Fine For Having Liquor In Dwelling Over Grocery Store

Liquor in a dwelling above a grocery store at the north end of Reid street, brought a fine of $200 and $8.00 upon Michael Stinziano, the tenant of two room upstairs, and left the owner of the store and building, Joseph Skader, liable to a similar fine under a charge the hearing of which was enlarged by Magistrate Dumble this morning until March 4th. License Inspector Stewart, acting upon numerous complaints that had come to him, found in Stinziano's rooms on February 19th two and one-gallon whiskey jars, one of them empty, and the other only one-quarter full. Stinziano pleaded guilty to having the liquor, and Inspector Stewart obtained a remand of the Skader case while he forwards a report of the circumstances to the License Board. Although the liquor was not in Skader's dwelling, they were under the same roof as the grocery store, and, according to court decisions, under the Temperance Act, Inspector Stewart stated, both Skader and Stinziano, his son-in-law, are guilty of the offence of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling.

Hadn't Money Enough To Marry Or Even To Pay His Landlady

Everett McCullough pleaded not guilty to vagrancy and evasion of the Military Service Act this morning and was remanded until Friday. He has been living here with a young woman he met in Toronto and who posed as his wife. She came under the attention of the police a year ago in a little clean-up in the south end. She told the police recently that McCullough had proposed to marry her but he never had enough money. His hardest work was mollifying his landlady, grocers and other purveyors of food who staked him and his unwed companion. One day he flashed a cheque for $25 at his lodging house, and heartened the trustful boarding housekeeper by announcing that he was going out to cash the cheque and make a payment on a board bill for two that was long overdue. It was stated that the cheque was worthless. Incidentally it is alleged that he "beat his board bill." He showed a certificate of enlistment with the United States Marine Corps, but said he had lost his discharge sheet.

LINIMENT WITH A KICK

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—A merchant in a Western Ontario city has sent a sample of a liniment to the Ontario Board of License Commissioners to see if they will permit him to import it. As the liniment contains fifty per cent. of alcohol the Board has forbidden its importation. They point out that the liniment could be mixed with a temperance drink and a fiery beverage would be the result.

Wm. Proudfoot, leader of the Opposition in the Legislature, has recovered from illness which has kept him confined to his bed for several days and will likely be back in the House again this afternoon.

Election In Nelson, Man., On April 1st

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—Writs for the deferred election in Nelson have been issued. Nominations in the Northern Manitoba seat will be held March 4th, and polling on April 1st. Already over 40 votes have been polled in the constituency by soldiers on this side of the water.

Music & Drama

While it contained nothing of startling merit "Pretty Papa" at the Grand on Saturday, proved amusing and seemed to please two good sized audiences. The offering, a musical comedy of average plot, centres around the adventures of a bibulous Mr. Brown, who gets into some funny complications through several cases of some other brand. The musical numbers were good, a small quartette especially delighting the audience while the singing of "On the shore at Le Lei Wi," featured here some time ago in "Very Good Eddie" and sung on Saturday by the whole company, was a most pleasing number. The chorus was small in number but possessed good works and worked hard.

RECITAL WAS ENJOYED

The pupils of Miss Cora White, of the Conservatory of Music staff, gave a most successful recital on Saturday afternoon. The children, by their splendid rendition of some of the really difficult pieces, bore evidence of expert training of considerable talent.

GERMANY'S PEACE TERMS ACCEPTED BY RUSSIA

Announcement is Made in a Russian Official Statement ---The Terms of the Settlement

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Germany's peace terms have been accepted by Nikolai Lenine, the Bolsheviki Premier, and Leon Trotsky, Foreign Minister, acting for the Central Executive of the Soviets.

This announcement is made in a Russian official statement received by wireless. It adds that Russia will send a delegation immediately to Brest-Litovsk.

A Russian wireless message addressed to the German Government at Berlin announces that a Parliamentary representative left Petrograd on Sunday at noon for Dvinsk for the purpose of transmitting to the German High Command at Dvinsk Russia's official reply to Germany's peace conditions.

Another communication addressed "to all" announced that the following message had been sent to the German Government at Berlin:

"According to the decision of the Central Executive of the Soviets, taken at 4.30 Sunday morning, the Soviets' and People's Commissaries have decided to accept Germany's peace conditions and will send a delegation to Brest-Litovsk."

Russ Official Statement on the Peace Terms.

A Russian wireless Government statement received here last night says:

"Germany will renew the peace negotiations and will conclude peace on the following conditions:

"Both to declare the war ended.

"All regions west of the line indicated at Brest-Litovsk by the Russian delegation, which formerly belonged to Russia, to be no longer under the territorial protection of Russia.

"In the region of Dvinsk, this line must be advanced to the eastern frontier of Courland.

"The former attachment of these regions to the Russian State must in no case involve for them obligations toward Russia. Russia renounces every claim to intervene in the internal affairs of those regions.

"Germany and Austria-Hungary have the intention to define further the fate of these regions in agreement with their populations.

"Germany is ready, after the completion of Russian demobilization, to evacuate the regions which are east of the above line. So far as it is not stated otherwise, Livonia and Esthonia must immediately be cleared of Russian troops and Red Guards.

Police Livonia and Esthonia.

"Livonia and Esthonia will be occupied by German police until the date when the constitution of the respective countries shall guarantee their social security and political order. All inhabitants who were arrested for political reasons must be released immediately.

"Russia will conclude peace with the Ukrainian People's Republic. Ukraine and Finland will be immediately evacuated by Russian troops and Red Guards.

"Russa will do all in its power to secure for Turkey the orderly return of its Anatolian frontiers. Russia's recognizes the annulation of the Turkish capitulation.

"The complete demobilization of the Russian army, inclusive of the detachments newly formed by the present Government, must be carried out immediately.

"Russian warships in the Black Sea, the Baltic Sea, and the Arctic Ocean must immediately either be sent to Russian harbours and kept there until the conclusion of peace or be disarmed. Warships of the Entente which are in the sphere of Russian authority must be regarded as Russian ships.

"Merchant navigation of the Black Sea and Baltic Sea must be renewed, as stated in the armistice treaty. The clearing away of mines is to begin immediately. The blockade of the Arctic Ocean is to remain in force until the conclusion of a general peace.

"The Russo-German commercial treaty of 1914 must be enforced again."

LONDON'S VACANT LAND WILL BE CULTIVATED

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 25. — The High Cost of Living Committee, appointed by the City Council some weeks ago to take measures to stimulate production in gardens within the city, is setting as its goal the planting of 100 acres of vacant lots in London.

Last year 40 acres were ploughed free of charge by the city, and yielded splendid returns, and as a result the co-operation of more than fifty men's and women's societies has been secured for the coming season.

120,000 CZECHS TO FIGHT FOR ALLIES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The statement that the army of Czechs and Slavs training in France to fight with the Allies now numbers 120,000 men, was made at the closing session here of the convention of the Slovak League of America. It was stated that Czechs and Slovaks are leaving this country on every available ship by the hundreds to become members of the new army.

ABSENT MINDED.

It is said that Mr. Birrell, the late Irish secretary, is the most absent-minded man alive; likewise he has lost more umbrellas than there are days in the year. Recently he went out to a luncheon desperately clutching a brand-new umbrella. "This doesn't belong to me," he announced, "I borrowed it and don't intend to lose it." "Tie it to the table leg," one friend suggested. "Get the waiter to hold it for you," another volunteered. 'Have 'em put it in the safe," a third advised. Mr. Birrell ignored them all. He placed the umbrella on the floor and planted both feet firmly upon it, to the hilarious delight of his friends. Then, when he had finished his luncheon, he—walked away and left it

DIED.

CRANE—At the family residence, 68 Sophia St., Ashburnham, on Sunday, Feb. 24th, 1918, Marion Elizabeth, wife of Wm. T. Crane, in her 62nd year.

Funeral on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 to St. Luke's Church, and thence to the Little Lake cemetery.

Ten Cars of Coal Arrived In City

The street counted eleven cars of coal in the city's week-end receipts, but the railway men reported only ten. Early Sunday morning six cars were delivered to coal yard sidings by the G.T.R., a little service that should not be overlooked, and early in the day the Police Department unfilled orders were being sent out to all parts of the city.

This morning hundreds of citizens gathered at the Hicks' and Fitzgerald offices clamouring for allottments from the Sunday shipments.

"I was at Fitzgerald's at six o'clock and there were eight ahead of me," said one man. Reports of casualties ranged from two to six women fainted.

Mayor Duncan remarked this morning that the results of his trip to Buffalo were a little belated, but they really came through in the pinch, and there are many others reported on this side of the Bridge.

GERMAN POISON TURNING GREEKS AGAINST ALLIES

Silence of Allied Spokesmen re Greece Causing Added Uneasiness

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The invasion of Russia by the Kaiser's armies is one link in a vast chain of Hohenzollern intrigue backed by force. German agents in Greece are repeating in that country the political tactics they practised successfully in Italy, and members of the Government are beginning to be questioned respecting the intentions of the Allies and of the United States to assist Greece in preparing against the expected German drive against that country.

Greece, it is asserted in Greek circles, has not yet been furnished with guns, munitions, clothing and foodstuffs for her army, and this fact is impeding the national mobilization. Some Greek forces, formerly attached to the Salonika army under the Venizelos Government in Salonica before the re-union of Greece, have been fighting with the international army in Macedonia for more than a year. These troops, however, were declared to be only a small fraction of the total number Greece is ready to place in the field whenever the Allies and the United States provide her with the means.

The troops already in the field are largely those from the Archipelago, and not from continental Greece.

Allies Silence Curious.

Reports from Athens indicate that while the national support of Premier Venizelos is presently solid, yet the failure of both Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson in their speeches to give any assurances to Greece, although other allied countries were referred to specifically, has caused some questioning concerning the real intentions of the Allies towards Greece. The point of this questioning, it is asserted, is emphasized by the fact that Germany had not hesitated to promise Greece the integrity of her territories provided Greece did not enter the war.

Some Greeks were said to fear that the absence of such assurances from the Allies and the United States might be significant, and they count this lack of guarantee both with the attitude of the United States towards Bulgaria and also with the occasional rumours on the part of the Allies to negotiate a separate peace with the Bulgarians.

German agents, it is declared, are doing their utmost to increase the doubt agitating Greek minds and to create greater difficulties for the Venizelos pro-war Government.

U. S. Is Turning Out Rifles For 14 Army Divisions A Month

Production of Ammunition Keeps Pace With Output of Weapons—Great American War Equipment Machine Swinging Toward High Tide of Production.

QUESTION NOW IS SPACE FOR STORAGE

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 26.—The huge industrial war making mechanism built up by the United States government since it entered the world conflict ten months ago has at last reached such a point of production that the record set by other nations are now being passed.

The stream of war supplies has begun to move in unprecedented volume. It has not yet attained full flood and will not for several months when factories now being built will begin to turn out some of the more complicated equipment for the armies at the front. But what may be expected when the point is reached is foreshadowed to some extent in what has already been accomplished.

The United States is now producing every month enough rifles of type equal to, if not better, than any now used by the warring powers to arm fourteen army divisions. More than 250,000 are being sent to the government arsenals every month.

The Secretary of War, Mr. Baker, announced that the Quarter-master General's department has on hand and due on contracts 7,564,000 field shoes and 7,873,000 marching shoes. A million additional pairs must be obtained during the present year.

The announcement that American aeroplanes equipped with Liberty motors are now on their way to France gives notice that the huge air programme upon which the United States has embarked is being carried out.

These constitute only a minor phase of America's war preparations, but they convey an idea of the vast volume of production at which the United States aims and which will be attained before many months have passed.

STORAGE FACILITIES NOW PROBLEM.

The rifles are said by foreign military experts to be the equal of any now used in the war. The parts are completely interchangeable and use the same ammunition as the army Springfield rifle. This is the rimless cartridge, which obviates jamming and can be used also for the thousands of machine guns with which the American forces will be supplied. The production of cartridges has kept pace with the production of rifles.

This constitutes virtually the reply of the War Department to the criticism directed against the Ordnance division when the controversy over reorganization was at its height. The charge that American forces are compelled to use broomsticks for lack of rifles no longer holds.

At the present rate of production the United States not only will have an adequate reserve supply for its own troops, but will be able to rescue exportation to some of the allied nations. The Brazilian government, for example, has sent a military commission to this country to investigate the possibilities of obtaining war supplies. Chinese military experts are now making a tour of inspection.

What has been done in the case of rifles, according to army officers, will be accomplished with other types of ordanance, and the record of accompishment will constitute the most convincing evidence that the United States is prepared to carry on the war until the conclusive peace of which President Wilson has spoken is attained.

History of the Louvre.

The Louvre was originally a royal residence. Napoleon turned it into a museum and deposited in it the finest collection of paintings, statues and art treasures known in the world. Many of those brought from Italy have been restored to their rightful possessors. The magnificent buildings of the new Louvre, begun by Napoleon I and completed by Napoleon III, were inaugurated in 1857.

Ox, Slowest Animal.

There is no animal possessing less speed than an ox. In the old days, the days before the advent of railroads it would take a farmer and his ox team two weeks to make a round trip with twenty-five or thirty bushels of grain to market, a trip that can now be made by rail in half a day. Then the patient animals did well to jig along at the rate of two or three feet a second.

Severe Test.

Perhaps no test of one's poise and manual dexterity is more difficult for a man of sedentary and intellectual pursuits than the effort to pick up seven or eight newly released watermelon seeds from the tablecloth with his left hand without arousing so much as a passing suspicion in his wife's breast that they're there at all.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and our hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

China's Most Ancient Mystery.

The wayfarer in China who turns south to Anglicized Hong Kong, multitudinous China or that vivid hybrid of East and West Shanghai, falls even to brush the strangest and most ancient mystery of the dragon kingdom. That mystery lies in North China, an immemorial mystery that wraps Pekin like an imperial mantle, a sombre northern inscrutability that enfolds the Great Wall as impenetrably as the mists obscuring its turrets. It is a mystery so invincible that, once in a man's blood, there is little choice left him but to follow its lure on and on, seeking its source in that hinterland still farther to the north. From the Great Wall one can gaze far over this unknown land rushing swiftly away to the north, not days but months by caravan—the great plain of Mongolia. Once yellow armies flooded across it as the sunshine floods across it to-day. Now a single horseman picks his way along the trail. Over all broods the utterly-vanished-from-the-earth silence which marks the home of a people who are no more. Is there no life now in that stillness which once beat so fiercely upon the civilization below that a barrier must be hurled against it over the mountain tops? What of these latter-day sons of Ghenghis Khan?

Mayor Of "Ourtown" Visits Peterborough

Peterborough, Feb. 25th, 1918.

Editor, Examiner:

Sir,—I have just visited your city, incognito, and now give you my adventures, gratis.

I left the station and walked southwards. I observed your nice trees (?), houses, etc, and its corkscrew paths. I observed that many of your trees are falling to decay, whether through neglect or age I cannot say. Many of your trees have a bountiful supply of dead limbs—an over-abundance—and many want pruning badly. Well, I got as far as the silk factory; there I got stuck—I could not tell the path from the road, or whether it continued further. To me it looked simply a snowplain with no outlet.

Luckily I met a boy. Says I, can you tell me the name of this street, boy. He replied, I don't know mister, but if you dig down 3 or 4 feet you will find it on the path. Do they think some one will run away with the name, boy? Well, mister, I guess the Council think it is safer; you see we have no policeman in this end of the town—only dogs for protection—but I think it would be better if they put the names on the houses, about every two blocks, don't you think so, mitter.

Methought what a clever boy—he should be in the council. Well, which is the path, and which is the road, boy, says I. I dunno know, mister. You see the snow plough has been along here and it lost the path—you can see it's like a corkscrew from here to Charlotte street.

I resolved to turn back for further adventure and found myself alongside your town clock. Here I espied two soldiers. They both had wounded stripes on their arms—in fact one poor fellow had lost an arm. Good-day, soldiers, says I, I presume you are veterans of the great war. That's where you are mistaken sir. We are simply bums and chocolate soldiers—there are no war veterans in this town. Methought poor fellows, they must be shell shocked or something has happened.

However, it was dining hour now so I made my way towards an hotel. I espied a pretty little dog approaching me, wagging his tail—evidently it belonged to a young lady close by. I stooped to conquer and to pat this friendly doggie. No sooner had I done so, than I felt a push and found myself on my back on the snow heap by the road side, with my legs up in the air. I thought what a nice position to be in for the Mayor of "Ourtown."

In the meantime the lady had grabbed the wee doggie to her breast, and hollowing out, You don't get my Tiny this time, you old murdered. She ran off with her pet. However, I was hungry and made my way into the hotel and then the dining room. It is a splendid hotel indeed. Beaver and Empress was over the entrance. I must confess it could not be beaten in "Ourtown." It certainly left an impression on my mind, what an hotel should be like. Up to date in every department and fit for any traveller or even an Empress.

Well I sat down at the dining table and had a glimpse around—I espied the lady that downed the Mayor of "Ourtown." She had one eye on me and I had one eye on her. She smiled—I didn't. She advanced towards me with an outstretched hand and still smiling. Methought now for another fall, perhaps. But no. Instead, she says: I am so sorry sir. I can see now I made a great mistake. I feel heartily sorry, and I hope you will forgive me for being so rude. I thought you were the dog catcher after my Tiny. Surely I don't look like a dog catcher says I—and doesn't your dog catcher have a uniform to distinguish himself, lady.

Now in "Ourtown" our dog catcher wears a muzzle, and wears a plate round his neck with, dog murderer, on it. Of course, we don't dress him to be mistaken for the Chief of Police or Chief of the Fire Brigade—that is his uniform, to save expense. When the dogs are allowed at large he simply takes off his muzzle, and the dogs know they are free to roam in "Ourtown."

Yes, I forgive you lady this time, but I tell you candidly I will have to buy some liniment. I feel sore above the chair. So we parted with a shake and a smile.

Well, I proceeded on my adventures once more in your town. I had not gone far, when I come across a boy singing in the roadway. He was watching the door of the police station, on which was a very large card proclaiming:

No Coal in Town To-day.

I caught the refrain from the boy's song, thus:

There is a lot of coal far far away,
It's just a camouflage 10 cars on the way,
You never see the Council's wives pulling a sleigh,
Poor women, dogs and children have to pull the sleigh.

Says I to the boy, What is meaning of that sign, "No coal in town to-day!" Well, it means this, mister. The town is stony broke for coal, but there's plenty of coal in town for the council felolws and big 'uns, but the poor people have not any. The council and big 'uns don't have to pull sleighs around and they won't close the schools and picture shows and let us have it.

Me thought what a clever boy. You should be in the council. Well, I proceeded once more and come across some fellow trying to catch a dog. I thought of the village idiot and wondered if I was mistaken. It was both laughing and amusing to see the antics of the two. The dog seemed to be amused and evidently delighted at the proceedings, thinking it a great joke, and jumping briskly from one side of the road to the other, with a bow-wow occasionally. The spectators were highly amused. The man had a rope and was flipping his thumb and fingers at the dog and calling out, Come here, Nelly; come Princess; come here, Please, and the dog replied, bow-wow. Presently a bystander sang out, Billy, you have made a mistake, it's a dog. Call him Prince, Nero, or Hero, and you might collar him then. Billy looked amazed, scratched his head and sang out, no man would like to be called a woman. I made a mistake and I can see it now. I must change my verbocity. I asked a boy what street it was. He replied, Hunt-her street. I saw the joke and left him hunting her. Methought what a clever boy, he should be in the council, too.

Well, I made my way to the station. I saw a sergeant there, having two gold marks on his sleeve. Say I, Good-day, sergeant. You've been in France and far-off Flanders plains. I can see by your sleeve. Yes sir, I went with the first contingent, but if I had known there was such people in this town as there throwing such dirty insinuations at my old pals, after what we did, or tried to do—while they were snug in their homes and free from danger—well, the less said now the better sir. I am fairly disgusted with its Mayor and part of the council, in fact, I want to clear out of this town first opportunity. Still, you are a veteran of the great war sergeant; is it so? That's where you are greatly mistaken, sir. There are no great war veterans in this town—only chocolate soldiers. When I get to some other town then I become a great war veteran.

Methought poor fellow, he has been shocked, too, at something that has happened in your town.

The train was coming in. So, says I: Sergeant, we look after the veterans in "Ourtown"—pay us a visit and we will treat you decently. Good-bye, sergeant. Here is my card.

"Mayor of Ourtown."

Suffered Great Agony
FROM PAIN IN STOMACH
FOR OVER 5 YEARS

Most of the misery and ill-health that humanity is burdened with arises from disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. If you are feeling out of sorts, have pains in the stomach, especially after eating, bilious spells, headaches, sour stomach, coated tongue, sallow or muddy complexion, specks floating before the eyes, you should take a few doses of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and note the change.

Miss Ida Hogan, Dunrobin, Ont., writes: "For over five years I have suffered great agony from pains in the stomach. I tried several remedies but got no relief until a friend advised me to take Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I started with two vials and before I had one quite used, I found much relief. I continued until I used four vials, and they have completely cured me. That was fourteen months ago and I have not had the slightest return since. The best praise I could give them is not enough."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The prayer of an old engineer that was used aloud before starting on a trip.

Oh Lord, now that I have flagged thee, lift up my feet from the rough road of life and plant them safely on the train of salvation. Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence. Make all couplings in the train with the strongest link of thy love, and let my hand lamp be the Bible. Keep all the switches closed that lead off on sidings, especially those with a blind end.

Oh, Lord, if it be thy purpose, have every semaphore black along the line, show the white light of hope that I may make the run of life without stopping. And, Lord, give me the Ten Commandments for a scheduled time. And, pulling through the dark tunnel of death, shall bring up in the terminal of eternity. May then, the superintendent of the universe, say, Come and sign the payroll and receive your check for eternal happiness.

In looking over some old papers yesterday I came across this prayer. I often think this class of people do not receive the sympathy that they should.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"We threw them off finally, as we thought, and Luke brought the car to a stop a little day down the street from the Glamorgan. No one was in the entrance hall but the boy and he was asleep at the telephone. I slipped past him and had started down the street when I heard Luke's horn. I ran down and peered around the elevator shaft, to see the limousine drive up, some men's faces at the window; we had not been able to shake them off, after all!

"In a panic I turned, and rushed back up the stairs, but I was weak from fright and my knees gave under me. Just before I reached the third floor I heard some one coming behind me. I collapsed, but when I saw it was just a maid my courage came back to me. She asked if I was ill, but I put her off and induced her to pass me.

"When she had gone I wished that I could call her back and bargain with her to lend or sell me some other clothes. I realized all at once in a wave of despair that I never could escape dressed as I was. That doctor would be waiting outside and if I reappeared with Tony he would recognize me and take me away by force, while if we stayed there we would be trapped.

"I had to go on anyway and I managed to drag myself to the fourth floor—there, coming out of the apartment next door to Tony's, was a girl. That girl was Ivy Collins, and then began a more terrible experience than anything that had gone before!"

CHAPTER XXII.

"THE MAN FROM NOWHERE."

As the voice momentarily ceased, the tension in the quiet room was so great as to be almost tangibly felt. Inured as he was to listening to the most poignant of disclosures, there was a quality in the girl's tones which stirred Terhune to the depths of his sensibility, and he waited, tense in every nerve, for the climax.

Quimby himself seemed to forget the ignoble part he played in the drama and attended with undisguised interest, and as for McCarthy, it was evident that only by a supreme effort could he curb his eagerness and restrain himself from interrupting forcibly and telling her story for her.

Marion faltered for an instant.

"If you think that I have dwelt too much on myself and my own trouble in the face of that terrible tragedy which happened so soon after, it is because I am trying to tell you everything just as it happened and just as it impressed me.

"When I saw the girl standing there I was too agitated to observe details, she was dressed rather loudly, but her clothes were ordinary and cheap, and I thought she was just a servant like the other. You must realize my half frenzied state of mind for nothing else will explain my obedience to the blind impulse which came to me then.

"I walked up to her and offered her a hundred dollars to change clothes with me!

"I haven't the least idea what words I used, but I remember assuring her that I was not mad, or a fugitive from justice, but I must escape from someone who was following me. I drew the money—it had been left from the interrupted shopping expedition in the afternoon—from my gold purse, and held it out to her.

"She didn't notice it, but was staring at me as if she could not believe her ears. It did not strike me then, but so much came back to my mind later when I thought it all over and over in these days which have passed since that it must have subconsciously impressed itself upon me.

"She was desperately pale and carried herself in a hardened defiant way. I know now that she must have been in fear, too, fear for her very life! I would surely have seen it then, but remember I was in a veritable panic myself. I did not even think it strange that she agreed so suddenly, my own problem filled my mind.

"Every word that she uttered came back to me afterwards.

"Well, if this isn't the limit!" she said, with a queer little laugh. "I've listened to a few crazy propositions in my life, but nothing to beat this."

"Then she stopped suddenly, and stood thinking for a minute while I waited—waited for the sound of footsteps on those stairs behind me! At last she seized my arm.

"I'll take you up on that!' she cried. 'I don't know what your game is, and I don't care! I'll rather stand in your shoes than mine this night! Come in, quickly!'"

She turned and put her key in the lock, and I realized only that she was going to help me. The reaction was so great that I nearly broke down, but I managed to call up the very last vestige of my self-control. I scarcely noticed the apartment myself except that it had a generally overcrowded, untidy air.

"I did observe, though, that the front door fastened with a spring lock on the inside, for she set it, and also set the chain across and into its sliding socket. Mr. Terhune, no one entered the door after us and no one could. Please remember that; it is important, and I can swear to it if necessary.

"You need not be afraid that any one will hear us,' she said. 'They are all out but me, and I am going for good myself in half an hour.'

"She led me down the hall to a large drawing room at the end, a sort of drawing room, hideously vivid with bright clashing colors everywhere. An archway led into a library at the left, the room where—it happened.

"Again a fit of trembling seized her, but she fought it back resolutely and continued:

"I remember there was a writing table all strewn with papers between the two windows, a piano in the corner and some book cases against the wall. My strength was leaving me, and I sank down in the nearest chair.

"'I guess we'd better have some noise after all,' the other girl said. 'Nobody would dare break in and start anything if they thought that a party was going on!'

"She went to the piano and touched some electrical attachment and it commenced to play one of those riotous music hall things. Every thump seemed to pound into my brain, and I could have screamed in anguish but the girl turned to me briskly. I was still clutching the roll of bills in my hand.

"'We've got to hustle,' she said. 'Put that money away, sister. I don't want it and you are getting the worst of the bargain as far as the clothes go. I'll look swell landing in Chicago in that dress of yours.'

"She led me into the bedroom back of the library. It had just one small window opening on an air shaft, and was in great disorder. She was talking all the time in a nervous, high-pitched voice, and in spite of my own terror I did not think it strange that she kept looking over her shoulder into the library and hall as if she expected some one to appear suddenly in that empty place.

"She wanted to trade only our outer garments but I insisted on a complete exchange, I can't explain why. I wanted to get out of myself absolutely, to thrust from me everything that connected me with that hideous experience of the past. She would not touch the few simple bits of jewelry that I wore, however, and made me put them in my purse with the money.

"We were almost the same size, except that her shoes were too large for me, and when we had finished dressing she dragged me to the mirror.

"'You are the loser!' she said. 'I could let you have something nicer, but my trunk went this morning, and you'd be lost in Leoba's clothes.'

(To be Continued.)

TORTURING, ITCHING ECZEMA

Mrs. J. B. Horth, Pasgebiac, Bonaventure Co., Que., writes:—"Thanks to Dr Chase's Ointment I have been completely cured of that horrible disease eczema. I was held as if in prison from going among other people, for I was ashamed of the raw, flaming sores. Doctors could do nothing for me and I was almost desperate with suffering when I began to use Dr. Chase's Ointment. In one month I was completely cured and think that this was little short of a miracle."

British Were Tortured By the Brutal Germans, Says Sir A. Conan Doyle

SIR Arthur Conan Doyle, the author, writing to The London Times from his home in Sussex, says:—

"I had occasion recently to talk with a British officer who had endured captivity in Germany. With a voice which was husky with passion, trembling with the violence of his own feelings, he told me what he and his comrades had gone through. I had read such things in cold print, but to hear them from one who had seen and felt them had an indescribable effect. I was trembling as he was before he had finished.

"This officer, of senior regimental rank, a man of dignity and refinement, was taken wounded at the end of 1914. With his comrades in captivity he was starved during the long two days' journey from the front to his prison. At one spot, he thinks that it was Cologne, a soup canteen upon wheels was rolled up to their compartment in order to mock them. Still starving and suffering tortures from their wounds, they reached the town of their captivity. Weak, shaken, and unnerved, they assembled outside the station, hardly able to stand after their dreadful journey.

"What ensued can only be described in his own forcible words. 'They kicked out behinds all the way up the street. There was not one of us who had not his behind kicked.' These were British officers, honorable gentlemen, many of them wounded, now helpless under circumstances which have in all ages appealed to the chivalry of the captors. And we, when a German flier is caught red-handed with his apparatus ready for the murder of the civilians of London, hurry him away that he may have a hot supper.

"This officer was, as I was told by a third party, a witness of the dreadful incident of the burning hut. One of the huts in the prison camp took fire. It was night, and the door had been locked on the outside. The key could not be found. One of the inmates, a sailor, tried to get out through the narrow window.

"The sentry of the hut rushed forward. The prisoners who were spectators thought that he was about to [illegible] What he actually did was to pass his bayonet through the sailor's throat. I am told that the horrified onlookers dropped on their knees, men of all the allied countries, and swore to God that so long as they lived they would never show mercy to any man of German blood. Can we blame them? Would we not have felt the same?

"Why should we recall these incidents? It is because hate has its uses in war, as the Germans have long discovered. It steels the mind and sets the resolution as no other emotion can do. So much do they feel this that the Germans are constrained to invent all sorts of reasons for hatred against us, who have in truth never injured them in any way save that history and geography both place us between them and their ambitions. To nourish hatred they invent every lie against us, and so they attain a certain national solidity. We have the true reasons for this emotion, we have suffered incredible things from a foe who is void of all chivalry and humanity.

"Many of us could conceive of a peace which included some compromise upon frontiers, so long as Belgium was intact. Many also would be content to sacrifice Russia, if she persisted in her treason. But not one who knows the facts but would fight to the last gasp in order to ensure stern justice being done to the murderers of our women and to the men who tortured our helpless prisoners.

"What then should we do? We should have a statement drawn up, not coldly official but humanly moving, signed by the officers who saw and endured these things. This document should be translated into German and put under the nose of every prisoner in England, that they may at least appreciate the contrast in the culture of the two countries.

"At present we are so pedantically correct in our treatment of these prisoners that when at an earlier stage of the war I made the suggestion that we place, a copy of 'J'accuse' in every prison, it was refused on the grounds that it was against international law to proselytise prisoners. This was about the time when Casement and the Germans were trying to starve the Irish prisoners into enlistment against Great Britain.

"The munition workers have many small vexations to endure, and their nerves get sadly frayed. They need strong elemental emotions to carry them on. Let pictures be made of these and other incidents. Let them be hung in every shop. Let them be distributed thickly in the Sinn Fein districts of Ireland, and in the hotbeds of Socialism and pacifism in England and Scotland. The Irishman has always been a man of chivalrous nature, and I cannot believe that even the wrong-headed Sinn Feiner has got down to the level of his allies of Prussia and Turkey. Let his eyes rest upon the work of his friends and perhaps he will realize more clearly how he stands, and the position which he has taken up in the world's fight for freedom.

"Scatter the facts. Put them in red-hot fashion. Do not preach to the solid south, who need no conversion, but spread the propaganda wherever there are signs of enemy intrigues, on the Tyne, the Clyde, in the Midlands, above all in Ireland and French Canada. Let us pay no attention to platitudinous bishops or gloomy deans or any other superior people who preach against retaliation or whole-hearted warfare. We have to win, and we can only win by keeping up the spirit and resolution of our own people."

Redeem Curious Promise.

A remarkable promise made twenty-five years ago has just been redeemed.

When Sir James and Lady Pender, of Donhead St. Andrew, Wiltshire, Eng., celebrated their silver wedding in 1892, the latter presented a number of the local children with three-penny bits, and promised each of them that if they returned them at the celebration of her golden wedding each would receive a half-sovereign.

Nearly thirty of the recipients returned their three-penny bits when the golden wedding was recently celebrated, and each received a half-sovereign in accordance with Lady Pender's promise.

She had the three-penny bits gilded and wears them as a necklace.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

A Useful War Crop

SOME fifteen years ago a farmer in the Pincher Creek district of Southern Alberta tried the growing of timothy for seed. The cultivation of timothy for hay had always been one of the staple industries of the district, but the growing of seed had not been attempted until that time. He immediately demonstrated that not only could it be grown successfully, but that the seed was of a superior quality. The growing of seed did not thrive at first, however. There was nobody to look after the selling end. It was, therefore, not until about six years ago that any serious attention was given to the production of timothy seed on a commercial scale in the district. At that time the Southern Alberta Hay Growers' Association was formed, with a membership of thirty. Incidently, it might be mentioned that there are now 175 members of this association, representing 150,000 acres.

The advent of the association has benefitted the farmer by an increased market and better prices, thus giving a greater incentive to the production of timothy seed. Last year 400 tons of timothy seed from the Pincher Creek district was sold to one firm, probably the largest individual purchase of timothy seed ever made. Seventy per cent. of it graded No. 1 and the handsome price of ten cents a pound was obtained for it. Altogether the farmers of the district were enriched by approximately $80,000 from the production of timothy seed, and, in addition, are obtaining $13 a ton for their threshed hay. One farmer received a cheque for $9,905 for the seed he sold and $5,000 for his threshed hay.

Cultivating Timothy

In the production of all kinds of fodder, Southern Alberta is increasing in importance every year. The irrigated areas which are being developed by the Canadian Pacific Railway are the largest alfalfa growing districts in Western Canada. Besides alfalfa, timothy, clover, rye and other fodder crops are extensively cultivated in the irrigation districts, giving abundant yields.
ing abundant yields. As fodder for horses and cattle timothy is a growing favorite with the Canadian farmer, who in these war times is finding that mixed farming is the farming that pays best.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

By Dictation

By S. Paquin

There come moments in the life of every man when he stops and thinks. This does not mean merely that he gives careful attention to some problem of the hour, but that he takes a serious view of life as a whole; surveys it; analyzes it; tries to riddle its meaning.

Such a moment had come to Harry Merton. Really there was cause for him to view life with satisfaction, but a close study of his face would have told any keen observer that he was not altogether satisfied. The day marked an epoch in his life—one on which his friends were dropping in now and then to congratulate him—for he had just been promoted to the position of general manager of the Western Star Fire and Insurance company, a concern in which he had climbed up from a start as office boy 15 years before.

But as he viewed his progress in retrospect, his mind ran on something like this:

"Yes, I have done it. I have reaped the success I set out to win, but what does it amount to after all? It has been a long fight, and I have sacrificed a great deal to win it. Perhaps I have sacrificed too much. When I began as a messenger boy Jim Perkins had the start of me by a year. I have often smiled up my sleeves at Jim since I began to climb up past him. First special agent, then general agent, and now general manager, and poor old Jim is still at his desk as a clerk. But I reckon Jim is happier than I am for all that. I thought so yesterday when his wife came in with that pretty boy of theirs, just to see papa's new desk in the new office. Somehow, it made me feel as if I were missing something that a man needs to make his life complete."

Then Merton's line of thought was interrupted. He had been standing beside his desk with his hands crossed under his coat-tails, watching the sign-writer who was putting gold letters on the windows of the company's handsome new offices. The sign-writer was marking the glass in letters bigger than those that spelled the company's name—"Henry Merton, General Manager."

"Here, my good fellow, that won't do," said Merton, stepping forward to the man's side."

"How will you have it, sir?"

"Just put that name in small letters and a little off at one side," said Merton quietly. "It will look better."

That was just like Henry Merton. Few men in the business had more reason to pride themselves on the attainment of marked success, for he had made his way in the world unaided. But there wasn't a grain of vanity in him. He was a modest, subdued, unassuming sort of a man. One would guess it by looking at him. He was tall, shapely, handsome; but it was plainly to be seen that he was oblivious to his own comeliness as a man. Vanity can be seen more readily in a man than in a woman.

This over, Merton began thinking again, his thoughts taking a new tangent, and one that surprised him.

"I wonder if ambition is a selfish thing? I've done well enough in a business way, and have no one to thank for it but myself; but how many people are there who have anything to thank me for? There's Miss Travers, who is the best stenographer I ever had in my office. She does more good in a month than I've done in fourteen years. She doesn't know that I know it, but the reason I raised her salary last month was because I overheard one of the other stenographers say she was supporting her younger brother in college. She's a fine girl, too. It's a wonder some man doesn't marry that girl."

Then Henry Merton whistled as if to himself—a long, low whistle. The very thought of some other man marrying Alice Travers had made him clinch his fists, but till that minute he had never thought of marrying her himself, or of marrying any other woman, for that matter.

In the next room Alice Travers, who had just finished transcribing a lot of letters Mr. Merton had dictated to her in the morning, was writing a letter to her brother in college. Strangely enough, it was full of Henry Merton. It said:

"Dear Ted: You'll excuse me, I know, for writing to you on a typewriter; I can do it so much quicker and easier this way. We have just moved into the new offices and I am finely fixed. Mr. Merton has given me a nice little room to work in, all to myself, and I have nothing to do now but attend to his correspondence, which is quite enough, since he came to be general manager. Really, he doesn't seem to have the swelled head a bit on account of it, and he's quite a young man, too; not more than twenty-nine or thirty, I should say. He hardly looks happy, even.

"He has been very kind to me, and raised my salary last month, though I didn't ask him to. That's why I send you $30 this month instead of $25, and now I can do it every month. I like to work for him. He treats me more courteously than any man I ever worked for before. He has never called me by my first name, but always Miss Travers, and instead of telling me to do this and to do that, he always acts as if he were asking a favor when he has work for me to do.

"He seems a lonesome sort of man. I often wonder how he lives and what he does to enjoy himself—if he ever does enjoy himself. He is a hard worker and men admire him. I don't known whether he's married or not, but I don't believe he is, for no woman ever comes to see him at the office.

"But there; you'll know him probably some day. At least I want you to, when you get ready to go into business, for there's no man I would rather have you take for a pattern than Mr. Merton.

"Let me know how you are getting along, save what you can, for you will need a little to go on when you get through college in June. Write soon.

"Lovingly, Alice."

Henry Merton was not a man to delay matters. With him, a problem no sooner presented itself than he set about to solve it, and a decision to do a certain thing was always followed at once with the doing. While he listened to the click of Miss Travers' typewriter, which to him was music for a reason he had not realized before, he had reached an important decision—the most important of his life thus far—and he set about putting it into effect in a way that was thoroughly characteristic of the man.

He went into Miss Travers' room and seated himself in a chair he always occupied when dictating letters. He did not as some business men would have done, call her to his desk to take notes on a sliding shelf with no place to rest her arm.

"Miss Travers," he said, and she noticed a queer sound in his voice, "will you please take a letter for me—a letter to my mother."

"At last," thought Miss Travers, "I am to know something about Mr. Merton. I never knew before whether he had a mother."

"You need not mind to take notes," said Mr. Merton. "Just take it on the machine, for I shall not dictate rapidly. Are you ready?"

"Dear Mother: I have been so busy lately that I have had little time to write you, and now what I have to say will surprise you; perhaps pain you a little at first. Ever since I left home and came to this smoky, noisy town, you have been the only woman in the world who has really known me, or anything about me; and now I am going to get married—"

"Pardon me," said Miss Travers, with a slight blush. She had written the last word "marrdie" and had stopped to erase the last three letters and write them over. It was an unheard-of thing for Alice Travers to make a mistake. With no sign of annoyance Merton went on:

"Though no woman knows me, I know a woman, and one whom I am sure you will approve as a daughter. First of all, she is a lady. I do not know her people, but I am sure from her manner and character that they must be most admirable persons. I am not a judge of woman's beauty, but I do not think you would call her a pretty girl. She is something better than that. There is a womanly dignity and sweetness about her that gives her a charm far greater than mere beauty. She is not a girl, really, but a woman—a gentle, true, sweet woman.

"One thing I know you will like about her. She has a younger brother in college, and every month she sends him a generous part of her earnings, so that he may educate himself. But you shall know her soon. As soon as we are married you must come and visit us. There will be no occasion for you to be jealous, mother. She will welcome you, I am sure.

"Her name, I have forgotten to tell you. Her name is Alice Travers—"

There was another pause here; but this time Alice Travers did not blush, but trembled slightly and turned a little pale. Then Merton went on:

"I have just asked her to be my wife, and she has answered—"

Here Merton rose quietly and stood beside the woman he had loved for weeks, but had not known it. She sat with fingers posed over the keys, as if waiting for him to finish the dictation.

"When you have finished the letter, Miss Travers," he said, "please bring it to me and I will sign it."

The minutes of silence seemed to Henry Merton like hours, as he waited in the next room for an answer. Then it came—four sharp clicks on the typewriter—y—e—s and a period.

There was a suspicion of moisture in his eyes and a warmth of something more than courtesy in his voice, when a moment later he looked up and said for the first time, "I thank you, Alice." Before it had always been: "I thank you, Miss Travers."

Three weeks later the men who had been accustomed to dine with Merton and play billiards with him at his club, after trying in vain for days to account for his absence, found the solution in a line in the list of marriage licenses in an afternoon paper. It read:

Henry Merton-Alice Travers. 20-24.

Answering Her.

"Dear me, that was terrible. Man fell overboard in midocean the other day, and never was seen again!" said Hicks.

"Drowned?" asked Mrs. Hicks hysterically.

"Oh, no, of course not!" said Hicks irritably. "Sprained his ankle probably!"

Haig Doesn't Care.

A London correspondent notes that in matters of dress etiquette, Sir Douglas Haig, commander of the British forces in France, is the most unconventional of field marshals and the despair of strict disciplinarians. Besides discarding the shoulder strap of his Sam Browne belt, Sir Douglas refuses to wear the ivory hilted curved sword prescribed for officers' sabres. He also defies custom by using a hunting bit for his horse instead of the heavy service pattern.

The Food System The Source of Life

Any Derangements of Liver or Kidneys That Interfere With Digestion and Assimilation of Food Rob and Deplete the Body.

St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 15.—It matters not how good your appetite, how you relish your food, or how much you eat, so long as there is anything to interfere with proper digestion and assimilation of the food by the body, strength and vigour will gradually decline and weakness and debility take their place.

The most frequent cause of disordered digestion is sluggish action of the liver, kidneys, and bowels. The whole alimentary canal, through which the food passes on its way through the body, becomes choked and clogged, and the system is poisoned and diseased.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been wonderfully successful in exactly this class of disease, principally because they act directly on the kidneys, liver, and bowels, regulating and invigorating their action, and restoring them to health.

Mr. John Nayes, 224 Munro Street, Peterborough, Ont., states: Having used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with success, I can strongly recommend them. For considerable time I was a sufferer from kidney disease and constipation, and besides being tortured by the shooting pains through the back put up with the other annoying and often distressing symptoms of kidney disorders. Sometimes I would go three or four days without a motion of the bowels and could get no relief.

"After using a few boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am well again and feeling fine. This treatment seemed to be exactly what I needed, and promptly brought relief and cure."

PREPARATIONS FOR DEFENCE OF PETROGRAD CONTINUE

Despite the Acceptance of German Peace Terms Workingmen's Battalions Are Hurrying to the Front--Defense Committee Urges People to Fight and Die For the Revolution--Field Marshal Haig Announces the Repulse of a German Raid South of Arras-Cambrai Road.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 26.—Despite the acceptance of German imposed peace, mobilization and hurried preparations for the defence of Petrograd continue.

Small German detachments are reported moving toward Petrograd from Phkoff (162 miles south-west of Petrograd). Workingmen battalions were quickly organized and several are already moving in the direction of Phkoff.

After the capture of Phkoff, the Germans advanced several stations. The Russians then began a counter offensive, and the city changed hands several times. The remaining Russian workmen's battalions are continuously leaving for Phkoff.

The garrison soldiers refuse to fight, but the workmen are enthusiastically joining the revolutionary army. Four thousand from the Putiloff Works and 3,000 from Viborg and the Smolny district have formed an armed camp with the red flags flying.

As soon the news of the capture of Phkoff was received here, the factory whistles called the workmen to arms. Their spirit is belligerent and they are determined to die for the revolution.

The Defence Committee issued a proclamation declaring that the revolutionary capital is in the gravest danger, and urging all to fight and die for the revolution.

The Red Guards and Lettish riflemen recaptured the Phkoff Post Office, battling in the streets with German detachments which had been cut off from the main lines. Reval was stubbornly defended before it was captured.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The American and British Embassies are departing from Petrograd, leaving a few persons in charge, according to Exchange Telegraph Despatches from the Russian capital, dated Feb. 25, 5.50 p.m.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The repulse of a German attempt last night to raid a British sap, was reported to-day by Field Marshal Haig. The enemy raid was attempted south of the Arras-Cambrai Road.

Attack On Canadians Proves Unsuccessful

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—W. A. Willison, cabling from the Canadian front in Flanders, tells of heavy but unsuccessful raiding by the Germans on the Canadian lines. German artillery was also very active. Sir Douglas Haig recently visited the Canadians and made a thorough inspection, finding everything in thorough preparation, and the men in good spirits and confident.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

FRENCH GRAND HEADQUARTERS, Feb. 26.—French raids along the French front have increased in intensity during the past month to such an extent that they have become in some instances battles in which thousands of men have been engaged and hundreds of prisoners taken. The artillery is throwing unheard of quantities of shells. Successful raids in Lorraine, Argonne and north-west of Rheims have demonstrated the nature of the German defence systems. Nearly everywhere the enemy front lines are held lightly, and the main bodies of troops are kept so far in the near that occasionally the French have reached the third and even the fourth line with slight resistance.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 26. — The Bolsheviki soldiers have recaptured Pskov, 175 miles south-west of Petrograd, from the Germans, and street fighting is going on there. The Red Guards are resisting the German advance everywhere.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

ROME, Feb. 26.—Teuton aeroplanes shelled Venice on Saturday night, causing many casualties.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—Chancellor Von Hertling has announced that Germany intends to give self-government to the provinces of Lithuania and Courland.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — With the impression prevalent in Moscow that the Germans are driving for that city, the American Consul-General there is attempting to arrange the departure of the American Colony to Samiia, 500 miles east. All Americans thus far are safe, according to the State Department advices to-day.

PREMIER AT WASHINGTON

Canadian Press Despatch:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.— Premier Borden of Canada, began a series of conferences here to-day with Earl Reading, the British Ambassador, Lloyd Harris, chairman of the Canadian War Mission, Sir Charles Gordon, vice-chairman of the British War Mission, and some American officials. The question of Canadian credit in this country is said to be the subject under discussion.

STIRRING SCENES WHEN BOLSHEVIKI DECIDED ON PEACE

Many of Lenine's Followers Demanded That the Revolution Die Fighting But Premier Ridiculed Idea That Russia Could Fight

"PEACE AT ALL COSTS"

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 26.—The scene at yesterday's meeting of the Soviet's Executive committee were most stirring.

Men accustomed to following Premier Lenine unswervingly, cursed and swore, demanding that the revolution die fighting.

Despair filled the ante chambers and corridors of the Tauridi which originally saw the birth of the noblest hopes of the evolution.

The coolest and most unconcerned of all was Lenine. The Premier, short and stocky, with massive head and sturdy shoulders, walked up and down the famous Ekaterinsky hall.

Lenine calmly discussed the situation, after threatening to resign unless Germany's peace terms were accepted. He ridiculed the idea that Russia is able to fight, and pointed out that Russia needed peace at all costs, so as to organize further and strike in revenge at the proper political moment.

THE WEATHER

Another very sudden change in the weather occurred last night. Although the change was not so great as that prevailing about a week ago, it was still extraordinary. Last night at midnight the rain was coming down in torrents, and this morning the streets and pavements were covered with miniature glaciers. The temperature went down from 43 degrees to 10 degrees. The rain totalled .72. The gale which prevailed last night and his morning is not likely to bring severe weather in its train. —W. P.

NEW ENEMY PEACE DRIVE

This is the Interpretation by International Experts of Count Von Hertlings Reply to President Wilson's Peace Terms

PRINCIPLES ACCEPTED

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — Germany is making a new peace drive now that she bagged a goodly section of Russia.

That was the meaning international experts placed to-day on the more conciliatory tone adopted by Count Von Hertling in his reply to President Wilson's peace terms. Further, some of the experts saw an effort by Hertling to split the Allies, relying upon them to have differing views to President Wilson with his four cardinal bases for peace discussion.

The Chancellors acceptance of the four principles was regarded as indicating his belief that a peace table discussion would not haggle over Russia long if French, Belgian, Italian and some Balkan questions could be adjusted. In fact, it was felt that Hertling's move harked back to Lloyd George's initial war aims speech in which he practically cast Russia adrift warning her that she would be left to her fate at German hands if she continued in her peace course.

Well informed Englishmen in this country have said recently that they doubted England would fight on long to wrest Russian territory from a Teuton grip even though the German retention of it was a strong step toward formidable strengthening of German domination.

Further Italian Foreign Minister Connino's newspaper intimated after Lloyd George's speech that there might be little in the way of peace if Germany restored Belgium, cleared out of Northern France, gave Italy Trent and Trieste, and did her expanding in Russia.

Coal Reported At Port Hope For Here

Four cars of coal received by the C.P.R. for local retailers were switched to the G.T.R. to-day, and will be placed at the yards to which they were consigned. There are also six cars of coal at Port Hope destined for Peterborough, but it is not known where they contain anthracite or not.

On Sunday, and up to 2 p.m. on Monday, twenty-three trains passed through this city over the G.T.R. Twelve of them were west-bound and eleven were going east.

THE WIND WAS BAD LAST NIGHT

Chimneys Blown Over—Considerable Wire Trouble To-day

The wind was most severe last night and considerable damage to property was done. Two red brick houses near the south end of the street railway, had their chimneys blown over, crashing through the summer kitchens of each and demolishing them. Other chimneys in the west end of the city have also been blown over.

The flag pole at "Strathormond" was blown over on the wires of the Utilities Commission, affecting the power distributed in the north west of the city. The Utilities staff took down the pole which was broken at the base.

FINANCE COMMITTEE TOTALS 1918 TAX RATE AT 36.5 MILLS

TERRIFIC RAIDS MADE BY FRENCH ALONG WHOLE LINE

Surprise Attacks on An Unprecedented Scale Destroy German Front Line Positions at Many Points and Bring in Numerous Prisoners

NEW TACTICS USED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Henry Wood.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Feb. 26.—Along the entire west front from the junction with the British to the Swiss border, the French arms are now delivering terrific raids day and night. These are likely to increase in number, size and importance until the Germans either begin or call off their pre-announced offensive.

DIFFERENT TACTICS.

The present raids are different from those last winter, being prepared on a big scale, with immense artillery concentration and preparation. They are only distinguishable from veritable attacks in that the infantry, after charging the German positions, imprisoning the occupants and destroying trenches, fortifications and material, returns to its own trenches instead of occupying the captured positions.

The new elements characterizing the present raids unquestionably sound the keynote of all 1918 offensive operations, namely, surprise and artillery density heretofore unequalled.

The surprise is attained by installing artillery secretly during the night and beginning without warning. The overwhelming density of the batteries permit complete preparation and destruction of the enemy's trenches within a few hours. Formerly several days were necessary, during which the Germans rushed up reserves.

YIELD MANY PRISONERS.

As a result of these tactics, single raids last week yielded over five hundred prisoners. Likewise, where last winter the sole object of the raids was to capture prisoners for the purpose of enabling the French to obtain detailed information of the German's offensive plans, The raids this year have another and most important purpose. The artillery preparation for each raid completely destroys the German's first line positions and fortifications, which might serve as a protection from which they could launch their coming offensive.

Owing to the German's 1918 defensive tactics, which consist of their positions being strongly toward the rear, instead of along the front, the raiders are often forced to penetrate to the depth of a mile, destroying all intervening trenches and fortifications.

The raids likewise, develop where Germans are fortifying themselves the strongest. Saturday's raids in Alsace showed the Germans, fearing the French reconquest of Alsace-Lorraine, have fortified villages, factories, farms and trenches into an endless line of reinforced concrete forts.

While keeping accurately informed from prisoners of the dispositions made by Germans of their forces for the coming offensive, French raids are simultaneously tearing up the German lines along the entire front.

The difficulties for the German's eventual attack are thus increased and their chances for successful attacks decreased.

U. S. GOVERNMENT TRYING TO STIR SLAVS TO FIGHT

American Socialists Are Cabling the Bolsheviki Leaders Urging Russians to Defend Their Country Against German Machine

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Robert J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The American Government is striving to the upmost to stir the Russians to a defense of their nation against the invading Teutons.

Aided by the radicals in this country, the Government is continuing its educational campaign in Russia. President Wilson himself is behind the new movement; a step to blaze the right trail for Slav masses, no matter what peace steps Lenine and Trotsky take.

To this end, the Government is permitting the passage of hundreds of cables from the radicals in this nation to the Bolsheviki leaders containing a distinct warning against a separate peace and a friendly out stretching of the hand to encourage the struggling, war-torn Russians.

Contrary to the general belief, the so-called "American Bolsheviki" are outraged at the action of Lenine and Trotsky in yielding to the German peace terms. This is plainly evidenced by cables to the Russian leaders to-day, reports of which were received by the Government here. Charges that Socialists in the United States were delighted at the Russian peace have brought forth from Representative Meyer London, the only Socialist in Congress, a spirited challenge. He states that the Socialists in America want the Russian people to fight, and fight until they whip the German machine.

Seven Dogs Taken Four Were Killed

Four of the seven dogs captured by J. Gates, the city's official catcher, have been destroyed, and the other three were claimed by their owners. According to Mr. Gates, the art of luring, lassoing, or whatever the specific action of catching may be, is by no means as easy as it sounded in the discussions of the Council on the street. It would be easier, he stated, to tote a shot gun and pick them off as they run the streets. Yesterday two of the seven dogs were caught, yielding only $1.50 to Mr. Gates, who at that rate will never qualify as a profiteer.

The Vacant Lots For This Season

How Will They Be Handled—Will It Be Every Man For Himself?

Those who were really in earnest about the vacant lot gardening last year are very well pleased with the results and are looking about again for information as to where they can put in their crop this spring. It is a little ahead of time for the actual work in the garden, but it is not too early to be considering which crop to plant, where to plant it and the securing of seeds.

Last year we had several meetings of those who had charge of the registration and distribution of vacant lots and it helped out considerably. Something should be done in the matter of organization to get the best results.

Rate For Municipal Purposes is 29.5 Mills--Patriotic Fund and Red Cross Grant Represented by 5 Mills--Garbage and War Tax One Mill Each.

$3,000 OFF SPECIAL GRANTS

PROBABLE TAX RATE FOR 1918 COMPARED WITH LAST YEAR'S

| | 1918 | 1917 |
|---|---|---|
| Municipal purposes | 29.5 | 26.3 |
| Garbage rate | 1 | .7 |
| Prov. war tax | 1 | 1 |
| Patriotic fund | 5 | .... |
| | 36.5 | 28 |

This year's increase—8.5 mills.

The above statement is the Finance committee's rough draft of this year's tax rate, and may be accepted as a close approximation of the exact figures the Council will approve at the regular meeting next Monday.

Reports of committee and department estimates during the past six weeks have prepared the ratepayers for a big municipal rate this year. And there it is at the top of the list, 29 1-2 mills, just representing civic and one half more than the total in 1917. Increases to the Fire and Police Departments, Board of Education, bulging salients pushed forward in the tabulated estimates, and minor, nibbling additions here and there complete the explanation. But there is nothing cryptic about these figures. Their inflation, that bulking 8 1-2 mills, represents for the most part the difference in kind and degree of the demands of 1914 and 1918. The war is beginning to pinch with a sting that will hurt some of the property holders. There is consolation in the realization that this year's unprecedented rate will, when finally endorsed, continue to maintain the dependents of Peterborough soldiers in the comfort ex-Mayor Buller promised to the first contingent.

No Paring Possible.

Ald. Taylor was in the chair last night, with Mayor Duncan, Aldermen Weir, Saunders, Edgar and Dobbin. City Treasurer Adams laid before the committee the estimates that were drawn up by the spending departments, and last night's session was little more than mere formality.

The special grants were chopped from $9,000 to $6,000. Hacked would probably be a more precise term to describe the only spectacular performance of the evening.

The items comprising the municipal government budget were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Assessment and taxes | $ 4,000.00 |
| Administration of justice | 7,400.00 |
| Charity | 5,700.00 |

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 26TH, 1918.

PETERBOROUGH'S CONTRIBUTION.

The official figures as to the result of the soldiers' vote in the recent election throw a gratifying light on Peterborough's share in the battle for democracy. The statistics show that in spite of the very heavy casualties the soldiers from this district have sustained—just how heavy the number of women in mourning is an all too eloquent testimony — there were no fewer than seven hundred and six soldiers from Peterborough County on duty at the front when the vote was taken. This figure, of course, does not include the large number of Peterborough soldiers undergoing treatment in hospital or convalescent homes in England or in the reserve battalions waiting to go to France.

Incidentally the election returns indicate a strange hiatus between those "4,800 gallant lads from Victoria and Haliburton" that General Hughes is so fond of talking about, and the number of ballots cast in France for the General. The figures show that only 398 Victoria and Haliburton votes were registered at the front.

THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

There should be a very large attendance at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Health Association, which will be held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers to-morrow afternoon, at 4 o'clock. The splendid work that has been carried on in Peterborough by this body should lead itself to a greater interest in the Association. The labour has been allowed to fall on the shoulders of a handful of citizens, who have worked energetically and faithfully in the interests of the ill and the unfortunate. The result of their efforts has been seen in many a Peterborough home, the inmates of which will know just what the Peterborough Health Association means. All citizens are invited to tomorrow's meeting and it is hoped that the attendance will be the largest on record.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

5,900 minus 2,949 equals 3,011, according to the Review's method of arithmetic. No wonder Mr. Gordon and the Review's financial genius could not agree as to the Board of Education's overdraft.

Congratulations are due to Lieut. Walter Miller, better known to hockey fans as "Jimmy". The local boy, after being turned down several times, joined the 93rd Battalion as a private, worked his way up to a Sergeant's berth, reverted to the ranks to go to France, won his stripes back on the firing line and now has been awarded a commission. He is one of many well-known Peterborough athletes who are playing the bigger game in France.

Well, the Veterans have one satisfaction. No one can blame them for the increase in the tax rate.

From the reports from different sections of the city, Peterborough's new dog catcher is losing plenty of opportunities for increasing his earnings. Canines are still in evidence and the casualties so far have been light.

The career of the Toronto N. H. A. club is as hard to follow as the movements of the Bolsheviki.

THE PEOPLE AND GOVERNMENT.

There is national need for Canadian citizens to take a more direct and more intimate individual interest in the public problems of their country, says the Toronto Globe Hon. Frank B. Carvell, Minister of Public Works, in his address to the Montreal Canadian Club, voiced this call to practical patriotism. He appealed to the people of Canada as a whole to take more interest in the government of their country and the really big problems that have to be solved." He spoke of the experience of all politicians when he said that more interest was seemingly taken in the appointment of a lighthouse-keeper somewhere down on the coast than in the great questions that affect and involve Canada's future.

The indictment is too true. There is not enough national thinking on the part of Canadians. Many of the most acute home problems are the direct result of sectional self-centredness of parochial prejudcie. The part has been made more important than the whole. The maintenance of stiff tariffs on their products is the main concern of too many manufacturers. The advantageous character and operation of financial legislation is the one consideration of too many bankers and business men. The condition governing prices of farm products is the supreme interest of too many agriculturists. The regulation of the labour market is the only object of too many workers. And the advancement of their own narrow and bigoted propaganda appears to be the solo ambition of extremists and agitators in the Provinces.

Canadians must shake themselves free from these sectional fetters. They must endeavour to get hold of the national viewpoint. In so doing lies the sound solution of many of the most serious and apparently insurmountable situations. In so doing lies the efficient working out of the democratic ideal. Socialism, or Bolshevikism, or any other kindred doctrine, will not solve the problems of democracy. Democracy has to do with the field of practical politics, and has to deal with human nature.

The war has brought home the necessity for national thought and effort. Its lesson should live. Canadians should continue to keep the welfare of their country as a whole before all selfish and sectional considerations. They should interest themselves more keenly in "the really big problems that have to be solved" than in the appointment of the local lighthouse-keeper. They should give first things first place. By so doing they hold up the hands of their representatives and insure administrative performance.

This does not involve neglect of rightful local interests. It promotes all-round efficiency. A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. In the town of Stettler, Alberta, there has been started a citizens' movement to interest "every person in the community in the work of government, national, provincial, and district," with the purpose of bettering public service and benefiting the country as a whole. Touching the local side of the enterprise The Stettler Independent says:

"Then, getting down to district affairs, it is interesting to note that the town of Stettler always enjoyed better government at the periods when men at a sacrifice to themselves took up public office from a sense of duty.

"Every time a Council was selected from men who just happened to be around during the nomination hour we got what we deserved—that is, an indifferent Council. Every time a set of public men took office from a sense of public duty we had a good Council.

"To get democracy in provincial and national affairs we must have democracy in town or school affairs or in the affairs of the rural sections of the community.

"Those who are kicking about bad government at Edmonton or Ottawa should first look nearer home and see whether they have ever done anything to help along good government in their own town, village, or country district."

The war has precipitated many big home problems for Canadians to work out—national, provincial, and municipal problems. To their solution every citizen should deem it a duty to give his best. He should serve as a Canadian, not as a sectionalist. There should develop a sense of personal obligation and personal responsibility. With a citizenhood permeated by that spirit the gigantic work of to-day and of to-morrow may be undertaken with courage, confidence, and comradeship.

A BEAUTIFUL RUN.

Writer Describes Carisbrooke on the Isle of Wight.

"I do not think I shall ever see a ruin to surpass Carisbrooke Castle. The trench is overgrown with the smoothest turf, and the walls with ivy. The keep withinside is one bower of ivy; a colony of jackdaws has been there for many years. I dare say I have seen many a descendant of some old cawer who peeped through the bars at Charles I., when he was there in confinement."

After quoting these words from Keats, J. Redding Ware, in his book about the Isle of Wight, goes on:

"Carisbrooke possesses for the historian the great charm of being the last feudal stronghold in which a struggle took place between the declining power of the few and the rising power of the many, for it was here that the rash, if brave, Charles Stuart threw his last stake, and lost."

"The existing architecture of the castle may be divided into three distinct periods. The first is Saxon, and includes part of the keep containing fragments which it has been demonstrated must be of twelve hundred years' antiquity. To this succeeds the architecture of the Norman Conquest, about which time the area of the castle appears to have been much extended. The final period is referable to the reign of Elizabeth, when in anticipation of the inimical position Spain was evidently about to take up, all the latest advances in fortifications and defense were rapidly applied to this important stronghold. These additions chiefly took the shape of outworks and of modifications of the outer angles of the walls, and resulted in bringing the circumference of the fortress up to three-quarters of a mile, the whole inclosing an area of about twenty acres."

"The eye falls upon the most picturesque flight of steps, a mass of beautiful, broken lines—true shadow and sunshine, that can be found even in an old English castle. . . . This is the way to the keep, the vital point of the castle in the middle ages, when the beacon was lighted, and the look-out rigorously kept. The well is choked up, the terrace is bramble-grown, the roof fallen in, and yet it is only three hundred years since most of these turrets and lookouts were built. They are due to the dread of the Spanish Armada, and the genius of Genobella, an Italian engineer, who took for his model the fortifications of Antwerp, a city which had had much experience in fighting. The keep which is now so quiet, was alive with hundreds of willing workers while the panic lasted. Elizabeth contributed four thousand pounds, the gentry of the island four hundred pounds—not a great sum, seeing what vital interest they had in the operations—and every man in the island gave his labor to it. The keep and castle have been invaded at last. The daws and the tourists have besieged it, and they held possession of the stronghold."

Sugar the Most Common Sweet.

The world has a sweet tooth. It would be difficult to find individuals and probably impossible to find a people who do not like sweets. And of all sweets the most common is sugar, practically all of which is produced from the sugar cane and the beetroot, the beetroot being the source of somewhat more than half the supply. Sugar not only pleases the palate, but it helps to sustain the body, for though it is not sufficient itself, it forms a very useful component of foods, being easily soluble and assimilable.

Injecting Ink Into the Eye.

Sometimes when a scar has been left on the cornea of the eye it is most unsightly. Oculists used to tattoo these scars with India ink, but the method was not satisfactory and has almost been abandoned. Dr. F. H. Verhoeff of Boston describes in the Journal of the American Medical association the delicate operation by which he injects India ink with a hypodermic syringe into such scars, and says the results are far superior to the old-fashioned tattooing.

Garden Hose Restores Vision.

Garden hose, at full pressure, restored a man's sight at San Rafael, Cal., recently. The man, Charles Brown, fell 40 feet from the roof of his home. Neighbors turned the garden hose on his head as a first aid measure and after an examination Brown was found to be the better instead of the worse for his tumble. His vision was completely cured. He is wondering whether it was the fall or the garden hose that was responsible.

Floods in Brazil.

The native inhabitants of Brazil have lately been suffering from the disastrous effects of the flooding of the Amazon, whose relentless waters have submerged the countryside for hundreds of miles around. At regular intervals this mighty river overflows its banks, and a famous traveler estimated that no fewer than 5,000,000 natives have lost their lives during the last five centuries through these terrible floods.

He Didn't Know.

In a murder trial six experts were examined. Most of them had a national reputation. A hypothetical question of 20,000 words, which it required two hours to read, was asked of Doctor Jelley, a Boston expert on insanity. The learned doctor answered the question in three words: "I don't know." A frank answer, but rather perplexing to counsel.

Figures Time of Falling Stone.

The time a stone would require to fall the 4,000 miles to the center of the earth has been calculated for the Paris Academy of Sciences, by M. Sanger. Considering the influence of the varying density of the earth, he finds the time would be 19 minutes 15 seconds, but if the mean density is assumed to be the condition, the time would be 79 seconds greater.

Our Rabbits.

The term rabbit was formerly more properly applied to the burrowing species of the old world, Lepus cuniculus (meaning to burrow), though by common usage our molly cottontail has so long been termed a rabbit that the name will now stand, as will that of jack rabbit for the big western hare of the prairies and Pacific coast.

Annual Meeting Of The 57th Chapter

Splendid Record of War Activities by Daughters of the Empire—Reports Presented Show the Grand Work Done For Peterboro's Soldiers Overseas

The annual meeting of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. on Monday, Feb. 25.

The reports of the different officers were read and showed the completion of a very successful year of much painstaking, unselfish work.

Following is the secretary's report:

I beg to present the report of the 57th Regiment Chapter, I.O.D.E. as follows:

During the year nine regular meetings have been held, the work being done principally by the standing committees in the several departments.

Supplying the needs of our men in the fighting line was the first consideration of the Chapter and not the least of these was the constant supply of socks that was sent over.

The Knitting committee with Mrs. Cotterell as convenor, did splendid work. Too much canlot be said of Mrs. Cotterell's painstaking zeal in this respect.

Mrs. Sharpe, convenor of the Visiting committee, endeavoured to call on the families of all who have suffered bereavement and convey to them the sympathy of the Chapter.

In collaboration with this committee, was the Flower committee, under the convenorship of Miss Maud Rush. Flowers have been sent to the homes of bereaved families along with notes of sympathy.

Mrs. Hay, convenor of the Hospital committee, visited any soldiers in Nicholl's or St. Joseph's Hospitals, supplying them with magazines and fruit.

The Tea Room committee, with Miss Flora Davidson as convenor, has given excellent service. Teas were held in the Masonic Dining Hall every Thursday, until nearly the end of June, when they were discontinued until November 1st. On March 22nd a high tea was arranged for by a committee of men under Mr. Crane's leadership. This novel innovation was a decided success, not only in point of attendance and receipts, but in the enjoyment given by the unique attendants and service. A rubber tea held during the winter was also a great success.

The tea-room re-opened on November 1st, with a Hallowe'en tea and had the officers as hostesses. The visit of Mrs. Bruce, the National Treasurer of the Order, was an unexpected pleasure on this occasion. Having only a short time in the city between trains she was the guest of the Chapter at the tea room. It is interesting to note that Mrs. Bruce organized the 57th Chapter about six years ago.

At the conclusion of the November business meeting, our Regent, Mrs. Walker, kindly invited all present to have tea with her at the Chapter tea room.

During the past four weeks the teas have been held in the Empress Grill room, which Mrs. Graham so kindly offered after the Masonic Temple was destroyed by fire. A Valentine tea on Feb. 14, was largely attended and a great success.

An autograph quilt was made during the winter under the supervision of Mesdames Rush and Merril, and sent to Canon Davidson in France. By this means $114 was realized.

A systematic collection of scrap paper was begun by a committee under Miss Marion Rush. This was later carried on by Mrs. Turner owing to Miss Rush leaving the city.

A most successful rummage sale managed by Mrs. Lech was held on May 18 and 19.

During the winter Mrs. Burnham donated a handsome scarf which was won by Mrs. Mills.

As larger sums of money were necessary for the purchase of wool, the Chapter began a campaign for a mile of pennies. This work was undertaken by Mrs. Vincent Eastwood, who spared neither time nor trouble to make it a success. Permission was obtained from the Board of Education to enlist the help of the Public school children and during the month of May they collected over $250. The Chapter wishes to thank the Board of Education, also the teachers, and pupils for the good work.

Owing to the National Annual being held in Victoria, B.C. and the expense that would be incurred by sending a delegate, the Chapter decided to ask Mrs. Ritchie, a former member of our Chapter now residing in Esquimalt to represent us.

On Empire Day the schools were visited as in former years and the graves of departed soldiers decorated.

No meetings were held during July and August. At the September meeting we were pleased to have with us the officers of the newly-formed Chapter at Stewart's Hall, which our Regent, Mrs. Walker, and Mrs. Clegg were instrumental in organizing.

At the March meeting Mr. Dobbin gave an interesting address on the formation of the 57th Regiment. On May 31st, Mrs. Clegg, our former Regent, spoke about the war work being done by the Canadian women in England. On this occasion the Otonabee and Peter Robinson Chapters and the Red Cross Executive were our guests.

In response to an appeal sent out by the National Educational Secretary the Chapter provided a Library for use in one of the foreign schools in Western Canada. An historical picture was also given for the same purpose.

Very soon after the opening of the Great War Veterans' Club rooms the Chapter presented a Union Jack to the returned heroes. Recently the sum of $25 was given to their furnishing fund.

A tea and sale of fancy and useful articles, home-made cooking jam, pickles, etc., was held in the Masonic Dining Hall on Dec. 6. This attracted a very large crowd and a splendid sum was realized.

After the Halifax disaster, immediate steps were taken to send relief.

The sincere thanks of the Chapter are due all our friends who have helped to make the past year so successful. In conclusion let me say that no worthy cause has ever appealed to us in vain for help.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Kathleen B. P. Jamieson, Cor-Sec'y.

CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

At the opening of the county court this morning, Mr. A. O. Langley informed Judge Huycke that the case in which an injunction was taken out a week ago, to prevent Mr. Young, of Lakefield from moving a henhouse had been settled out of court. The next case on the list was that of Warne vs. Harris, in which a houseboat was involved.

HOUSEBOAT SANK AND THE OWNER CLAIMS DAMAGES

Alleged negligence in connection with the towing of a houseboat on the Otonabee river, formed the basis of a claim for damages which was heard to-day in the county court before His Honor Judge Huycke. The plaintiff is Mr. E. V. Warne, owner of the house boat and Captain Harris, of the steamer Geneva. Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. V. J. McElderry, for the defendant.

It appears that in November, 1916, Captain Harris was engaged to tow the houseboat from its anchorage at Robinson's Island on the Otonabee river to a point a short distance to the north. While the work was under way the houseboat turned over and sank. Subsequently the boat was salvaged by the Peterboro Fuel and Cartage Co. at a cost to Mr. Warne of forty dollars. The sum of seventy eight dollars was paid to a carpenter to repair and build an addition to the houseboat. Several other sums make up an extensive bill of damages which Mr. Warne in his action seeks to collect from the defendant.

When the case was called Mr. McElderry asked to have the witnesses excluded. Judge Huycke questioned the justification for such a course and intimated that some time he would rule against such a request unless it could be clearly shown that such exclusion was necessary in the interest of justice. Two witnesses were excluded, also Mr. Warne. The latter was excluded during the time that Mrs. E. V. Warne was in the witness box.

Mr. Spillsbury, who was the first witness called, said that he was an eye witness of the accident. The day was fair and there was but little wind blowing.

Mrs. E. V. Warne, who was next called, described the contents of the house boat and also gave an approximate estimate of the cost of the equipment which consisted of beds, wicker chairs, cooking utensils etc.

Mr. E. V. Warne said he purchased the boat from Mr. E. N. McWilliams and at that time it was anchored at Lovesick Lake. It was then towed down to the Otonabee river at a cost of $35. The original purchase price was fixed at $225. This was represented by a diamond ring and a watch and a chain. The retail value of the ring was placed at $175 by Mr. Warne and the wholesale value at $135. The exchange was made on a retail basis of cost. Mr. Warne corroborated the evidence of his wife. He said that Capt. Harris offered to settle the claim for $25. This was refused. Mr. Warne admitted that he gave the defendant instructions as to where to hitch the towline to the houseboat. He also claimed that the boat upset before the line was attached. The Peterboro Fuel and Transfer Co. when the ice was on the river and salvaged the houseboat at a cost of $40.

At the resumption of the case this afternoon the evidence of Capt. Harris was heard and also the crew of the steamer Geneva. The witnesses described the methods employed to secure the house boat to the Geneva. The house boat was allowed to float out from the shore and down with the current until the steamer was reached. When some distance out from the shore the downstream side of the house boat settled, and several logs and five gallon cans used for buoyancy floated out on the upstream side of the craft. A few minutes later the house boat sank in about 12 feet of water and Captain Harris, who was on the sinking craft was compelled to scramble to the high side of the house boat.

Case Dismissed.

Captains S. R. Pearson, White and Walsh, all local skippers, gave evidence bearing on the case.

In dismissing the case without costs to either parties, His Honour Judge Huycke said that Captain Harris could not be regarded as an insurer and was not in the position of a common carrier with consequent liability. In this case he was expected to use reasonable care and the whole case hinged on this point. Judge Huycke was of the opinion that the plaintiff had failed to show that the defendant did not use reasonable care. The action was dismissed. The plaintiff claimed damages to the extent of one hundred and fifty dollars.

COLDER WEATHER BROUGHT RELIEF

TORONTO, Feb. 26. — Colder weather with resultant freezing up of wayward waters brought relief to the flood-stricken areas in various parts of lower Ontario to-day. The river Thames, which rose fifteen feet last night, and threatened big damage in the London district, receded to-day, and farmers who left their homes last night, returned this morning in safety. Similar results followed the return of Jack Frost in other sections of the country.

PETERBOROUGH MAN AGAIN AT LARGE

Village Constable Was Carried Away by Sentiment—Montgomery Escaped

(Southampton Beacon)

A young man named Wm. Montgomery, whose home is in Peterborough, and has a sister residing in town, was arrested by Constable Duke on Wednesday on advice of word from the Chief Constable of Lindsay, the charge being that of passing worthless cheques. The same young man barely escaped trouble of the same sort here last summer.

Mr. Duke locked his prisoner in a bedroom on the third floor of the Commercial hotel as the lockup under the town hall was too cold. Friday morning when he came to get his man the room was empty and the prisoner did not leave any message as to where he had gone or when he would return.

Chief of Police Short arrived home from Southampton on Saturday night and felt very much disappointed that he did not bring Montgomery with him. Constable Duke had been on the look out for the forger, who virtually ran into his arms on the main street of Southampton. He was crestfallen over his arrest, as he labored under the impression that he had got away with his stunt in Lindsay, and no effort would be made to find him.

Constable Duke placed Montgomery in the lockup, which Chief Short states is just as good as the one in Lindsay. Towards evening the prisoner feigned blood spitting and asked to be removed to more comfortable quarters. The officer took him handcuffed to an hotel and secured a room for him on the top flat. He disrobed him, placed him in bed, handcuffed, and after locking the bedroom left for home. On his return to the hotel Friday morning he found that the bird had flown, taking the handcuffs with him.

Constable Duke is out about $8.00 on Montgomery and he asked Chief Short to make good the loss. The latter could not see things that way, however. When the Southampton officer arrested Montgomery, he searched him for weapons, but did not think it worth while to ascertain if he had any money on his person.

Montgomery, it appears, tried to work the forged cheque scheme in Southampton for the sum of $80, but the bank manager nipped the scheme in the bud. No prosecution followed.

Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.

General Logie's absence, however, will be temporary, and reports to the effect that he is about to retire from the position he now holds are not credited here. It has long been intended that General Logie should make a visit overseas.

General Logie is in Ottawa to-day, but declares that he is only here to discuss routine matters.

COUNTY DEPUTATION GOING TO TORONTO

A deputation from the County Council is going to Toronto on Thursday to oppose Victoria County's private bill, which would obligate Peterborough county to assume two-thirds of the maintenance of a bridge in Sommerville township. It is stated that this bridge is wholely within Victoria county, but is near the Galway boundary.

NOTHING CAN COMPARE WITH IT

Mr. Fred Adams, New Rose N.S., writes—"I have tried many medicines for coughs and colds but never found anything to compare to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We have had the greatest never fails to relieve a cough and loosen satisfaction with this medicine for it it up."

FINANCE COMMITTEE

| | |
|---|---|
| Special grants | 6,300.00 |
| Water Commissioners | 9,000.00 |

Some of the Discussion.

"I suggest we set aside $500 for bands and decide after a while how we will dispose," suggested Ald. Edgar.

"We've got to have something to work on," said the chairman.

Ald. Dobbin observed that the bands would probably come together in the near future and the discord would cease.

Ald. Weir's Prophecy.

When the committee manifested a kindly consideration of the work of some of the city hall staff by increasing the salary estimate from $7,500 to $7,900, Mayor Duncan suggested that Street Commissioner Evans be included, saying: "He does more work in a day than the whole police force."

Ald. Edgar immediately responded by moving that Mr. Evans get an increase of $100 and Mr. Fitzgerald $50.

Ald. Weir—I'm not objecting, but I simply want to remind this committee what I said on the Board of Works. You cut down my appropriation and then start out to spend it on things we didn't provide for. Ald. Edgar told me then to fight the Council on every occasion of that kind, and I replied that he would be the first to start it.

Ald. Edgar—I remember what I said.

Ald. Taylor—This isn't the place to introduce that increase. It's a Board of Works question.

Ald. Edgar thereupon withdrew his motion.

Special Grants.

The following grants show several decreases:

| | |
|---|---|
| Children's Aid Society | $ 600.00 |
| Horticultural Society | 50.00 |
| Industrial Exhibition | 500.00 |
| Band purposes | 500.00 |
| Teachers' Institute | 25.00 |
| Poultry Association | 75.00 |
| Dominion Tactile Press | 10.00 |
| Health Association | 1,000.00 |
| Unforseen | 1,500.00 |

The City's Light Bill.

The appropriation of $14,800 shows the following bill:

| | |
|---|---|
| 103 magnetite lamps $50.50 each | $5,151.00 |
| 1,109 incandescent lamps, $9 each | 9,171.00 |
| Lamps to be set during 1919 | 348.00 |
| Light for city buildings | 100.00 |
| Lamps and repairs city buildings | 30.00 |
| | $14,800.00 |

The Patriotic Fund.

There was little discussion of the raising of the Patriotic Fund. Ald. Edgar made a last effort to win the committee to the debenture plan employed last year. Ald. Saunders said he had asked at least fifteen working men for their opinion, without a single exception they endorsed the "pay-as-you-go" method of collecting the money in this year's taxes.

Ald. Dobbin added the sanction of business men who had assured him of their approval of the Council's proposal.

What of Veterans?

Down in the list of special grants, Ald. Dobbin held up the sweeping progress with an appeal for a $500 grant to the War Veterans' Association.

"We may be asked to help found a technical school here for the training of returned men," said Ald. Edgar; that would be more useful to the men than club rooms."

Mayor Duncan—Let us confine our attention to helping the men at the front while the war lasts.

Ald. Dobbin used his most persuasive tones and the familiar address of "Boys," but the committee was unresponsive.

Mayor Duncan suggested that $1,000 be included in the grants column for the British Sailors' Relief. "We must remember the men in the North Sea, and $1,000 would be a nest egg for public subscriptions."

BIG CAMPAIGN TO START SOON

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner)

TORONTO Feb. 26. — Mayor Church, President of the Ontario Hydro Radial and Municipal Electric Association; T. J. Hannigan, the secretary; Controller Maguire and George Wright, the committee appointed by representatives of the municipalities, who recently interviewed the Premier at Ottawa, have completed arrangements for a big campaign throughout the province to promote the policy of those bodies in reference to the nationalization and electrification of the Grand Trunk Railway, the safeguarding of the public highways, and the development of the Canadian waterways.

Mayor Church declared to-day that Sir Henry Drayton had stated that "we are at the parting of the ways."

"The Hydro comes next to the war. The municipalities must show the Government that they are in earnest in this great question of public ownership and show it in no uncertain way that they want the Drayton-Acworth report acted upon by the Dominion Government."

"What the Hydro has done in the light and power field it can do in the radial railway field," said Mr. George Wright. "It cut the rates in two in Toronto. The people are vitally interested in this question and now the time has come for them to demonstrate that they are alive to their own interests."

A record trip by a dog team, for this part of the country, was made by Mr. William Crowe a drover of Warsaw, who last week drove from Warsaw to Peterborough, to meet his soldier son in a small, home-made sleigh, driven by two Collie dogs. He made the trip in two hours. On Saturday last he drove thirty-five miles into the back country in the same sleigh, which means of transportation he claims is better than horses with the bad roads.

When Rheumatism Strikes The Heart It Kills---"Nerviline" The Cure

Effect of Nerviline on Chronic Cases Is Almost Magical

Exposure to wet or cold is apt to bring on an attack.

The muscles stiffen, the joints swell, and exertion brings on excruciating twinges.

Often the pain shifts from one part to another, and this is dangerous, as the heart is apt to be attacked. Death as a rule follows a heart attack.

The pain of rheumatism is quickly robbed away with Nerviline.

This is a swift, lasting, and safe way to cure rheumatism. You can depend on Nerviline. It has the power, the penetrating force, the control over pain, that is so essential to a rheumatic remedy.

Lots of testimony to prove Nerviline's certainty to cure.

The following letter is from Mr. E. G. Sautter, Port of Spain, Trinidad: "Last year I was severely troubled with rheumatism. I had it in my arms, shoulders and knees. The pain was at times excruciating and laid me up so that I coudn't work. I went to Smith Brothers' Drug Store and was advised by the manager to use 'Nerviline'. That was excellent advice. I used Nerviline as directed, and was cured, completely cured of every trace of my old enemy."

Once you use Nerviline you'll realize it's different from all the others—that it contains something that gets right "at" the pain the minute you rub it on. Sold by all dealers everywhere, large bottles 25c each, or the Catarrhozone Co. Kingston, Canada.

NATIONAL SERVICE GIRLS MAKE PLANS FOR SUMMER WORK

Will Wear Grey Smocks and Grey Riding Breeches—Decide to Work Ten Hours a Day--Many Requests from Farmers for Service of the Girls.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—A large cow breakfast hat, grey flannel smock neatly belted in at the waist, grey riding breeches, canvas leggings, and stout boots, will be the serviceable and smart costume which the national service girls will wear on the farms next summer. So it was decided at a meeting held here.

The uniform is not compulsory, but it is the one which the majority of the girls have chosen to adopt. Each girl will also wear on her arm the honoured national service badge, and after two months' service, will be the proud possessor of the N. S. button.

After the all-important question of dress was decided, the girls proceeded to a discussion of contracts and salaries. It is agreed that they shall work ten hours per day, two hours of which may be at house work if the farmer so requires. They are not to do any scrubbing or washing, as it would be too great a tax on their strength to do the heavy work of both farm and house. The arrangement is merely that the girls may not be a burden on the often overworked farmer's wife. The two hours' house work must be included in the ten hours' work and not be in addition to it. In many cases, where there is plenty of kitchen help, or where the girls board themselves in a private cottage, this work will not be required. They are to agree to do any farm work, with the exception of pitching, as this would be injurious to their strength. A clause to this effect on the advice of Miss Winifred Harvey of the Ontario Government Employment Bureau, will be clearly stated in the contract.

Already Miss Harvey has had requests from many farmers for the girl workers. She has now thirty-five vacancies. One farmer wants a dozen girls and will turn over a cottage and supply a housekeeper for their use. This is the sort of arrangement which best pleases the girls, and though they are expecting plenty of hard work they are looking forward to the jolly time they are going to have "next summer on the farms."

Bureau For Farm Help You Can Register

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., Will Open His Office Again This Season

That the farm help problem will be a serious one this season is admitted and every effort will be made to assist farmers to secure help in order that the maximum of production can be realized. With this object in view Mr. G. A. Gillespie has again offered his services and that of his staff and office for the purpose of farmers registering their requirements and for men who are desirous of going on the farm leaving their names also at his office, so that as much information will be available as possible in order that the situation may be relieved quickly.

If any man desires to go to a farm he should leave his name at Mr. Gillespie's Office at the Peterborough Creamery at once and the farmers should send in their requirements without delay.

Seeds This Year Will Be Scarce

Make Your Purchases Early and Get the Best Available

Mr. Roland Denne is authority for the statement that from present appearances the supply of seeds for farm and garden will be scarce. In order that he would have a stock he commenced buying last August, and has been on the lookout ever since with the result that all the extra effort will not leave him in quite as good a position as in former years, yet he still will have a better stock than if he had not taken the precaution of early buying.

He now recommends that the gardener or farmer who wants to be sure of his seed should make his selections as soon as he can get them.

If you can go to sleep during that carnival of fun and music, "Oh, Doctor," in which Hal Johnson, the world's famous impersonator, will appear in at the Grand, next Saturday, March 2, you will be entitled to a medal as the champion sleeper of the world. There is not a dull moment in this exceedingly funny musical show. It is guaranteed as a sure cure for the blues and is filled to the brim with catchy songs and pretty girls. The plot deals with the effort of a young chap to gain the consent of a sporty old man with whose ward he is in love. To do this he impersonates a celebrated musical comedy prima-donna with whom the old man has had an "affair." Johnson's impersonation of the actress is one of the most artistic and comical pieces of work seen in musical comedy for many a year. # The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

"THE INTOLERENCE OF YOUTH"

CHAPTER I.

Day after day as I saw his coolness grow more apparent, I made up my mind that my husband, whom I loved with all the abandon of a girl's first love, was tiring of me.

Why was it?

I had heard and read that men only cared for something it was hard to get; that they were emphatically the hunters of the world. That a woman who kept them guessing was the woman to whom they gave allegiance, and a lot of things like that. But I had not supposed it meant married men. Why should they marry if that were so? Surely after one was married there was no need of hunting, no need for a wife to keep her husband chasing.

At first George never had left me, even for a few moments, without a kiss. Now he would leave me for the entire day with just a wave of the hand a "good-bye," did I not hurry from the breakfast table into the hall and cling to him and kiss him.

If I complained that he had left without his usual caress he would say carelessly:

"We're an old married couple now Helen. Do be sensible."

And we had been married less than six months.

Often I cried the entire day. Then he would come home and be cross because my eyes were swollen. He, like all men, hated tears or the evidence of tears.

George was a big, strong, masterful man. He was only six years older than I was, but he seemed so much older than he really was. Strangely it had been one of his attractions. I was so young, so pampered as the only girl among a family of boys, that when this man came and wooed me like a whirlwind, I thought he would always be the same. His love making was very ardent if short. Only three months after we met we were married. Mother had objected, but when he had satisfied father as to his finances, his character, she withdrew her objections and when I was only 19 I was married in the little church where I had always been an attendant, and went away to the big mid-western city where my husband was in business.

But masterfulness in a lover and in a husband mean, and are, two different things, as I was soon to learn. At times I was afraid of George. Imagine a wife afraid of her husband. It was something of which I could not have conceived a year ago. Father and mother were an undemonstrative couple, but thoroughly in accord in nearly everything. If anything, mother usually had the deciding voice.

Another thing I had to learn was that George, maybe all men are the same didn't care to be told of my love. It seemed so queer to me. Before we were married he would ask me if I loved him, and seemed to want me to tell him that I did, and how very dear he was to me. After we had been married less than a year, he looked—and acted—bored when I told him the very things he had begged for before our marriage.

It was hard for me to understand, and when I asked the reason for the change in him, he called it "complaining," or worse still accused me of "nagging."

I wanted so to please him. Perhaps if I hadn't tried quite as hard I should have been more successful. I was more passionately in love with him than at first, if that were possible; but lately I had begun to think he didn't love me.

The thought was torture. And woman-like, rather girl-like, I tortured myself by entertaining it. I was perfectly satisfied to remain quietly at home — if George would remain there with me. But I was only a girl, and when he commenced to stay out, or go out in the evening without taking me—without telling me where he was going—I resented it. In our home I never had been left alone. I couldn't see why I should be now.

George Howard was essentially a man of the world—a club man. He was successful in his business, and when he gave me a good home, and a couple of servants to wait upon me, he considered he had done all that was required of him; in fact that he had done his whole duty by me.

George was also fond of sports. He would pay any amount, go anywhere, to see a baseball game or a prize fight. He cared very little for the theatre and seldom took me, even though he knew I adored going.

It made him very cross, almost angry, with me even at first when I asked him where he was going when he put on his coat and hat after dinner.

"For heaven's sake, Helen, don't get into the habit of asking me where I am going every time I stir! It is most annoying," he would say, then go out without either answering my question or bidding me good-bye.

That all women or nearly all, go through something of the sort at some time in their lives never occurred to me. I was, in my own mind, the most abused girl that ever lived, when such things happened.—To-morrow, 'The Masculine Art of Forgetting.'

Splendid Cast With Richard Carle In Big Musical Comedy Success At Grand Next Monday

The long-awaited engagement of "Furs and Frills," the phenomenally successful musical comedy, comes to The Grand on Monday next, March 4th, with Richard Carle, late star of "The Tenderfoot," "Mary's Lamb," "Jumping Jupiter," "The Spring Chicken," "The Cohan Revue of 1916," and other big musical productions as the star entertainers. Edward Clark, co-author of "You're In Love," wrote the funny book and lyrics, and Silvio Hein composed the tuneful music which has remarkable runs in New York and Boston.

The story is concerned with complications resulting from the purchase by a wife of a sable coat at a bargain sale. Her brother pawns the coat to make a bet on the races. Another wife sees it, and the hubby of wife No. 1 presents it to her. In order to avoid criticisms on the part of her husband, wife No. 2 again pawns it and gives hubby the ticket. He gets the coat and his stenographer walks off with it. Then the complications begin.

Mr. Carle will be surrounded by fifty singers, dancers and comedians, including Harriet Burt, Fern Rogers, Beth Smalley, Burrell Barbaretto, Ollie Rivers, Ben Wells, Harry Miller, Milt Dawson, five violin girls and others.

The large chorus, composed of comely and agile girls who aspire for greater things in the future, and attired in gorgeous costumes will be a prominent feature in the proper preparation of the many catchy musical numbers, some of which are "Furs and Frills," "You Can't take it with You when You Die," "Does Polly Want Wally," "It's Easy to Lie to your Husband," "A Short Farewell is Best," "Heart of My Heart," "Make Yourselves at Home," and others.

Seats are now on sale.

Downie Street Creek Flooded West End Early This Morning, City Engineer's Force Busy

The Downie Street creek broke into the trouble column last night, when a flood of water dammed by the snow, on the property north of McDonnel street, forced a big opening in the natural barrier of snow and poured out on to McDonnel and Downie streets.

At 3 o'clock this morning Police Sergt. Blade hired a taxicab and roused Street Comissioner Evans from his slumbers. Workmen were also rounded up and the city force was at work on the rampaging creek even before daybreak. City Engineer Parsons stated that had the course of the creek been kept clear of snow where it traversed private property the water would have passed off through its usual channel into the main creek. There was considerable damage and inconvenience from the flooding of cellars, but this was more or less general throughout the city.

MANY TELEPHONE CALLS.

The Engineer's Department was unable to attend to the numerous telephone calls that kept up an incessant ringing from an early hour. Citizens chorussed the common complaint that their cellars were either full or filling with water; but there were no idle men in the Works Department gang. Hence the householders have to do their own pumping orfi by some other means, drain their basements.

AN EFFICIENT DRAIN.

The drain laid on Wilson street in Ashburnham was submitted to severe test by the gathering waters, but it relieved a large part of the East Ward, reaching far back into Douro Township. This drain runs from he north side of Rogers street about five hundred feet westerly, emptying into the river. It worked to perfection, and when visited by Engineer Parsons at 6 o'clock this morning, was rushing the flood to the river.

In the south end it was reported that the drainage around the De Laval was satisfactorily carrying off the water.

CANALS ON CAR TRACKS.

Last night the water raced down the street car tracks on George and Park streets. The Park Street stream started from its watershed at Hunter, picked up tributaries here and there and gurgled into the sewer at Townsend street.

Not only was a large number of homes with saturated cellars, but George street stores also got a wetting underneath, and the basement at the city hall had a little pool of its own.

A real lagoon lapped the lawn of Dr. Carmichael's house, at the corner of Brock and Water streets. From Murray street down Water and around almost to George, the water formed a lake that invited boating, at 3 a.m., and skating at 10 o'clock this morning. he weather man is developing a versatility that is amazing but scarcely commendable.

High Heels Put Corns on Toes

Who cares? Corns or calluses lift off without any pain.

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heeled footwear, they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of freezone applied directly upon a sore corn or tender callus gives quick relief and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off without pain. Ask the drug store man for a tiny bottle of Freezone, which costs but a few cents, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

Freezone dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Women! Keep a bottle of freezone handy on the dresser and never let a corn ache twice.

HANGING AT PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE WAS BUNGLED

(Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner).

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 26.— The hanging of Thomas Fletcher at Portage La Prairie at eight o'clock this morning for the murder of a ten year old boy was a revolting affair. Hangman Elliott bungled and the scene was terrible to those who were witnesses. Elliott miscalculated the length of the rope, and when the trap was sprung Fletcher's feet dragged on the ground, and it was necessary to haul him off the ground and hold him suspended until he was pronounced dead.

Abolishment of Heatless Days Now Urged

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.— Considerable pressure is being brought to bear upon the Fuel Controller's Department from various points in Central Canada to have the order compelling heatless Mondays in movie houses and heatless Mondays or Tuesdays in theatres rescinded. The order stands good until the end of March unless it is modified.

The Ottawa Citizen this morning calls upon the Fuel Controller to lift the ban, "now that the coal shortage is largely a thing of the past."

The theatre and movies under the circumstances, says the Citizen, are being discriminated against. "The present Monday prohibition is an injustice," continues the Citizen, "to a particular enterprise and should be lifted at once."

Yesterday in Ottawa the weather was mild and even warm.

To-day, unfortunately for the Citizen's advice, there is a roaring blizzard blowing from the north and the coal shipment will again be held up.

"The question of lifting the ban," said Assistant Fuel Controller Peterson this morning, "has not yet been considered, but may be soon. The storm is not much of an encouragement toward the lifting of the order at the present time."

With a moderating of the weather, however, it is believed here that heatless Mondays and Tuesdays in the pleasure houses will come to an end before the end of March.

No Necessity For Taking Over Ontario Hydro

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—Hon. I. B. Lucas, Attorney-General, and member of the Hydro Commission, stated today that there was no necessity for the Dominion Power Controller, Sir Henry Drayton, to take over the Ontario Hydro Electric system.

"The Power Controller now has full authority to deal with all developing companies as that is the only source of supply," said Mr. Lucas. "This includes the Ontario Power Company, which is controlled by the Hydro Electric. The Power Controller has full authority to dictate what the Hydro should do with its power.

"I am therefore unable to see any necessity for any interference with the local control of the Hydro.

"As I understand it, the Power Controller can declare that munitions or other similar industrial plants shall have priority, and if he does so the Hydro will obey his order.

GROCERS WILL BE LICENSED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—Wholesale and retail grocers, general food and food product dealers and handlers will all shortly be under license, the arrangements of the Canada Food Board in this regard being now practically completed. Already over 100,000 names are listed. The chief purpose of the licensing is that the Board may be able to exercise control over the sales and to restrict hoarding as it cannot do at present. The cancellation of licenses will be the penalty for abuses.

THE HARDY NORSEMEN.

The Story of Norway's Past and Present Briefly Sketched.

In these days, when the question of democracy is so much on everyone's thoughts, it is interesting to notice, if only for a moment, a country which, with much show of justice, can claim to be one of the most democratic in the world. The story of Norway stretches back many centuries, to the very beginning of things in Northern Europe, and the tales of the "hardy Norsemen," the Vikings or creek dwellers, as they were called, and how they swept down in their high-prowed ships, and ravaged the coasts of France and England, rank foremost amongst those tales of high adventure which characterize the history of Northern Europe as it emerges out of the Dark Ages into the Middle Ages.

First of all, they were the veriest marauders of passage, these Vikings—a swift descent and then away to sea again—but, after a time, they began to settle at the mouths of all rivers, until, in the ninth century, there was a Norse camp at the mouth of practically every river of France. And so the Norseman Rollo bartered his favor to the King of France for the Duchy of Normandy. In the early days of the tenth century, and from Normandy, William the Norman sailed, some hundred and fifty years later, to the conquest of England.

Meanwhile, Norway herself had been struggling toward some kind of national unity. First, many head men had become many kings, and at last Harold Haarfager, by his victory over these in A. D. 891, founded the Kingdom of Norway, though it was not until many years afterward that the whole of Norway could be induced to submit to one common law. Norway claims that this took place in 872, and so, in the year 1872, she celebrated the little-known fact that for 1,000 years the country had existed as a monarchy. It is indeed one of the oldest monarchies in the world, but the story of how it came to have one of the most democratic constitutions in the world is another story.

It happened in this wise. During the Napoleonic wars the King of Denmark clung steadfastly to the cause of Napoleon, but when Marshal Bernadotte had been made Crown Prince of Sweden, under the name of Prince Carl, as he was in 1813, he lost no time in joining the Grand Alliance. For his services to the alliance against his old master, the allies rewarded him with the crown of Norway in addition to that of Sweden, thus divorcing Norway from Denmark, to which it had been annexed since the days of Queen Margaret, in 1387.

The Norwegians, however, would have none of any such arrangement. With a long and worthy history behind them, they had no mind to be cast in a bargain at the pleasure of allied statesmen or any other statesmen, and they straightway refused to accept a convention which had been settled and signed behind their backs. A national assembly was summoned to meet at Eidsvold by Prince Christian Frederick, the last Danish Viceroy, and, after framing a constitution based on that of the United States and on that of France in 1791, they proceeded to elect the Prince King of Norway.

To frame a constitution and elect a king was one thing, but to uphold the arrangement against all comers was quite another. Moreover, Prince Christian Frederick was not the man to do it. He was weak and vacillating, and, finally, after some fighting, negotiations were opened. Christian Frederick abdicated, but the King of Sweden consented to Norway retaining the Constitution which had been framed at Eidsvold. Norway, moreover, was to have a separate army, and was declared to be "a free, independent and indivisible kingdom, united with Sweden under one king."

The two kingdoms, however, never ran comfortably in double harness. Norway was forever, in countless different ways, manifesting jealousy for its independence, whilst Sweden was forever reading suspicion into its every act. Thus there was "the 17th of May" and the "battle of the market place," the national flag question, the king's veto, diplomatic representation, consular service, and so on. There was, indeed, always some question burning between the two countries, until, at last, in 1905, came the almost inevitable dissolution of the union. On the 18th of November of that year the Storthing unanimously elected Prince Charles of Denmark as King of independent Norway, and he was crowned the following year, at Trondhjem, as Haakon VII.

Clay as Food.

The considerable rise in the price of rice has led to the discovery by Koreans of a good substitute which is rapidly becoming popular among the people. It is nothing but clay! This edible clay was discovered by a Korean farmer who lost his way in the mountains. He was suffering from hunger when he chanced to see a lump of milky-white clay at the side of a hill. Almost unconsciously he tasted it. To his surprise he found that it was extremely palatable, although it had a slightly acid taste. The story of his find was told far and wide, and purple and black clays were later found to be palatable also.

The method of cooking is to place the clay in a kettle with vegetables and boil until it becomes a pasty mass. It is not only harmless to the stomach, but contains a rather high percentage of nutritious matter.

Aeroplanes.

Aviation officials will strive to reduce the number of parts in an aeroplane, which exclusive of the engine and built-up sections of the frame include nearly 200 separate pieces. These are the things necessary to build a machine without its engine: Nails, 4,326; screws, 3277; steel stampings, 921; forgings, 798; turnbuckles, 276; veneer, 37 square feet; varnish, 11 gallons; dope (for dressing wings), 59 gallons; aluminum, 65 pounds; rubber, 34 feet; linen, 201 square feet; spruce, 244 feet; pine, 58 feet; ash, 31 feet; hickory, 1½ feet.

P. D. Fitzgerald Won Runners-up Game

Percy Fitzgerald's rink, by a score of 16-10, defeated A. W. Archibald in the runners-up contest of the scheduled games last night. It was the only game of the evening, but there was a crowd out to watch it. The teeming rain didn't deter the curlers. The rinks were as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| W. C. Ackerman | Capt. Morrison |
| J. M. Lowes | J. K. Costain |
| W. Menzies | M. C. Tooley |
| P. D. Fitzgerald | A. W. Archibald |
| Skip ..... 16 | Skip ..... 10 |

Score by ends—
Fitzgerald—1110100031100322—16.
Archibald—0001041100012000—10.

J. Skinner was eligible for the finals, at least he was tied with Archibald in their group, but was unable to play off.

The skips' bonspiel opens to-night, and will probably run for the most of the week.

STORY OF BRAZIL.

Two Successful Revolutions Without Any Bloodshed.

Brazil's actual entrance into the war on the side of the Allies awakens a new and widespread interest in that great republic. September 7th and November 15th are the two principal national holidays of the country. The former is the Brazilian Independence Day, for on that day in 1822 the then vice regent of Brazil, the vast colonial possession of Portugal, who was Dom Pedro, son of King John VI. declared the independence of Brazil from the mother country. The Portuguese military garrisons in Rio de Janeiro and other Brazilian cities were easily overcome, with little or no bloodshed, and were transported back to Portugal, and on October 12 Dom Pedro I. was solemnly declared the constitutional emperor and perpetual defender of Brazil, and thus was established the Empire of Brazil.

For sixty-seven years Brazil remained the only independent country in the western world with a monarchial form of government. By the end of that time, however, the ideas of democracy and self government had gained such ascendancy that the people of Brazil decided to transform their monarchy into a republic, and for the second time there was a complete change in government through another bloodless revolution. The people of Brazil had no great quarrel with their easy-going monarch, nor had they any desire to harm him or the members of his family. All respected Dom Pedro II., and many loved him for his fine personal qualities, but it was the monarchial system of government in its entirety they wanted to get rid of, and so it became necessary for them to depose him. This they did on November 15, 1889. Marshal Manuel Deoloro Fonseca, one of the ablest and most popular generals of the Brazilian army, placed himself at the head of the revolution and on the date named published a proclamation in which he stated that the people, the army and the navy had decreed the deposition of the imperial dynasty and the extinction of the monarchial system. He assured the people that the Provisional Government guaranteed all inhabitants of Brazil security for life and property and respect for individual and political rights; that it recognized and respected all national engagements contracted during the monarchy, and that it would adhere to existing treaties with foreign countries, acknowledge the domestic and foreign debt, and assume all other legally constituted obligations.

This was a very simple and very plain document and was signed by Marshal Fonseca as chief of the Provisional Government and the members of the cabinet that had been selected. That was all there was to it. A very polite and courteous letter to Dom Pedro II. informed him that "the presence of the imperial family in this country, in face of the new situation created by the irrevocable revolution on the 15th inst., would be absurd and impossible and provocative of troubles which the safety of the public imposes upon us the necessity to avoid." A time was fixed for the embarkation of the royal family, and the former emperor was assured that "your comfort and health during the passage will be looked after with the greatest of care, and the Government will continue to pay you the sum assured by law until this point has been settled by the approaching constituent assembly." And so it was all settled in the nicest manner possible. Dom Pedro II., erstwhile emperor of Brazil, sailed for Portugal, and the Republic of Brazil started on its prosperous career. No frenzied mobs, no murdering of high officials; no butchering of innocent people; no burning of palaces. Order was maintained, and things went on safely and sanely. Truly a remarkable revolution! And that is all the more reason why Brazil should celebrate the 15th of November, the day when it became a republic without shedding blood. The mother country, Portugal, sent a special embassy, at whose head is Commander Leotte de Rego of the Portuguese navy, to participate in the general rejoicing and celebration, an evidence that all past family differences between the two countries have long since been buried in oblivion.

BASKETBALL

A large crowd was present at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night to see the final game in this group of the O.A.B.A. series. The P.C.I. students were successful in carrying off the honors, defeating the Y.M.C.A. by 32 to 18.

The game was lightning fast from start to finish, but Collegiate team was never in danger. They out-played and out-scored the "Y" team at every turn. They scored 6 baskets before the "Y" could get going. At half time the score was 20-5.

For the P.C.I. team, D. Canniff was the chief goal getter. Long shots were made by B. Pogue; back checking was H. Younge and J. Thirnbeck's strong point; and M. Cottingham, who substituted for A. Stevenson, was very effective.

For the Y.M.C.A. McLeod and M. Brownscombe starred.

The P.C.I. line up was as follows:
Centre: D. Canniff, (captain.)
Forwards: J. Thirnbeck, and H. Younge.
Defence: R. Pogue and M. Cottingham.

The P.C.I. have a first rate team, and with a little public support they ought to go a long way in the championship for Ontario.

The next game will be played with Belleville or Kingston, which will be announced later. Everyone is cordially invited to these games. If you have never seen a basket ball game, come and see the next one, and you will enjoy it.

This is the first year that Peterboro has had a team in the O.A.B.A. and it is hoped that the public in general will give it their hearty support.

Banned I. B. S. Books Surrendered To Police

Seven copies of "The Finished Mystery," the proscribed publication of the International Bible Students' Association, were piled on Chief Thompson's desk to-day, and it is expected that others will be surrendered. Citizens have had ample warning of the seriousness of the offence of possessing a copy of this book, and are given a final warning to hand them over to the authorities.

A CAR OF COAL FOR GOHEEN AND MATCHETT

Chief Thompson countermanded the city's coal orders to-day, reducing the deliveries from 1,000 to 500 pounds.

Goheen and Matchett have received a car of coal which was placed for them this afternoon. They were reminded of the selling regulations, requiring them to possess the Fuel Controller's permit. This is not their first coal purchase, but it is the only car that has reached them this winter, according to police information.

DAYLIGHT SAVING PLAN.

Government Will be Guided by Public Sentiment in the Matter.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—There is no official authority for statements which have been made that the Government will, at the approaching session, introduce a Daylight Saving Bill. The Government is likely to be governed in the matter by public sentiment. If a sufficient body of public opinion in favour of such a measure develops, the new Parliament would doubtless pass the necessary legislation.

SAMPLE OF WHALE MEAT ARRIVES AT OTTAWA

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—Whale meat has been received in Ottawa, but not in quantity for sale on the open market. HOARDING POTATOES RESULTS IN WASTE

Much Stock Has Been Frozen in Vicinity of Kingston.

KINGSTON, Feb. 26. — Renfrew Council will petition the Food Controller to fix a price for potatoes and force hoarders to give them up. Reeve Bolam says large stocks are held in the county for high prices. The result has been that many have been frozen. This state of affairs, the Council thinks, is serious and disastrous, and call for intervention by the food authorities. The same condition, it is stated by the authorities, exists about Kingston and already much waste has resulted from frosts.

ESSEX TO SEARCH FOR PEAT.

Peat may be used for fuel in Windsor and vicinity next winter if a survey being planned by the Border Chamber of Commerce should show such beds in Essex county. It is the opinion of some that a vein of peat that extends from Canadian points on Lake Erie to the vicinity of Sarnia may lie under Essex.

A MIGHTY SHORT MONTH.

The month of February will be the shortest ever known to workingmen and business men.

There are four Sundays in the month two heatless days and Ash Wednesday which is observed as a holiday by some.

In other towns and cities where half holidays are recognized on Saturdays the blow falls with greater force.

THE LEVEL-HEADED business man economizes in many ways, but he never reduces his newspaper advertising when he needs new business.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

GERMANY REFUSES TO GRANT ARMISTICE

Martial Law Has Been Declared In Ireland

Russo-German Peace Terms Callous Beyond Parallel

Reveals the Prussian in His True Colours, as Merciless Toward Those Unable to Resist Him—Turk is to Be Reinstated in Armenia—Will Be No Russia Left.

A LEGACY OF STRIFE

LONDON, Feb. 27.—An article in the Westminster Gazette on the Russo-German peace terms is worth quoting because it not only echoes the general feeling on these terms, but reflects opinion in many quarters which had hitherto been disposed to give the Bolsheviki regime a fair run and judge it solely by results.

"The situation again reveals the Prussian in his true colours," the article says, "he has no mercy on those unable to resist him. He is dismembering Russia as his forebears partitioned Poland. There will be no Russia left in the coming century if he can help it. The Baltic Provinces and Ukraine under one form and another are to be vassals of the great Empires. Poland becomes an enclave helplessly at the disposal of the same powers. Its boundaries are cut and carved with fiendish ingenuity to keep the various races and nationalities in the greatest possible discontent with each other so they cannot combine against their overlords. The Turk is to be reinstated in Armenia and given the opportunity of extinguishing the population which survived the massacres.

"For cynicism and callousness the thing is without parallel and if it stands it means an inexhaustible legacy of trouble, strife and discontent for the world."

HEARSE UPSET NEAR OMEMEE

An unfortunate accident happened in Ops township yesterday near the farm of Mr. Wes. Deyell, when the hearse owned by Mr. Morecomb, of Omemee, upset twice, whiel on its way to the home of Mr. Fergus Porter, on the 14th of Manvers, where the funeral of the late Mrs. Robert Porter was to have been held in the afternoon.

Mr. Morecomb was unable to get through owing to the strong winds, which swept the cumbersome vehicle off the road into the ditch. The owner decided that he could not proceed further and placed the hearse in Mr. Deyell's barn until to-day, when the postponed funeral will be held.

DETAILS OF HOW NEW INCOME TAX WILL BE OPERATED

Will Fall Heaviest on the Unmarried as Married Persons Are Exempt on Incomes Up to $3000—Penalties Severe For Non-compliance With the Act.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26. — The Finance Department is being fairly overwhelmed with inquiries in regard to the new income tax, the forms of which are now being issued. An official memorandum will be issued in a few days giving the rulings which have been made by the department on the various knotty points. There will be about fifty rulings in all.

Farmers have been particularly anxious as to how they should estimate their income. The ruling has been made, and will be given in full in the official memorandum, that farmers should count as income all they produce and consume.

The onus for securing and filling out the forms falls upon the people. Forms will be secured at the larger centres from the offices of the inspector, and likely in the smaller places, where there are no inspectors, they will be available at the post offices. Advertisements will appear in the newspapers explaining the act and what should be done to comply with it. The penalties are severe for non-compliance.

Explanations of Act.

There have been so many inquiries as to how the tax is estimated that the following explanation of the Act will bear repeating:

The normal tax of four per cent. is payable on the whole of the amount by which the income exceeds $1,500, or $3,000, as the case may be.

Income of $1,500— All persons, whether married or unmarried, are exempt up to this amount, it is only the income above $1,500 in the case of unmarried persons and above $3,000 in the case of married persons which is taxed.

Income of $1,800— Married persons pay no tax. Unmarried pay 4 per cent. on $300, or $12.

Income of $2,000 — Married persons pay no tax. Unmarried persons pay 4 per cent. on $500, or $20.

Income of $2,500 — Married persons pay no tax. Unmarried persons pay 4 per cent. on $1,000, or $40.

Income of $3,000— Married persons exempt up to this amount. Unmarried persons pay per cent. on $1,500, or $60.

Income of $3,500 —Married persons pay 4 er cent. on $500, or $20. Unmarried persons 4 per cent. on $2,000 or $80.

Income of $4,000— Married persons pay 4 per cent. on $1,000, or $40. Unmarried persons 4 per cent. on $2,500, or $100.

On any income up to $6,000, the tax for an unmarried persons is 5 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $1,500, and for a married person 4 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $3,000.

Incomes Over $6,000.

On all incomes over $6,000, a graduated supertax in addition to the normal tax is payable.

The supertax is 2 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $6,000, up to $10,000; 5 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $10,000, up to $20,000; 8 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $20,000, up to $30,000; 10 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $30,000 up to $50,000; 15 per cent. of the amount by which the income exceeds $50,000, up to $100,000; and 25 per cent. of the whole of the amount by which the income exceeds $100,000.

A married person with an income of $110,000 will pay the following tax:

4 per cent. on the whole of the amount by which the income exceeds $3,000, in this case 4 per cent. on $107,000, or $4,280.

2 per cent. supertax on amount from $6,000 to $10,000 or 2 per cent. on $4,000, or $80.

5 per cent. supertax on amount from $10,000 to $20,000, or 5 per cent. on $10,000, or $500.

8 per cent. supertax on amount from $20,000 to $30,000, or 8 per cent. on $10,000, or $800.

10 per cent. supertax on amount from $30,000 to $50,000 or 10 per cent. on $20,000, or $2,000.

15 per cent. supertax on amount from $50,000 to $100,000; or 15 per cent. on $50,000, or $7,500.

25 per cent. supertax on amount from $100,000 to $110,000, or 25 per cent. on $10,000, or $2,500.

Or a total tax of $17,660.

On all incomes over $3,000 an unmarried person pays a total tax of exactly $60 more than a married person. This is because an unmarried person pay the normal tax of 4 per cent. on the difference between $1,500 and $3,000.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 1084 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. ## How To Ascertain If You Have Catarrh

Look for Symptoms of This Treacherous Disease in the Following List.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Has your nose an itchy feeling?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhozone," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by catarrhal germs.

"No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhozone," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P. Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of bronchial catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhozone cured quickly."

The dollar outfit last two months, and is guaranteed; smaller size, 50c., sample size, 25c., at all storekeepers and druggists, the The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Receipts for the early market were light, but quite a few belated cars of stocks arrived later, and were mostly held over for to-day's market.

Calves firm.

Sheep and lambs firm.

Hogs held steady at last week's and Monday's prices at $19.25 fed and watered. Receipts of hogs were lighter than expected.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"Her suit case was sprawling open and her leather purse lay on top. She looked to see if she had put her ticket inside and showed it to me. She told me who the people were she had been visiting, and said that she was going out to join the show again. I didn't know quite what she meant, indeed it scarcely seemed to me that I was listening, yet I remembered every word.

"There was another strange thing, too, Mr. Terhune. She had a scar, just as I have, across her left side, only hers was fresh and seemed only lately healed. We had marked the coincidence when we were changing, and she wanted to know what had happened to me: I told her that I had been injured in an aeroplane fall and asked if hers, too, was the result of an accident. She glanced at me obliquely and laughed again in that queer hard way.

"'The only accident about it was that it didn't do for me,' she said. 'That's an old score checked up, sister!'

"I had noticed, also some lovely fresh roses in a box on the bed, and asked if she did not mean to take them. She shook her head.

"'I don't feel much like pinning roses on myself to-night, and I guess you don't either.' She picked up the card and then threw it down again. 'The poor boob! Thinks he's going to follow me out to Chicago, but I am fighting shy of the serious stuff. I always give them the laugh when they start that!'

"She clattered on as she moved about, picking up her remaining things. I wanted to rush to Tony the instant that I was dressed but a strange lethargy held me. That awful piano was banging and ringing in my ears, and quite suddenly it seemed to die away, and the sound of her voice, too, and everything grew dark.

"The next thing that I knew my face and neck were all wet and she stood over me rubbing my wrists.

"'You'll be all right in a minute,' she said. 'You keeled over like a shot. I believe I know what's the matter with you. You are hungry!'

"It was true. I didn't know it then, but she dragged me out to the kitchen in spite of my protestations that every minute counted and I had to go. She made a sandwich for me and I ate it ravenously, but of course I couldn't touch the whisky or beer she offered me.

"There is a sort of freight and tradesman's elevator which opens directly in the kitchen in those apartments. It is the only possible entrance, Mr. Terhune, besides the front door, and she locked and fastened it as she had the others. I am convinced that there could have been no one hiding in the apartment, for she told me that she had looked all through it just before I came; she explained that she wasn't usually a fool but she felt nervous as a cat that night, and kept thinking she heard things.

"I've taken a long while to tell you this but I have tried to give you every little detail that I could remember. I could no have been with her for more than a half hour for it was almost half past ten when I entered the building.

"She—her name, she told me by the way, was Ivy Collins—she began to question me not in an unpleasant way—but curious—like a child. She said she had taken me for a high class crook in a tight squeeze at first, but she knew from my talk that I was a lady. I mentioned something about an elopement, and that I had been followed by people in a limousine, and begged of her to open the door, and let me go, as I had friends in the building who would help me now.

"'Man friends!' she laughed, 'or you wouldn't have had to get clothes from me. Never mind, sister, your secret is safe with me. Come on till I get my things and we'll go out together. You had better take a flash out of the window and see if your little pals are still there in the car.'

"I went back with her to the library and looked from the window; the limousine was across the street. I waited while she proceeded to the bedroom and picked up her suit case. I was standing by one end of the piano, between it and the archway, leading to the drawing room. She had one glove half on, and handed me the suit case to hold while she stopped the piano and switched off the lights——"

Marion's voice had commenced to falter again, and now another uncontrollable tremor shook her, and she turned very white. Terhune then sprang to his feet and hasily poured a glass of ice water from the silver tankard on a stand, but she refused it.

"There isn't much more to tell, but it came so swiftly and was so confused that I don't know how to make you see as I did. The last hour had passed in a sort of dream and what followed in the next minute was like a frightful, distorted nightmare!

"She started towards the piano attachment, but stopped as if a reminder of something had come to her and walked over to the writing table. She was standing at one side of it before the opened window near the opposite wall when suddenly a man appeared in front of my eyes!

"There had not been a sound, he seemed to spring from nowhere! I tried to cry out but my throat closed as if a hand had gripped it. The man did not even notice me, but for an instant he crouched, poised for a spring.

"It all happened then in a flash! She wheeled around, saw him, and seizing something from the desk she raised it over her head, calling out in a low hoarse sort of scream. He laughed and leaped for her!

"There was a queer, choking cry, a confused blur before my eyes, and confused blur before my eyes and she over the low sill of the window almost instantaneously with this spring! He had not seemed to strike her a blow; it was as if with one mighty swing of his arms, he had obliterated her from the face of the earth.

"It was an eternity before that horrible thud of her body striking the sidewalk came to my ears. He had stood poised and immovable after his leap and after he heard the sound of her fall he laughed again, softly, but dreadfully. Then he paused and passed like a swift, noiseless shadow from the room.

"I am sure that he did not even see me, for I had sunk back instinctively in the triangular niche between the piano and the wall, and terror had constricted my very breathing. Everything went around before my eyes and it seemed an hour that I clung there praying that I might not faint, with that terrible music jingling on insensately and from somewhere directly underneath the screams of a woman rising.

"It could not have been more than a minute, however. My first thought seemed to be to stop that piano, and mechanically I found the spring, and switched it off. I put my free hand against the wall to steady myself and my fingers came in contact with the electric light button. I pressed it to turn on the light and then fled—fled for my very life down that hall.

"For a minute that seemed a perfect age I fumbled with the lock and the chain. The door opened finally, and I stumbled through, closing it after me, and rushed to Tony's, beating upon it with all my might.

"When he came I threw myself in his arms but I did not give way utterly. After my momentary weakness my brain seemed to clear and to work with lightning-like rapidity. In a few broken sentences I told him what had happened to the poor creature in the other apartment and why I had come to him. He had been at the window, attracted by the screaming, when I came to his door.

"We realized instantly what a trap we were in. The house would be searched almost at once, the tenants questioned, and if I was there, my stepfather would claim me and take me away, and this time he would run no chance of my slipping through his grasp.

Hot Water Each Morning Puts Roses in Your Cheeks

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Girls and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

Women who desire to enhance the beauty of their complexion should just try this for a week and notice results.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

An Important Witness

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Jimmie Conolly willie fishing in a small lake by the railroad, hearing a train coming, looked up as it passed and saw the engineer, instead of having his hand on the throttle and his eyes on the track ahead, dancing a hornpipe on the floor of the cab. Jimmie was only thirteen years old. He was wise enough to understand that such conduct was irregular, but it did not freeze him with horror as it would an older person. At the moment there was a tug on his line, and he pulled out a fat pickerel. For the time being he forgot the dancing engineer.

Mrs. McCoy, the wife of the engineer of the train on which this scene occurred, lived near a station at which her husband was accustomed to stop for water. The train time at the station was 12:23, and she was accustomed to take her husband's dinner to him at that hour. On the day Jimmie Conolly saw him dancing a hornpipe Mrs. McCoy started earlier than usual from her house on a hill sloping down to the track with the dinner.

Before she had made half the distance she was astonished to hear the train coming. A few seconds later, going at a speed far greater than usual it passed her, ignoring the station completely. As it went by she saw a sight that first caused her to drop the dinner pail, then topple over in a dead faint. Her husband was struggling with the stoker, who hit him on the top of the head with some iron instrument and dropped him on the cab floor.

Jake Rogers, the stoker, stopped the train at the next station, five miles distant from the water tank. McCoy was found in the cab dying with a fractured skull. Rogers reported that McCoy, in whom he had recently noticed signs of insanity, had suddenly gone crazy and had dashed onward at a terrific gait. Rogers, whose back was to ward the engineer, turning suddenly saw him dancing on the cab floor while the train was roaring along under no guiding hand. Rogers attempted to get by McCoy, who tackled him and, being the stronger man, was about to throw him from the cab. The fireman's life as well as the lives of hundreds of passengers was at stake. Rogers had a wrench in his hand and struck his adversary on the head with it, intending to stun him. Instead he fractured his skull, killing him.

Mrs. McCoy was sent for and as soon as she saw Rogers hysterically accused him of murdering her husband. The fireman was put under arrest and in time indicted for the murder of the engineer. There was no corroboration of his story further than certain passengers bore witness that they thought the train was traveling rather fast. But this counted for very little. Mrs. McCoy, who was very bitter against Rogers, found several sympathetic friends who were willing to testify that Rogers had been at enmity with her husband and had been heard to make threats. There was some foundation for this, for Rogers wished to be made an engineer, and McCoy for some reason unknown except to himself declined to help him secure the coveted promotion.

Rogers was tried, and the evidence was strong against him. Only one person was found to testify that he had noticed strange actions on the part of McCoy, while a dozen swore that he was as sane as any man. The story told the jury by the bereaved wife through tears had a telling effect. Rogers was an orphan and had no one to influence the jury in his behalf by weeping for him. The trial was nearing an end, and the consensus of opinion was that he would be convicted, though there was sympathy for him by some of the passengers who had been on the train when the tragedy occurred and who considered that in any event they had had a narrow escape.

The trial did not take place near where the murder had been committed, and Jimmie Conolly heard nothing about it. One evening his father came in to supper and remarked:

"Rogers has been convicted."

"Who's Rogers?" asked Jimmie.

"The stoker who killed the engineer last August."

"What engineer?"

Mr. Conolly told his son the story of the murder. It brought back the remembrance of the sight he had seen while fishing on the lake.

"I seen an engineer last summer," he said, "dancin' in his cab while the engine was runnin' wild."

That was all Jimmie had seen, but it impressed his father as of possible importance in the McCoy case. The next morning he called up by phone Rogers' legal defender, who interviewed Jimmie, and by comparing dates and clock time discovered that Jimmie had seen McCoy on the day of the murder.

Rogers had not been sentenced, and the case was reopened. Jimmie was called to the stand, and after counsel for the defense had established the essential facts the boy told how he had seen the engineer dancing on the cab floor and the train running wild. Since the train passed the lake on which the boy fished several minutes before it reached the tank station, Jimmie's testimony corroborated that of the stoker.

Rogers was acquitted, and his first act after being freed was to take the witness who had saved him in his arms and hug him.

Rogers was promoted to be engineer and received a handsome purse made up by the passengers whose lives he had saved. Jimmie in time became his fireman and is now a division superintendent on the road.

A Fight for Life

It has been fight or die for many of us in the past and the lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called "An-u-ric." You should promptly heed these warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, backache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, sciatica or lumbago. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as diabetes or stone in bladder.

To overcome these distressing conditions take plenty of exercise in the open air, avoid a heavy meat diet, drink freely of water and at each meal take Anuric (double strength). You will, in a short time, find that you are one of the firm indorsers of Anuric.

Hamilton, Ont.—"For kidney ailments I have never known any medicine to equal Anuric. When I started to take it I was very miserable with lame back, pains in the cords of my neck and shoulders and all over my body. The water was high colored and offensive. All of these conditions left me after one week's use of Anuric and I consider it to be the greatest of all kidney medicines."—MRS. JENNIE CLARK, 79 Queen St. So.

Toronto, Ont.—"My husband suffered severely with pains in his back for three or four weeks. He commenced to take Anuric and in three or four days he not only looked better, but remarked that his back felt much better, and now he says that his pain has all gone. It is with pleasure that we recommend Anuric."—MRS. MARY RYAN, 54 Seaton St.

The potato was first introduced into Spain by Hieronymus Cardan, a monk, in 1553; into England by Sir John Hawkins and Sir Francis Drake in 1563, and into Ireland by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1580.

Fertile Land Untouched.

The mountain regions of Cuba include many ridges and valleys of extremely fertile land, nearly all untouched, and existing practically as they did before the time of the Spaniards.

Heart Beat So Fast
Could Not Sleep
HAD TO SIT UP IN BED

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, now and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it will burst. You have weak and dizzy spells, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

There is no other remedy will do you so much good, restore your heart to a natural condition, build up your strength and give you back vigor and vitality as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. Russell, Niagara Falls, Ont., writes: "At nights I could not sleep, and had to sit up in bed, my heart would beast so fast.

"When I went to walk very far I would get all out of breath, and would have to sit down and rest before I could go any further. I was advised to get Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had used two boxes I could sleep and walk as far as I liked without any trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Musical Conductors.

Really great musical conductors are few, and of these Hans Richter stood in the forefront. It is difficult to define just what differentiates a good conductor from a mere time beater, but a story that is told of Richter may help indirectly. In the prelude to "Tristan und Isolde" occurs a beautiful passage for the oboe, which rises, swells, and dies away to a pianissimo most effectively. To indicate the quality of the playing which he wanted from this instrument, Richter, beating the time with his right hand, placed his left hand over his heart, and the oboe player at once responded to a direction all-inclusive in its simplicity and intelligibility.

Women Better or Worse.

Women, when they are bad, are worse than men and more disposed to commit crime. When the sex which is sweet by inheritance once becomes degraded it falls into greater excesses than the other. Women are always either much better or much worse than men.

A Commuter's Ambition.

We'd like to be in a financial position when we take a meal out, as we do once every two or three months with all the regularity of clockwork, to go to some place where "fruits in season" on the menu doesn't mean chiefly bananas.

Utilizing Rice Hulls.

Experiments have been made with rice hulls in combination with different binding agents, but while the resulting briquets gave every satisfaction from the standpoint of heating, yet the initial cost of the various binding agents made their cost too high for practical purposes. The experiments, however, are being continued, and it is hoped that in the future a briquet can be manufactured that will be satisfactory from an economic standpoint.

A Leaking Faucet.

When the faucets in the bathroom or kitchen leak or do not allow the water to flow freely they need a new washer, and the washers cost five cents each. To put on the washer, turn off the water, the rod is usually under the sink or in the basement, and unscrew the faucet; take off the worn-out washer and slip on a new one and turn your water on again and presto! the work is done and no repair bill to pay.

Make Windows by Hand.

In making stained-glass windows every bit of the work is done by hand, and it is amazing to realize how many times each piece of glass must be handled. An operator tells of counting up one day and finding that no less than twelve times were necessary. All the leadwork is done by hand too, even the opening of the little slots into which the glass is fastened.

Record Floods in China.

The Celestial kingdom has been the scene of some of the most terrible floods on record, observes London Tit-Bits. In 1801 the Yellow river overflowed and destroyed nearly 2,000 villages and towns and 5,000,000 people. Two years later there were great inundations in Mongolia, caused by typhoons, resulting in a death roll of 6,000.

Meet Trouble.

Rise above small things. The woman who lets small things worry her will be completely undone the first time she meets with a really big problem. It is disintegrating to your mental and nervous condition, not to mention your physical condition, to worry. You needn't be resigned to fate nor slip your troubles off as the old friend duck's back throws water. But you can meet troubles with a will to conquer them or adjust them—and, after that, "they should worry," but not you.

Boys Drowned, Cat Escaped.

The tables were turned in a tragic manner at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, recently when two young boys who attempted to drown a cat—at the request of the animal's owner—were themselves drowned in a small bay about three miles from the city. The cat struggled when the lads tried to hold its head under the waves and before the boys realized their danger they were swept out to sea by the outgoing tide. The cat escaped from the water and returned to its old home.

Children Like It

It is not an easy matter to get a medicine that children like, or to force them to take one they don't like. Most mothers know that a cough medicine, while palatable, should contain no drug injurious to the child. The great popularity of is explained by the fact that it contains no opium or narcotic of any kind, and at the same time is so pleasant and agreeable to the taste that children like it. For this reason it is a favorite with the mothers of young children.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

Yours for health,

Do Your Work Properly.

Make up your mind that you will do what you have to do the very best you know how. There is very little work that is really difficult. But all good work is painstaking. If you put your whole soul into your work, you will learn to enjoy it, and you will become constantly better and more worth while.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

"The Masculine Art of Forgetting"

CHAPTER II.

It used to be a constant puzzle to me how George could do as he did, and then apparently forget all about the fact that he had hurt and displeased me, and expect me to do the same.

Why, it would be days before I could forget, when he neglected me or when he failed to caress me. I tried not to speak of it often, but I couldn't help asking him occasionally if he loved me—at least I thought I couldn't help it.

It seemed to me that at this time I was always trying to swallow the lump in my throat, always trying to keep from crying. I don't know what I should have done had it not been for the cook, a big, good-natured Irish woman named "Mary." She seemed to sense that I was unhappy, although I never complained to a servant, and in many ways made things easier for me. Then, for days at a time, the only times I laughed was when she would say something funny. She had real Irish wit, and as I look back, I think often exercised it when she saw me moping about the house—blue and unhappy because George hadn't been loving and thoughtful.

The other maid, Annie, was about my age—a good servant but anxious always to get through her work and out.

"Shure what can you expect of the light-headed things?" Mary grumbled. "Courtin' is more to their minds than dustin' and makin' beds. I only hopes they do it better than they do their work—just hurrin' to git it over no mater how's it done."

"Didn't you ever have a sweetheart, Mary?" I asked her one day when her complaints were a little louder than usual.

"You did I see," I interrupted.

"Shure I did! But I ain't had no use for the men, begorra, since Pat left me for that doll-faced Norah Malone. Me getting me wedding clothes ready on the sly, too!"

"Men are funny," I said more to myself than to her.

"Indade they are, Miss, it don't make no difference whether they is black or white, or Irish, they be all alike, the deceivin' creatures."

"Oh no, Mary, they aren't all like that—like your Pat. My father has always been so good to mother, so careful of her, and—"

"She better take good care of the ould gentleman thin. They don't grow many of them."

I laughed heartily, which was what Mary intended, then resumed:

"And there is Mr. Howard. He'll always love me."

I was trying to assure myself more than to impress Mary, and I paid no attention to the sniff which accompanied her answer.

"Of course he will, dearie. Excuse me, Mrs. Howard, you seem so young and innercent like."

"That's all right, Mary. It was dad's pet name for me. He has called me 'Dearie' ever since I was a tiny girl."

So often she and I would chat a little, especially when George remained out and Annie also left us. Someway, I never cared to talk much when the younger girl was around.

I tried very hard not to cry when George left me alone. But when I had spent the long evening sobbing my heart out he would never say he was sorry; he would only find fault because I had cried.

"You make it dammed pleasant for a man!" he said to me when, with reddened eyes and a catch in my words, I told him how lonely the evening had been. "It's a devlish fine thing to see nothing but red eyes and hear nothing but fault-finding. I'll stay out altogether if it isn't stopped."

Then, fearful that he meant it, I would try for days to hide all my feelings from him; and he would be so pleasant, so kind, sometimes loving, that my courage would return, and I would go around the house humming a song, or would sit at the piano playing for hours.

When he took me out with him I fairly bubbled over with joy. He had always seemed to be pleased when I was enthusiastic, until one evening we met some friends of his after the theatre and we talked of the play; I had had a lovely time and said something to that effect in the taxi on our way home.

"Don't gush so much over every little thing! it isn't dignified," he said, then relapsed into silence.

When he spoke, I had been hunting undr the robe for his hand. I liked to feel his strong fingers around mine. But I drew my hand back under the robe for his hand. I liked prevented my showing my affection.

I was perhaps supersensitive. I felt such snubs so terribly. I know now that I gave them more importance than I should. Much of it was in the way of speaking, more than the words. But it all hurt—hurt so badly that I scarcely knew how to bear it, so badly that I couldn't bear it without complaining—a little. To-morrow—what she remembers.

A DARING PACIFIST.

French School Teacher Works Against the Militarists.

The arrest in Paris recently of Helene Brion, primary public school teacher, on the charge of spreading pacifist peace at any price, anarchist propaganda, has uncovered what seems to be a much ramified anti-militarist plot.

Through this arrest and others now pending the authorities have discovered that despite the real patriotism of 99 per cent. of the peoples of France a leaven of unrest has been working among, oddly enough, a small percentage of the class whose duty it is to preach loyalty to the Government, the public school teachers.

On October 25, 1917, a M. and Mme. Mayoux, both Government instructors at Dignac, were arrested and found guilty of spreading anti-patriotic, alarmist propaganda. They were remanded for further hearing either before the Bordeaux Court of Appeals or before a military court-martial. The Mayouxs were found to be in communication with Helene Brion, who had been under police surveillance. Her room was searched last August and because of the seditious literature found among her effects she was suspended from her duties as a teacher. Despite this circumstance, she continued to draw her salary.

Other documents found were pamphlets urging soldiers to desert and a voluminous correspondence with the Mayouxs that was really responsible for that couple's arrest. There also were detailed accounts and eulogistic comments on the Zimmerwald and Kienthal pacifist conferences, also various subscription lists for the propagation of the peace at any price idea in France.

At the same time that Helene Brion's quarters were ransacked a search was made at the home of two other suspects, both of whom have since been arrested: Mme. Dufour, a teacher at Joigny, and Gaston Moufiard, twice wounded at the front and lately called to duty in a munitions factory. Seditious literature was found among their belongings, likewise a quantity of paper butterflies bearing anarchist, anti-militarist texts, preaching class hatred, resistance to military orders, peace at any price and the call for a general revolution.

All this printed matter came from Lausanne and Geneva, where it was published by a committee created for the re-opening of international relations—a committee of which the Mayouxs and Helene Brion were active members. From letters seized in the quarters of these pacifists it was shown that in 1915, acting together, they succeeded in getting their unwholesome literature into the hands of a great many soldiers at the front.

Helene Brion was a particularly zealous propagandist in pacifist circles. In all the suburbs north and northeast of Paris—at Saint Denis, Aubervilliers, Pre-Saint Gervais—the Illacs—she was known for the violence of her anti-patriotic sentiments that she never missed a chance to express. The marvel has been that notwithstanding her ideas and her incessant activities, she was free from police interference and permitted to continue her insidious campaign for months.

Her pet theories were Malthusian, defeatist, anti-militarist and anarchist, and she was a member of several revolutionary groups, treasurer of a feminist association, and, to cap the climax, Government public school teacher.

Helene Brion always dresses in men's clothes, which are partly concealed by a long white workman's blouse. She often went about the streets carrying a ladder on her back, a paste pot in her hand and under her arm a bundle of posters—which she used to paste on blank walls. Last winter, during the coal distribution difficulties, she incited the workwomen of her quarter to revolution.

On August 1, 1914, she was heard to exclaim in the courtyard of her school:

"I'd like to set fire to the Ministry of War!"

She spent the first Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of mobilization in Paris, and came back to Pantin, declaring:

"I wonder I wasn't arrested! I certainly didn't hesitate to shout in the streets what I thought of the Government!"

To Protect Trees.

For protecting fruit trees from frost an inventor has patented a tent to be placed under them and diffuse through them the heat from a lamp inside the tent.

What's the Answer?

The race horse eats no meat,
He can travel fast and far;
But the greyhound, just as fleet,
Does eat it—so there you are.

Disabled Soldiers.

The Correspondenzblatt der Generalkomission der Gewerkschaften Deautschlands of September 1 says: "The nervous affection among soldiers, which causes a constant trembling of the whole or part of the body, seems much worse to the onlookers than to the actual sufferers, and on this account has often made it very difficult for the latter to obtain employment, especially as the malady was supposed to be incurable. As early as a year ago, however, Sanitatsrat Dr. Ernest Beyr, chief physician of the nerve hospital at Roderbirken, near Leichlingen, declared that this trembling could be cured. The results obtained at the time were not very satisfactory, but meanwhile it has been found possible to remove trembling and other nervous twitchings with a rapidity and a certainty formerly considered impossible.' Dr. Beyer reported lately that many hundreds of those affected in this way had been cured of their trouble—over 300 so far in the institution conducted by him, where the new process has been in use since November 17, 1916.

"By the application of a gentle electric current, which causes no pain, or, even apart from that, by the exercise, according to certain instructions, of the muscles affected, good results have often been obtained in a few minutes or at the longest after two and a half hours. A course of treatment is still required after this, which does not last more than two or three weeks, and in light cases is finished after a few days. The doctor must also be called in again in the case of new attacks due to excitement. Those who have recovered, however, know that the malady is easily curable, and by their own efforts can get over such new attacks or help considerably toward a cure."

The Point.

There was the usual collection of drummers in the smoke room, and among them the inevitable quiet man. Conundrums had been the order of the evening, and the fun waxed fast and furious.

Then the quiet man spoke.

"It's easy," he began, "to answer such riddles as 'Why is your hat like a baby?' which only contains one smile, but some of those with two and more are twisters. For instance, what is the difference between the son of a millionaire, an organ, and a gum pot?"

"I give it up," said the mustard traveller, who was generally very hot at guessing riddles.

"The son of a millionaire is an heir to millions, while an organ has a million airs. See?"

"But what about the gum pot?" inquired the hosiery representative.

"Oh, that's just where you stick," replied the quiet man.—Exchange.

No Wonder.

An Irish guardsman, billeted in a certain town, was complaining bitterly about his hard bed.

"Do you know," retorted the landlady dramatically, "that the Duke of Wellington slept in that same bed?"

"Oh, did he?" retorted the guardsman. "No wonder he was called the Iron Duke."

He Knew.

The geography lesson was about to begin, and the subject of it was France. Accordingly, the teacher started off with the question: "Now in this present terrible war, who is our principal Ally?" "France," came the answer from a chorus of voices. "Quite right," said the teacher, beaming. "Now can any of you give me the name of a town in France?" A small boy at the back of the class almost fell over in his eagerness to tell. "Somewhere," he said breathlessly.

As the World Moves.

"Love makes the world go round," quoted the Parlor Philosopher. "Yes, but marriage generally squares things," added the Mere Man.

Worth Consideration.

Pleasure comes through toil and not by self-indulgence and indolence. When one gets to love work, his life is a happy one.

Sir Oliver Lodge's Faith.

"I will not believe that it is given to man to have thoughts higher and nobler than the real truth of things."

World's Deepest Valley.

The deepest valley is believed to be in Palestine; it is at least one thousand three hundred feet below the level of the sea.

Fatigue and Toxin.

The idea that fatigue is due to a specific toxin, as suggested by Welch art early in the century, has been a popular one, but the late investigation of Lee and Aronovitch at Columbia university shows it to have no good foundation. There is nothing, therefore, to encourage the hope that an antitoxin may be found. In the experiments made with animal muscles, a test muscle suspended in the juice of a fatigued muscle lost much in contractile power, but the juice of a non-fatigued muscle produced substantially the same effect.

Largest Poisonous Reptile.

The Surucucu, known as the bushmaster, is the largest poisonous reptile in the world, and is fortunately rare and found only in the depths of the jungle and swamps, where man rarely penetrates. It attains a length of twelve to fifteen feet; the color of its body is rose, or rather yellowish pink, with brown patterns and tints of purple. Its bite is almost always fatal. Its fangs are an inch long and as much as ten ounces of venom have been extracted.

Thought and Faith.

Men who are seeking for knowledge in regard to subjects as to which there can, in the nature of things, be none, might well ask themselves whether there is to be no sphere left in human thought in which faith can operate. It was said of Arnold of Rugby that his mind could rest as quietly in the presence of doubt as in that of discovered truth. It is a great thing to be able to believe where we cannot prove.

The Dread Of An Operation

Keeps Many Pile Sufferers From This Risky and Expensive Method of Treatment—You Can Be Cured Without an Operation.

ST. JEAN, Que., Jan. 30.—Possibly you are a sufferer from piles, and have been disheartened and discouraged because your physician has told you that nothing short of an operation will cure you.

You dread the thought of a surgical operation, for, besides the expense and strain on the nervous system, there is the risk of life itself. Dr. Chase's Ointment has frequently cured piles after surgical operations have failed. It is every day curing cases which physicians have stated to be incurable by any treatment short of an operation.

If you could read a few of the letters we receive from persons who have been cured of piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, you would soon be convinced of its wonderful control over his frightfully common disease.

Mr. Charles Beauvois, a well-known citizen of St. Jean, Que., writes: "For fourteen years I suffered from chronic piles and considered my case very serious. I was treated by a celebrated doctor, who could not help me and ordered a surgical operation as the only means of relief. However, I decided to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and obtained great relief from the first box. By the use of three boxes I was entirely cured. This is why it gives me great pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from piles as a treatment of the greatest value."

An Arab's Saying.

"It is well that all men are not rich. Riches corrupt the soul, but virtu enlarges the hope." These words wer found in the parchment of an Arabi treatise by some ruler, and is no doub the bitter verdict of many that ar rich today.

What Might Have Been.

"What are you worrying about?" "If I eat eggs I think about the chickens they would have produced, and if I at chickens I think about the eggs they might have laid; and it's becoming difficult for me to enjoy anything."

TO SUFFER FROM HEADACHES

Makes Life Miserable

Headaches seems to be habitual with many people. Some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually with the dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on.

The varieties of headache most common are sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, debility or indigestion and periodical and spasmodic headache, and undoubtedly the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be had.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that has been on the market for over 40 years, removes the cause of the headaches, and not only does this but also restores the entire system to healthy action and buoyant vigour.

Miss Emily Smith, 204 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters. For two years I was greatly troubled with violent headaches, particularly in the morning. I tried everything to cure me until a friend recommended B.B.B. I tried it, and now I am completely cured."

READY!

In the newspapers there recently appeared articles telling of the arrival of the American fleet at Queenstown—telling how the Officers of the English Navy had gone to Vice-Admiral Sims and asked him when he would be ready for action. Every American thrilled with pride at his answer—

"WE CAN START AT ONCE."

"READY TO START AT ONCE"—What a wonderful motto for every man, and yet how many of us realize that at any moment we may suddenly be called away from Business, from Home and Friends, from this world of ours to pass in to the Great Beyond.

Are you Mr. Reader, "READY TO START AT ONCE?" Have you made provision for those dependent on you should the call come?

"READY TO START AT ONCE." No man can do more—we cannot afford to do less.

If your loved ones are not already protected against such an emergency you had better act while you have the opportunity. To-morrow may be too late.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada will protect your Dependents providing you do your duty while the opportunity is yours.

RUSSIANS HURL INVADERS BACK AT SEVERAL POINTS

Battle For Possession of Phkoff Was a Russian Victory ---Enthusiasm For the Defence of the Revolution is Growing Hourly and There is a Constant Stream of Armed Men Leaving For the Front--Germans Are Beaten at Vitebesk and Near Orsha--Huns Are Trying to Cut Off Petrograd From South.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(By Joseph Shaplen).

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

PETROGRAD, Feb. 27.—The Germans have been hurled back at Vitebsk, and eighteen miles from Orsha. (Vitebsk is the capital of the province of that name, 300 miles south of Petrograd). Orsha is an important railway junction on the Dnieper River, thirty miles south of Vitebsk, and forty-four miles north of Mohileff.

After fortifying Borosoff (80 miles west of Orsha and 30 miles north-east of Minsk), the Germans advanced towards Orsha. Russian forces made a sortie and beat the Germans back 18 miles out from the city.

Then, retiring upon the city, the Russians blew up a bridge over the Berezina (where Napoleon suffered heavy losses in November, 1812), and began an orderly evacuation.

Germans seeking to occupy Vitebsk, where the first mobilization for the defence of Petrograd occurred, were thrown back.

The Germans are organizing detachments of Ukrainian prisoners at Rovno (in Volhynia).

"ADVANCE MUST CONTINUE."

The German command advancing toward the capital, informed that the Russians had accepted peace, queried their representatives at Brest-Litovsk. The reply came back, "The advance must continue."

The Germans evidently are determined to occupy Petrograd, and are also seeking to cut off the capital from the south.

The battle for the possession of Phkoff, which continued through the night, ended in a Russian victory. The Russians have succeeded in removing most of the vast store of supplies there, valued at 400,000,000 rubles, into the interior. (Phkoff is 162 miles south-west of Petrograd).

The Commissariat has admitted that Reval (capital of Esthonia), situated on an arm of the Gulf of Riga, 200 miles west of Petrograd, was captured after a battle in which the sailors and Red Guards contested every step.

The Germans surrounded the city in the evening. They approached within seven versts (4.67 miles) and sent representatives forward. These declared that in view of Esthonia's independence, they were coming as guests. The defenders refused to accept that attitude, and the battle ensued.

Enthusiasm for the defence of the Revolution grows hourly. There is a constant stream of armed men leaving for the front. Two hundred thousand Proletarists have enrolled.

The staff at Luga (100 miles south of Petrograd, on the Riga-Petrograd Railway) wired that they would be able to halt the Germans if they had reinforcements. These were sent immediately.

Officers are eagerly joining the garrisons, which are re-invigorated and being organized hurriedly.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(Official).—Hostile raids were repulsed during the night north-west of St. Quentin, in the neighbourhood of Bullecourt and east of Vermelles, says to-day's War Office report. The artillery was active on both sides early this morning north-east and east of Ypres.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—It is uncertain whether the Germans or the Russians now hold Phov. Fighting at Rostov, on the Don, ceased on Monday night. The Cossacks retreated and are being pursued by the Bolsheviki forces.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—Two British steamers are coming up the Delaware River with survivors and dead of the United States naval tug Cherokee, which foundered yesterday off Fenwick Island Lightship.

BRITISH HOSPITAL SHIP IS SUNK

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The British hospital ship Glenart Castle was sunk in the Bristol Channel at 4 a.m. yesterday. She was outward bound with all lights burning. No patients were aboard. The survivors were landed by an American torpedo boat destroyer. Eight boats are still adrift. The Glenart Castle, 6,807 tons gross and 440 feet long, was built at Belfast in 1900. She was owned in Southampton.

Thirty-four survivors of the 200 on board have been landed in Wales.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Editorial comment of the morning newspapers assert that Count Von Hertling's latest words leave the situation unchanged. Some newspapers, however, see useless effort to try and drive a wedge between the United States and Great Britain.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—As far as the British public is concerned, the mild words of Count Von Hertling concerning Germany's pacific intentions fall upon almost deaf ears. All details of the new war against helpless Russia rob the German statesmen of their stock-in-trade, the plea that Germany is waging a war of self-defence.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The French press generally considers Chancellor Von Hertling's speech as simply a continuation of Germany's efforts to create differences between the Entente Allies.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 27.—(Official).—After heavy bombardment, the German troops in the Champagne last night attempted to recapture the positions recently taken by the French at Butte Du Mesnil. The Germans were halted by the French fire.

FATE WILL BE DECIDED LATER.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

LONDON, Feb. 27.—"The fate of occupied Russia, regardless of any Russian or Roumanian peace treaties, will be decided at the General Peace Conference," Arthur J. Balfour, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, declared in the Commons to-day.

MANY QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED BY EXEMPTED MEN

Questionaires to Be Sent Out in Few Days by the Military Service Council Call For the Supplying of Much Information

MUST BE ANSWERED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 27. — Questionaires have been prepared by the Military Service Council to be filled in by men who have already been exempted. If the questionaires are not filled in three days after delivery by the post office, the exemption heretofore granted will be subject to forfeiture.

A special list of questions is to be answered by all exemptees. They include name and address, age, weight, height, whether exemptee has not full use of all faculties, whether or not he is physically fit and in what respect, what country he came from if not a British subject, the nature of his occupation and enumeration of all occupations in which he has been engaged since the age of 18 and how long engaged in each and the name and address of the nearest grown-up relatives.

"All employed persons" must give the name and address of employer and state how long they have been working for him.

All persons employed in agriculture must state whether the farm on which they are employed is "dairy, grain or stock," must give the name, sex and age of all the people working on it, state whether they do any other than farm work, what are their special duties on the farm, if any, how many acres there are on the farm, the kind and number of crop raised, the quantity raised last season, how uncultivated land is being used, the number and kind of live stock. State what would happen if exemptee left the farm, and whether the man who works the farm owns it or rents it.

Those who claim exemption on any grounds but occupation or physical condition must give names, addresses and relationship of dependents, the extent of support and how long supported. They must state the names, ages and relationship of any near relatives in the C.E.F. Other special circumstances connected with domestic position must be stated, the total income in cash or value for past twelve months, business objections, their extent and character, financial obligations, their extent and character, whether undergoing any course of training and the name of the institution.

The questionaire concludes: "If the answers you give are not disputed, your answer may, without notice to you, be submitted to a tribunal for the purpose of having the exemption granted you reconsidered. You should, therefore, state any other facts upon which you rely for exemption from military service."

AMERICANS ARE GASSED

Attack on the United States Sector Results in the Death of Five Soldiers While Fifty More Are in Hospital

SAMMIES SURPRISED

(Special to the Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

(By Fred S. Ferguson.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMIES IN FRANCE, Feb. 27.—Five American soldiers were killed and fifty, suffering terrible agonies, sent to hospitals to-day, in the first German gas attack on the American sector.

The first victims included boys from Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Indiana, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee, Rhode Island, Ohio, New York, Washington and Arkansas.

The attack came suddenly early in the morning after a day of rain. The clouds had parted and the moon was shining brightly in the trenches. Stillness prevailed.

Suddenly there was a huge flare from the German trenches as the minewerfers were discharged. Then came the detonation of high explosives, with the quick spread of deadly gases.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Three officers ran into a dugout and closed the curtain so tight they narrowly escaped death through asphyxiation from the charcoal fire. They were taken to a hospital, but their condition is not serious.

Three men were killed and nine overcame in this sector alone, during the first attack.

When the gas came over the men endeavoured to adjust their gas masks. Those who were not quick enough were soon gasping for breath.

These were carried to a hospital. A child could not look more helpless than these Americans. Their huge chests raised and lowered the covers as they fought for breath. As their breathing grew louder and more difficult, and choking started, the doctors hurried an oxygen tank to the side of one victim's cot. He drank in the oxygen from the rubber cup with a sigh of satisfaction at the temporary relief.

The American army has gas equipment and will use it as the occasion demands, but it is a matter of self-defence... The Boches introduced the gas terror to the world. Its first use against the Americans has aroused the entire army to the stage of "seeing red."

Sixty-one American soldiers, gas victims, lay in the hospital to-day, following a night of horror. The doctors worked all night on the cases.

Five others were killed in the gas attack. Many of the hospital cases include artillery men, who were overcome by fumes from gas shells.

MR. ROBERT NAPLES WITH WATERLOO BAND

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Naples have gone to Waterloo, where Mr. Naples has secured a good position and has also has been engaged to play in the Concordia Society's band. He played the bass horn in the 57th band here, and went overseas with the 93rd, but was beyond the age for active service, and was discharged some time ago. Mr. Naples will give a good account of himself with the Waterloo musicians, and his many friends here will wish for him every success. Incidentally his engagement with the Waterloo band explains its splendid and sustained accomplishments. It is a citizens' organization and is conducted on the basis that the people need music in their lives, and particularly good music. Kitchener and Waterloo are adjoining communities, but each has a band that any city in this country might be proud of, but on Peterborough's attitude that statement is a questionable compliment. Manufacturers apparently co-operate with the band management in giving preference in the employment of incoming bandsmen. Huntsville, a small town in the Muskoka district, has probably the best band in Canada. Such, at any rate is the estimate of a former 57th musician who is now a member of it. These towns recognize the service of bands, encourage the players and get results, and they are able to do this even in war time.

Occupation Of Petrograd Will Not Decide Revolution's Fate

"Brave, Heroic Pitiless, Obstinate Resistance Becomes Task of Russians," Says Executive Council—Defend Every Position.

MAY MOVE TO MOSCOW

Special to the Toronto Star and the Peterborough Examiner.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 27. — "Despite our readiness to sign a German peace of usurpation, enemy detachments continue to advance," the Executive Council's press proclaimed.

"The German Imperialists do not desire peace, but the strangling of the workmen's and peasants' revolution. Brave, heroic, pitiless, obstinate resistance becomes the revolution's task.

"The occupation of Reval and Phkoff and even Petrograd, which is still distant, cannot decide the revolution's fate. Should the threat towards Petrograd increase, the Council's government must move to Moscow.

"We must defend every position, railway station and locomotive and interpose all obstacles in the road to Petrograd."

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Telegrams have been received from the British Embassy in Petrograd, dated Wednesday. This indicates that the British Ambassador at least had not left the Russian capital to-day.

LIEUT. LOGAN OF ROYAL FLYING CORPS MISSING

Well Known Young Peterborough Aviator Had Been on Duty in France With Australian Squadron—Official Message From the War Office

MAY BE A PRISONER

The announcement in the Examiner last evening that 2nd Lieut. George C. Logan, of the Royal Flying Corps has been officially reported missing, was received with deep sorrow in the city.

The young aviator —he celebrated his nineteenth birthday on January 3rd—has been in France since the beginning of the year and has been attached to an Australian squadron.

His father, Mr. W. A. Logan, 14 Murray street, received official word from the War Office on Monday night, notifying him that Lieut. Logan had been missing since Feb. 21st. The message also said that this must not be interpreted as meaning that the missing officer was either killed or wounded, the inference being that there was a possibility that his machine had been damaged and that he had been forced to make a landing in hostile territory. His many friends will unite in hoping that the latter has been the case.

Lieut. Logan joined the Royal Flying Corps as a cadet in April of last year and received his preliminary training at the Mohawk Camp, near Deseronto, where Capt. Vernon Castle was one of the instructors, and at Camp Borden. He went overseas last August and finished his training in England and at Ayr, Scotland, where he qualified as a first class pilot. About the first of January he went to France and was assigned for duty to an Australian squadron, whose aerodrome was about twelve miles back of the lines. The last letter his relatives received from him was written on January 29th, and stated that he had ust left hospital. He had presumably been ill, although his parents had received no word of that fact.

Lieut. Logan is a graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and is widely known in the city.

Dear Madam,—I have to thank you for a good pair of socks and a package of gum, of which you are the donor. It comprises a most acceptable gift for one out here, socks being none too plentiful for Tommy. Thanking you once again and wishing you and yours a happy New Year. I remain,

NEW QUARTERS ARE SECURED FOR THE VETERANS

G. W. V. A. Executive Decide to Lease the Old Ideal Billiard Parlours on George Street and Ladies' Auxiliary Are Ready to Begin the Furnishing

MEMBERS DELIGHTED

The Peterboro branch of the Great War Veterans' Association have finally located their club rooms, and within the next two weeks the Association should be installed in their new quarters. The Veterans at an executive meeting last night decided to lease the hall over Moncur's drug store on George street, operated for some time as the Ideal Billiard Room. The lease is being drawn up to-day.

Members of the executive are delighted with the quarters. The hall is on the second floor and runs through from George street to Chambers street, so that there is ample room. An office and executive quarters will be arranged at the rear of the premises and the remainder of the big hall will be available for club purposes. The room is big enough to be used for concerts or dances and the quarters will be commodious enough to take care of the rapidly increasing membership of the Association for a long time to come.

The work of decorating will be commenced at once and as the Ladies' Auxiliary are ready to begin the furnishing of the hall, it should not be long before the Veterans will be ready for the formal opening of their new headquarters, which they have at last secured after an up-hill fight and many months of waiting.

Mayor Duncan Ready To Help The Veterans

His Worship However Feels That Until the War is Won All the Money That Can Be Raised Should be for the Boys at Front

Speaking to the Examiner to-day in regard to the Great War Veterans' request for a city grant for their club rooms, His Worship Mayor Duncan reiterated the statement made several times in the Council, that he was thoroughly in sympathy with helping the Veterans, but did not believe the present was the proper time for establishing club rooms.

"Our first duty is to the boys at the front," said His Worship. "Until the war is over all the money that we can secure should be devoted to looking after them. That is my position, and believing that I took the course I did in opposing the grant in Council.

The Examiner pointed out that men who were home now felt that the history of other wars did not promise much for returned soldiers after the present conflict was ended."

"I know the boys feel that," said Mayor Duncan, "but this war is not like other wars. There are too many people affected by the present struggle to permit the returned soldiers to be neglected after peace is declared. They will have to be looked after, and they will be looked after."

ONTARIO'S GODCHILD.

It is peculiarly fitting that in the reconstruction propaganda for the obliterated towns and villages of Northern France, Ontario should have been so fortunate as to be chosen godmother for Vimy, insomuch as the blood-consecrated ridge overlooking this little village—that was—stands as an everlasting monument to the genius of Canadianism and the many heroic Ontarians who died there in civilization's cause.

A particularly happy idea—that of entrusting to various American and Canadian cities the re-creation of French towns and hamlets that have been crushed and ground under the heel of the modern vandal. It makes for a closer and more sympathetic understanding, a national development of the mutually beneficial relationship between the old world and the new.

Ontario will help Vimy to face the mystery of the future with courage equal to that she has displayed in the past era of death and devastation—a courage requisite for the titanic task of reconstruction, strengthened by contact with the virile practicality of the new world. Perhaps, on the other hand, Ontarians may gain by contact with that unconquerable soul of France which has consumed in its pure flame the dross of sensuousness, selfishness, and all else than love and devotion to the common weal, right, truth, justice and liberty.

In giving of her abundance to comfort exhausted and bleeding Vimy and to hasten its municipal convalescence and complete recovery, Ontario will enjoy proving the truism that 'tis more blessed to give than to receive, will find pride and pleasure in actively participating in the rebuilding of stricken France, and in having a direct, intimate and permanent identification with one of the war-consecrated shrines of freedom sanctified by Canadian blood.

No carefully studied effort should be spared, no monetary price begrudged to make the new Vimy a shining monument to the thoroughness with which Ontario does big things. It should be made a fitting memorial to the heroes of the Ridge and a model village, viewed from every standpoint, both practical and ideal, which will win the world's favourable opinion for itself and for this mothering Canadian province whose high distinction it is to be through future centuries, inseparably identified with the preservation and guardianship of one of the world's great battlefields upon whose face the gospel of duty and devotion has been written in Canadian blood.

NOTHING FOR THE VETERANS.

The City Council last night definitely and finally turned down the request of the Great War Veterans' Association for a grant of $500. Mayor Duncan advanced the argument that when the war is over and all the veterans are back from the front the city will stand by them. It is possible but the history of all other wars is against that contention. As one member of the War Veterans expressed it last night: "If the city does not do more for the boys who come back after the war is over than it has done for those who are coming back during the war, God help the returned men." The incident is an unfortunate one. All over the country municipal assistance has been gladly given to the G.W.V.A. and it remained for Peterborough to go on record as the first city that refused to aid the Association.

The City Council seemed to have become embued with the idea that the sole object of the Veterans was to secure a place for their own social amusement. True comfortable quarters are necessary in order that the members may come together for social purposes and to fight the battles over again, but the G.W.V.A. was not organized to provide a "loafing place". The Association tries to be not only a friend to the returned man, but to the families of the men who are still overseas, or who will never return. Many cases of distress have been relieved by the local Association and the relatives of Peterborough soldiers are not without friends as long as the Veterans' Association exists.

The work that the general Association, of which Peterborough is a branch, has done, has been remarkable. It has been instrumental in securing a big increase in pensions, the installation of the three months' post discharge pay, the providing of a system by which a man who has been discharged and who suffers from a re-occurrence of the injury or illness which caused his discharge may be re-attested and given further treatment, and many other reforms. The Ontario Government has recognized the great work being carried on, granting the Ontario branch $50,000 to be used in organizing new branches and for the general welfare of the members in this province.

Ald. Dobbin, who has come more closely in touch with the returned men than his fellow members of the Council, and therefore is more familiar with the work being done, has tried twice to have the grant passed, but last night saw his effort fail for the second time.

The Veterans will have their Club Rooms in spite of the Council's action, but the whole matter has left a feeling that should not exist between the Council of the City and the men who answered the country's call.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The 37th Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, are to be congratulated upon the reports presented at their annual meeting which indicate a splendid year's work on behalf of Peterborough's soldiers.

The German advance through Russia is not as easy as the Huns imagined. All the Russians do not believe in peace at all costs.

5,000 FACTS ABOUT CANADA.

The new edition of that popular publication, "5000 Facts About Canada," for 1918, has been issued and again meets a long-felt want for a concise record of Canada's progress and development in a single year. The compiler is Frank Yeigh, the well-known author and lecturer and acknowledged authority on everything Canadian. This is the tenth year of its publication, and the new issue is enlarged and improved over previous editions. Fifty chapters deal with the outstanding features of the nation, arranged alphabetically from "Agriculture" to "War," presented in a series of crisp paragraphs that quickly tell their significant story and that will prove a revelation to even the best informed Canadian. Copies may be had by remitting 25 cents to the Canadian Facts Publishing Co., 588 Huron Street, Toronto, or on enquiry from leading booksellers. This "tabloid cyclopedia of Canada," as it has been aptly called, is a splendid investment.

JAPAN'S NEW PROBLEMS.

When Dr. Iyenaga says that Japan would sacrifice her all for the Allies, it is possible to suspect something of extravagance in the statement, but when he says that Japan will not tolerate chaos in the Orient, he seems to speak with all truth. It is well to estimate Japan's attitude with a mind to the shrewd foresight, high patriotism and cold common sense of her statecraft. There is no apparent reason why Japan should sacrifice her all for the western nations with which she is allied, since her national ideals are not those of the West. It should be remembered, however, that Japan has been staunch in abiding by agreements once made, though secretively diplomatic in making them, and her compact with the Entente, and in particular with this nation, is definite. She made this compact cool-headedly. Her reasons for making it cannot have changed. The pro-German sentiment among the Japanese people of which we are occasionally warned, did not affect her statesmen's decision; it will not be a factor now, unless those statesmen are inconsistent. With Russia disintegrated into chaos, Japan's agreements with that nation as to China are made of no account. With Germany in control of Russia Japan must look for a hostile influence to combat, unless she reaches an understanding with Germany, in which event she incurs the hostility of the western nations. The western nations have the sea power, and Japan is sea girt. Moreover, the western nations are determined to win the war while Germany is set upon not losing it. Japan is shrewd enough to note the difference. There is wide belief that Japan's aggressive entrance into the war would mean the quick and sure defeat of Germany. To make that defeat certain and to receive satisfactory assurances of some stability in the Russian situation would be a safe policy for Japan to adopt. She has a problem now to face and her solution will be of world interest.—Rochester Post.

Folly To Cut Out German

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 27.—That the German language cannot be barred from Ontario's educational system is the statement made to your correspondent by Sir Robert Falconer, commenting on Dr. Forbes Godfrey's bill before the Legislature.

"If it were a matter of helping to win the war, the situation would be entirely different," Sir Robert said, "but we must know what our adversaries are doing in the field of science. German text books are in demand for research work, and it would be folly to shut ourselves off from the knowledge that German scientists have gained.

Benefit Hockey Game For The War Veterans

The Peterborough Junior O.H.A. Club will play a benefit game for the Great War Veterans' club room fund at Brock St. Rink a week from to-night. The old boys will be their opponents, and with Legros, Banty Evans, McMartin, Jackson and others of the old guard in action this year's youngsters will have a battle royal on their hands. The Hockey Club volunteered to stage the game and their offer was gladly accepted by the War Veterans. Tickets for the game will be on sale in a day or two. There will be skating after the match, and altogether it will be a big night around the Brock St. Arena. You can see a good hockey game, enjoy a skate, and help the War Veterans all for 25c.

KITCHENER HOLD THE DENTALS TO A TIE

TORONTO, Feb. 27. — Indications are not lacking that the Kitchener team, which held the Dentals to a tie score of 4 to 4 at the Arena last night, will represent the O. H. A. in the Allan Cup series. On the form displayed by the visitors it is surprising that Dentals were not beaten by a larger margin. Charlie Stewart in goal was the only Dental player who was at the top of his form, and but for his sensational exhibition Kitchener would in all probability have returned to their home with several goals to their credit.

Excellent Goal-tending.

Both goal-tenders, Stewart and Hainsworth, were penalized for dropping to their knees to stop what appeared to be shots that meant almost certain goals. During the absence of Stewart, Kitchener was unable to score, but during the absence of Hainsworth Dentals scored the goal that broke the tie in the second period. In the opening period each team scored two goals, while Dentals added another in the second, holding Kitchener without a goal. In the final period Dentals secured one more and Kitchener added the two goals which tied the score.

Crowd Gathers Early.

The doors of the Arena were opened early, and the holders of reserved seat tickets were comfortably settled almost an hour before play was called. Two long lines were formed of those who wished to take rush seats, and it kept a squad of police busy to prevent the crowd breaking loose and rushing the doors. Hundreds were turned away, the rink being jammed to capacity by 8.15. Every nook and corner of the spacious Arena was utilized, the more venturesome spirits swarming out along the steel arches that support the roof.

Skips' Bonspiel Well Under Way

Nine of the twelve games in the first draw of the skips' bonspiel were played last night. Some of the scores showed a margin of only one point, and most of the games were as closely contested as any of the season.

C. S. Brown of the Collegiate staff skipped Dr. Wightman's rink to a victory over J. H. Ferguson. Ray Best hung up six shots in his last end but af that failed to win from E. G. Patterson. George Morrow opened his game with a four end and buried the Hicks-Martin forces. Walter Oke had a clean win over the veteran Sam Ray, but nosed through with only one shot to spare. Jimmy Metheral went down in the first round.

The draws to-night will be at 7 and 9 o'clock.

Last night's scores were as follows:

W. H. Denham 4, A. C. Kay 13.

W. D. Campbell 8, A. W. Archibold 7.

R. G. Sturgeon defaulted to H. Foote

W. G. Morrow 18, R. Hicks 4.

Sam Ray 8, W. J. Oke 9.

W. J. Thompson defaulted to G. H. Giroux.

R. M. Waddell 10, J. H. Metheral 7.

W. M. Lang 16, D. Davidson 1.

J. H. Ferguson 5, C. S. Brown 11.

R. P. Best 10, E. G. Patterson 11.

D. Eason 5, P. D. Fitzgerald 7.

Dr. Greer defaulted to Geo. Benor.

C. Seymour 9, E. R. Bowes 12.

J. W. McDermid 11, T. Brightman 11.

To-night's Games

Owing to a misunderstanding the Giroux-Thompson game was not played last night, but was arranged for this afternoon.

Seven O'Clock Draw.

In the primary second round:
Kay vs. Campbell.
Foote vs. Morrow.
Waddell vs. Lang.
Oke vs. Giroux or Thompson.
Brown vs. Patterson.

C.G.E. DEFEATS THE DE LAVAL

The 500 markers for the C.G.E. were: Fielder 564, Early 513, Langley 505. Fielder had high single of 202.

Pte. Strickland Was Shot Twice By A Sniper

Mr. R. C. Strickland of the Burleigh Ranching Company, has received some additional particulars of the death from wounds of his son, Pte. Geo. R. Strickland.

Pte. H. M. Jewett, a comrade of Pte. Strickland, writes as follows:

"On the 30th November, the boys had gone over the top and had fully consolidated their position, when Strickland saw some Fritzs some distance away, cutting the wire entanglements, and went after them and took the uprisoners and when and took them prisoners, and when land in the wrist. He made the trench and was dressed, and was sent by the officer to the dressing station a distance of four miles. On his way he was shot by a sniper in the abdomen, and was picked up by stretcher-bearers, unconscious. If I was good at writing I would tell you how we all liked Strickland as a pal and a soldier. He was always ready to help or do anything connected with the business. So, if I say he was a soldier please take it as a fellow's highest tribute."

Pte. Strickland's wife has received the following letter:

Dear Mrs. Strickland—I understand that Major Birds has already written you regarding the death of your husband, 130072, Pte. G. R. Strickland. I trust you will pardon my delay in expressing to you my sincere sympathy in your great sorrow.

Your husband was one of the oldest members of our Battalion, and one of the most beloved. I knew him personally for the past two years, and can testify to his continued devotion to duty. He would undoubtedly have won his commission and probably further honours had he been spared.

If there is any additional information that you desire, I hope that you will not hesitate to write me. I presume that the Chaplain who conducted the burial has written you.

Yours sincerely,
J. A. CLARK, Lt.-Col.
O.C. 72nd Battalion, Canadian Infantry.

SPRING WHEAT SEED FOR ONTARIO

Important Announcement for Farmers in This District

The world demand for wheat in 1918 justifies the greatest possible effort towards increased production. The small acreages of Fall Wheat put in last Fall will mean increased acreage in Ontario available for Spring Wheat. The Ontario Government is co-operating with the farmers in order to provide seed. It has purchased 50,000 bushels of No. 1 Marquis Spring Wheat through the Seed Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture. More will be purchased if necessary to fill needs.

Distribution—Seed is sold only in two-bushel bags. Carloads will be placed at certain points in the Province where less than carload orders can be filled, the purchaser paying local freight from such distributing point to his own station. Where Farmers' Clubs, or other organizations bring in carload lots, the price at their local stations will be the same as at the distributing points.

Where to buy—Purchases may be made either in the warehouse at the distributing points, or, orders may be placed with the nearest District Representative of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, or, they may be sent direct by mail to the Markets Branch, Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Payment in Cash—Price is $2.14 per bushel at distributing points. In all cases, without exception, Cash must accompany order. Send remittance by marked check, postal note, post office or express money order made payable to Ontario Department of Agriculture, Markets Branch.

Order early—In event of the requirements of the Province being underestimated, there may not be enough seed to go around. It is advisable in order to insure having their orders filled that purchasers should place their orders early. All orders are subject to confirmation and wil be filled in the order received. All seed is delivered in two-bushel bags, order should be for even number of bushels, and no order for less than two bushels can be accepted.

Names of Distributors at local points will be announced later. Distributing points at present decided upon are: Chatham, London, Woodstock, Hamilton, Brampton, St. Mary's, Oshawa, Toronto, Port Hope, Port Perry, Peterborough, Lindsay, Barrie, Orillia, Newmarket, Listowel, Orangeville, Alliston, Durham, Simcoe, Welland, Palgrave, Keinptville, Brantford.

Peterborough Veterans To Take Up Matter Of Land Settlement

Question Is Brought Before Local Branch of the G. W. V. A. By Dominion Secretary Knight—Appeals to Returned Men to Help Make Canadian Production the Greatest in History.

The question of land settlement, as it affects the returned soldiers, will be taken up by the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association at its next regular meeting. The matter is being brought before all the branches in the Dominion.

A circular letter, dealing with certain features of the question by Dominion Secretary N. F. R. Knight, was read at a meeting of the local executive, last night.

"There is no time to be lost," writes Secretary Knight, "and, if the returned soldier wishes to safeguard himself in the matter of land settlement he must exercise the most active interest in his own behalf."

Mr. Knight makes an appeal for a strong working committee in each district. Organizers who will make it their business to obtain the names of veterans who wish land to settle on and who are willing to work for a farmer this summer, provided proper conditions prevail and full privileges under the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act, are assured.

According to the Dominion Secretary very few of the lists asked for have come in and there is a pressing necessity that headquarters be advised of the intention of each branch at the earliest possible date.

"The (Land Settlement) Board will need good practical men as inspectors and agents," writes Secretary Knight. "These men must know their business and will probably have to pass qualifying examinations to conform with the regulations recently passed by the Civil Service Commission."

"The chairman has authorized me to say that he will be pleased for you to submit names for the appointments."

Secretary Knight also mentions in his circular that any members, outside those in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, who have homesteads or own land in the three prairie Provinces should get in touch with G.W.V.A. headquarters at Ottawa.

In conclusion the Dominion Secretary asks that "every branch hold general meeting of returned men for the purpose of determining how many men will help to make Canada's production this year the greatest in history, and thereby help our comrades overseas.

SAMPLE CAR OF WOOD.

City Files Order With Sharbot Lake Man.

The Fire, Water and Light committee last night decided to order a sample car of green hardwood from a Sharbot Lake producer to sell here at about $12 a cord. It will not be entirely body wood, but may include some limbs. The city had wired for 200 cords on certain conditions that could not be guaranteed by the dealer, but a sample car will show the quality of this supply.

SAW A RABIES DOG RUNNING AT LARGE ON GEORGE STREET

Dr. Thomas Johnston Fears Epidemic of Hydrophobia Will Become Worse--Two Victims of Mad Dogs to Toronto This Week

SITUATION IS SERIOUS

"I saw a rabies dog running down George street yesterday,' Dr. T. Johnston stated this morning. "It was a black spaniel. A policeman saw him and pointed at him. I knew at a glance that the dog had rabies. It showed unmistakable signs that experience and science recognize at once."

Dr. Johnston added that the city had been so indifferent and careless in its attitude to the infection of rabies that it has reached an epidemic here, that there was nothing that he could do. He was confident that there must be other infected dogs in this district, and only the most drastic campaign of extermination would stamp out the disease.

TWO PATIENTS THIS WEEK.

It is difficult to imagine what extreme conditions will have to develop here before the community as a whole is aroused to the menace of the presence of the rabies infection as it is now believed to prevail in and around Peterboro.

Peterboro has sent two patients to Torono this week to take the pasteur treatment. One was a young Emily township farmer, the other was a young lady who was bitten by a pet dog a week ago.

A veterinary surgeon of long experience saw a black spaniel running dazed but not violent with hydrophobia driving him to those stages in which he may attack persons, who have not the discerning and diagnosing eye of Dr. Johnston.

Dr. Johnston believes that there are other infected dogs at large, and his opinion may be accepted as fact. The epidemic could scarcely be much worse without becoming alarming.

Mayor Duncan has fulfilled his promise of appointing a dog catcher, who, it is understood, may shoot dogs at sight if necessary, but the extermination of the wandering canines has not progressed as rapidly as the epidemic of rabies appears to demand.

The municipality has been given complete authority to enforce extreme measures against the rabies outbreak and the sentiment is growing that the most rigorous methods of extermination should be employed without delay.

Mr. Gates, the dog catcher, is doubtless eager to earn as much money as possible from his position but he is greatly hampered by the lack of assistance and facilitating appliances to effect the round-up as expeditiously as Mayor Duncan desires.

PETROGRAD OPEN TO THE GERMANS

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 27.—If special despatches from Petrograd gauge accurately the situation there, the Germans are likely to find little difficulty in occupying the city with trained troops. Russian soldiers quite frankly refuse to fight and say they have had enough fighting. "If the Germans come let them take us." There is a stiffer attitude among the workmen, from whom, if at all, the resistance to the Germans must come. Even though, for lack of training, their resistance should prove of little value, they are said to be enrolling with enthusiasm in response to the call of the Bolsheviki leader. Correspondents, describing the bulk of the population as lost in bewilderment and apathy, think such resistance as may be offered will amount to little. They say no amount of talk by the Bolsheviki leaders can cover the plain facts of the situation. The Germans in Petrograd already have organized to police the city, the correspondent of the Morning Post reports.

HOUSE INEFFICIENT, EXPENSIVE BARNACLE, SAYS REPRESENTATIVE

Alvin T. Fuller, of Massachusetts, Resigns From Interior Committee on Ground It Is Useless—Says Most Members "Spend Time Telling Stories and Seeing Who Can Spit Furthest."

NEVER HAS ACCEPTED SALARY

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 27.—The House is an inefficient, expensive "barnacle attached to the ship of state," most of its committees useless and a majority of its members are busy most of the time telling stories and seeing who can "spit the farthest," according to a letter sent to Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, by Representative Alvin T. Fuller, non-partisan of Massachusetts.

Mr. Fuller tendered his resignation as a member of the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department, on the ground that its existence is not justified and that except for one short "smoke talk" it has never held a meeting.

"I do not wish, by accepting the honour of membership on the committee," said Mr. Fuller's letter, "to appear to give even my tacit consent to the existence of a committee which has no real, justifiable reason for existing other than to entail a needless and unjustifiable expense upon the people who pay the bills."

Mr. Fuller stated further that there are sixty standing committees in the House, more than half of which he considers useless.

"Why could not some of these useless committees that never meet and that are occupying valuable rooms and employing secretaries and messengers that have no work to do be utilized for useful purposes, such as inspecting camps, soliciting labour for ship yards, doing any one of the hundred and one things that the government is in need of?" he asks. "Instead of this, two-thirds of our committees are useless, and instead of being really busy he majority of ourr Congressmen down here are telling stories and practising up to see who spit the farthest."

Mr. Fuller stated further that the parliamentary system in vogue makes the average member little more than a figurehead and suggests reconstruction of the system to give each member a "legitimate chance to represent his constituents and the larger public interest."

"I am making this protest against conditions with the hope that Congress may soon rid itself of these practices which do not conform to the principles of economy and efficiency. The President is asking our business men to economize and become more efficient while we continue to be the most inefficient and expensive barnacle tha ever attached itself to a ship of state."

It was learned to-day that Mr. Fuller never has accepted his salary as a member and also pays for his clerk hire out of his own pocket.

$100 SALARY INCREASE FOR STREET COMMISSIONER EVANS, $50 TO HIS ASSIST.

The Board of Works in a brief session last night, increased Street Commissioner Evans' salary from $1,250 to $1,350, and Assistant Commissioner Fitzgerald's salary from $700 to $750, a boost of $100 and $50 respectively.

Mr. Howard Sburter was given permission to cut down two trees in front of his residence on Monaghan road. City Engineer Parsons recommended their removal, stating that there was only twenty-one feet between two trees he had paced. If two trees were taken out the others would branch properly and grow to better form.

Ald. Edgar urged the Board to permit E. J. MacDonnell, grocer at the corner of Lake and Aylmer streets, to cut down two dead trees in front of his property. Both requests were granted on a motion by Ald. M. McIntyre, seconded by Ald. Worth.

Mr. R. R. Hall informed Mayor Duncan that a tree opposite his home on McDonnel street should be cut down. It would provide one cord of firewood.

Aerial Ladder Pipe A Fine Apparatus But Costs $16,100

Representative of La France Fire Engine Co. Quoted Prices and Explained Operation of Fire Fighting Piece the Council Would Like to Own

After expatiating upon the advantages of a motor driven aerial ladder pipe, an improvement on the water tower, Mr. G. A. Thomas, sales representative of the American La France Fire Engine Co., broke the news to the Council last night that this apparatus would cost the city $16,100. It is needless to add that the aerial piece will not be purchased this year. Operated by the power from its motor the ladder pipe automatically rises to a height of seventy-five feet in five seconds. If desired an 85 feet or 65 feet extension may be selected, but Mr. Thomas suggested the 75-foot length for Peterborough. The apparatus is equipped with 310 feet of ladders, and a detail of appliances. It weighs 7 1-2 tons, and is particularly efficacious against fires in the business and mercantile districts. Its base turntable revolves on ball bearings, and the ladder may be turned in any direction. Firemen are carried up on a plaform from which they direct the water pipe, which would shoot a heavy stream of water into or down upon third and fourth stories.

"With the exception of Quebec, Ontario is the most backward of the provinces in fire fighting equipment" Mr. Thomas stated. Cities and towns in the West and in the Maritime Provinces have more efficient apparatus. London, Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto, and Windsor are the only cities in Ontario that have aerial ladder pipes.

"Had I had predicted eighteen months ago the fire loss you have sustained, you would have put me out of the building," Mr. Thomas added as an indirect reference of the big fires of recent occurrence.

Ald. Dobbin was instructed to prepare a statement of the cost of the apparatus, its need here and other data to keep on record for future consideration.

POPULAR SALESMAN IS CONGRATULATED

Travelling Man's Customers All Notice His Great Improvement

One of the most noteworthy features in connection with Tanlac is the large number of travelling salesmen throughout the United States and Canada who have testified to the benefits they have derived from its use. Among the latest of these well known "Knights of the Grip" to realize the powers of the medicine is William Goulding, who represents the Ontario Cap Company and resides at 175 MacDonnell Avenue, Toronto. Mr. Goulding has been selling goods out of Toronto for the past thirty years and is undoubtedly one of the most popular commercial travellers in Canada. His statement regarding the value of Tanlac in his case, follows:

"I have been bothered more or less with my stomach for a long time, due no doubt to my habit of eating in a hurry and failure to properly masticate my food, but during the past two years the trouble seemed to be getting the best of me. My appetite was very bad, I never relished anything to eat and was distressed a great deal of the time by the gas on my stomach. I most always had a tight, uncomfortable feeling in my stomach and often had dizzy spells. My nerves became so shattered that I couldn't rest well and I had that down and out feeling all the time. I was really in a very bad condition and got to where I just had to stop off and try to regain my health.

"So, last April I went down to Galt on a visit to my sister to doctor up and try to recuperate, and it was while there that I began taking Tanlac. She insisted so strongly on me trying it that I got a bottle, and it's a fact, when I finished the first bottle I felt much better and noticed an improvement in my general condition. I have taken six or seven bottles in all and think it simply remarkable the way it has helped me. I have never found anything in all my travels to do me so much good. Why, I feel better than I have in years. I'm never bothered any more with indigestion and my tired, fagged-out feelings are gone. Tanlac seems to have rid me entirely of stomach trouble and put my nerves in good shape. My appetite is fine, I sleep fine and many of my customers on the road have congratulated me on how much better I'm looking. I'm more energetic and have more strength. In my opinion Tanlac is the best medicine out and I will unhesitatingly recommend it to anyone."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co. Ltd., in Havelock by A. C. Denike, in Lakefield by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd., in Fowler's Corners by W. A. Hunter, in Gelert by A. J. Scott, in Westwood by G. Pringle & Son.

KAISER'S SPY SYSTEM

Frustrated in "The White Feather"

So general has been the demand of his host of admirers wherever he has appeared this season for a revival of his earlier success, "The White Feather," that Albert Brown has changed his plans so as to include a few presentations of the famous melodramatic comedy. Here he will again be seen in the role of "Kit" Brent, the keen witted agent of the British War Office to whom is assigned in part the task of running down a band of German plotters by whom he is beset at every turn. Dealing as it does in most intimate manner with the conduct of the English Secret Service in its efforts to frustrate the plans of the Kaiser's spy system, it is said to hold its auditors rapt attention from rise to fall of final curtain. Mr. Brown and "The White Feather" will be seen at "The Grand" to-morrow (Thursday) evening.

COUNCIL IN COMMITTEE GIVES APPROVAL TO RATE OF 36.4 MILLS

Minority Effort to Raise Patriotic Fund by Issue of Debentures—Council Desires to Pay Off This Obligation This Year—Ald. Dobbin Failed Again to Secure Grant For Veterans.

With all the members present except Ald. A. A. McIntyre, the Council in Committee of the Whole last night, formally resigned itself to a tax rate of 36.4 mills, just one-tenth of a mill less than the Finance committee's estimate, and passed on to Monday night's regular meeting a motion approving the 1918 rate.

Aldermen Langford and Edgar made a final, but not an insistent effort, to raise the patriotic fund grant by issuing 6 1-2 per cent. five-year debentures.

"I appreciate the attitude of those who desire to pay the entire sum from this year's taxes," Ald. Langford remarked, "but I feel that we should remember those citizens who will not be able to bear this demand so easily."

Mayor Duncan—"I recognize your view, but I believe the best plan is to pay off this sum. Next year, let us hope, the rate may be reduced.

Ald. Langford pointed out that quite a number of cities and towns in Ontario had completed, or were carrying on campaigns to collect their patriotic fund grant by popular subscription. Niagara Falls was raising $75,000.

Ald. Edgar reaffirmed his belief that the debenture issue would meet with the more general approval of the ratepayers. It would mean a difference of over three mills on this year's rate, which would be 32.8 mills instead of 36.4. His motion, seconded by Ald. Langford, proposing that the Patriotic and Red Cross grants be secured by issuing debentures was supported only by Ald. M. McIntyre.

Ald. Langford—It seems to me that we we should try to keep our tax rate attractive to new manufacturers.

Ald. Saunders—Where else will they go?

Ald. Langford— I don't know of a place where they are higher.

"What about Lindsay?" a member asked.

Ald. Worth —It looks to me that they will consider us good business people in raising the money in one year.

Appealed For Veterans.

Ald. Dobbin renewed his appeal that an appropriation be set aside for the War Veterans' Association.

Mayor Duncan—I can't make myself believe that the Veterans need a club when so much money is required for war purposes.

Ald. Dobbin—These men have done their share in the war and are home. I am in close touch with them, and I believe we ought to do it.

Mayor Duncan—I think that in their hearts the Veterans would prefer to give the money they have for their comrades at the front. The returned men know what the soldiers at the front need and what should be done for them. I believe that when all the Veterans are back the city and citizens will stand by them.

Ald. Edgar expressed the belief that the government would establish a technical school for returned men in this district, and that an effort should be put forth to have it located here.

"It would be better than providing club rooms," he said.

The discussion ended at that point.

DOG EXECUTED THIS MORNING

James Gates, official dog catcher, made his first capture to-day early this morning, and the victim paid the extreme penalty shortly before ten o'clock. Mr. Gates is preparing plans for a real round-up that will wake up some of the natives in and around Peterborough. Farmers' dogs which stray into town will be included in the proceedings. The effect of the campaign has been to send a number of dog owners after tags who, prior to the appointment of the dog catcher, were satisfied to permit their tagless dogs run at large like some people do with their children, and constitute a nuisance to other people.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Naturalizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy, Stomach and Acid Indigestion.

Doubtless, if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble — in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little bisurated magnesia —not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, oxide or milk, but the pure bisurated magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn, and the bloated or heavy lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little bisurated magnesia immediately after a meal you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

The Dominion Life Assurance Company's Ample Reserve Fund and Surplus

Those interested in the business of life insurance will be repaid by a careful study of some of the strong features contained in the twenty-ninth annual report of the Dominion Life Assurance Company which appears elsewhere in this issue. This company has been remarkable for the high dividends it has been able to return to its policyholders, but that it has been able to increase these dividends under present conditions is even more remarkable and a testimony to the worth and stability of this sturdy company. Long years of conservative management have indeed built up for this company a fund of reserves and surplus which is practically unassailable, even under the most stringent conditions. That its insurance risks are well protected is shown from the fact that the company in spite of all war claims, actually made a gain of thirty-nine per cent. in its mortality savings. Those personally interested in insurance should get the detailed report of this company and give it careful consideration.

Mr. P. A. Ferguson is the local and Central Ontario Manager for the Dominion Life with offices at No. 172 Hunter Street, West. It is known that the amount of insurance written at this office under Mr. Ferguson's supervision has grown year by year until Central Ontario has become one of the Dominion Life's most prosperous fields.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading containing or involving attacks on individuals, or violent or extreme statements, must, to secure insertion, be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to ask a few questions. How is it that the theatres, moving picture houses and other places of amusement are kept open and several schools closed? Are they of more importance to the people than the education of our rising generation? I think it a shame when fuel is so scarce to keep these places open. Take a child of the second book and keep him from school for 2 or 3 weeks and it will take him two more weeks to learn over the things he has been learning previous to the holiday. In that way he is put back five or six weeks in his studies. If fuel is so scarce as to close the schools, then close the places of amusement, too. Perhaps if the amusement places were closed there would be enough coal to allow the schools to open. I understand that the theatres were to be closed every Monday, but I don't think they are doing so as I see a play booked for Monday. What kind of government have we that will make a law and not enforce it?

Thanking you for your space and hoping to see the schools get fair play in the fuel crisis, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

A Parent.

Parent should understand that the fuel regulations permits theatres to close either Monday or Tuesday as they prefer. If they open on Monday of course they must remain closed on Tuesday.—Examiner.

AGRICULTURAL PROBLEMS WERE UNDER DISCUSSION

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—Many important agricultural problems were discussed at a meeting of district representatives of the Department of Agriculture at the Parliament Buildings to-day.

Col. McKeown, the Ontario President of the Wool Growers', and James Douglas Caledon, President of the Ontario Sheep Breeders' Association, and officers of the Department of Agriculture took part in the discussion regarding co-operative methods for wool marketing.

The plans for distributing the 50,000 bushels of spring wheat supplied by the Dominion government for the purpose of increasing the acreage of spring wheat was discussed.

Creek Threatened To Overflow

The Wm. Hamilton Company's shops narrowly escaped their annual bath this morning when the water in the creek rose to within a few inches of the floor, and at seven o'clock threatened to spill over into the shops. Te avoid the floods that rush through the valley of Jackson Park every spring with less resources than they have received this winter, a water channel has been cut up the ice above the Hamilton shops for the purpose of preventing the debirs of ice blocks, logs and other flotsam from jamming. This morning's approach to the danger mark was regarded as only a threat of what is likely to happen if effective precautions are not taken at once.

At the De Laval Plant.

Although Mr. Tom Arnott and other township officials contend that they have cleared the snow from the Park street drain south of Lansdowne street, City Engineer Parsons and his staff state that they have been unable to discover the results or the evidence of their work. The water had reached the top of the culvert at the Lansdowne street corner this morning, and De Laval Company heads stated that the first signs of trouble on their premises had appeared. Mr. Breyfogle expressed the fear this afternoon's thaw would increase the water flow in that section, and he regretted and was plainly impatient with the dilatoriness that had caused the water to dam up at Lansdowne street, instead of flowing easily south to the river.

MEMBERS' FIRMS INTERESTED IN DIVORCE CASES

Peterborough Examiner.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 27. —The legal firm of Major-Gen. Mewburn, Minister of Militia, appears as solicitors in the official Gazette notice of application to be made for divorce at the next session of parliament by William Canahan, of Hamilton. Similarly the name of Fred L. Davis, member-elect for Neepawa appears as solicitor in the notice of application for divorce of Andrew Pepper of Neepawa.

The incidents arouse some comment in view of the fact that the Statutes prohibit any member of Parliament from receiving coompensation in connection with any bill before parliament. A heavy fine is provided as well as unseating.

DECLINE TO ASK BRYAN NOT TO COME

(Canadian Press Despatch)

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 27. — Although the Toronto News has another front page editorial—condemning William Jennings Bryan speaking at the Dominion Alliance mass meeting here to-morrow night, and demanding that all true Britishers stay away from the meeting, the Alliance executive still declines to ask Bryan not to come.

P. M. Hamilton of Brockville, and J. M. Boyd of London, addressed the Alliance to-day declaring that doctors were altogether too free with prescriptions for liquor.

Addressing the convention, Captain Bailey, A.M.C., who has just returned from the front, declared he had been informed by the officer in a position to know, that ninety per cent. of soldiers at the front were drunk on Christmas day. Another delegate named E. Tennyson-Smith, said this statement was an "abominable lie." Later the convention passed a resolution expressing their disbelief in the report of the statement made by Captain Bailey.

LOCAL DRAMATIC CLUBS SCOLE ANOTHER SUCCESS

Large Audience Enjoyed Amateur Productions Presented in Victoria Hall Last Evening—Specialties Were Good

The amateur theatrical performance given last night in Victoria Hall, under the joint auspices of the East City and Knox Church Dramatic Clubs was largely attended in spite of the inclement weather. Mr. E. A. Peck, who presided, made an excellent chairman and opened the programme with a reference to the work accomplished by the Ashburnham Patriotic League, for whose benefit last night's performance was staged. The League has been in existence since the outbreak of war and is engaged in knitting socks and preparing other necessities for the boys at the front.

"John Clayton, actor," a coon rehearsal and a mock trial were the principal features of a well balanced programme. During the evening solo numbers were given by Mr. V. Morphet, Mr. George Roy and Mr. Geo. Lynch. Miss Florence Leahy presided at the piano.

A clever little play was presented by Mr. Jack Primeau who, as John Clayton, an actor holds all the stage struck matinee girls in a fascinated state; Mrs. J. Primeau as Louise Warne, daughter of Col. Warne, of Virginia, a girl of high breeding and madly in love with the actor; and Mr. Dan. Leonard as Col. Warne. The play centres around the visit of Col. Warne to Clayton's apartments, who warns the actor that he must undermine his daughter's fascination. Col. Warne hides when, at the crucial moment his daughter arrives to warn the actor that her father is coming to shoot him. Mr. Primeau's clever impersonation of a valet, which is included in his role and of his intoxicated actor striving to disillusion the girl, were worthy of a professional. Mrs. Primeau as Louise fascinated the audience by her clever acting and charming personality.

Mr. Daniel Leonard played the leading part in a "Coon Rehearsal," which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. This was followed by the presentation of "A Mock Trial," another equally good number that was well handled.

Buds and Flowers in Cooking.

The French Canadians are said to use the acid flowers of the redbud, or Judas tree, in salads, while the buds and tender pods are packed in vinegar. Honey locust pods, often locally called "honey-shucks," contain a sweetish, thick, cheeselike pulp, which is often eaten. Those of the mesquite furnish the Mexicans and Indians with a nutritious food. The Creoles of Louisiana, famous for their cookery, are reported to use the young buds of the sassafras as a substitute for okra in thickening soups.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.

A Straight Talk For The District Representatives Of Agricultural Interests

"Now is No Time For Speeches," Premier Hearst Tells Agriculturalists "It is the Hour For Work"—A Need For Definite, Concrete Proposals in Order That the Best Results Should Be Secured.

SEVERAL NEW BILLS

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—"Now is not the time for speech-making, it is the hour for work," and we will be glad to back you up no matter how radical may be any action that you take," declared Sir William Hearst in addressing the district representatives of the Department of Agriculture and the members of the agriculture and labour branch of the Organization of Resources Committee at the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon.

Sir William said that the urgency of the appeal for greater production was even greater this year than it had been last year. The great need was for definite concrete proposals in order that the best results should be secured.

DEWART IS CURIOUS.

On Thursday next Mr. Hartley Dewart will ask the following questions:

Have any appointments been made during 1917 and 1918 to the police force in Queen Victoria Park at Niagara Falls, Ont.? If so, what are the names, ages, previous occupations and salaries of those who have been appointed? Are said appointments (if any) returned soldiers?

E. W. J. Owens, South East Toronto, introduced an amendment to the Highway Act providing that in cities of more than 200,000 the city should not be compelled to provide for the maintenance or construction of roads outside the city limits. He also introduced a bill to amend the local Improvement Act so that cemeteries and burying grounds should be compelled to pay local improvement taxes. Hon. Thomas Crawford introduced a bill of the city of Toronto giving the city power to buy debentures of the Harbor Board and confirming the agreement of the extension of time with the Davenport Radial Railway.

WANTS DAYLIGHT SAVING.

Major J. I. Hartt, who recently returned on furlough from France, introduced a bill providing for another hour of daylight during the summer months. The change to be effective from April 1 to November 1.

The House went into committee and reported the motion providing that $1,000,000 should be set apart to aid make improvement of the public highways. Hon. Finlay MacDiarmid said that thirty-five counties or practically the whole Province, were now participating in the good roads system and receiving grants from the Government. Three million dollars had been voted to date, and of this amount $2,724,000 had been expended. The present sum would be used for maintenance rather than construction.

COUNCIL TO ELECT MAYOR.

Several novel clauses were embodied in the bill of the city of Guelph introduced by Sam Carter. The Council wants to have the power to elect the Mayor by the Council instead of by the people at large. They also ask that their Hydro-Electric Commission should be elected in the same way as the Toronto Commission and that the four commissions at present operating in the city should be brought under the control of Council.

GRAIN MARKET

Grain prices were stronger yesterday, both cash and speculative. The latter market reacted somewhat from the depression of Tuesday, when an overdose of peace talk gave prices a slight setback. Yesterday the peace talk was absent, while the fact remained that offerings are still very light. In the local market business is still held up for lack of cars. Every miller in the country is clamouring for wheat which he cannot get, while the coarse grains continue to forge ahead, pound for pound, of the fixed wheat prices.

The flour situation continues strong. Ontario flour holding firm at the recent 10c advance. Cash oats yesterday are quoted another 5-8c higher on Fort William basis. Ontario oats steady to firm.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 Northern, $2.23 1-2; No. 2, $2.20 1-2; No. 3, $2.17 1-2; No. 4, $2.10 1-4, including 2 1-2 cent tax, in store Fort William.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 97 1-8 cents; No. 2, 94 1-8c; extra No. 1 feed, 92 5-8c, store, Fort William; No. 1 feed, 89 5-8c.

American corn — No. 3 kiln dried, $2.05, track Toronto.

Ontario oats—No. 2, white, 97c to 98c, nominal No. 3, white, 96c to 97c.

Buckwheat—$1.78 to $1.80.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter $2.22 basis in store, Montreal.

Peas—No. 2, $3.70 to $3.80, according to freights outside.

Barley—Malting, $1.68 to $1.70.

Rye—No. 2, $2.08 to $2.10.

Ontario flour—War quality, $10.70.

Toronto-Montreal, $10.70, new bags.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $40; bran, $35; feed flour, per bag $3.40; middlings, white $45 to $46.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 1, $17 to $18; No. 2, $14 to $16; mixed $13 to 16; straw, car lots, ... to $9.

CATTLE MARKET

Union Stock Yards—Receipts today, 60 cars, with 695 cattle, 171 calves, 1,216 hogs, and 110 sheep and lambs.

Storm conditions in the country generally, and consequent bad traffic conditions of roads and railways prevented cattle being shipped for yesterday's market. An anticipated big run for the mid-week market therefore turned out to be a very light one. This fact alone held prices about steady, for had there been a heavy run, as expected, it is altogether probable that prices would have gone off very materially. As it was, there was practically no change, though demand was not at all brisk. Sheep and lambs were firm to 25 cents higher.

Hogs were quoted 25 cents higher, owing to the smallness of the run.

BODIES RECOVERED.

Canadian Press Despatch:

ST. JOHNS, Feb. 28.—Men from the steamer Terra Nova who boarded the Florizel yesterday report no living person on board, but recovered the bodies of five men and one woman.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS WITH ECZEMA.

Mrs. Link, 2 Walker Street, Halifax, N.S., states: — "After three years of miserable torture and sleepless nights with terrible eczema, and after trying over a dozen remedies without obtaining anything but slight temporary relief, I have been perfectly and entirely cured by using Dr Chase's Ointment. After the third of fourth application of this grand Ointment I obtained relief and a few boxes were sufficient to make a thorough cure.

PILLAGE AND MURDER

A NEW BOOK DEALS WITH HUN ATROCITIES.

"The German Terror in France" Describes the Cruelties of the Invaders During the Months After They Occupied the District Round Cambrai, Which Has Recently Been Liberated by the British Armies.

THE section between the Scheldt and the Oise for which the armies on the Western front are now so fiercely fighting has had its full share of the hardships of war. A recent despatch spoke of "the delirious joy" with which the inhabitants of the villages taken by the British in their last great advance greeted the victorious army. To them it meant delivery from cruel oppressors. It is easy to see why their joy amounted to delirium when one reads the story of the atrocities of the Germans at the time of their first invasion of this section. This story is told by Arnold J. Toynbee, late fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, in "The German Terror in France." This book is made up of a digest of first-hand evidence of the actions of the German soldiers and officers when they came into this section as conquerors, in the early months of the war, and started a series of persecutions that has no doubt lasted till the British Army recovered the territory and set the people once more free.

The book, which treats of the conduct of the German soldiers in all the parts of France that they have invaded, has this to say of their activities in this particular section:

"The invaders spread over the region between the Scheldt and the Somme. At Beaumont-Hamel, in the Department of the Somme, a village of 380 souls, they imposed a war contribution of 8,000 francs on the commune, threatening to carry the men away captive if the money were not paid. The mayor raised 1,806 francs, and the Germans obtained the rest by robbing private individuals. A week after their arrival they accused four women of espionage on frivolous grounds. An officer of the German infantry regiment No. 110, who examined them, offered three of them their lives if they would denounce the fourth. They refused, and were given three minutes to change their minds. 'Then,' states the fourth victim, 'we were dragged to the church walls, the officer superintending in person. He had his watch in his hand. We were given one minute to confess or die. We did not give in.' 'One—two—' but the fatal 'three' did not issue from his lips. They were led back again, and given half an hour's grace more. They entrusted what money they had on their persons to another woman, but the officer interrupted the transaction, counted the money out and appropriated it for the benefit of the war contribution. He told the fourth woman that she should be 'buried alive in front of the church,' but finally the colonel of the 110th Regiment commuted their penalty to imprisonment. One hundred and seventy inhabitants of Beaumont-Hamel altogether were taken as prisoners to Cambrai. After five months' detention the elders were sent home, but they were brutally separated from the children, who were not allowed to return.

"At Proyart, on August 29, a Uhlan patrol fired down into a cellar where the inhabitants of a house had just taken refuge, and killed an old man of 74. They broke everything in this house, and sacked the whole village: 'Six or seven deaconesses in black clothes, with white coifs and Red Cross armlets, went into the houses with the soldiers and took anything that pleased them.' 'On September 1,' states another witness, 'I saw the Germans load M. Wable's furniture on motor-cars and then set fire to the house—throwing in something that exploded.' 'I saw quite distinctly,' says a French soldier who was lying wounded in the street, 'how they went from house to house, setting them on fire. I saw them set a dozen houses on fire in this way, notably a big barn.'

"On August 29 the Germans also burned seven houses and two barns at Framerville. Their methods show that the incendiaries of Framerville and Proyart were the same. 'One heard an explosion,' states the Cure of Framerville, 'and then the house took fire immediately. Each time a building was burning they played a pianola which they had taken from M. Francois Foucard's house.' At Proyart, while M. Wable's house was in flames, they had dances to the sound of a gramophone.

"At Maucourt on August 29 a German cyclist patrol found four agricultural laborers sitting in a cafe. He leveled his rifle at them, and two of them tried to escape. The German fired twice at the first, who dragged himself a hundred yards and then died. The second took refuge in a barn. More Germans then came up and, deranged matches to burn the barn over his head, but finding none they put five bullets into his brain. Next day they wounded a French dragoon from an ambush in the village, and finished him off with the butt-ends of their rifles in order to plunder his pockets. On September 25 they returned in force to Maucourt and when the French artillery opened on them they seized five men of the village as a screen to cover their retreat. 'I was arrested,' states one of these victims, 'by a German sergeant with a serrated bayonet. . . . They immediately placed us in front of them, telling us that the French were going to kill us. . . . We could not escape, for we had a soldier with fixed bayonet on either side of us.' 'Four times,' states the village schoolmaster, 'we were knocked over by the shock of the (French) shells.' Returning next day, the Germans imposed a war contribution on the commune. 'How many inhabitants have you?' asked the German commandant. 'Three hundred and fifty,' he was told. 'I must have 10 francs per inhabitant,' he answered. 'If you have not produced the sum in gold or silver within an hour, everyone will be searched; anyone found with money on him will be shot, the village will be burnt, and we shall carry off hostages.' Fifteen hundred francs in gold were paid by the village baker, the rest by other individuals. 'No receipt was given,' states a witness. 'Our commune was completely pillaged. I found my own house sacked, the cloth torn off the billiard table, and everything in a state of indescribable confusion.' On the same day, September 26, the French troops returned and Maucourt was delivered.

'At Liancourt-Fosse the Germans, fighting with a French regiment for the possession of the village, seized twelve of the inhabitants as a screen, and drove them forward in their ranks. The French slackened their fire, but three of the civilians were seriously wounded and another mortally.

"In the Commune of Welles-Perennes, in the Department of the Oise, the Germans surprised two farm lads, 18 and 19 years old, driving in a cart to Montigny to buy bread. One of them, wounded in the stomach, dragged himself back to the farm and died. The other was taken to Creve-Coeur that day. 'Many of them were drunk. They broke open the doors of a number of houses of which the owners were away, and gave themselves up to pillage. Soldiers dragged a young man up to two officers on horseback, and one of them shot him point blank.' At Ferrieres, six houses were set on fire by means of bombs, and a man and his wife suffocated in their cellar because a French soldier had fired in the street and taken refuge in a house.

"Mortimer, on the road from Roue to Compiegne, was pillaged by the Germans on August 31. Next day they demanded tobacco from the grocer, M. Huille. Having none, he guided them to the tobacconist's, and was shot point blank as he turned to go home. At Marqueglise the Germans carried off eight civilians as hostages, including the cure and the mayor, and shot four other hostages—two Frenchmen from St. Quentin and two Belgians from Jeumenes. When they retreated through Marqueglise on September 31, a German officer ordered three Uhlans to fire on a crowd of about forty people because he thought he heard the word 'Prussian' muttered among them. A man and a little girl were wounded and a boy of 15 was killed.

"Choisy-au-Bac, in the angle between the Oise and the Aisne, was entered by the Germans on August 31. On September 1 and 2,' states the town clerk, 'they deliberately burned a quarter of the houses in Choisy, on the absolute pretext that they had been fired on. Before setting the houses on fire they pillaged the whole place under their officers' eyes. Two military doctors with Red Cross armlets pillaged Madame Binder's house with their own hands. The booty was carried off in carts stolen on the spot. Forty-five houses were destroyed. On September 8, the Germans shot in his garden an inhabitant of Choisy who had just returned from Compeigne. They carried off four others on their retreat—one escaped, and is known to have been shot, and the others were not heard of again.'

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

"THE CLUE IN THE AIR"

A DETECTIVE STORY—Isabel Ostrander

"If Tony left with me he would be suspected of the murder and the whole country searched for him; we could not leave together. He must stay and play the part of a disinterested witness, at least until the efforts of the police were definitely turned in some other direction, and his absence would not start a hunt for him, and I must go away somewhere alone. But where?

"Then I became conscious of a very heavy weight pulling my arm down. I was still clinging to the poor dead girl's suit case. Her purse was inside, with the ticket to Chicago; I would take her place!

"I explained hurriedly to Tony and he had to agree, for it was the only way out, and already there was a commotion throughout the building, and a crowd was collecting below. We arranged for me to hide in some little hotel in Chicago near the station until he could come to me.

"It was the most difficult moment in my life when I bade him good-bye and forced myself to walk calmly down those echoing stairs, push my way unnoticed through that throng of people in the lower hall and past the door of the doctor's office, and what I knew lay behind it.

"How I succeeded I cannot imagine, but I found myself somehow out on the street and beyond the fringe of the crowd. It was very late but there was still a bare chance that I could catch the train if I made a prompt subway connection. I dreaded the very thought of it, but it was the only way.

"I rounded the corner and far down the block I saw a little car drawn up at the curb under a street lamp. It looked familiar, and scarcely daring to hope, I walked toward it. It was dear, good Luke, waiting patiently to know that all was well!

"I explained breathlessly that I had to make the train, and he rushed me down to the station; I had only time to tell him that a terrible thing had happened, and a girl was dead who would be thought to be me. I warned him that he might be dragged into the investigation, and he said that he would have an alibi ready.

"I reached the station just as the gates were closing, and boarded my train. I tried to get a compartment, for I felt that I must be quite alone, but none was to be had. I collapsed as the train started, but after a time forced myself to think of the immediate future, and what remained to be done.

"Poor Ivy Collins had mentioned the name of the people to whom she had meant to go in Chicago, and searching through her suit case, I found a letter from a Lavinia Platt, saying that they were expecting her, and would meet her at the station. Fortunately the address was given, and I sent a wire ahead from the next stop saying that my plans were changed.

"I pretended to be too ill to write it myself and induced the porter to write it for me, so that no specimen of my handwriting would be left for the police to trace me by, if a hue and cry were raised over my disappearance. You see it never occurred to me that the substitution would not be discovered, and that poor creature's body buried for mine. You can imagine my sensations when I saw the papers later on.

"What I suffered on that journey, no one can ever know. I can't talk about it even now. I was afraid that some one might come to the station to meet Ivy Collins after all, and recognize the clothes that I wore, so I put on a quieter gown which I found in the suit case and tied a dark veil over the garish hat. When we arrived I slipped into the waiting room, and managed to drop the coat which had been purchased there in Chicago, without being observed.

Once out on the street I realized that I was faint from hunger, for I had eaten scarcely anything since the sandwich poor Ivy Collins had made for me and I must keep my strength until I had found shelter. I came upon a quiet little restaurant, and the waitress recommended me to a quiet little hotel near by which her relatives conducted.

"I went there and registered from Boston, the farthest point east which came to my mind. I used the name Wilkes, suggested to me by a thought of our old seamstress Miss Wilkinson. I had no sooner reached the room assigned to me than I fainted and for a week I was desperately ill. A neighbor on the same floor—a kind hearted woman who was the buyer for some out of town shop—nursed me and through her I managed to send a telegram to Luke, signed with her name, just giving the address of the hotel. He would understand and give it to Tony. As a matter of fact he gave it to him just after the inquest.

"I had told her of an elopement, and she was romantic, and willing to do everything that she could for me. I said that my people would probably send detectives after me and she vowed that if they did she would throw them off the track. No one around the hotel, she least of all suspected that I had taken the place of the girl for whom the whole country seemed to be searching.

"Tony left the Glamorgan on Sunday. He told me later that you had never connected him in any way with the murder, Mr. Terhune, and you readily gave him permission to leave when he spoke of the western automobile manufacturers he was compelled to see. My stepfather and aunt had recognized him at the inquest, but they made no move, for of course they believed me dead, and waited for him to declare that I had been his wife and demand my property.

"Tony waited about New York for two days and then secure in the belief that he was safe from being followed, he boarded a train to join me. It had scarcely started when he found Mr. McCarty at his heels together with another man, but he soon saw that they had not discovered him. He had wired to me in my friend's name before starting, and again on the train when he recognized Mr. McCarty. My friend replied that she would meet him at the station.

"As long as Tony escaped their notice he meant to follow them and see where they were going, but they separated on arrival at the station. My good friend met Tony, and while he followed Mr. McCarty in a taxi, she tried to engage his companion in conversation and learn their destination, but she wasn't successful.

"I don't know how they had found my hiding place, but when Tony—after losing the trail of Mr. McCarty—came to the hotel, he found they had reached there before him. The next morning my friend, dressed in the clothes which had already changed hands so tragically, attempted to lead them off on a false scent, while Tony and I made our escape in a motor car to his brother's little farm out in the country.

"But they were too clever for us three; they tracked us down, and when Tony and I fled again in the night in a borrowed machine they halted us in the road."

She paused with a deep sigh, and added:

"Of every one connected with this whole terrible affair, Mr. McCarty alone had discovered the truth. When I realized that we were caught and further effort to escape would be useless, I cried out that he must want me for the murder of Marion Rowntree.

"'No ma'am,' he said. 'It's Marion Rowntree, I'm talking to this minute. I want to know how Ivy Collins came to her death.'"

WAS OFF WORK

4 OR 5 MONTHS A YEAR WITH

CONSTIPATION

If the truth were only known you would find that over one-half of the ills of life are caused by allowing the bowels to get into a constipated condition.

When the bowels become constipated the stomach gets out of order, the liver does not work properly, and then follows the violent sick headaches, the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, water brash, etc.

Keep your bowels regular by using Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. They work on the bowels gently and naturally, and will cure the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. Sylvester Clements, Galt, Ont., writes: "I desire to express my heartfelt thanks for what Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills have done for me. I have been suffering from a bad stomach and constipation and would be off work 4 or 5 months a year. I was hardly able to be inside without getting a severe headache. I tried doctors' medicine and other remedies, but got no relief until a friend advised me to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. Now I can work inside without any headaches or pain. I would not be without your remedy for anything. I write this so that anyone suffering the same as I did may use them and be cured."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A TERRIBLE RECORD.

Germans Proud of Number of Illegitimate Children.

Ten per cent. of the children born in Prussia in war-time are illegitimate, according to statements made in the Prussian House of Representatives during the debate on the vital statistics. The Berlin town councillor, Dr. Engel, in an article in Vorwaerts, makes the statement that this large proportion of illegitimate children is "evidence of the moral healthiness of the German race." He adds, in the course of an appeal for the withdrawal of all distinctions between legitimate and illegitimate children:

"Paradoxical though it may seem, this great number of illegitimate children represent a measure of the morality of our people. They afford evidence that, after all, the idea of the restriction of families, an idea which the war with special emphasis bids us combat, has not yet penetrated the masses.

"The terrible fact, however, is that only 136 out of every 1,000 illegitimate children reach their 19th year, as compared with 512 in the case of legitimate children. The death rate of illegitimates is a convincing plea for the improvement of the situation of unmarried mothers and their children. There should be a uniform birth certificate, and women who were engaged to fallen soldiers should be awarded the title of 'Frau.'

"War-time, owing to the card system, is a torture for the unmarried mother. Every journey for a food card is a path of thorns and a source of fresh mortification and humiliation. In the card-issuing office, and again in the shops, she must again and again make confession of her fault. The awarding to her of the title Frau would remove many obstacles and much mental torture."

The number of unmarried mothers in Prussia, Dr. Engel states, has now reached a total of nearly 200,000 yearly.

Famous Invalids.

Those who are afflicted with ill-health may derive some comfort from the statement, quoted in a recent book on "Suffering and the War," that "Coleridge claimed that the three greatest works of the nineteen centuries were all written by men of feeble health—Spinoza's 'Ethics,' Bacon's 'Novum Organum,' and Kant's 'Critique of Pure Reason.'" As another instance of the triumph of the spirit, Sir Isaac Newton, it is stated, was a most unpromising child, with a frail body and poor eyesight. "He showed no aptitude for study, and was first incited by the desire to get ahead of a boy who kicked him."

Another great writer who accomplished much despite the handicap of poor health was Herbert Spencer. Like Newton, as a boy he was backward in his studies. A new life of Spencer by Hugh Eliot says: "He was very backward as a boy in the ordinary subjects of children's lessons. . . . Morally, he was extremely disobedient and contemptuous of authority." At thirteen he "found the discipline (of his school) more severe than he cared about, and ran away home to Derby again, walking forty-eight miles the first day." Yet as a man, "without money, without special education, without health, he produced eighteen large volumes of philosophy and science of many diverse kinds, published a variety of mechanical inventions, and on endless other subjects, great and small, he set forth a profusion of new and original ideas."—To-Day.

At Sunday School.

"Give an account of Balaam," said the teacher. "Balaam was a prophet who lived a long way off," replied the student. "After a while he went out for a ride on his donkey, and he got very angry with the donkey and hit him, and a voice from heaven said, 'You must not hit the donkey; it is only a steed.'"

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

WANTED: A COOK

By Raymond Maxwell

Julia and Arthur Van Tyne entered the holy estate of matrimony with high ideals. During their engagement they passed many happy evenings arranging the details of their future home.

The servants were to be treated with a firm but mild kindness which was to reduce them to a condition of loving submission. Julia said that it would be very pleasant to be served always by the same faithful creatures, and she even went so far as to imagine Arthur's funeral when his bier would be surrounded by a group of white-haired servitors who would sob that they had lived with "Master" for 45 years. Arthur answered that if the servants did stay for 45 years that they would be most likely to call him "the old man," yet he was pleased with the idea. He was also to have the privilege of bringing home company whenever he wished. His wife would receive them with a smile and then they were all to sit down to a simple though perfect dinner.

The Van Tyne's built a pretty little houses with every modern convenience to add to the burden of their existence. They had steam heat, electric lights, stationary tubs, dumb waiters, soiled clothes chutes, telephone, burglar alarms at every window, hard wood floors, patent ventilators, and every other thing that the architect's fertile mind could suggest. When the house was finished and furnished their friends called it a "little paradise." None inquired after the serpent, but she was there—or rather not there most of the time. Her place was in the kitchen. The serpent was nominally known as the cook.

The first cook stayed two weeks, then quarreled with the second girl and departed. Another cook came, lingered for five brief days and then left because she said "thim convaniences wud set her crazy inside of a month." Then cook after cook passed through the Van Tyne kitchen, pausing only long enough to kindle hope in the heart of Mrs. Van Tyne and then quench it.

When the little Van Tynes began to come to live with their parents the question became even graver. If the fourth little Van Tyne had been a raging lion instead of a sweet, pink baby, he could not have caused more misery. He made his mother lose a "jewel" who had been with her for over four months and who had promised to stay forever if Mrs. Van Tyne would have a new porcelain lined sink put in the kitchen.

Arthur Van Tyne became a past master in the wording of alluring and misleading advertisements. He said that he expected to be arrested at any moment for obtaining cooks under false pretenses, but he gave full reign to his imagination. He always spoke of his family as "rather large, but quiet and easily pleased," while as a matter of fact the young Van Tynes were small but lively. He knew to his misery now that "plain cooking" meant the ability to boil potatoes, fry a beefsteak and make weak tea, yet he always put it in his advertisement as a bait.

Then after he had spent a small fortune in "ads," he turned to employment agencies. One day while haunting the agency of Mrs. Sarah B. Hackett, he found a cook who said she could really cook and didn't object to small children. She went home with him and put on her apron. The Van Tynes found that she could cook and then they waited patiently to learn her infirmity—for by this time they had learned that no cook is perfect. They found out that first evening.

The weird, long drawn notes of an accordion came floating in from the kitchen. The Van Tynes looked at each other and smiled. In his rash youth Arthur Van Tyne had said that he would never tolerate an accordion in his house, but now he only grinned foolishly as he listened to "The Georgia Camp Meeting."

The cook played the accordion in all her leisure hours, but the Van Tynes were too meek now to hint that they preferred another instrument. In this lull Van Tyne wrote to his parents, asking them to pay him a visit. "I want you to see our babies," he wrote, "so hurry up and come while we've got a cook."

A day or two before he expected them, Mrs. Van Tyne ventured to tell the cook. When she returned to the library she said: "We can't have your father and mother just now, Arthur."

"Why not?" he asked.

"Cook says that she doesn't like people staying in the house. She don't object to 'mealers' once in a while, but she won't have 'sleepers,' because it makes so much fuss at breakfast."

Van Tyne said something behind his book, then added, "I suppose I'll have to telegraph them not to come. We can say we think Minnie's coming down with some disease, for I don't want to hurt their feelings. And it won't be any lie, either, for she'll catch something before the telegram's delivered."

"Minnie's had everything but the Spanish measles and the small pox," her mother answered with sorrowful pride.

"I thought she had had all three kinds of measles," Van Tyne said. "But there are four kinds—red, black, Spanish and German. I do hope that all the children will have the last kind this winter, then we will be through."

"Then Minnie will invent a new kind herself. She won't ever be satisfied if she doesn't have some kind of a rash," Van Tyne answered. "Between the children being sick and our servants my life isn't worth living any more."

But for a time all went well again. Then a month later Mrs. Van Tyne met her husband at the front door as he came home to dinner. She made a tragic gesture. "She is going to leave us, Arthur." "She" in the Van Tyne house always meant the reigning cook. "She has given me a week's notice. With so many children we'll never get another."

"We might murder the children and hide the bodies down cellar," Van Tyne suggested. "We could tell the neighbors that we had sent 'em out to the country."

"Arthur, how can you joke on such a subject? What can we do?"

"We might try boarding," he said, rattling some loose change in his pocket.

Mrs. Van Tyne frowned. "If we board, the children will get pert and horrid. I hate boarding house children. We shan't board."

"Then we might get a divorce and then I could marry the cook and make a home for the children. How does that strike you?"

"Art, sir, I think you are horrid tonight. I'm sure we've always been happy together even if we have had troubles with the servants," his wife said. "You might think of some plan, I think."

"That's the only one I can think of now," he answered, as he went up stairs.

Mrs. Van Tyne went into the library and laid down on the couch. She cried a little for she found that even Arthur was rather unfeeling, too, today. Her head ached and her thoughts seemed to waver.

She could never remember exactly how the divorce was gotten, for her head seemed to ache always now, but she knew that she suffered horribly when she had to leave her children and her ex-husband. She kissed the children all around twice and told them never to forget her. The baby cried to go with her, but she unwound his little arms from about her neck and turned to Arthur. She only gave him a slight pressure of the hand for the cook was watching them from the dining room door. Arthur had never looked more dear to her than at this moment, but he only said carelessly: "Come and take dinner with us some day—any day after tomorrow. You know tomorrow is our wedding day," and he smiled at the cook.

The cook was dressed in a gown of blue and red plaid and she carried her accordion under one arm.

In some way poor Mrs. Van Tyne stumbled out to her cab. It was very bitter giving up husband and children, so they could have a home and some one to cook for them. But the hardest trial was yet to come. After some time had passed, she met Arthur one day coming out of an employment agency. He looked careworn and seedy and tried to avoid his ex-wife. But she caught his arm. "Why have you been in there?" she cried, pointing at the agency.

"To get a cook," he stammered, looking down at his rusty shoes.

"To get a cook—you married the cook!"

"Yes, I know," he answered. "But after we were married she said she was a lady because she had married a gentleman, and so of course she couldn't keep on cooking. I couldn't deny that I was a gentleman, so you see she had me. Logical, wasn't she?" He smiled drearily. "Besides, she is learning the banjo now, and that takes up a good deal of her time."

"How do you live then?"

"We are 'mealers' at the restaurant on Chestnut street."

"Has the baby cut any more teeth? Does he chew on his rubber ring?" she asked.

"I saw him chewing at the poker yesterday," Van Tyne answered, as he walked away.

She looked after him. He stooped a bit as he walked and had quite lost his alert, prosperous air. She felt that all her sacrifices had been in vain. "And I don't suppose any of the children have on their winter flannels yet or—"

"Wake up—dinner is ready!" Somebody was shaking her shoulder. "Did I act like a brute?" somebody was saying. She opened her eyes. It was Arthur.

"Aren't we divorced?" she asked.

"Don't think so. Oh, I know what you mean—the cook."

Mrs. Van Tyne took hold of her husband's arm. "I had such a horrible dream about you and the cook being married and the baby's teeth. I can't get over it."

While the second girl was passing the soup the glad strains of the accordion came up from the kitchen by way of the dumb waiter. "Katie seems happy tonight," Van Tyne said.

"Her beau has come back from Iowa," the second girl answered. "He wants her to be married as soon as her week's up. He was the one that learned her to play so nice on the accordion."

Mrs. Van Tyne smiled—if she had only known about the beau from Iowa before the dream. "We must give her a wedding present," she said in her relief to find that dreams are not real.

"Yes," Van Tyne replied with a grin. "We'll get her a red silk plaited accordion set with mother of pearl with 'It is more Blessed to Give than to Receive' engraved on the plate."

Edward's Diplomacy.

Edward had been told repeatedly not to say he did not like food which was passed to him at the table. He was invited to a neighbor's to dinner and was offered cherry pie, which he did not care for. He tactfully said, "Well, I'm just crazy for cherry pie, but won't you just save it for supper?"

Chinese Plant Statuettes.

Chinese gardeners sometimes plant statuettes of tiny men firmly in pots, just like real plants, and then train live evergreens to grow up over these statuettes. The vines thus form a kind of robe for the statuette men, their white faces and hands protruding from the green leaves.

NEURALGIA CURED IN A FEW DAYS

And Has Never Returned—Nervous System Was Built Up—Now Sleeps and Eats Well—Husband Also Benefitted by This Treatment.

Mrs. W. T. Abbott, 536 Patterson street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "My system was in a run down condition, and I was troubled with nervousness and sleeplessness. For some time, also, I had been bothered with neuralgia, and although I tried many remedies, it was without success. Upon the advice of a friend, I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found in five or six days that my neuralgia was cured, and I have not been troubled in this way since. I also find that now I can eat and sleep well, and I give full credit of this great benefit to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I might also mention that I lost considerable in weight, but after using the Nerve Food, I gained back the flesh I had lost. My husband has also found Dr. Chase's Nerve Food of great benefit to him, and uses it when he feels run down from overwork. I have recommended the use of this great medicine to many of my friends and acquaintances."

We know that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food possesses exceptional potency as a means of building up the strength of the human body. We have seen it tested in so many thousands of cases that there is no question of the effectiveness of this treatment.

But how are we going to prove this to you unless you try it. You are the one to be benefitted and so it remains for you to make the test.

Try it when you feel tired out and discouraged. Try it for sleeplessness and irritability. Try it for nervous headaches and indigestion.

It is not a mere relief for these ailments, and for this reason you must persist in its use until the last vigor is restored to the nerves.

But of one thing you can be certain—that each dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food contributes something towards building up the exhausted nervous system. 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.75, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto. Refuse all substitutes, as they only disappoint.

The Woman Who Changed

By JANE PHELPS

WHAT SHE REMEMBERS

CHAPTER III.

If a man forgets everything he wants to forget, a woman remembers everything. Each little word and action, every slight, as well as every caress. The sound of an old song or an old waltz tune will carry her back to the night when she first danced with the man she afterward learned to love; and the scent of some particular flower will bring back the day he asked her to marry him, when she wore the flowers he had brought her—those flowers.

Men let old things go, even sweet old memories. Women hang on to every little happening with a tenacity as foolish as it is strong.

So I, like other women, compared the now and the time past, and in the comparison found unhappiness. To be wrapped in the cloak of memory perpetually is to be clad in discontent. The past is gone and we have only the present. I, like all foolish, young things the world over, had this to learn — by experience.

I thought of all the things George had said when he was courting me —all the extravagant speeches—and wondered now why he had said them and if he had meant them, even then. I believe the old monks who tortured themselves by wearing a hair shirt were merciful to themselves compared to the woman who tortures herself by constantly questioning her husband's love—if she loves him.

So I tortured myself. Every time George left me, I spent the time thinking, and often weeping over, what had been. I was intensely proud of George. His position among business men — most of them older than he—inspired a great respect for his ability.

Often when I offered little evidences of affection, especially if he were reading or busy in any way, he would repulse me—not rudely, but carelessly. To be just, I expect he was often bored when I insisted upon detailing my love for him; and also that I embarrassed him by my show of affection in public.

George seemed to forget that I was young, that I had been accustomed to a certain amount of gayety. His business, his clubs, and his sports took up most of his time.

I begged him, one night, to take me out with him; I felt I should go mad if he left me alone. But he was going to a prize fight, and he informed me curtly:

"It is no place for a woman."

"Then it is no place for you!" I blurted out, not stopping to think.

"When have you become my censor?" he queried sarcastically. "When I want any advice from you, any criticism, I will ask for it," and without so much as a "Good-bye," he left me.

It seems only a little thing as I tell it; but then it loomed large before me. It was of little things that my life was made up, at that time—a kiss, or the lack of it; a kind word, or the omission of it; the thoughtful deed, or the forgetfulness of it.

It seems to me even now that it is so with most, if not all, women. Our lives are made up of trifles. We are so dependent upon love to bring out what is in us. Lacking that, we wither and die—mentally, if not physically.

George figured that if he supplied the roast beef of life I could manage without dessert. But I longed for the sweets, for kisses and caresses.

To tell the truth, I was already beginning to be a little frightened at my future — what it would bring. Then, too, I was lonely. A few of my husband's bachelor friends had called; one or two women friends. But they were much older than I was — not in years, perhaps, (although even in that they were five or six years ahead of me) but in their knowledge of the world, of men and things of which they unblushingly talked.

I had a lovely home, beautifully furnished. Naturally I was very proud of it. So one day when a Mrs. Loring called—a handsome woman, though cold looking—and she expressed her admiration, I took her all over the house, showing her my linens, even the kitchen, with all the delight of a child showing a doll's house to her playmates. She must have criticized me for doing it, for a day or two afterward George said:

"Was Madge Loring here the other day?"

"A Mrs. Loring called, why?"

"What did you do?"

"Do? Why, nothing! Just talked," I replied, then, "You mean—Oh, I took her all over the house — showed her everything. She thought it was lovely."

"Well she may have thought it was lovely, but she didn't say it. I wish you would try to be a little more dignified. It isn't quite the thing to take strangers into your private sleeping rooms and into your kitchen. Please don't do it again."

"But I am so proud of our lovely home, I love to——"

"Please remember my request. Try and be more dignified."

"I'll do anything in the world to please you George! The trouble is, I never know what is going to please you, or what will offend. Perhaps I will learn if you will be patient and love me."

"Perhaps!" he said in a doubtful tone. To-morrow, "Easier to Put Out Than to Kindle."

What the Worker Will Demand

ACCORDING to Arthur Gleason, the well-known American writer, the British labor movement is more interesting than the war, because greater issues are involved. It is the most radical and the least Socialistic labor movement in the world. At the present moment it is distinctly anti-Socialistic. Socialism, as understood by British workers, is the state control of the means of production and distribution. State control means Government control. Government control is control by a Cabinet directorate, by Parliament and by a set of permanent officials. The English worker distrusts all three of these agencies of Government functioning. He is unable to see that the tendency toward state control of public utilities has brought him any comfort in wages or hours (as a matter of fact it has bettered his status). He believes that state control means control by politicians, and he distrusts politicians. Mr. Lloyd George, who for a time charmed him, has lost influence with him because of Mr. George's new alliance with the Tories.

If state control is under suspicion by the British worker, what, then, is the direction of his radicalism? It is in the direction of "workers' control" of syndicalism. The British worker wishes to share the management of the factory with the capitalist. He wishes to have a say on wages, hours, discipline, employment and discharge of workers. As soon as the war is over the great trade unions will be in control in Britain. The Triple Alliance (the miners, railwaymen, the transport workers), the Amalgamated Society of Engineers and the cotton trades will be the masters of Great Britain. They represent an organized power, which power is irresistible. They will not attempt to own the factory, nor to organize the market, nor sell the product. Their exercise of function (in the immediate future) will stop with what concerns their own status (piece rates, hours of labor, discipline, etc.).

And in this syndicalist advance of the trade unions what becomes of Socialism? Actually, the tendency toward state control of industry increases. The radical movement includes (actively and consciously) management of the factory (in hours, wages, etc.) by the workers and ownership of the industry by the state. The only questions now of living interest are which industries shall be state-owned and what shall be the percentage of control in the factory, assigned, respectively, to the owner and the workers. One of the places to-day to study the British radical movement is, amazing to say, in the Y.M.C.A. huts. There the British Tommy speaks his mind, and it is a new mind, different by far from the stolid, stubborn, middle-of-the-way mind of the traditional formula. The most popular lectures in the British Red Triangle huts have been those on the social and industrial reconstruction after the war. The Tommy is eager to listen, and is then full of questions, and woe to the speaker who has a set speech and no elasticity of margin for ready response to rapid-fire criticism. So keen has the interest been in discussing the remaking of England that the authorities have shut down on reconstruction talks. Radicalism is perilous yeast these days. Once the people rose in France. And lately they rose in Russia. Perhaps a third time nearer home? It is safer to talk history and reel off films and sing of the home fires.

Let no one think that the British workers are carrying through these changes with clean intelligence and high self-conscious purpose. They are merely obedient to the push of necessity, and a little reason and conscious will are mixed with a lot of blind impulse. "John Bull" is still the most popular periodical in the British army, and its editor, Horatio Bottomley, is as little interested in studying the causes of economic injustice as William Sunday.

How to square the popularity of reconstruction talks and the popularity of John Bull? The love of personal liberty, the individual's insistence on doing what he pleases, are the explanation of much that is puzzling in British radicalism. It is here that is created his distaste for state Socialism. He doesn't want the state to give him something. He wants to take it for himself in the place nearest at hand. And the place nearest at hand is the place where he works—his factory. So we have the victorious drive toward workers' control. Shop committees, made up half of "management" and half of workers, are in existence in the Government factories, are spreading through the "controlled" factories and will be established in the privately-owned factories of the organized trades. A correspondent asked a millionaire manufacturer of Yorkshire how he liked his factory committees.

"It now takes twelve persons to do what we used to do with one. But it results in a different attitude toward the factory and the work. The twelve persons are doing for themselves what the one used to do for them."

The same reply could be made about an absolute monarch versus universal suffrage. One man used to rule us politically, and now it takes several millions.

Too bad, says the chorus of The Morning Post, The Saturday Review and The National Review. What Northcliffe will say remains to be heard. He is enormously powerful and very clever. If he swings against democratic control of industry he will make trouble.

Over 10,000 men are employed in the collieries of Kiangsi, China.

The true man hates no one.—Napoleon.

Bagdad Has Moving Picture Show.

Bagdad has one public motion picture theatre. The building is about 100 feet long by 60 feet wide, a somewhat primitive structure, but with the advantage that the ventilation is very good. The seats are divided into two classes. The price of first-class tickets is 26 cents, and that of the second-class admission 17 cents. The hall is furnished with electric lights and electric fans, power for which is supplied by a small motor.

The films shown are similar to those ordinarily exhibited in America. There is usually one long film featuring some prominent French or English actor, followed by a short comedy. Numerous American films also are shown here.

Until recently films were imported chiefly from Smyrna, Turkey, where there was an agency, but that source of supply has been cut off since the occupation of Bagdad by the British on March 11, 1917. Another source is the firm of Pathe Freres, of Paris, France. The films are not purchased, but rented for a certain period and then returned. The theatre opens every night at 8 o'clock, and closes about 10.30. There are no exhibitions during the day at present. The pictures are changed twice a week. The attendance is good.

There is also a motion picture plant conducted by the military authorities exclusively for the British officers and soldiers. Before the war a local British firm conducted a first-class film theatre in Bagdad. It was very popular, and was attended by the best class of the population. Undoubtedly such enterprises will prosper there in the future, when normal conditions are restored, because the city has a population of about 200,000, and this form of amusement appeals to them.—Commerce Reports.

The Watchtower of Gaza.

Al-Mintar, or the watch tower, still exists to the east of the town of Gaza. It is where Samson is said to have carried the gates of the city. On the road from Gaza to Jaffa are those ancient olive trees, many of them more than a thousand years old, with gnarled bark and immense trunks. There is an old legend which credits Gaza with the invention of the first mechanical clocks. These were perhaps the sand clocks which are still used in some mosques. —Christian Science Monitor.

Mr. Weldon T. Hawkes, Curryville, N.B., writes: "Last spring I was taken very ill with a severe cold. I got wet and it started with a chill. I was sick four weeks, and was just able to crawl about. People all said I had inflammation of the lungs, and I think I did. I told a friend to get me two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before the first one was taken my cold and cough were broken up, and the second did its work completely. I am raising a family and I find that it is a good medicine for the children."

There is no remedy that will cure stubborn colds or coughs, the kind that won't let go, like Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

It allays the inflammation, soothes the irritation, heals the diseased mucous lining of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and rids the system completely of all the bad effects of lingering coughs and colds.

There are so many spurious "Pine" preparations on the market that you should see you get "Dr. Woods" when you ask for it.

Ian Hay Has Described Uses of the Telephone On Battle Lines in France

IN his new book, "All In It," which is a continuation of "The First Hundred Thousand," Ian Hay describes the work of the telephone in the battle lines.

Practically all the business of an army in the field is transacted by telephone, says the author. If the telephone breaks down, whether by the act of God or of the King's enemies, that business is at a standstill until the telephone is put right again.

The importance of the disaster varies with the nature of the business. For instance, if the wire leading to the Round Game Department is blown down by a March gale, and your weekly return of Men Recommended for False Teeth is delayed in transit, nobody minds very much —except possibly the Deputy Director of Auxiliary Dental Appliances. But if you are engaged in battle, and the wires which link up the driving force in front with the directing force behind are devastated by a storm of shrapnel, the matter assumes a more—nay, a most—serious aspect. Hence the superlative importance in modern warfare of the signal sections of the Royal Engineers—tersely described by the rank and file as the "Buzzars" or the "Iddy-Umpties."

During peace-training the buzzer, on the whole, has a very pleasant time of it. Once he has mastered the mysteries of the semaphore and Morse codes the most laborious part of his education is over. Henceforth he spends his days upon some sheltered hillside, in company with one or two congenial spirits, flapping cryptic messages out of a blue and white flag at a similar party across the valley.

But once in the thick of things there is no flag-wagging. The buzzer's first proceeding upon entering the field of active hostilities is to get underground, and stay there.

He is a seasoned vessel, the buzzer of to-day, and a person of marked individuality. He is, above all things, a man of the world. Sitting day and night in a dugout, or a cellar, with a telephone receiver clamped to his ears, he sees little; but he hears much, and overhears more. He also speaks a language of his own. His one task in life is to prevent the letter B sounding like C, or D, or P, or T, or V over the telephone; so he has perverted the English language to his own uses. He calls B "Beer," and D "Don," and so on. He salutes the rosy dawn as "Akk Emma," and eventide as "Pip Emma." He refers to the letter S as "Esses," in order to distinguish it from F. He has no respect for the most majestic military titles. To him the Deputy Assistant Director of the Mobile Veterinary Section is merely a lifeless formula, entitled Don Akk Don Emma Vic Esses.

He is also a man of detached mind. The tactical situation does not interest him. His business is to disseminate news, not to write leading articles about it. (O si sic omnes!). You may be engaged in a life and death struggle for the possession of your own parapet, but this does not render you immune from a pink slip from the signal station, asking you to state your reasons in writing for having mislaid fourteen pairs of "boots, gum, thigh," lately the property of number seven platoon.

Thirdly, the buzzer is a humorist of the sardonic variety. The constant clash of wits over the wires and the necessity of framing words quickly sharpens the faculties and accumulates his tongue. Incidentally, he is an awkward person to quarrel with. One black night Bobby Little, making his second round of the trenches about an hour before "stand-to," felt constrained to send a telephone message to battalion headquarters. Taking a good breath—you always do this before entering a trench dugout—he plunged into the noisesome cavern where his company signallers kept everlasting vigil. The place was in total darkness, except for the illumination supplied by a strip of rifle rag burning in a tin of rifle oil. The air, what there was of it, was thick with large, fat, floating particles of free carbon. The telephone was buzzing plaintively to itself in unsuccessful competition with a well-modulated quartet for four nasal organs, contributed by Bobby's entire signalling staff, who, locked in the inextricable embrace peculiar to Thomas Atkins in search of warning, were snoring harmoniously upon the earthen floor.

The signaller "on duty,"—one McGurk—was extracted from the heap and put under arrest for sleeping at his post. The enormity of his crime was heightened by the fact that two undelivered messages were found upon his person.

Divers pains and penalties followed. Bobby supplemented the sentence with a homily on the importance of vigilance and despatch. McGurk, deeply aggrieved at forfeiting seven days' pay, said nothing, but bided his time. Two nights later the battalion came out of trenches for a week's rest, and Bobby, weary and thankful, retired to bed in his hut at 9 p.m. in comfortable anticipation of a full night's repose.

His anticipations weer doomed to disappointment. He was roused from slumber—not without difficulty—by Signaller McGurk, who appeared standing at his bedside with a guttering candle-end in one hand and a pink dispatch form in the other. The message said:

"Prevailing wind for next twenty-four hours probably S. W., with some rain."

Mindful of his own recent admonitions, Bobby thanked McGurk politely and went to sleep again.

McGurk called again at half-past 2 in the morning with another message, which announced:

"Baths will be available for your company from 2 to 3 p.m. to-morrow."

Bobby stuffed the missive under his air pillow and rolled over without a word. McGurk withdrew, leaving the door of the hut open.

His next visit was about 4 o'clock. This time the message said:

"A zeppelin is reported to have passed over Dunkirk at 5 p.m. yesterday afternoon, proceeding in a northerly direction."

Bobby informed McGurk that he was a fool and a dotard, and cast him forth.

McGurk returned at 5.30 bearing written evidence that the zeppelin had been traced as far as Ostend.

This time his company commander promised him that if he appeared again that night he would be awarded fourteen days' Field Punishment Number One.

The result was that upon sitting down to breakfast at 9 next morning Bobby found upon his plate yet another message—from his commanding officer—summoning him to the orderly room on urgent matters at 8.30.

But Bobby scored the final and winning trick. Sending for McGurk and Sergeant McMicking, he said:

"This man, Sergeant, appears to be unable to decide when a message is urgent and when it is not. In future, whenever McGurk is on night duty and is in doubt as to whether a message should be delivered at once or put aside till morning, he will come to you and ask for your guidance in the matter. Do you understand?"

"Perfectly, sir," replied the sergeant; outwardly calm.

"McGurk, do you understand?"

An International League.

From Morocco to Walfisch Bay the west coast of Africa has been the scene of a scramble between great Powers. Asiatic Turkey with the Bagdad railway is the shining prize at which Germany aims through the "Mittel Europa" scheme. Each power has sought colonies and spheres of influence for the exclusive benefit of its own business interests. What better way can be devised to prevent the recurrence of these "wars of steel and gold," as Mr. Brailsford has termed them, than by substituting for the rival economic ambitions of each people an agreement for the economic advantage of all? Let the great colonizing states follow the example of the American States who ceded their western lands to the Confederation.

France, Great Britain, Germany, Belgium, Italy, and Portugal would then vest in an international European Congress and its executive organs the title to practically the whole of Central Africa. The same Congress should assume the receivership for the bankrupt concerns of Turk and Persian. Russia, England, France, and Germany would then have the merit of yielding each a selfish advantage, in order to cement a European union and to promote the common welfare.

At once the European League of Nations would become the administrator of a great public domain of the world. It would derive therefrom a strength and importance at the moment almost incalculable. It would begin to strike roots, as under similar circumstances in North America, into a sentiment of unity and allegiance in a new brotherhood of States. It would establish complete freedom of trade for all nations throughout the whole extent of the common territory. It would naturally add to the administration of the new domain the responsibility for the neutralized straits, canals, and other waterways in the old world, and for neutralized territories also.

The first administrators of the new territories should be chosen from peoples accustomed to self-government and not directly involved in the present war, Swiss, Dutch, and Scandinavians.—American Review of Reviews.

The German Invasion of Russia Is Halted

CANADIANS SCORE IN THREE BIG RAIDS

AUSTRIANS REFUSE TO ADVANCE AGAINST RUSSIANS IN VOLHYNIA

200,000 Germans Are Being Concentrated at Dubno --Russian People Are Arming For Guerilla Warfare in the Rear of the Invaders--Warlike Spirit is in Evidence in Petrograd--One Hundred Thousand Workmen Enlisted Yesterday.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 28.—The Austrians have refused to advance against the Russians in Volhynia, according to despatches from Zhitomir.

The German and Austrian commanders, fearing the refusal of the Austrians to fight, have concentrated 200,000 German troops in the Dubno district.

Reports of growing disobedience on the part of German troops have been received from Orsha.

Field Marshal Hindenburg, now at Dvinsk, has ordered that operations in the Orsha district halted.

German troops have been ordered to cease their advance against Pskoff, according to a telephone despatch from Novo-Selic to Luga, but the battle to retake Pskoff from the Russians apparently continues.

The Germans are moving a large army from Polatsk.

Germans occupying Reval were heavily bombarded from Nargen Island by the Russians.

Arming For Guerilla War.

Men and women of the cities, villages and farms in Pskoff district are reported to be arming for guerilla warfare in the rear of the invaders. This fighting already has began at many points.

Petrograd has undergone a remarkable metamorphosis. The city is optimistic, warlike, determined. One hundred thousand workmen enlisted in the Revolutionary army yesterday. Sixty thousand have been sent to the front. The Smolny Institute has lost its tragic aspect. A constant stream of workers, men and women, are volunteering to dig trenches. They are eager to go to the front.

The streets are lively and the gloomy pessimists of Nevsky Prospekt have disappeared. Bright new red flags are seen everywhere. The Bourgeoisie no longer express a hope to be "rescued" by the Germans.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 28.—(Official).—Artillery fire is lively along the front. French patrols brought back prisoners.

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—If America sanctions the movement, Japan can have 200,000 troops in Siberia within two weeks to protect Allied interests and supplies. Shortly thereafter 600,000 more men would be available for service, it was stated on high authority to-day.

Simultaneously, it was emphasized that Japan will not act without the approval of the Allies and the United States.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(Official). — English troops carried out a successful raid last night against the enemy's trenches on Greenland Hill, north of the Scarpe River. Prisoners and a machine gun were captured by us. English and Scottish troops also raided German positions in the southern portion of Houtholst Forest and brought back prisoners and three machine guns. The enemy's artillery was active in the neighbourhood of Havincourt Wood and south of the Scarpe River.

WILL ADVANCE UNTIL PEACE IS SIGNED

That is the Reply of General Hoffman to Inquiry as to why Enemy Attacked in the Face of Russia's Acceptance of the Peace Proposals

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)
(By Joseph Shaplen).

PETROGRAD, Feb. 27 (Morning).—The American Envoys have left Petrograd last night for Vologda, accompanied by the Japanese, Brazilian and Siamese Envoys.

The German invaders are reported to have advanced one station above Pskoff.

Retiring from Reval (200 miles west of Petrograd), the Russians are prepared to destroy all railways and asphalt roads as they fall back on the capital.

The loyal Cossacks are rushing from the region towards Pskoff to aid in the defence of Petrograd.

Partisan warfare on a serious scale has broken out at Minsk (400 miles south-west of Petrograd).

Replying to Ensign Krylenko's query as to why the Germans advanced, in the face of Russia's acceptance of the peace proposals, General Hoffman replied that Germany would continue to advance on Esthonia and Ukraine—until peace is signed.

The Russian delegation arrived at Brest-Litovsk yesterday to renew the peace conference.

Hoffman's reply strengthens the belief of the Bolsheviki that the Germans do not intend to capture Petrograd. Instead, it is believed they intend to occupy a line from Narva (100 miles west of Petrograd to Vitebak, 350 miles south of Petrograd) under the pretense of protecting the small nations.

GERMAN ARMY ORDERED TO STOP ATTACK ON RUSSIA?

Petrograd Correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. Reports That Such is the Case--Does It Mean That Peace Terms Have Been Signed?

HOFFMAN'S ANSWER

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 28. — The German army has received orders to stop its advance into Russia, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. who has received information to this effect, which he regards as reliable.

When the Bolsheviki government agreed to accept German peace terms last week the Commander-in-Chief of the Russian armies inquired of the Germans if the previous armistice would be renewed and the German invasion halted. He did not receive an immediate reply and the German advance continued.

A despatch from Petrograd Wednesday said that General Hoffman, the German military representative at Brest-Litovsk had replied to the Bolsheviki communictaion by declaring that the German advance would continue until the treaty of peace was signed and carried out along the lines laid down in the German peace terms.

RAIDS BY CANADIANS

Three Attacks by the Maple Leaf Troops in the Past Twenty-Four Hours have resulted in the Capture of Many Prisoners and Machine Guns

CONSTANT ACTIVITY

(By W. A. Willison, Canadian Press Correspondent.)

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, Feb. 28.—(Via London).—Raiding the enemy by night and day, Canada in the field is continuing the policy of trench activity with marked success. No less than three raids have been carried out in the past 24 hours, netting us enemy prisoners and machine guns. The artillery continues its usual activity, while the enemy heavily shelled Lieves yesterday for practically the whole day, further wrecking the village.

While enemy airplanes have been less active our own machines have been very busy, continually crossing the enemy lines.

FIRE BRIDGADE ORGANIZED AT THE BONNER-WORTH

Aroused by the recent fires to a sense of the need of an organized fire fighting body for the Bonner-Worth factory for the protection of both the lives of the employees and the building, Mr. T. Turcotte, 304 Cross street, instigated a movement which resulted on February 9th in an organized fire brigade. A meeting was called at which the following officers were elected:

The Officers.

Hon. Presidents—Messrs. Dyson and Edgar Worth and J. Bonner.
Hon. Vice-Presidents — Mrs. D. Worth, Mrs. E. Worth and Mrs. J. W. Worth.
President—J. W. Worth.

Financial Sec.—A. Pilling.
Recording-Sec.—W. Tinker.
Chief—T. Turcotte.
Asst.-Chief—F. Travis.
Captain—Jas. Derocher.
Executive—Messrs. J. Derocher, G. Milton.
Active Brigade — T. Turcotte, F. Travis, J. Derocher, J. Emmett, G. Milton, R. Black, A. Butcher, J. Harrison, R. James, D. MacGregor, Grant and Elliott.
Sub-Committee—T. Turcotte, F. Travis, J. Derocher, R. Black, R. Begley.

Up-to-date Equipment.

Mr. Turcotte is delighted at the splendid response made by all of the factory, who were asked to assist in the movement. All were satisfied to help in so splendid a movement. Mr. Bonner donated a handsome cheque toward the up-to-date equipment which has been ordered and which includes complete rubber equipment for the brigade, 400 feet of hose to be added to what is already on hand, hatchets, extension ladders, wrenches, etc.

Fire Drill.

Fire drill will immediately be started at the factory, by which Mr. Turcotte expects to empty the factory in 40 seconds, and a new building for the latest and perhaps most important innovation will be built during the summer.

First Aid.

First aid classes will also be added to the fire drill, under the direction of Miss Frieda Graham.

LAWLESSNESS IN IRELAND

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The newspapers continue to print reports of seizures of land and other acts of lawlessness by the Sinn Feiners in Ireland. Henry Duke, secretary for Ireland, has not resigned, and it is understood that he intends to stand by the Irish convention until the end. He is credited with the opinion that much of the present lawlessness is due to an organized conspiracy against the convention.

Peterboro' Secures Permission To Issue Debentures For Construction Of Hunter Street Overhead Bridge

Private Bills Committee Approves of the City's Private Bill—City Trust Commissioners Will Have to Stay on the Job or Resign in Favour of Somebody Else.

GENERAL VOTE SYSTEM

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner.)

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—The Private Bills Committee this morning decided to permit the City of Peterborough to change the system of voting for the city council from the ward system to a general vote of the ratepayers. A by-law of the city providing for the issue of $280,000 of 30-year debentures for the construction of two bridges over the Otonabee River was also approved, as was the proposal that any commission of the Peterborough City Trust who absents himself from three consecutive meetings of the commissioners shall vacate his seat, the city council is given permission to appoint another in his stead.

Sinking Funds.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—A large deputation from the City of Peterborough, consisting of Mayor Duncan, G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor; Ald. M. McIntyre, Ald. A. A. McIntyre, City Clerk Armstrong, and E. H. D. Hall, were on hand before the Private Bills Committee to-day when the Peterborough bill came up for discussion. Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P. of Peterborough, introduced the deputation. All the clauses in the bill were reported.

George Gooderham, M.P.P. for southwest Toronto, was strenuously opposed to the proposal to elect the members of the City Council from the city at large instead of by wards. But the clause was carried, and instead of twelve aldermen there will be only ten. Mr. Gooderham objected to the plan whereby only five aldermen are elected every year for a period of two years. The city was given permission to change the length of time on the sinking fund for the high level bridge opposite the Quaker Oats factory from 20 years to 30 years. The bridge is to cost $280,000. The City Trust Commission will be allowed to use the sinking funds until they are needed, to build stores on the land that the Commission owns.

NO HOPEFUL SIGNS OF PEACE YET IN BALFOUR'S OPINION

British Foreign Secretary Says That Nothing Has Yet Happened to Make Diplomatic Efforts Fruitful For Good Results

REPLIES TO HOLT

Canadian Press Despatch:

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Foreign Secretary Balfour replied last night in the Commons to the criticisms of his recent speech concerning Von Hertling and Count Czernin, made by Richard Holt, the radical member.

Mr. Balfour maintained his previous position that nothing had yet happened to make diplomatic efforts fruitful for good results.

He added: "I say it with profound regret, but I think that all indications are that we have not yet had that happy stage and it is that conviction which makes me feel that the clouds of war are still towering over the civilized world.

There is no clear obvious direction in which such sunshine of approaching peace can make itself felt.

May that time come soon.

But we should be deceiving ourselves in the case of Von Hertling's speech if we took that sublime view."

NEW ROYAL THEATRE WILL BE A BEAUTY

Mr. Pappas Arranging to Commence Building Operations Soon

The new Royal Theatre, which will replace the old building recently destroyed by fire, will be the finest picture house between Toronto and Montreal. Mr. Pappas has had plans prepared which will give the citizens of Peterborough something entirely new in theatre construction. Everything necessary for the clear presentation of films and the comfort and convenience of his patrons will be put into effect, at the same time producing an artistic effect to the street front that will improve the block in which it is located very materially.

The theatre will be built with pit and one balcony. The pit will accomodate six hundred and the balcony four hundred, or one thousand chairs in all. Work will be commenced about the 15th of March and the first show will be given about the first of August.

PRIVATE BILLS COMMITTEE HEARS BRIDGE DISPUTE

Peterborough County Disclaims Any Responsibility Regarding Bridge Over Burnt River at Kinmount--Railway Board to Report

ARGUMENT IS HEARD

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28. — R. J. McLaughlin, K.C., of Toronto, represented the township of Somerville, when the petition of the township to have the bridge on the Bobcaygeon road across the Burnt river at the village of Kinmount declared to be a bridge in the boundary line between the Counties of Victoria and Peterborough was heard before the Private Bills committee of the Legislative today.

Mr. McLaughlin claimed that the bridge was used by the County of Peterborough as much as it was by the County of Victoria. He claimed that the road was a deviation of the Bobcaygeon road and said that Chief Justice Wilson had upheld that the claim was a deviation, but had decided against the County of Victoria.

Replying to a question asked by Tom Hook, Mr. McLaughlin said that the bridge was about 130 feet long and was worth about $4,000.

Don't Want to Make Law.

"We don't want to make law here," said Hon. I. D. Lucas, chairman of the committee, but if you are unable to enforce the law as it now exists, we are willing to seek a remedy for you.

Mr. McLaughlin said that in his decision the Judge had maintained that the road was the main road of the village of Kinmount, but he claimed that the road was part of the Bobcaygeon road before the village of Kinmount came into existence.

E. A. Peck, representing the County of Peterborough, said that the county had never assumed any responsibility for the bridge. He said that there had already been two law suits, and in both cases it had been decided the county was not responsible.

Would it be equitable if we threw aside the decision of 1894 and allowed you to go to the courts and have the case determined in the law that exists? Mr. Lucas asked Mr. Peck.

I don't want it opened up, said Mr. Peck.

Why not send it to the Railway Board? suggested V .A. Sinclair, South Oxford.

Mr. Peck maintained that the road was not a deviation of the Bobcaygeon road.

It was decided to ask the Ontario Railway Board to make a report, and the case would be heard by the Private Bill's committee next year.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

CAPT. BAILEY IS ARRESTED

Officer Who Made Sensational Statement at Prohibition Convention is Apprehended

(Special to The Toronto Star and The Peterborough Examiner)

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—A sensation developed at the meeting of the Dominion Alliance to-day when Capt. G. T. Bailey was called outside Massey Hall where the meeting was in progress and arrested by the police for his alleged statement at the Prohibition Convention yesterday that on Christmas day last more than ninety per cent. of the Canadian forces at the front were drunk.

He was at 12:30 brought before the Police Magistrate and the charge against him read stated that he had "by word of mouth spread reports and made statements tending to prejudice the recruiting of His Majesty's forces."

This was evidenced by the fact that after the police had taken Bailey to the station the meeting passed a sweeping resolution asking the Minister of Militia to investigate Bailey's charges.

Bailey was remanded without making any plea.

The arrest was effected without any of the one thousand people in Massey Hall knowing of the occurence.

A Fine of $5,000 is provided for conviction on this offense.

Bailey is an officer who got only as far as England as an officer of the A.M.C.

Captain Bailey came from the vicinity of Cochrane, Ont. He went overseas from the London Military District, but on arriving in England it is said was found to be physically unfit for service in Flanders.

In addition to a fine of $5,000, imen for the offence of which Captain en for the ocence of which Captain Bailey is charged.

A JUSTIFIABLE COMPLAINT.

The Veterans of Kingston are protesting against the appointment of ...pt. Tom Flanagan as Inspector of ...minion Police for this Military ...strict. The Kingston returned men ...lieve that the position should be ...en to a man who has seen service ... the firing line and their protest ...ll undoubtedly be endorsed by other ...terans' Association in No. 3 Dis...ct.

...Capt. Flanagan is a splendid fel... widely known to sportsmen as ... manager of Jack Johnston and ...Tom Longboat, and a genial, cap... gentleman, but all these good ...alities do not justify his appoint...nt. The position is one that should ...perly go to an officer who has ...n invalided home from the front. ...ere are many such men available, ...d The Examiner believes that the ...plaint of the Kingston Veterans ...well founded.

HARD ON LAKEFIELD.

The residents of Lakefield, while ...preciating the fact that the cutting ... of train services and the curtail... of others is made necessary ...roughout the country by the present ...ndition of things primarily due to ... war, and willing to accept ...r share of the inconveniences ...ising as a result, feel, however, that ... situation in which they will find ...emselves after this week, might be ...tified if the facts were presented ...the War Railway Board.

...n Monday next there will be only ... train to Lakefield, leaving Peter...ough at 12.15 and returning leav... Lakefield at 1120 p.m., making ...mpossible to get to Peterborough ...back to Lakefield the same day. ... a trip to Toronto will readily con... three days where before it was ...ible to do it in one.

...is understood that an effort will ...made to, if possible, better the sit...tion from a Lakefield standpoint, ...the Railway War Board will be ...eviewed at an early date.

MORE DAYLIGHT.

...hen Sir George E. Foster intro...ed his daylight savings measure ...the last session of parliament, it ... practically "laughed out of ...rt." So cool was its reception that ...George withdrew the Act. ### A RECKLESS STATEMENT.

Capt. Bailey, A.M.C., if the press reports are true, deserves to be taken in hand by the authorities. Asked to speak at the Prohibition Convention, in Toronto, yesterday, this officer made the statement that at Christmas ninety per cent. of our soldiers at the front were drunk, and that if the Germans had attacked they could have got through. "I will not vouch for this statement," the officer is quoted as saying. In the name of common sense, if this Capt. Bailey had not proof of what he said, why did he give utterance to such a scandalous attack upon the boys at the front? The charge is too ridiculous to be considered and most people in Canada will applaud the outburst of one of the delegates who characterized the officer's statements as "abominable lies."

The convention showed its good sense, too, by passing by a standing vote a resolution declaring that "We as a convention, enter our protest and assert our disbelief in the report of the statement made to-day in reference to our soldiers."

Who is this Capt. Bailey? It looks like a case for the military authorities to busy themselves in at once.

Note.—Since the above was written, Capt. Bailey has been arrested by the Toronto police.

CONTROVERSY IS CLOSED.

The controversy over the grant asked for by the Veterans is apparently closed by the action of the Council in definitely refusing the request of the returned men, and as far as the newspaper battle over the subject is concerned, The Examiner believes that it has gone far enough. The ground has been pretty thoroughly covered on both sides of the question and after to-day the Examiner has decided not to prolong the argument by publishing articles from either side, reserving the right, of course, to publish any discussion on the question that may come up at meetings of the City Council of the Great War Veterans' Association. A number of communications concerning the incident, sent in to The Examiner, have not been published because it was felt that it was not fair play to allow any one to attack either side under a nom de plume.

The Council was undoubtedly sincere in its belief that the present was not the proper time to make the grant to the veterans. With that opinion the Examiner does not agree, but the matter is closed and there is no use in dragging the controversy out to any greater length.

EVADER STILL ESCAPES.

The Government is sending out a long list of questions to be answered by the men in Class One under the Military Service Act. The idea is to investigate the different cases again, and comb out of the exemptees more material for the army. There is little fault to be found with that method, except that once more the real slacker, the man who evaded or ignored the Military Service Act escapes. The campaign is directed only against the men who complied with the law, who registered, and who for some reason or other were granted exemption by the tribunals.

The public would like to see similar vigour exercised in the locating of the defaulters. It is not fair play or British justice to permit young men who have wilfully and deliberately scorned the law to walk around in multi-laughing in their sleeve at their fellow citizens who came forward at the nation's call and obeyed the Act as the recognized law of the land. There are heavy penalties prescribed under the act for the employer who keeps in his employ a man who has failed to register. Throughout the Dominion there must be many defaulters at work, and yet so far as is known there has not been a charge laid under this section of the Act.

Ontario, with her glorious record of voluntary enlistment, has already been heavily drained by the Military Service Act. The people in this Province have a right to demand that before the list of exempted men is curry-combed for more soldiers, that every effort be exhausted to land the slackers of Quebec or other sections into khaki.

FINLAND, TOO.

(New York Times.)

"German troops land in Finland." Of course they do. Did Finland imagine she would be allowed to keep that independence she has been asserting? She lies above the Gulf of Finland, Petrograd below it. Germany intends to have Petrograd. Would it be at all workmanlike to take the lower jaw and leave the upper? She must have both sides of that gulf.

This is a case where Germany cannot attain her ends by waving the "self-determination of peoples" in the air, for the Bolsheviki admit the independence of Finland. So she does not wave it; she proceeds with an ostrich-like caution; all she wants to do is to help the Finns restore order. For that purpose the backbone of her first expedition is composed of Finnish soldiers who have served in the German Army. They go there to restore order under German auspices and make plain to their home-staying brethren that altruism of Germany's intentions. The second expedition — that will be another story.

Finland is doomed to fall into the German maw as surely as Courland, Poland, Lithuania — yes, and the Ukraine is merely a fiction to be kept up as long as Germany permits. The sweep of the German arms is vast, and their aim is no longer in doubt. It is to take, not this country and that, not a bite here and a bite there, but every inch of what used to be Russia that can be taken and stowed away before the Spring weather makes it necessary to concentrate on the west. The immense opportunity opened by the fall of Russia is evidently what has caused the postponement or entire abandonment of the advertised drive in France, and it is as likely as not that if there is any drive it will not be a German one. Germany is in the position of a bandit who, preparing to enter on an arduous and doubtful combat with an armed traveller for the possession of his wallet, suddenly sees another traveller drop a bushel basket crammed with treasure.

The mad haste with which Germany marches eastward, the grabs she makes simultaneously in all directions, are easily accounted for. She must seize all the Russian plunder before Spring and the reawakening of the west. Any excuse is good enough to hang a dog. She will assure self-determination to Courland, drive the "Bolshevist border hordes" away from Lithuania, suppress anarchy in Finland — any pretense that comes handy will do; the one thing needful is to get all these countries harvested and in the barn before the shower.

And then what? Will she, with a fine gesture, offer to make peace and withdraw her troops from France and Belgium if the Allies will let her keep the loot she has taken from their false friend Russia? Or, drunk with conquest and mad with self-confidence, will she undertake to keep the east and win the west as well? One alternative is about as objectionable as the other, but one of the two is surely what she has in store for us; and we can only wait, probably not long. And whether she offers us a dishonorable compromise or more desperate war, our answer is Petain's. Whichever way she tries to go, she shall not pass.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Dental Hockey Club should be strong on the pull and they will need it all to extract a victory in Kitchener.

Capt. J. H. Burnham is not in favour of the daylight savings movement which will commend the system to many people.

The questionaires to be sent out by the Government will provide a lot of information—the most of which the authorities already should have in their possession if the exemption forms were preserved.

There is nothing peaceful about the controversy over the appearance at the Prohibition Conference in Toronto of William Jennings Bryan, who once lectured here on "The Prince of Peace."

The Veterans of Kingston have found a way to partially, at least, solve the fuel problem. Capt. Mouck has offered them all the beech and maple they can cut, free of charge, and sawing bees will be organized to take advantage of the offer.

The joy bells will ring in Berlin again. The Huns have torpedoed an hospital ship.

The Co. Sergeant-Major

HIS DAY'S WORK IN THE TRENCHES

By Lieut. J. P. Morton

The darkness is still unbroken by dawn when the Company Sergeant-Major wriggles out of his water-proof sheet shelter. He makes his way along the front occupied by the four platoons, to see that all is in order, and the sentries alert. He chats for a minute or two with the platoon sergeants, and then goes on to Company Headquarters, where he meets the Company Commander.

At stand-to they make a tour of the trenches together, and the Company Sergeant-Major sees that the sentries for the ensuing day have been detailed and posted. After stand-down he supervises the preparation of breakfast, and the cleaning and oiling of rifles. He then goes back to his own breakfast. He has scarcely begun to eat when a man comes in hurriedly to report that a sap-head has been blown in by a trench-mortar shell. The sergeant-major gulps down some tea, and makes his way to the sap, where he superintends the repair of the damage. Then he goes back to his shelter where he finishes the remains of his stone-cold breakfast.

After breakfast he attends the rifle inspection of each platoon by its own officer, and sees that the platoon sergeants have told off the various parties to their work for the day. He receives the sick report, and makes out a fresh roll for the Company Commander.

Trench stores now arrive, carried up by one of the companies in support. He checks them and allocates them, and sends in a report as to their arrival. There follows a tour of the trenches with the Company Commander, to see that the work is in progress. He goes back to his shelter and compiles an indent for trench stores for the next day, and ammunition; this he submits to Company Headquarters. "Dinner Up!" He watches the stew being served out, satisfies himself that it is fairly shared, tastes it, and notes any complaint there may be.

While he is hastily eating his own dinner a runner comes from the Company Commander, ordering an inspection of gas helmets, emergency rations, and field dressings for two-thirty. He warns platoon sergeants, and tests his own gas helmet, and examines his emergency rations and his field dressing. He goes round each platoon with the Company Commander, noting on paper any deficiencies, or anything that may need replacing. He afterwards copies the list out neatly. Having again inspected the work in progress, he sees the water-carrying and ration parties told off, and supervises the serving out of tea from a large steaming dixie.

At stand-to he goes round with the Company Commander. Patrols, listening posts, wiring parties are told off. Every man is told where the very-lights and other signals are kept. At stand-down the indefatigable Sergeant-Major returns to his shelter, and lights his pipe with a contented smile. Suddenly a gas gong sounds on the adjoining battalion front. The men stand-to with masks on. The Sergeant-Major gives brief orders to each Platoon Sergeant as he goes around. The patrols and listening posts are brought in. He seems to be here, there, and everywhere. The gas shell bombardment ceases, and the men stand down.
